Record Number of Auto Tags Issued Here

James J. McCann, the local motor vehicle agent, has been kept busy during the past few days and has issued approximately fifteen hundred drivers' licenses and about thirteen hundred and fifty auto tags. He has also issued over fifty motorcycle tags, indicating that this sort of vehicle is very popular in this vicinity.

Mr. McCann stated this morning that the proceeds registered on the three days, December 30, January 2 and 3, were a little over six thousand dollars and that the proceeds for the same three days of last year amounted to about four thousand dollars, making a financial increase of two thousand dollars, an advance of thirty-three per cent. According to a new law, all applicants for permits to drive a motor vehicle must pay an application fee of fifty cents.

Efforts to secure from Mr. McCann the statement that there were more "flivvers" in Plainfield than any other make of car were futile. The local agent was of the opinion that the people of Plainfield were about equally divided in their choice of cars, although he admitted that there were numerous "Flivver" tags issued.

An office has been established on West Fourth street, adjoining the I. F. Hersh property and a large crowd thronged the place each day. Through the courtesy of Chief of Police Patrick S. Kelly an officer has been stationed at the office and the best of order has been maintained. As early as Tuesday, Mr. McCann's supply of drivers' tags ran out and it was necessary to secure another consignment. All of which points to the fact that Plainfield and vicinity is in a wave of prosperity.

Unless additional markers are shipped to him State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles William L. Dill said today it may be necessary for him to issue temporary paper tags for 1917 licenses. His supply is running low he asserted, and the reserve plates may be all taken.

Through the early preparations made by Mr. Dill, however, New Jersey is much better equipped than many other States. Vermont, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have been required to extend the period for the use of 1916 licenses. Scarcity of steel is given for the delay at the factories.

Mr. Dill's department has already issued tags for 60,000 cars. The commissioner asserted that conditions at some of the largest agencies were intolerable Saturday, when employees had to remain on duty throughout the night to handle the great lines that awaited until the last hour to buy their markers. By employing automobile trucks and rushing them to different parts of the State Saturday, Mr. Dill was enabled to meet the demand that arose at the distributing points.

Hitch Occurs In Work On New School

The Emerson Avenue School, which has just been completed by the Board of Education to relieve the congestion in the East End of the city, will not be open for public inspection for sometime as the Manhattan Engineering Company, which had the electrical contract, has been declared bankrupt. This is the same company whose work on the new City Hall is being completed by the local firm of Hyder & Graves. At the present time the electrical contract for finishing the work on the new school has not been given out, although Hyder & Graves were authorized to complete as much of the work as was necessary to permit the continuing of the general contract. This necessitated an expenditure of about $200, according to Mr. Graves.

Although the school is now being used by the children of the East End of the city, it cannot be obtained for meetings in the evenings. The fact that the electrical equipment is lacking does not hamper the work of the teachers or children, but it does regard the public inspection which is a prominent feature of all school openings in this city and in which the citizens of any community take natural pride. Most of the children who are now in the new school were transferred from the Lincoln School on Berckman street and from the temporary school which has held its sessions in the building formerly occupied by the Netherwood Reformed Church Society. The teaching staff is as follows:

Miss Bertha M. Nelson, kindergarten; first grade, Miss Addie D. Eastman; second grade, Miss Josie Phelps; third grade, Miss Allie T. Eastman; the two fourth grades in charge of Miss Olive B. Griggs, and Miss Minnie Margery. Miss Allie Eastman will be the head teacher.

George Graves, of the firm of Hyder & Graves, stated yesterday that it would take any electrical contractor six weeks to complete the work. The actual work would occupy a month's time, while two weeks' time would be required in which to secure the necessary materials.

Machinists' Strike Threatened Here

A rumor that has been prevalent for the past few days about the city and which, if true, may cause a complete tieup of Plainfield's largest manufacturing concerns, is that the machinists are about to declare a strike because certain demands they have made have not been entirely met. The exact nature of the difficulty that is existing between the various concerns and their men is not known as the officials of the factories concerned will not have anything to say and the local Machinists' Union has not taken any official action and will therefore not say definitely what the controversy is over.

It is understood that all of the concerns throughout the city have agreed to meet the advances of their men with the exception of the Scott Printing Press Company. When talking yesterday with an official of the company, a Record reporter could obtain no information as to the course which would be taken, although admitting that the matter had reached the ears of various ones connected with the company. It was said that it was only in the form of a rumor and had so far been ignored.

If the employees of the Scott concern do go on a strike present indications are that the tieup of machinists would go out by way of sympathy. If that were the case it would mean the quitting of four or five thousand men out of work.

An official of another large concern in the city was of the opinion when approached on the subject that under present existing conditions it would be impossible for any plant in the city to stand a strike. It would be cheaper to meet the reasonable demands of their men and continue the plants going at full force than to have them closed down at the present time. Nearly every shop is working full time.

Commuters Pay $15,000 Ticket Money Monthly

Plainfield is the "hotel" for New York business men. That fact has been most clearly demonstrated during the past few days by the unusual demand for commutation tickets. According to Ticket Agent Frederick H. Stein, despite the fact that the city of Plainfield is served by only one railroad, there are over two thousand commuters. Of these seven or eight hundred come from the Grant Avenue station, with about two hundred others taking trains from Clinton Avenue. It is estimated that about twelve hundred or more residents of this city commute to New York and Newark daily, taking trains from the North Avenue and Netherwood stations. Mr. Stein stated this morning that the demand for commutation tickets has increased surprisingly during the past year. Estimating the increase at five hundred would not be incorrect.

That this city has its advantages is well known and the fact that each month witnesses a pronounced addition to the ranks of the commuter indicates that the close proximity of the metropolis has had its effect. The commutation rate from Plainfield to New York city is $7.85 per month, the rate to Newark is a little less. But estimating that there are two thousand daily commuters to New York city, the monthly receipts from Plainfield communication alone would total over fifteen thousand dollars. In other words, the city of Plainfield is worth fifteen thousand dollars a month to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, not considering transient traffic.

To the commuters of Plainfield it is necessary that the Jersey Central extend the best of service and the officials of the road are convinced that the service is of the best, although the commuter himself may dictate a change if a change is needed. It is estimated by Mr. Stein that commuting from this city actually begins at 6:53 each morning, although there are a number of local people who take earlier trains. The most popular commuting trains are the 7:21, the 7:55, the 7:55 and the 8:30. The last named is known as the "Millionaires' Express," so called, probably, because of the leisurely hour at which it pulls out of the local station. This train carries a club car, in which comfort predominates over 7:55, although not called a "Millionaire's" train is also an express and also carries a club car. There are only two club cars running directly from this city for the convenience of local people exclusively. The 8:59 express is known as the "Shoppers' Train" and gets most of its patronage from local women. Plainfield employes of the railroad state that commuting continues until 10:30 almost constantly.

The return service to this city is also good, the 5:10 and 5:30 express trains from Jersey City being primarily for Plainfield commuters.

Many Nationalities Take up Night School Study

Night school sessions at the Plainfield High School were resumed on Tuesday evening, after a week's vacation during the holiday season. Although the entire enrollment of students was not record on that evening, a surprisingly large number of students resumed their studies, despite the fact that existing conditions are generally regarded as tending to retard the work. Throughout the country it has been demonstrated that during the month of December a large majority of those attending night schools become negligent, not so much through their own fault but because of present social and industrial conditions. The fact that so large a percentage of the night school attendants in this city returned to their studies speaks well for the class of people taking advantage of the generosity of the citizens of Plainfield.

According to those in charge of the work, the present conflict in Europe has had considerable effect on the attendance at night school. A careful scrutiny of the roll-book determines the fact that Southern Europe has a larger representation than ever before and that Northern Europe's lead in this respect has not only been reduced, but has almost been obliterated. Nor is the enrollment confined strictly to European foreigners. Statistics show that there are more Greeks and Spaniards registered than ever before and that South Americs, especially Chili and Columbo, are well represented.

Gift For Past Exalted Ruler

A "Lodge of Sorrow" was conducted by the Plainfield Lodge of Elks Wednesday night in memory of Francis Charles Langhorne, a charter member of the order, who died last week. The customary memorial program was held and Past Exalted Ruler William N. Runyon eloquently eulogized the life of the departed brother.

Following the tribute to Mr. Langhorne the Wednesday night session was given over to the annual roll call, nearly 200 members responding to their names as they were read by John O'Keefe, a former Plainfielder, but now of Philadelphia, who was placed in the office of secretary when the past exalted rulers took up the various other stations. Past Exalted Ruler Runyon served as exalted ruler for the evening and he made the following assignments for the meeting: Esteemed leading knight, George O. Stevens; esteemed loyal knight, John F. Wessner; esteemed lecturing knight, John H. Cose; chaplain, Frank H. Smith; esquire, Lewis A. Wallgren and inner guard, Alfred S. Prudhon.

As an entertaining feature of the meeting Mr. Runyon and Mr. Stevens rendered a vocal duet and Mr. Runyon sang "Little Boy Blue." The latter presided at the piano for both numbers.

During the course of the evening Past Exalted Ruler Prudhon, whose term expired last year, was presented with a gold watch and chain by the lodge. The speech of presentation being made by Mr. Cose.

SON MAY SUCCEED FATHER.

With the retirement of William Addis as plumbing inspector for the city on February 1, after twenty years service the office will be left vacant for the first time since it was instituted by the city. Several have signified their intention of trying for the position, prominent among them being Mr. Addis' son, William H. Addis. Mr. Addis has successfully completed a course as contractor and has already filed his petition with the Board of Health, signed by many local plumbers.

TERMS OF WILL.

Dr. Walter B. Gunnison, principal of Erasmus Hall High School, and father of Stanley Gunnison, formerly of Plainfield, who died December 19 in Brooklyn, left "less than $10,000" to his widow, Mrs. Blanche E. Gunnison. Mrs. Gunnison and her brother-in-law, Herbert F. Gunnison, business manager of the Brooklyn Eagle, are named as executors. Will, executed in July, 1899, was written on an Erasmus Hall letter head. No mention is made of the testator's four children.

Gaston Classes Bauer's Bills as "Irregular"

Commissioner Hugh K. Gaston's report of his findings in the recent investigation of the freeholders was made available to the public Wednesday. The commissioner, in one paragraph, terms County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer's bills "irregular, not to say unlawful," while in another he has the following to say of the same bills: "I am obliged to find that these vouchers represent unlawful payments of the money of the county."

Answering the defence that the county engineer's excess charges were contracted in the relation of an independent hirer of men to the county, the commissioner holds the position untenable because he cannot see how an official, who is paid $4,500 a year by the county, could turn around and become an independent contractor as soon as there was work to be done. Furthermore, this stand is open to the objection that the county engineer, a county official, had furnished labor for county work, according to Commissioner Gaston's view.

The $320 bill of Charles A. Reed of Plainfield, for services rendered the Board of Chosen Freeholders previous to the order for the investigation, and which has not been paid because of Freeholder Elias F. Applegate's protest against its legality was not passed upon by Justice Bergen.

"What have I to do with this bill?" asked the justice when Mr. Reed asked him to give an opinion on the freeholders' right to engage him. "It is a matter for the Board itself since you were hired before the investigation was ordered." When Mr. Reed pressed the justice for a decision the latter again refused even to consider the bill as within his jurisdiction.

Tuesday afternoon County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt, who has held up the payment of the bill even though it was authorized by the Board, wrote to Mr. Koestler to ask if the latter intended to bring certiorari proceedings in the case, if not the county collector will permit the bill to take the course authorized by the freeholders and pay $320 to Mr Reed.

Justice Bergen in part said:

"Whether or not any member of the Board has under this subject violated any statutes of this State, a condition exists in reference to this matter of which the taxpayers of this county should be informed. There is a certain corporation known as the Lawrence Cement Company having stockholders in the county of Union. Henry Krouse, the chairman of the committee on grounds and buildings, and also chairman of the committee on county roads, is a stockholder in this company; so likewise is Jacob L. Bauer, the county engineer, and so also is George W. Bauer, the treasurer of the C. H. Wilson Company, which does a very large part of the county work. Mr Krouse is a father-in-law of Jacob L. Bauer, and George W. Bauer is a nephew of Jacob L. Bauer. The selling agent and vice president of the Lawrence Cement Company in Elizabeth is Frank H. Smith, the county register of deeds.

"The chairman of the committee on roads O. K'd the engineer's bills and the Board of Freeholders passed such bills as are so certified as a matter of course. Now, while, of course there is nothing unlawful in this combination, can it be said that the people of the county are protected by that careful scrutiny as to correctness of bills, and the character of work done for the county as they should be? The irregular, not to say unlawful, bills of Jacob L. Bauer certified as correct by the road committee and paid by the county as hereinafter set out in detail are in answer to this pertinent inquiry.

"Prior to January 1, 1912, Jacob L. Bauer, the county engineer of Union county, was paid in lieu of all other compensation five per cent. of the cost of the work. This five per cent. amounted to about $14,000 a year, and out of this he paid his men and all other expenses.

"About the time of his last appointment the members of the then dominating political party held a caucus in Mr. Bauer's office and they agreed that Mr. Bauer for the service of his men should be paid as follows: $15 a day for a field party of three, $12 for a party of two, $6 for an expert office assistant, and $3-50 a day for a second-class office assistant.

"It is not pretended that the action of this caucus of itself was of any legal effect, or that the matter was ever brought formally to the attention of the Board, but it is claimed that the members of the Board all knew of it.

"Mr. Bauer admits that he did not pay his men or any of them these figures. He says he paid his men as follows: Weber, $27.50 a week; McCarthy, $24 a week; Rich, $18 a week; Lee, $17 a week; Conlan, $17 a week; Wheeler, $9 a week. All except Conlan, who is a stenographer, did field and office work.

"Counsel for Mr. Bauer strenuously argued that Mr. Bauer had a private business of his own as engineer and that his services were in demand not only by numerous citizens of Union county and elsewhere, but

P.H.S. Team In Debating League

The Plainfield High School team has entered the Interscholastic League of Debating fostered by Rutgers College. The local institution was represented in this league last year, defeating South Side High School, of Newark, and losing to East Orange High School. The East Orange team, composed of two girls and two boys, was defeated by Metuchen in the final contest at Rutgers College. Harold Terrill, at that time an instructor in the Metuchen High School but at present a teacher in North Plainfield High, coached the winning team. The local team has received word that its first debate in the Rutgers League will be with Bath Tth High School on March 3 and that the subject will be "Compulsory Arbitration." No information as to what side the locals will defend or as to where the debate will be held has been received.

It is also highly probable that the Ninth street institution will be represented in the Triangular Debating League of Union county, the district will be composed of teams representing Trenton, Elizabeth and Plainfield. A silver trophy to be won three times in the district offered to the winner in this league. The cup was not awarded last year, owing to a triple tie for honors.

Graduation from several Plainfield High School of much of its debating talent. Richard Borden, William Backer, Clarence Eder, Dickerman Williams, Oliver Wilson, Joseph Gallagher and Harold Neeley, all members of the debating teams, were among the 1916 graduates. Caryl Lincoln Davis, the only member of the 1916 debating team who is still in school, Dunavan and Horace Buskirk, another likely choice for this year's squad are both seniors.

PLAINFIELD LAWYER MUST SHOW CAUSE.

Charles J. McNabb, who formerly had his law offices in the Telephone Building on Park avenue, has been cited to show cause before Supreme Court on February 20, as to why he should not be punished for alleged unprofessional conduct. It is charged by Mrs. Mollie Conlan, Mrs. Ida A. Fountain, of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, that on July 21, 1915, McNabb obtained a loan of $2,400 on a property in this city, for which he gave her no security.

Later, it is charged, McNabb turned over a note deed to Mrs. Fountain for which no connection with the property on which he was supposed to have borrowed money. The reason for loaning the money without security, it is said, was based upon the implicit confidence Mrs. Fountain had in her son-in-law, but although she made frequent demands for the money her requests have been ignored, it is asserted.

OBITUARY

Ex-Mayor Clark's Funeral Tonight

The funeral of Robert Clark, Jr., aged seventy, formerly Mayor of North Plainfield, who died at his home on Jackson avenue Wednesday afternoon after a two weeks' illness with pneumonia, will be held at his late residence tonight at 8 o'clock. Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiating, assisted by Rev. Charles M. Anderson, rector of the First M. E. church. The Plainfield Elks' Lodge and Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., of which he was a member, will assist in the services. Private interment will be made to-morrow in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Clark's death followed that of his wife by one week, the shock of her demise, coupled with a severe at*tack of pneumonia*, helping to hasten the end. He was first taken ill with a cold several weeks ago, which later developed into pneumonia. He was one of the most widely known men in this vicinity and his death, following so closely that of his wife, was a great shock to his many friends.

He first came to the borough in 1888, when he moved to a farm on the outskirts. Throughout his entire residence in North Plainfield he took a great interest in civic affairs and a number of things that were of great benefit to North Plainfield are credited to him. He first entered borough politics when he became a member of the Board of Education early in 1900. Several years later he was elected a councilman and for five years served on that body as a member of important committees. In 1912 he was elected Mayor of North Plainfield on the Republican ticket and filled the office with credit during the three-year term. Owing to ill-health he was forced to retire to comparatively private life but he nevertheless continued his interest in mu*nicipal affairs*.

The deceased was born in Newark on September 9, 1847, and lived in that city until the time of his removal to the borough. After receiving a grammar school education, he was apprenticed at the age of fourteen to learn the hatter's trade in Bloomfield. In 1878 he secured a posi*tion as foreman with Yates, Wharton & Company, Newark hatters, and* remained with them until he left that city.

In 1872 he married Miss Amanda Martin. He was an active member of Trinity Reformed church and belonged to Eureka Lodge, F. and A. M., of Newark, and Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E.

Besides a brother, James Clark, of Newark, he is survived by three sons, Theodore Robert M. Clark, of New York; Albert M. Clark, of Newark, and Edward O. Clark, of the borough.

ABRAM WADE.

After a lengthy illness with complications due to the infirmities of age, Abram Wade, aged seventy-three, a Civil War veteran and lifelong resident of Scotch Plains, died at his home on Stanberry avenue, that place, on Tuesday night. The funeral will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Raymond B. Marshal, pastor of the Methodist church at Scotch Plains, officiating. Interment will be private.

Mr. Wade had been a resident of Scotch Plains practically his entire life and had taken a keen interest in civic affairs, having held office on various occasions. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in the Thirty-third New Jersey Volunteers and served throughout the entire conflict, being in a number of the war's most important engagements and several times wounded.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters. They are Rev. John Wade, Harry Wade, and Miss Florence Wade, living at home, and Mrs. C. B. Livingston, of Forty Forts, Pa.

MRS. HOLROYD'S FUNERAL HELD IN LOCAL MORTUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Holroyd, who died at her home on Arlington avenue, Wednesday morning, were held this afternoon at Higgins' mortuary on West Fourth street, Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace church, being in charge. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

Born in New York in 1891, she had been a resident of this city for a number of years. Besides her husband, she is survived by an infant child and two brothers, Edward and Charles Brett, of New York, and a sister, Mrs. William Williams, of Orange.

ISAAC N. TITUS.

The funeral of Isaac N. Titus, who died at his home between Clinton and Jutland Monday, was held from his late residence yesterday afternoon with only relatives and immediate friends in attendance.

Until his reemeval to Clinton, Mr Titus had resided for a number of years in this vicinity. Born in the Middle West, he came to this city when a boy. He later moved to Dunellen and then to South Plainfield, from where he moved to the place where he died. Although he had been ailing for several years, his condition did not become acute until a few days before his death.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four children. These are John, of Elizabeth; Etta, of this city; Mrs Lee Osborne, of New Market, and Ralph, who resides at the parental home. A brother, Samuel Titus, lives in Dunellen.

MRS. MAGGIE WILLIAMS.

After an illness of ten days, Mrs. Maggie Williams died Wednesday morning in Muhlenberg Hospital. She was sixty-two years old and had resided in this city for many years. The funeral will be held from her late home at 946 West Third street tonight at 8 o'clock, the Rev. D. W. Bellenger, of Hope chapel, officiating. Interment will be made tomorrow morning in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Williams' death comes less than a week after that of her husband and was due to pneumonia, the same as his. Taken ill with the grip two weeks ago, the couple continued about their daily duties as usual until a week ago when their condition became so serious they were unable to leave the house. Living alone, they did not send for a doctor or ask help of neighbors and it was only by *chance that their plight was discov*ered.

When neighbors learned the true condition of affairs they notified the police and authorities of Muhlenberg Hospital, but when they responded both refused to go to the hospital. Mr. Williams was finally induced to allow them to take him to the hospi*tal, but it was only by means of a* ruse that Mrs. Williams was gotten from the house. The scene was such a unique one that a crowd of several hundred people gathered about the premises watching the police trying for several hours to get Mrs. Williams to leave the house.

When they were received at the hospital their condition was such that practically all hope was given up of saving them. Mr. Williams died on December 28, two days after entering the hospital, and his wife passed away Wednesday. The couple leave no near relatives.

JAMES M. KILEY.

The funeral of James M. Kiley, who died on New Year's Day after a long illness, was held from his late home yesterday morning at 8 o'clock and later from St. Mary's church, where a solemn high mass was offered by Rev. Father Hennessey for the repose of his soul. Many relatives and friends of the deceased crowded the church, and there were many floral tributes, including a large set piece from the Insulating Company, where Mr. Kiley was employed. The pallbearers were Arthur Dunn, Frank Day, John Lavin, Cornelius Hennessey, Evar Peterson and John Sheridan. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

A large number of the members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, attended services conducted by Rev. Father Bogan at the home of the deceased Wednesday night.

Mr. Kiley resided in Plainfield for the past twenty-one years and prior to that time had made his home on Staten Island. He was for many years an engineer on one of the Staten Island ferryboats and after coming to this city was connected with the Union Water Company and more recently with the Rubber Insulating Company. He was well known all over the city and was a prominent member of the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus.

Beside one brother, John Kiley, of Stapleton, L. I., he is survived by eight children. They are Mrs. D. Doyle, John, James, Isabelle, William, Kenneth, Helen and George Kiley, all of this city.

WILLIAM J. STEPHENSON.

Word has been received in this city from Monroe, N. Y., of the death at that place on December 30 of William J. Stephenson, a former Plainfield resident. Fifty-five years of age, he had enjoyed excellent health until he suffered a stroke last Saturday, which was made more acute by Bright's disease. The funeral services were held at his late home Wednesday and were in charge of the Masonic Lodge of Monroe. Interment will be made at Monroe. Mr. Stephenson left this city about ten years ago to remove to Monroe. For a number of years he resided on Sixth street and was a caterer with an establishment on North avenue. He was well known to many Plainfielders and while a resident was an active member of Anchor Lodge.

Besides his wife and a sister, Miss Minnie Stephenson, of Front street, he is survived by seven children. They are Mabel, Albert and Millie, at home; Mrs. William Murray, of Passaic, and Mrs. Malcolm Krewson, John and William, all of New York.

MRS. ELLA CONE.

Private funeral services that were attended by only relatives and friends were held for Mrs. Ella Virginia Herman Cone at her late home on East Seventh street last night, Rev. John Sheridan Zelie officiating. Interment will be made in Brooklyn at the convenience of the family.

She was the wife of Thomas Cone and had been ill for only four days with pneumonia. Although she had been a resident of this city for the past twenty years, she was a native of Brooklyn. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and active in its various societies. Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Miss Mildred Cone.

JOSEPH DONNELLY.

Joseph Donnelly, aged fifty-seven, and for a number of years a resident of this city, passed away in Rahway on Tuesday. The funeral was held this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frederick Hoffmeister, of Netherwood avenue, at 8 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, where a requiem mass was offered for the repose of his soul.

Mr. Donnelly had resided in Plainfield for a number of years before removing to Rahway a short time ago and was well known in the East End of the city.

MRS. CHARLES WESTERVELT.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles Westervelt, who died Friday, were held from the late home on East Seventh street Sunday afternoon, Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment was made in the Field family plot in the Bound Brook cemetery. She was buried just three days after her husband, who also died of pneumonia after a short illness. Relatives and friends were in attendance and there were many beautiful floral tributes

TREASURER PRESENTED WITH A GOLD WATCH.

Harry Katz, the treasurer of the Plainfield Loan and Investment Association, was presented with a gold watch at the annual meeting held on Tuesday evening. Mr. Katz was given the token in appreciation of the services he has rendered during the past year and was re-elected treasurer.

The annual report, presented at the same timed, showed that the past year has been a most successful one more than $10,000 having been received by the association. Following the business session refreshments were served and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Jacob Shlaer; vice president, N. Berger; secretary, Mor*ris Bloch, and treasurer, Harry Katz*

APPOINTED REGULARS.

Thomas Bebout and Wendell Messmer, after serving six months as special officers, have been appointed regular members of the city police department. Three new men have been appointed as specials to begin their duties at once. A new rule has been put in vogue which calls for each special to pay $5 for their badge. When they are appointed as regulars half of that amount will be refunded and the other half put into the pension fund.

Delafield Birds Cause Comment

Entered in the poultry show, now running at the Madison Square Garden, are a number of birds belonging to Reine Delafield, of the Sunswick Poultry Farms, South Plainfield. These birds have taken several *prizes, including awards for excel*lence in the following classes: Special for the best display of South Carolina Buff Orpingtons, in one of the keenest competitions ever waged in the garden; first and second cock, second and third cockerel, first pullet and third pen.

The Sunswick Poultry Farms are located on Plainfield avenue, about a mile the other side of the city boundary line. There, according to Richard Oke, who has been a judge of the South Carolina Orpingtons for many years, Mr. Delafield has raised the best exhibition of "Buffs" in many years. The cock bird, which won the blue ribbon in this class, is the same one which captured first honors last year.

FLOYD T. WOODHULL REAPPOINTED BY MAYOR.

Floyd T. Woodhull was appointed a member of the Board of Education for another term by Mayor Leighton Calkins at a meeting of the Common Council on Tuesday evening. At the same meeting, the Board of Health petitioned the Council for an appropriation of $645.04, made necessary by the addition precautions taken to prevent the spread of the infantile paralysis plague last summer. The request was referred to the finance committee. The Lange & Haslem Company, contractors doing the sewer work, asked for an extension of time limit to July 31.

RELIGIOUS

MISSIONARIES SPEND FURLOUGH IN THIS CITY.

Rev. Jay W. Crofoot and Mrs. Crofoot, missionaries of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this city, are spending sometime in this city on a furlough from their work in the Far East. The couple were tendered a reception in the church Sunday afternoon at which the members of the congregation were present to wish them a welcome after their long absence at Shanghia, China.

Saturday morning Dr. Crofoot occupied the pulpit and interestingly described some of his experiences during his sojourn in China. Rev. and Mrs. Crofoot will probably not return to their charge before early spring and during the intervening time Dr. Crofoot will frequently occupy the pulpit of the church, especially until another minister is secured to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Edwin Shaw.

FINAL MEETING TONIGHT.

The week of prayer at the Crescent Avenue church will be concluded tonight, when James Kimball will have charge of the meetings. The subject will be "The Christian Institutions: Families, Schools, Colleges and the Young." Starting Tuesday night the meetings have continued nightly and have drawn large numbers.

RECEPTION TO PASTOR.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, formerly of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Mrs. Shaw were tendered a reception New Year's afternoon at the home of Mr and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, of Fifth street. After occupying the pastorate of this church for many years, Mr. Shaw's resignation took effect Monday and it was in honor of the couple that the affair was arranged. Mr. Shaw is to assume shortly the joint secretaryship of the Tract and Missionary Societies and until his successor is appointed to the Seventh-Day Baptist church he will frequently occupy the pulpit.

HOLY CROSS SERVICE.

The services at the Holy Cross Episcopal church on Sunday will be as follows: 7:30 a. m., Holy Communion; 9:30 a. m., Sunday-school and Bible class, 11 a. m., 7:45 p. m., evening prayer and a short address. The Woman's Auxiliary will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and St. Agnes' Guild will hold a meeting on Friday afternoon, January 12, at 3 o'clock.

PASTOR'S "AT HOME."

Rev. and Mrs. John Sheridan Zelie held an "at home" for the members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on New Year's afternoon. About three hundred members of the congregation took advantage of the occasion to call and wish their pastor and his wife a happy and prosperous New Year.

Noted "Pro" at Fanwood

The recently completed Shackamaxson Country Club, located in the Willow Grove section of Fanwood, and which includes many Plainfielders among its membership, is already beginning to make plans for next season, the first since its formation. Although musicals and week-end parties have been arranged for during the present winter the club officials are looking forward mainly to the coming of summer.

The first step toward next summer's activities was taken last week when it was announced that Cyril Walker, open champion of Indiana and known in golfing circles all over the country, had been appointed as the club professional. Mr. Walker has competed in a number of national tourneys and hereafter will do so under the Shackamaxson colors. It would not be surprising to see that a number of important matches are played on the club's superb eighteen-hole links during the coming year. Fresh from Siwanoy, where he won several hard matches in the Professional Golfers' championships, Mr. Walker will be at the club as soon as the weather permits the use of the links to start preparing his pupils for several tourneys.

At present workmen are engaged in putting the finishing touches to the various improvements included among the club's features. By the coming of warm weather it is expected the addition to the clubhouse will be completed. The grounds around Lambert's pond are also being improved. The shores are being walled with cement and a driveway will circle the pond. One section is to be made suitable for swimming and a number of summer and rest houses are to be scattered over various parts of the course.

Car Made Here For Auto Show

For the first time since the automobile made its advent as a means of travel, Plainfield is to be represented in the New York Motor Show which opens tomorrow by the entry of a car that is made in this city. Work was completed this week on the building of an exhibition model of the American Motors car at the corporation's factory on West Front street and has been shipped to New York. It will also be entered in the Chicago Motor Show which will be held the latter part of the present month.

The completion of the car to be entered in the two coming shows marks a new episode in Plainfield's industries. The American Motors plant is now ready to turn out cars on a regular schedule and it is expected that orders will be received at the motor shows to keep the full force busy for some time. Because of the lack of experienced help, the output at first will be small but each season will seen an increase until the demand is satisfied.

Although it was the original intention to sell the car cheaper, the officials of the concern have fixed the price at $1,285 and at that figure intend to produce a car that will compare favorably with any on the market. Containing a six cylinder motor, the machine will embody all the features on other cars and several new ones.

NEWARK TROOPERS AS INAUGURAL ESCORT.

This much of the program was decided Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the joint inaugural committee in Trenton called primarily to decide upon an allotment of tickets for the inauguration. It was tentatively agreed that each Republican member of the Legislature should receive seven seat tickets for the opera house in which the inauguration will take place and each Democratic member four seats. This plan of distribution was made subject to further consideration at the conference to be held at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, next Friday morning. The tickets will be sent out next Saturday.

Reports received by the committee indicated that about 5,000 persons will participate in the inaugural demonstration. The largest delegations according to present indications will be from Newark, Atlantic City, Camden and various municipalities in Hudson and Passaic counties. Garfield Camp, Sons of Veterans, of Trenton, will fire a Governor's salute of seventeen guns in the rear of the State House at noon on the day of the inauguration.

The Republican Club, of Trenton will keep open house all day, serving a luncheon which will help to relieve the congestion of hotels and restaurants always crowded on the occasion of an inauguration.

RECEIVES A PROMOTION.

The Rev. Father C. H. Carrick, who has been assisting the clergy at St. Mary's during the holiday season, received word, while here, that he had been appointed by Bishop Shahan, vice president of St. Thomas Hall at the Catholic University, in Washington. Father Carrick, a theological student at the university, was formerly stationed at the Indian missions in California.

H. K. DOANE HERE.

Hervey K. Doane, son of former Fire Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, is visiting his parents in this city and will remain here until March. Mr. Doane is a civil engineer, located at Miles City, Montana, for the past nine years. Mrs. Doane and baby have been spending the past year with Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, having come to this city before Christmas, 1915. They will return to the West with Mr. Doane in March.

SHIRLEY MASON, McClure star.

Shirley Mason, McClure star, one of the seven luminaries in the Seven Deadly Sins, the new McClure series of five reel features, never asks anyone to do anything that she won't do herself. She advises daily gymnasium work to improve the figure and to keep one's spirits cheery.

Every day Miss Mason exercises in the tiny gymnasium that has been fitted up for her in one corner of the McClure studios. The equipment is meager, consisting of a mat, a box and a chair. Anybody can do the same exercises in his own home, provided the family on the floor below doesn't object.

Miss Mason turns four or five flip-flops, a few cartwheels and a number of different calisthenic exercises every morning before she begins work. As a result she's always fit, and when in making a picture the villain throws her off a ship she merely smiles and philosophizes, "Well, anyway, it's fine for one's figure.

Miss Mason says that if you turn flip-flops you'll never need a doctor, to which George Le Guere replies "But you may need the undertaker."

WARFARE UNDERGOING SOME VAST CHANGES.

Infantry fighting is undergoing remarkable changes in the present war, due in great measure, of course, to the trench life. The recent French successes near Verdun, however, are said to have been chiefly due to two prime factors: The maintenance of a heavy artillery fire immediately in front of the attackers, a curtain or fence of fire; the advance being made a hundred yards or so every four minutes, with short intervals of infantry quiescence during which the gunfire is lifted to the next stage. The second new factor is the growing tendency to divide a regiment into three or four groups of fighters, first those carrying shoulder pieces that send small bombs to a considerable distance, along with whom go a second group using automatic rifles; third, the grenadiers, who hurl small bombs or hand grenades at the foe at close range, and who are expected to complete the enemy's demoralization. Should the foe, however, continue to hold his ground or to advance, there is the fourth group, the voltigeurs, men with bayonets, who may be joined by some from the echoe groups, to finish opposition by means of cold steel. It is interesting, also, to notice that this war has restored the word grenadier to its original meaning, a soldier using hand grenades, being by long accepted interpretation of a soldier of great stature.

MANUFACTURERS FIND TOOLS IN GOOD SHAPE.

The opening of the new year finds an excellent condition among machine tool manufacturers. Advance orders are booked heavily, delivery in many cases being for twelve and fourteen months. Motors are on a four to six-month delivery basis. Shell and munition machinery has eased up somewhat, and some has found its way into the second-hand market.

Steel is still tight and manufacturers are worried somewhat about the delivery of their orders. Labor scarcity has not shown any sign of decrease, skilled men laid off by munition plants having found work immediately in the non-munition plants where a great shortage had existed for months.

"Peace talk has had no effect on us," said a Plainfield manufacturer yesterday. "Our orders are heavy and are all for domestic consumption. We had some war orders, but we never made a cent out of them. That is the experience of a lot of others, too. So, as our home business grew, we let the war orders go entirely. I hesitate to say what effect peace would have, but I am sure it would not bother us immediately in the East. When foreign shipments start to this country there might be trouble in the way of a panic, but I think we are ready to meet it. Remember, most of our extensions have been financed by our earnings and not by loans in the banks. That is a factor that can not be ignored."

Codington Again County Attorney

William R. Codington, of the local law firm of Codington & Blatz, was reappointed county attorney by the Union County Board of Freeholders Saturday, as opposition to him was withheld because of an understanding that he will resign in a few months. Mr. Codington said it seemed to him as though the reappointment signified reassurance of the Board's confidence in him. He declared that the county attorney should be available to the members for legal advice and urged that certain days or half days of the week be set aside for that official to be in the court house for the purpose of advising freeholders.

Mr. Codington's suggestion is looked upon as one of several of the beneficial results of the Supreme Court investigation of county affairs. In the past it has been difficult for a member of the Board to get legal advice unless he wanted to telephone to Mr. Codington at Plainfield. A resolution by Freeholder Krouse fixed the salary of the county attorney at $3,500 a year, this amount to cover all office expenses. The county attorney during the last few years has received $600 annually for office expenses in addition to his salary of $2,000 a year, so the resolution really means a cut of $100.

LITERARY CLUB FOR BORO HIGH STUDENTS.

As suggested by Principal Albert Early, of North Plainfield High School, a Literary Club has been formed by the student body of that institution. A similar organization was started about three years ago by Instructor Paul Mertz, but owing to lack of interest, was not a success. A general meeting was held yesterday and every indication points to success.

Although the greatest rivalry along athletic lines has existed between Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools there has been but little antagonism along literary lines due to the fact that Plainfield High School was the only institution in which debating and other forms of public speaking flourished. Now that a literary club has been formed in the borough, it is thought that a debating battle, as well as a basketball contest, will be staged by the students of the two schools.

Miss Julia Rowley, of Grove street, has returned to Syracuse University, after spending the holidays at home.

Andrew McDonough, of Fairview avenue, is detained at his home with injuries sustained in a recent basketball game.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JANUARY 5, 1917.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE TO PLAINFIELD CITIZENS.

Mayor Leighton Calkins has once more placed before the citizens of Plainfield an intelligent, comprehensive and matter-of-fact survey of existing conditions, together with an exhaustive collection of recommendations designed to better the various departments of city government and civic welfare. In his annual message he deals with topics pertinent to the demands of the twentieth century progressive community and to the mind that has the interests of the municipality and its inhabitants at heart. His resume and criticisms are indicative of an intimate acquaintance with the machine that directs the local government and of a personal and impartial probe of all that concerns Plainfield. His initial term as mayor has been marked by strides of progress in all directions and the time and energy he has devoted to the office has made his administration one of noteworthy accomplishment. Fortunate, indeed, has Plainfield been in having the advantage of two years in this man's busy life and that the citizens at large have learned to place implicit confidence in him as an expert handler of the reins of municipal government is certain.

Every taxpayer owes it to himself to carefully read Mayor Calkins' message published elsewhere in this paper. Those in whose trust has been placed the discharge of city office duties should familiarize themselves with the level-headed suggestions he has to offer and put them to the acid test. Anyone who has entertained the slightest doubts regarding the quality of service rendered by Mr. Calkins needs but to scan this document to rid himself of the greatest or most meager misgiving. The time devoted to compiling a report of this calibre is but a passing example of the sacrifice Mayor Calkins makes 365 days out of each year to the direction of city affairs.

The Research and Advisory Commission, as suggested by Mayor Calkins when he first took office, recently became a reality. That this body will render a service of unlimited value in the performance of the two duties the name of the combine suggests is a foregone conclusion and the one regret centers around the fact that the appointments were not made a year or two ago instead of during the past two weeks. There are municipal topics that require careful investigation and attention such as members of the Common Council for reasons cannot devote. Oftentimes these issues are carried over from the terms of a faction of councilmen who support them to the terms of new and unfamiliar incumbents. The result is either a time wasting rehash or a curtailment of interest that eventually spells death for the propositions. It is proposed to make the life of the commission personnel a perpetual one insuring continued and connected fostering of all public questions. Much is expected of the capable talent appointed by Mayor Calkins.

The Park avenue widening topic needs no introduction to Plainfielders and Mayor Calkins makes plain his views on the subject. He classes it as an imperative community need and declares that there is no time like the present to make the improvement.

That certain projects considered by the Common Council should be submitted to the people for endorsement or rejection is the opinion of the mayor as well as a majority of taxpayers and he suggests the amendment to the election law providing the referendum as a remedy. The expense thus incurred would be money well spent, the results would be conspicuous at the outset.

Taken in its entirety the message of 1917 is self-explanatory; it deserves community endorsement. It sets a precedent for Plainfield mayors' messages.

PUT THE COUNTY PRISONERS TO WORK.

Supplementing the measures so often advocated by City Judge William G. DeMeza, Miss Harriet Townsend, superintendent of the Elizabeth Charity Organization Society, suggests a plan by which prisoners in the Union county jail may be put to work. For years past the confinement of criminals in Elizabeth has been more or less of a "tea party." Eating, reading, sleeping and calisthenics compose the day's program. Actual work is as foreign as squab on toast to the inmates. The problem of putting criminals to work has long been considered but it has been mighty slow in going into effect in this county.

To be sentenced to a term in Elizabeth is much to the liking of some prisoners who come before Judge DeMeza in the Plainfield police court. Particularly in the fall season of the year is it welcome for the culprit is thus assured of warm lodging and good meals during the cold days of winter. The shiftless idler looks upon the jail as a haven against wintry blasts and the gripping hand of starvation.

To put these offenders to work shoveling snow, cleaning streets, repairing roads or in other lines that would be beneficial to the county would relieve the congestion in the jail. It would transform the celled building in Elizabeth from a winter's refuge for satisfied parasites on county funds into something more or less to be shunned by the ordinary police court frequenter.

Miss Townsend and Judge DeMeza are champions of the work idea and they should be given the support of the entire county in bringing about a transformation. Miss Townsend describes her plan as follows:

"Back of Westfield there is a range of hills where a prison farm and a stone quarry could be established. Without a quarry I doubt whether a prison farm could be successful, for it is only during certain seasons of the year that the prisoners can do farm work. But with a quarry to be worked in conjunction with the farm Union county would soon find that a big saving could be effected.

"Now, if the man in jail should be put to work to support himself, and if the State should see to it that part of his prison earnings went to the feeding and clothing of his family, much of the present wretchedness could be avoided. As it is, the prisoner is getting comfortable board and lodging and a lot of warmth and sleep these cold winter days. And he does mighty little in return for all this from the State, while his wife and children appeal to the city for support.

"The freeholder have gone on record as favoring the project of a prison farm. The next step is for the county to secure a site. The best, I think, is at the foot of the hills back of Westfield, where a prison farm and quarry could be jointly operated."

SUFFICIENT GROUNDS FOR A PRESENTMENT?

According to the testimony of County Register Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, given on the stand in connection with the Union county probe of financial matters on November 16, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., also of this city, advised Henry Krouse, chairman of the Freeholder roads committee, that he saw "nothing wrong in the freeholder becoming financially interested in a concern in the position to supply materials for county road work." Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, in charging the January Grand Jury last Monday, declared: "Under the law no member of the Board of Freeholders has a right to be interested, directly or indirectly, in a company furnishing materials to the county."

Mr. Hetfield may not have known at that time that the concern in which Mr. Krouse contemplated purchasing stock, and in which both Mr. Hetfield and Mr. Smith are stockholders, would either then or eventually sell materials to the county but it is now record that it has done so and that Mr. Krouse was "interested." The Lawrence Cement Company has contracted and received money for county road work and if Mr. Smith's testimony is to be taken at its face value Mr. Krouse was badly misguided by the advice he is alleged to have received from the Plainfield lawyer, who was at that time assistant Union county prosecutor.

This is but one of the developments of the investigation now before the Grand Jury but it is a significant one and should at least result in the future assurance that no Freeholder will place himself in the same position as Mr. Krouse has.

"If you find anything irregular you should make a presentment," Justice Bergen charged the jury. "And if you find anything wrong you should present an indictment."

Whether a presentment or indictment will be the outcome remains to be seen but no matter how the Grand Jury acts the probe has accomplished its primary end in checking up county affairs and bringing county officials to their senses.

PARK AVENUE WIDENING SHOULD BE ATTENDED TO.

Now is the opportune time to launch a favorable strike on the Park avenue widening project. At no period in the history of the city has the improvement been in greater demand and if present conditions are allowed to prevail for another year those responsible for the delay will have the results of their neglect forcibly thrust upon them.

The sale of the "Kenney Corner" and the probabilities of altering the building thereon located should encourage whatever sentiment there has been in favor of the move. The cost would be comparatively small but the benefits derived from a wider Park avenue would be manifold. A firm interested in statistics recently made a personal count of the people passing certain corners of the town during the busy hours of a day and the total at the intersection of Park avenue and Front street eclipsed all others by a wide margin.

Those owning buildings along the affected territory could easily be made to see the ultimate value of remodeling the thoroughfare. The proposition is one for the new city Research and Advisory Commission to ponder over and we are confident that its reception will be marked by unanimous approval.

But a glance at the district mentioned will convince the most cautious taxpayer of the advisability of immediate action. Under existing conditions it is practically impossible to establish traffic regulations that will have the desired effect.

BUSINESS STREETS ARE NOT GARAGES.

Certain Plainfield autoists who persist in making garages out of the city's business streets should be given to understand that they are making nuisances of themselves and their cars and at the same time breaking the law. There are any number of machine owners who leave their cars on Front street or Park avenue for hours during the busiest periods of the day and evening. Oftentimes these same autos remain at a curb point for the entire day and part of the night. Other machines have to be driven around the obstacles and chauffeurs and drivers are compelled to jockey for positions in which to stop.

It is not sufficient to have traffic restrictions which force drivers to leave their vehicles on the right hand side of a thoroughfare; they should be given to understand that no special spot in the road belongs to them for car storage purposes. This also applies to the out of town shopper who brings his horse and wagon to the city and leaves it tied to the same pole seven or eight hours at a time.

Such conditions also emphasize the need of a city stable or storage shed where visiting autoists or horse drivers may leave their vehicles while attending to business in the city section. The farmer comes here to patronize Plainfield trade and his visits should be encouraged to the extent of providing a shed for his steed or car. It would be to the best interests of the merchant to see that such a convenience is provided and the Business Men's Association should find some effective manner in which to dispose of the subject.

TWO PLATOON SYSTEM SHOULD BE ADOPTED.

There has developed in Plainfield an opposition to the two platoon system for the local fire department as suggested by the Record several weeks ago, mainly on the ground that it will increase the tax rate. Those inclined this way, however, may rest assured that the very slight increase will not be of sufficient consequence to over-balance the good which will come from the adoption of the plan that has been tried and proved to be a remarkable success in other cities.

It will not be long before Plainfield will fall in line with other cities and put the question to the test and it is almost sure that the vote will be one decidely in favor of putting our firemen on a platoon system; incidentally increasing the department efficiency. The improvement is now being adopted in Newark; Pittsburgh has had it in force sometime, as have also Minneapolis, Kansas City and Buffalo. All of these cities are considerably larger than Plainfield but the manner in which the system has worked out in these places is proof that it is adaptable to any department.

POLICE CALL BOXES BEHIND THE TIMES.

Police signal boxes that offer all of the modern advantages of such department necessities have long been needed here and it now seems likely that the Councilmanic Police Board will take the matter under advisement and provide for their installation before the end of the present year. Mayor Calkins strongly recommends replacing the present boxes with modern ones and it will probably not take much to convince the Board members that the ones now in use are antiquated and unfit for use in the twentieth century police department.

At present the patrolman registers at regular intervals through the call box but these intervals are the only times at which he can be communicated with by headquarters. In other words he can call the station house but the station house cannot call him. A flashlight or whistle system will make it possible to summon him to the nearest box at any time in case of emergency. The present system could probably be brought up to date at a small cost.

BIG SUM PAID BY LOCAL COMMUTERS.

Plainfield's $85,0000, and possibly more, paid to the Central Railroad each year in commutation money is in excess of that contributed by any other town along the line for the same kind of service. This city has been classed as the "hotel" for New York's professional and financial leaders and well it might. Few individuals have probably ever stopped to consider the round figures but when all things are summarized it is likely that the revenue from this source nears the $100,000 mark each year.

In return for this sum Plainfield's commuters have a right to expect service par excellence and all the comforts to make the twice daily trip as easy as possible should be forthcoming. For the most part the schedule of commuters' trains is maintained as regular as possible but the Central Railroad officials should be responsible for their "on the minute" slogan at all times save when climatic conditions or emergency instances prevent.

WELL BALANCED COMMITTEES APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT BLATZ.

Plainfield councilmanic committees as selected by President Francis J. Blatz bid fair to accomplish the ends desired during the ensuing year. Particularly noticeable is the personnel of the license committee, one member of which has made positive his stand against the granting of any licenses. The same policy predominates throughout the remaining units and the general makeup is indicative of much time and careful consideration given by the Council president.

During the coming year many important problems of vital concern to the community will be offered to the Common Council for settlement and it is essential that well balanced committees be available for handling them.

During the past week the question of forum letters has been brought to the Record office on several occasions, the queries centering around the publication of the same. The Record will be glad to give prominence to all communications providing the name and address of the sender accompanies them. This information is merely for the benefit of the editor and the name of the senders will not be made public if the request to keep them out is made. Discussions on topics of interest to the community at large are solicited but letters dealing with personalities and matter of an objectionable character must be withheld for reasons obvious.

Just why a brick building that has been in the course of construction for more years than the average citizen can recall off-hand is allowed to remain an eye-sore to the public is hard to realize. Such a structure was started sometime ago on West Front, nearly opposite Grove street, by a prominent Plainfielder and has arrived by snail-pace stages at a point where it is nothing more nor less than an object having a degrading influence on the appearances of all surrounding business properties. Personal pride in his own city, if nothing more, should prompt the builder to hustle the work along.

• • • • •

Peculiar it is that certain Plainfield merchants who spend a portion of their time rooting for home trade have formed the habit of taking their circular printing to Westfield and other nearby places to be done. Insofar as their personal interests are concerned these businessmen are loyal supporters of the "Shop in Plainfield" slogan and they rise up indignantly at the mere suggestion of local residents trying the metropolis first. Printing in Plainfield is done at a price just as reasonable as can be secured elsewhere and the results are admittedly as good, if not better.

Why not add a bell hop and make the offer attractive enough to demand the attention of the corps of bums who annually look to the city jail as a haven against wintry winds?

GASTON'S OPINION

also by other municipalities; that he had a perfect right to hire out his men to the county for a reasonable compensation, and that the amounts charged were not only reasonable but customary.

"S. P. T. Wilbur, of Plainfield, a member of the Board, testified that the apparent profits that Mr. Bauer made on his men were in reality payment for his office expenses, use of his instruments, etc. When asked what the profit on the men was as compared with his office expenses Mr. Wilbur did not know and could not answer.

"There is a law on the statute books which reads as follows:

"'Section 726 of the municipal corporation act provides:

"'That it shall not be lawful for the Board of Chosen Freeholders, etc., to pay or disburse or pay out any of the moneys of the county, etc., unless the person claiming or receiving said moneys shall first present to the party or parties paying any such moneys a detailed bill of items or demands, specifying particularly how each bill or demand is made up and the date and the names of the persons to whom the amounts composing such bills or demands are severally paid, etc.'

"William R. Codington, of Plainfield, has been county attorney for upwards of twenty years. He is employed at a salary of $3,000 a year, and receives $50 a month for his expenses. His duties as such attorney, which are constantly growing, require a very large part of his time, and in fact necessitate the use of an assistant.

"However, the people should know in addition to the performance of his duties for the county, he has also taken a contract with the county, or a county institution, to supply milk to the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium which amounts to about $3,000 or $3,500 a year.

"It is true that the supply of milk to this concern is open to competition, and that Judge Codington was the lowest bidder, and it is not contended that the sanatorium could procure cheaper or better milk. It is a condition, however, open to the objection of a public official dealing independently with the county.

"Although outside the limits of this investigation, it developed at the hearing that Elias F. Applegate, a member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, has been in the habit of hiring prisoners from the warden of the county jail to work for him on his private contracts. The prisoners were returned to the jail at night, and were paid regular wages for their services. I have discovered no active, however, for this practice, and I understand that it has been discontinued.

"To recapitulate:

"I. The chairman of the road building committees, the county engineer, and the Winans Company which does a very large proportion of county work, are bound together not only by a close relationship, but also by a common financial interest.

"I believe, for the good of the county, that this combination should be broken up.

"II. Mr. Jacob Bauer's bills against the county for the services of his men should be revised to conform to the statute referred to, and the amounts charged should conform to the wages actually paid them.

"III. My conclusion is that in a settlement with him he should be charged with the amount of the unlawful bills, and should be credited with the wages paid his men while on the respective jobs.

"IV. The contract of the county attorney to supply milk to the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium should not be renewed, and in fact, should be discontinued as soon as possible.

"I might add that it appeared from the testimony of the county collector that at the end of the fiscal year, although there might be, and usually was, $10,000 or more of unexpended appropriations, only a portion of this, say twenty-five per cent., would be applied on account of the budget for the coming year, whereby 25c per $100 to be raised by taxation would seem to be more than necessary.

"The collector's explanation is that by having a large balance in the treasury unexpended at the close of the year, it becomes unnecessary to borrow in anticipation of taxes as early as would otherwise be required and that no money is borrowed until the unexpended balance is exhausted.

"I am inclined to think that the mere statement of the fact is all that is necessary so far as this report is concerned.

"There was considerable testimony taken, and many other public affairs investigated. Such other irregularities, if they could so be called, while I found were not of sufficient importance in my judgment to be the subject of criticism."

HIPP HOLIDAY CHEER.

It is interesting to obtain some little information as to where the crowds which patronize a Hippidrome spectacle during the holiday season come from. Twice each day during the past week the enormous playhouse with its 5,274 seats has been filled to its spacious capacity and no one knows whether they are resident New Yorkers or visitors from out-of-town. But occasionally some small test proves the destination from which these vast audiences assemble. Such an experiment was made this past week when a doll dressed by one of the principals was given to one little girl each afternoon. At such a time the name and address of the recipient is easily obtainable. It is a curious fact that in the six days just past the doll was won by a little New York girl but one day, the others went to little visitors from New Haven, Seattle, Louisville, Buffalo and Hoboken. Selecting these widely separate cities may have been mere accident, but the fact is significant.

HIPP'S BRIGHT NEW YEAR.

Thousands of people, 68,423 to be accurate, saw Charles Dillingham's pageant of a thousand delights, "The Big Show," at the Hippodrome last week, where the New Year was ushered in with an outlook of record prosperity and success. The great playhouse has never housed a spectacle which seemed to meet the popular demand of everyone, with its composite program of varied entertainment. As is the Hippodrome policy, a new novelty is added each week and the holiday bill on Monday will contain innumerable additions. Anna Held will alter her entire divertisement, introducing for the first time here Rubenstein's "Valse Caprice" with Alexandre Volinine and Beethoven's "Rondo" as a solo dance. The minstrel first part with its four hundred artists, the ice ballet with "two hundred pretty girls on ice" and all the other big spectacular features will be enlivened by R. H. Burnside with added novelty. Matinees are given daily.

"THE CENTURY GIRL."

Those who hear Elsie Janis discuss the 1916 ban and the high cost of living in "The Century Girl" do not realize perhaps that she is speaking from bitter experience. Five or six out-of-town friends dropped in on Miss Janis after the performance at the Century Theatre, New York, one day not long ago. In their honor, she arranged an informal dinner at a popular restaurant a short distance out of the city. When the waiter presented the check, Miss Janis gasped at its proportions. Then it was explained that her guests had ordered practically all of the egg dishes on the menu! Miss Janis scores one of the hits of the new Dillingham show with her cost of living epigrams. Her imitation of Will Rogers' rope gymnastics is equally successful.

STRAND THEATRE.

Mary Pickford will be seen at the Strand Theatre, New York, in her latest screen production entitled "The Pride of the Clan." Miss Pickford's appearance is always one of charm. No matter whether she is in rags, the silk linens of Butterfly or as the riot of colors from far away India, there is always the same charm, sweetness and winsomeness that makes her so appealing to every one. In "The Pride of the Clan" she portrays a Scotch lassie and when clad in kilts and with her golden hair thrown about her gracefully poised head, she is more beautiful than ever. It is a character too that holds out every opportunity to the star for making it one of the most popular parts she has ever created. In other words, it is an ideal Mary Pickford character.

The second and last installment of the Grenan war pictures will also be shown. This is the first time that any official and authentic pictures taken on the German war front have ever been shown in this country. The Strand management, in order to prove absolute neutrality, tried for months to obtain pictures from the German front as well as the allied war pictures, but only after Manager Edel visited the German Ambassador Count von Bernstorff, in Washington, was it possible to procure them.

Another picture of more than passing interest to be presented in a new comedy entitled "Did It Ever Happen to You?" in which Victor Moore is the star.

"THE CENTURY GIRL."

Doyle and Dixon, whose "Rube" dancing in "The Century Girl" has added much to their fame, have discovered that theatregoers want, not a reproduction of a character as it really is, but as they think it should be. For instance, a stage farmer must always stick his fingers into his overall suspenders, intermittently tap the floor with his heel and look as green as early spinach.

"Do farmers look that way?" laughs James Doyle, echoed by Harland Dixon. "Certainly not. They drive their own cars, dress better than the average resident of the Bronx, and know more about war brides than I could absorb in a year. But the farmers who live in the city and the city people who live in the country imagine that a rube does these things, so—well, we strive to please."

FORMER LOCAL HOTEL CLERK'S TRIAL MONDAY.

The first of a new series of trials on indictments arising out of the James W. Osborne-Ray Tanzer case in which the New York Federal District Court next Monday, when Franklin D. Stafford will again be tried on a charge of perjury. Stafford was chief clerk at the Hotel Kensington in this city, where Rae Tanzer swore she was taken by Mr. Osborne. He was tried in May, 1915, and was convicted, but the United States Circuit Court reversed the verdict.

Assistant United States District Attorney Hierbaechtel, who will aid William Rand, Jr., special prosecutor, said yesterday that no matter what the outcome of the trial might be, Miss Tanzer would be placed on trial again. She is charged with using the mails to defraud and with perjury. David and Maxwell Slade, her counsel, and Albert J. McCullough, a private detective, are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, an dRose and Dora Tanzer, Rae's sisters, are charged with perjury.

Boro Council Organizes For '17

At the organization meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council held New Year's afternoon Mayor William B. Smalley expressed himself as highly pleased with the way municipal affairs had been handled during the past year and held the opinion that matters would progress even more favorably during 1917. He made special mention of each of the borough's officials and in re-appointing them said that he did not think he could help a bit by putting new ones in their stead.

In his message to the Council, Mayor Smalley also announced several plans which he expects to have put in full operation in the course of the next few months. The first of them is the beautifying of Green Brook, something which the Mayor expects that the city of Plainfield will be willing to help with. As the first step in taking the borough part of the burden, he appointed a committee composed of Morris T. Van Arsdale, Henry Crofut White and Andrew Kenney to co-operate with any committee Mayor Calkins may appoint. Another idea which Mayor Smalley is fostering is the laying out of a municipal park, but beyond that information he will not say anything further, until after the consideration and after one of them has been chosen something more definite will be announced.

Billy Roche, Noted Referee, at The Plainfield Monday

Vaudeville will come into its own at the Plainfield Theatre today and tomorrow after having been displaced for the past week by other attractions and is fully up to the standard set by previous bills. The headline attraction will be "The Symphony Six," a sextette of musical artists that have few equals. They can play anything from a "jewsharp" to a piano, according to Manager Shannon form one of the best acts billed this season for the Second street pleasure house.

Langslow & Co., sharpshooters, is another attraction booked on the bill of the last two days of this week. Every member of the company is a crack shot and show some feats of marksmanship that look to be impossible. Three other excellent numbers will round out the vaudeville part of the program and will include a variety of amusements. The moving picture attractions for today are the best that have been featured at the local house in a long time. "The Crimson Stain Mystery," ordinarily a Wednesday offering, will be included on today's bill and the succeeding episode of "Pearl of the Army" will also be shown. The usual Universal comedies and the ever-popular Pathe Weekly will round out the program.

Arrangements are being made by Manager Shannon to accommodate the biggest crowd of the season at the Plainfield Theatre the forepart of next week. Although he has not announced the complete bill, he has secured two feature numbers that should prove a show in themselves. The first one will be "The Underwater Mermaids," a company of talented girl swimmers that claim they are the equal of any doing the vaudeville circuits. They give an exhibition including fancy diving, swimming and plunging with a large glass globe as the pool. The second attraction is a wrestling match, an innovation that Manager Shannon expects to find favor with local pleasure seekers. "Young" Mundy and "Young" Muldoon, two ambitious grapplers, have been signed to appear against each other, and "Billy" Roche, a well known referee, will render the decisions.

Second Period For Local Guard Units

The National Guard of New Jersey, including Company K and Troop D, of this city, this week began the second semi-annual period of instruction under the National Defense act of June 3, which provides payment for the officers and enlisted men. During the first semi-annual period, which ended Saturday, many of the Guard organizations have served in the federal service on the Mexican border and at their home stations as Guard organizations since their return from the border. Since the return of the troops from the border, however, these organizations found it practically impossible to live up to the letter of the law of the new regulations, which went into effect as soon as the first drill of the new scheme was started this week when the various commands of the New Jersey militia begin drilling.

To be eligible for full pay or rations amounts the officers and enlisted men will have to adhere to the following regulations:

"Officers and enlisted men must be present in uniform with their organization for drill or instruction at least one and a half hours' duration, exclusive of rests and interruptions, which constitutes one assembly.

"In order to receive the total authorized amount of pay for any one year officers and enlisted men must have attended a minimum number of forty-eight assemblies for drill or instruction.

"The minimum amount authorized to be paid is for twenty-four assemblies for any one year. If less than twenty-four assemblies are attended during the first semi-annual period no pay becomes due, but the number of drills attended during such first period will be reckoned with the drills attended during the second semi-annual period.

"When any man enters into an enlistment other than an immediate reenlistment he shall be entitled to an amount equal to the number of drills attended for that period, provided he attends a number of drills whose ratio to twenty-four is not less than the ratio of that part of the year so served to the whole year. For example, if a soldier's enlistment period begins one month prior to the beginning of a semi-annual period he must have attended at least two drills to qualify for pay, since the ratio of two drills to twenty-four is proportional to one month to twelve.

"For officers and enlisted men who have been in the service of the United States the period of service shall be reckoned from the day after they have been mustered out of the service of the United States. The cost of public property lost or destroyed by an enlisted man will be deducted from any pay due him.

City Plumbers Out on Strike

Failing to get the raise in wages they asked for, the local plumbers and steam fitters have gone out on strike and work throughout the city is practically tied up with little prospect of an early settlement. Three of the smaller contractors have come to terms with their men and are working but the remainder refuse to do so. The executive committee of the local union has held several meetings in the last two days but has not arrived at any definite conclusion.

The strike was called on Tuesday after the refusal of the plumbing contractors to raise the men from $4.40 per day to $5. George Tobin, one of the largest contractors in the city, refused to grant the request on the ground that he had heard nothing of the matter until the morning of the strike. It is said on the other hand, however, that the union sent letters to the various contractors stating the whole case three months ago.

The strike effects about sixty men. The plumbers contend that the high cost of living has forced them to demand an increase in wages.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

"Laugh week" is announced for the week beginning Monday afternoon, January 8, at the Columbia Theatre when Billy Watson and his Beef Trust aggregation will be seen. The title is said to adhere to the one feature that has always distinguished it among burlesque offerings and made it the most successful as a drawing card.

This is the appearance of the choicest of girls selected for their advoirdpols as a first requirement, and for their singing abilities as the second consideration. This peculiarity of Watson' Beef Trust, while furnishing much of the fun of the performance, is said to supplement an entertainment that is otherwise up to the standard of present day advancement in the character and quality of this form of amusement. The long cast of comedians and vocalists and an olio of novel vaudeville specialties, together with exhibitions of all forms of dancing is announced. Billy Watson heads the company and appears in his well known character.

WHAT SOCIETY IS DOING DURING WINTER MONTHS

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Golden Wedding Anniversary Finds Couple Hale and Hearty

Flitting in every respect was the observance by Mr. and Mrs. William Addis, Sr., of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding in Abrams' auditorium Monday night. With over one hundred and fifty of their relatives and friends gathered about them, including several of the original party of half a century ago, Mr. and Mrs. Addis mingled among their guests and thoroughly enjoyed the event. In order to receive all their numerous friends it was found that their home on Orange place was too small and the auditorium was engaged for the occasion.

Among those present were many who had been present twenty-five years ago when a silver anniversary observance was held. Mrs. Charles H. Welshpal, of Front street, who was one of the bridesmaids when the wedding ceremony took place in December 31, 1864, was in attendance while William B. Hazard, who acted as best man, was unable to get from his home in Bayonne. The remainder of those present when Rev. Stephen Parker married the couple in Christ Episcopal church, Elizabeth, have passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Van Doren, the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Addis, were also honored by those present as being the occasion of their eighth wedding anniversary.

The auditorium was pleasingly decorated for the event and dancing was enjoyed by all, the music being furnished by Squire's orchestra. A collation was served by Irwin Neighbor, Charles M. Raybert acting as toastmaster and introducing the various guests as they tendered toasts to the couple. Many beautiful gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Addis in gold, silver and cut glass. The Master Plumbers presented Mr. Addis with a silver loving cup and a purse of gold, while the members of the Board of Health remembered him with a large bunch of roses.

Mr and Mrs. Addis first came to Plainfield in 1871 from Elizabeth and have remained here ever since. At the time Mr. Addis came to this city he engaged as a contracting plumber and gave up his business twenty years ago to accept the office of city plumbing inspector when a board was created. He has remained as an active employe of the city ever since and on February 11 will retire.

Collector Townsend A Y.M.C.A. Speaker

William R. Towasend, city collector of taxes, will address the young women of the city at the Y. W. C. A. this evening. His subject will be "How the City Money Is Collected and Distributed."

This lecture will be the first of a series dealing with civic problems and it is expected that a large number of business women will avail themselves of an opportunity to become better acquainted with the workings of a city government. In addition to Mr. Townsend's talk on the subject of taxes, those in charge at the Y. W. C. A. have arranged to have at least on civic speaker a month. The present arrangement calls for a lecture on the first and third Friday of each month and it is planned to have one evening a month devoted entirely to the discussion of topics appertaining to the welfare of Plainfield. It is expected that, in the near future, Assemblyman William N. Runyon will make an address on the "Formation and Passing of Laws." It is also thought that Andrew Gavett, street commissioner, and Randolph Chandler, health officer, will be among the speakers.

German Singers Enter Big Contest

Under the auspices of the Gesang and Turn Verein of North Plainfield, a masquerade ball will be held in Saengerbund Hall on Washington's Birthday. This is to be the first of a series of social functions being planned by the organization. The Benefical Aid Society, an adjunct of the borough body, is already contemplating plans for the spring and summer months.

It was announced today that the singing section of the Turn Verein would take part in a monster singing contest to be held in New York city the early part of May. A number of Metropolitan organizations will compete but, in view of the splendid showing made by the borough choristers at Carlstadt last summer, it is thought that one of the awards will find a haven in North Plainfield. It will be remembered that the North Plainfielders, forgerly a singing section of thirty odd voices, captured first prize in the Carlstadt competition. The trip was made in Saengerbund Hall, after numerous delays occasioned by the prevalent epidemic of infantile paralysis.

The monthly meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verein will be held on Thursday evening, January 11 when elections of officers will take place.

CHI GAMMA CHI WILL TAKE UP DEBATING WORK.

Debating as a "pastime" for young women is about to become a social "fad." At least, the fair members of the Chi Gamma Chi, a borough organization, are seriously contemplating the organization of a debating team. It will be remembered that certain members of this body contemplated the organization of a baseball team. But it was only "contemplated." Fans of this vicinity were never permitted the treatment of watching the female diamond artists at work, despite the fact that a number of challenges were received by the managers.

But it is regarded that the art of debating is to be treated in a different light. In fact, it is to be regarded as a "social" accomplishment, which undoubtedly it is. The young women have received a challenge from the members of St. Mary's Literary Club and it is said, will prepare for action. Miss Ryder is arranging but the details, and there are plenty of these. But there are to be no delays, postponements or calculations and it is highly probable that the literary world will be startled in a few weeks.

Weaver, of 124 Chatham street, and Miss Clara Elizabeth Harvat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harvat, of 926 West Third street, who were united in marriage on New Year's Day, with the Rev. John Y. Miss Dunn formerly attended the Plainfield High School while Mr. Dickerson went to Leal's School and N. Y. U.

INDOOR CARNIVAL WILL BE PROMOTED BY KNIGHTS.

That the social life of an organization is the very backbone of its existence is the prevalent opinion of those who have at heart the destinies of the many local societies and similar organizations. And it is with this fact in mind that a number of socially attractive programs are being arranged.

The Knights of Columbus have planned to have a fair, commencing February tenth and extending to February seventeenth, inclusive. This indoor carnival, as it is called, is expected to be one of the most successful of its kind ever held in this city and, following as it does in the wake of the most successful "Elks Week of Merriment," is assured of a warm reception.

DATE SELECTED FOR KNIGHTS' ANNUAL FAIR.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, has decided on the week of February 10-17 as the date for the council's initial carnival and with the recent appointment of the committee active work for the event has been started. Greater interest than in any other year has been shown in the coming carnival and it is predicted by everyone on the committee that the affair will be a great success.

Besides all the old forms of entertainment, the committee is planning to have several entirely new features. There will be dancing and bowling each night, with other things to be arranged for by the committee on arrangements, which includes the following: A. A. Cannon, chairman; T. F. Carty, treasurer; Peter McDonough, J. P. Kiesel, J. J. Carty, J. J. Varley, D. B. Doyle, George J. Tobin, John Kiely, Andrew Kenney, John McCaffery, T. J. Meaney, William Sullivan, Alfred Dey, Noyes, H. J. Burns, Francis J. Hintz, Thomas C. Harding, William Mead, George F. Howe, T. J. Strappe, G. A. Keating and Edward Harding, Jr. Rev. Father Hart and Rev. Father Hart are honorary members of the committee.

Classic, as well as popular songs, were rendered in an inimitable manner. The program was arranged by the Board of Education and was one of a series of entertainments for the people of Plainfield.

TALK ON BELGIUM.

An informal illustrated talk, under the auspices of the Belgian Relief Association, will be given at the Hartridge Auditorium by Mrs. Nina Larry Durrea on Sunday evening, January 14.

The Boys' Class of the Lend-A-Hand Society, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, were entertained on New Year's day by the Misses Rose Thomae and Dorothy Beeken, at the home of the former.

Entertained Cast of Yale Players

At the home of Mrs. J. P. Stevens, of Hillside avenue, on New Year's Day, the cast presenting the three-act comedy, "Ours," at the Plainfield Theatre under the auspices of the Yale Dramatic Association was entertained. Dancing was enjoyed, the music being furnished by Conrad's orchestra, which also furnished the music at the Hartridge Auditorium in the evening.

The affair was a socially distinct one for about one hundred and fifty younger people of the city and was in the form of a "Tea Dansant." Those of the cast who were present at the gathering were: Gannon G. Depew, Douglas S. Moen, Kenneth O'Brien, Arthur C. Crunden, Stanley W. Burke, William S. von Bernuth, Allan B. YALE DRAMATIC CLUB IN HARTRIDGE AUDITORIUM

In the Hartridge Auditorium on New Year's night, the Yale Club, of this city, gave a dance to the members of the cast presenting the three act comedy, "Ours," at the Plainfield Theatre on that evening. After the play, which was enacted by the members of the Yale Dramatic Association, the guests were conveyed to the Auditorium, where they enjoyed dancing and refreshments. Thomas M. Day, 3d, was in charge of the arrangements and music for the dancing was furnished by Conrad's Orchestra, of New York city.

UNIQUE ILLUMINATION SCHEME FEATURES DANCE.

A most unique feature of the informal dance held in the Park Club on last Saturday evening was the scheme of illumination, the midnight hour being reached by almost total darkness, the gradual lessening of light telling of the approach of the bewitching hour. The evening was spent in a round of frolic by the younger folks from 7 o'clock until 9:30. The rest of the evening was given over to the "older" members of the younger set.

The hall was appropriately decorated with holiday greens by Henry Johnson and music was furnished by Van Epp. Those who assisted in the holiday entertainment were Mrs. P. L. Sill, Mrs. F. H. Voorhees, Mrs. H. R. Moyer, Mrs. H. B. Laing and Mrs. C. A. Rice.

INFORMAL DANCE.

Under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club an informal dance and open house gathering was held in the Park Club on New Year's evening, the club being prettily decorated for the occasion and music being furnished by the Country Club Trio. Mrs. P. E. Hammann, of West Seventh street, was in charge. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served at a late hour.

Spanish Musicale in P. H. S. Auditorium

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on January eighth, a Spanish musicale will be given by the Monday Afternoon Club under the auspices of the Art Department. Paquita Madriguerra, a young Spanish pianist of exceptional talent, the favorite pupil of Granados, will be heard.

It was the original intention of those in charge of the affair to hold the concert in the Parish House of the Congregational church, but in order that all those who desire to take advantage of this rare musical treat, may do so, the transfer to the High School Auditorium was made. In addition the general public will be admitted at a nominal figure, although members of the Monday Afternoon Club will be required to present their membership tickets at the door.

MUSICAL TREATS.

On Tuesday evening, in the Plainfield High School Auditorium, Josef Hofman, one of the most accomplished pianists in the world, will appear. A short time preceding the entertainment will be turned over to the Vassar Endowment Fund.

Miss Anna Case, formerly a choir soloist in the First Presbyterian church but now a Metropolitan operatic prima donna, will also make her appearance in the High School Auditorium at a later date. Miss Case is a soprano.

Two local young men, members of the Yale Dramatic Association, were among those who presented Thomas W. Robertson's three act comedy, "Ours," at the Plainfield Theatre on New Year's Day. The local thespians are Stanley W. Burke, who appeared as "Hugh Chalcot" and George W. Murray.

HER CHOICE.

Midnight blue gaberdine cut Russian blouse and skirt to shoe tops gives this sailor's suit. Black bone buttons give a chic finish, and the white satin collar is detachable. Two poppies trim the sailor.

THIS HAT IS A CHIC ONE.

Gold colored velvet set in tiers, a huge brim and two ribbon "fanciss" held by a pair of gilt crescents—such are the materials that fashion this smart sailor.

THE LATEST FAD.

Fur sport coats are all the "go." This picture is seal, hip length, with slit pockets, muff cuffs and high muff collar in beaver. Nothing could so smarten up a winter wardrobe as this garment.

FUR COATS.

Velours coats are among the handsomest winter models, especially when they are trimmed with sealskin. There are two bands of sealskin at the foot and a single band around a deep cape collar. Above this is a high turnover also. Even the buttons are of seal.

A COMMODIOUS LIVING ROOM.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

INTERIOR VIEW—LIVING ROOM

The living room shown above is about 32 feet wide and 14 feet across. Beams 9 inches wide and 6 inches deep run lengthwise across the room. The fireplace is 7 feet wide and laid up out of tapestry brick; plain moided shelf. A battery of windows across the front, with projecting bay and artistic art windows alongside the fireplace, add to the beauty and light of this room.

Upon receipt of $1 the publisher of this paper will furnish a copy of Saxton's book of plans, "American Dwellings," which contains over 200 designs, costing from $1,000 to $6,000; also a book of interiors, $1 per copy.

STYLE TIPS.

What to Wear Tucked Into a Nutshell.

Empire styles are here. A popular design is in three pieces. The skirt extends three inches above the waist line. There is a wide front breadth, cut circular, with a side plait on each side. The back is plain, cut circular, and has a seam down the center.

Plaited skirts are in style. They are introduced to give a straighter figure line without cutting out any of the fullness at the skirt edge. There are loose plaits, pressed plaits, side plaits and inside and narrow box plaits. Some skirts are made with yokes, or the plaited effect is sometimes broken by a panel. Plaited plaid skirts are worn with tailored jackets of plain cloth, and velvet jackets are worn with plaited skirts of satin or broadcloth.

The fashionable princess dress is sometimes plaited from neck to hem with a loose belt at the sides. Other princess dresses are made with organ plaits at the sides, the plaits arranged at a point just halfway between the waist line and the knees. They are buttoned in front.

A novel blouse is the chotrboy chemise made of boy patterned Chinese silk. It has long sleeves of soft silk and is worn with separate skirts. Other new blouses are of transparent material, such as silk voile, chiffon and tulle, made over another transparent material in a different color.

This is a season of combinations in fabrics and colors. Navy blue and gray are smart, also electric blue and black. Fawn, beige and butter color are used with chestnut brown or Balkan green. Browns are fashionable. There are cinnamon, tabac, beaver, chestnut and a warm golden brown. Burgundy, grape, prune, maroon, rubber gray, mist, taupe, navy blue, Dutch blue, electric, horizon, Japan and old China blue are among other colors.

Many imitations of fur are to be used in trimming dresses and coats. Colored silk voiles are seen striped with imitation fur in a contrasting color.

Metal embroideries on gold, silver and copper, singly or in combination, are smart. Novelty laces are embroidered in shining arabesque on delicate grounds. A fascinating fancy is to have a gown trimmed with bead embroidery and to match it for the wrist bag.

Some of the new coats are modeled after the coats worn by men, such as long directoire coats and short coats worn by valets.

Fascinating collars in white organdie, crepe or silk are worn with blue, rose and cerise costumes.

A new sash is made of three colors twisted together to form a belt, terminating in long knotted ends. Cream pale blue and pale green, also rose mauve and cream color, are combined. Black, red and orange look well with a white dress.

Velvets and smooth cloths trimmed with fur are the smartest tailor suits

THIS BOLERO.

A fine quality of pique is cut in a straight one piece, with two side plaits laid from shoulders to skirt bottom for fullness. Over this is worn a tiny bolero of scalloped edges and hand embroidered front picked out with dainty white pearl buttons.

FASHION INDEED.

Styles in Suits.

The suits that are now being put up for winter are made with coats reaching to the knees and sometimes below that point. A few shorter lengths are also included in the models. Many of the coats are in fitted effect above the waist, with a considerable flare below that point. Others, however, are made on straight lines. A few of the more extreme suits are in moyen age effect, with the fullness set on at a very low waist line. On account of the length of the jacket the skirts of the suits are made on straight, simple lines. Many show plaited effects. Novel pockets and belts appear on some of the skirts.

Grape Ketchup.

For grape ketchup weigh the grapes and allow two pounds of sugar to ten of grapes, a pint of cider vinegar and an ounce each of mace, cloves and cinnamon. Boil the sugar and vinegar for fifteen minutes and add to the pulp and skins, which have been heated, rubbed through a colander to remove skins and seeds and cooled; then boil all together twenty minutes and bottle. Boil slowly, and if too thick add a little more vinegar.

THIS NOVEL COMFORT.

This garment is cut something like a breakfast jacket, only the material is seal skunk trimmed. The big muff is melon shaped, with flaring ends. Elbow sleeves are a novelty in fur.

VELVET LEADS.

For all luxurious suitings velvets in dark shades are still the favorite fabrics. This trim suit is put up in black cut with a high waist line and a full skirted three-quarter coat, set off with steel ball buttons. Squirrel bands on collar and cuffs.

TWO IN ONE.

Old rose velvet brim and a pale pink felt crown make up this handsome tricorn. We must not overlook the gorgeous rose of gold thread embroidery. The collar and cuffs are linen hand embroidered.

Forcible Charge by Bergen on County Probe Findings

In his opening address to the January Grand Jury at Elizabeth Tuesday Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen charged the panel to investigate the alleged irregularity of expense bills of more than $38,000 paid by the county to County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer; the ownership of stock in the Lawrence Cement Company by Henry Krouse, chairman of the freeholder road committee; Engineer Bauer, and George Bauer, the nephew, who is treasurer of the Winans Contracting Company, and the unauthorized employment of prisoners at the county jail by Freeholder Applegate.

The charge, which was forcible enough to please the petitioners for the Supreme Court investigation of county affairs, was based on a report of this probe by Commissioner Hugh K. Gaston, which was handed to Justice Bergen that morning.

"If you find any thing irregular you should make a presentment; if you find anything wrong, you should present an indictment," Justice Bergen concluded.

The portion of the charge affecting the county engineer was particularly forcible. "When the county engaged Mr. Bauer to do its work it was entitled to all of his services, the justice said, and he had no right to spend some of his time on private business and employ assistants for which he charged the county.

In cases where the employment of assistants was necessary, the charge continued, Mr. Bauer should have charged the county only what it actually cost him. In his report Commissioner Gaston figured according to the salaries paid in the county engineer's office, that a field party of two, for which $12 a day was charged, cost only $7.50 a day.

"The law is that when a public official receives money to which he is not entitled, it commits a misdemeanor," said Justice Bergen. "I want you to investigate this. It may be that the punishment ought not to be severe. It is for you to say whether any county official obtained money to which he was not entitled. My view is that when he sent out men on county work he was not entitled to a profit. The law also states that in his bills he must specify the names of the men employed. This has not been done, and in four years bills totaling more than $38,000, which have been improperly made out, were paid to the county engineer."

The investigation also brought out, Justice Bergen continued, "that Henry Krouse, Mr. Bauer and George Bauer, his nephew, were financially interested in the Lawrence company, and that County Register Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, was vice president and selling agent of the concern." He also dwelt upon the family relationship existing between Krouse and the two Bauers.

"Under the law," he said, "no member of the Board of Freeholders has a right to be interested, directly or indirectly, in a company furnishing materials to the county. If in your investigation you find that the Lawrence Company is furnishing materials to the county, you must try to learn whether influence was used by these men to make the sales. It does not take an acute mind to see that even if a contract did not exist, some person would see that it would be to their interest to buy material from this company. As these facts show, there has been no crime, but it is your duty to see that the county gets a fair deal, and that materials should be purchased independent of such influences."

Regarding the employment of prisoners by Mr. Applegate, Justice Bergen said:

"It appears that a freeholder went to the jail to employ prisoners, paying them certain wages. This was altogether wrong. The warden had no right to allow the prisoners out of jail and he is guilty of permitting an escape. I don't say the sheriff is responsible, but whoever is to blame for it acted against the law."

The fact that County Attorney William R. Codington holds a contract for supplying the Bonnie Burn sanatorium with milk was also condemned in the charge. In his report Commissioner Gaston recommends that the contract be not renewed.

"I am not charging evil in this case, but it's a bad practice," said the Justice.

Justice Bergen also called the attention of the Grand Jury to the unexpended balances held by County Collector Leavitt, which are kept out of the budgets.

"I don't see why that money was held," the Justice said, "and you should look into it."

Justice Bergen also charged the Grand Jury on excise law violations declaring that the laws should be enforced.

Township In Fine Condition

The summarized report presented by the Township Committee of North Plainfield Township to the people of that vicinity states that the extraordinary needs and unusual conditions during the past year have made the administration of the township affairs unusually difficult. The report also states that the officials worked both night and day in an effort to properly carry out the work set before them. Flood conditions and the epidemic of infantile paralysis are ascribed as being the causes of the unusually large amount of work and are mentioned as contributing causes of the increase in taxation.

In addition to meeting and providing for the exceptional needs of the township during the past year, the Township has constructed, with county aid, a new section of macadamized road connecting Greenbrook road in the borough of North Plainfield with Greenbrook road in the township. The assurance of the State Department has been received that a road from North Plainfield to Washington Rock State Park, a distance of two miles, approximately, will not only be built but will be maintained by the State without expense to the Township. The financial condition of the Township is excellent, all money borrowed on notes having been paid off and a free cash balance being in the hands of the treasurer and collector. The fact that the committee has been able to meet the unusual demand for finances during the past year has been due, in a large measure, to the payment of a large amount of the delinquent taxes.

The increase in the 1916 tax is occasioned, according to the report, by three facts, which are the increased requirements of the schools, the additional requirements of the county and the budget efficiency caused by the floods and the epidemic of infantile paralysis. The statement was submitted by William De La Roche Anderson, chairman of the Township committee.

NIGHT SCHOOL

The plentitude of work has had its effect on the enrollment, inasmuch as those foreigners who previously availed themselves of the advantages of a night school education, are now gladly grasping the opportunity to work overtime in the shops. This fact has been demonstrated most pronouncedly of late and more or less intermittently since the formation of the school. There are at the present time one hundred and fifty pupils registered, with a teaching staff of seven, including the principal, Mrs. Sarah Wardner. There are two classes for men and these are taught by A. C. Hawkins, principal of the Watchung School and Mr. O'Neill, of Dunellen.

The work is divided into three classes, patterned after the needs of those attending. In the first class are those who know nothing of the English language and who know but little of their own language—at least, of its grammatical application. In the second class are those whose knowledge of their native tongue is less limited and is not confined to a dialect. In the highest grade are those who know quite a little of both English and their native languages but whose secondary education has been neglected. These are taught, in the main, grammar school work, with the combined principals of arithmetic and its practical application.

The night school was established not so much to lessen the educational deficiencies of the foreign element in this vicinity, but to make better and more valuable citizens of those who are not of this nationality. In addition to the three R's, history and civics are taught and the teaching staff impresses upon the mind of the pupils the value of citizenship, both to the individual and to the nation. The valor of those who fought to make these United States what they are is set ever before the eyes of the student and the advantages which this nation affords are continually called to his attention. Throughout the country it has been found that night sessions of this sort make for much better citizenship in the illiterate foreigner and that Plainfield's night school is doing its share is being daily demonstrated.

Mrs. Sarah Wardner, the principal invites every citizen of Plainfield to visit the school and to study its advantages. The feature of which Plainfield should be most proud is the class of twenty-five pupils, each one of which is over fifty years of age, the oldest being in his sixtieth year. Educating the older generation educates the younger as well.

Committees For City Activities

The organization meeting of the Plainfield Common Council was held New Year's afternoon in the City Building and resulted in but few changes. Francis J. Blatz was again elected as president of the Council and George B. Wean was chosen for another year as stenographer of the various councilmanic bodies. It was decided to amend the rules of the Council so as to have the meeting nights on the first and third Monday of the month.

The Mayor announced his various appointments as follows: George S. Clay as member of the City Planning Commission for a term of five years; H. D. Corbusier, Elliott T. Barrows and I. L. McLaughlin as Third ward assessor and Henry Liefke as Fourth ward assessor, and Charles L. Kling, Thaddeus Doane and Harry Van Emburgh as sewer assessment commissioners. He also named Charles A. Reed as corporation counsel for another term, Garret C. Dunham as overseer of the poor, and the Misses Mary Dunham and O. A. Rush as city stenographers. He appointed Howard Craig as a member of the Public Recreation Committee and Philip Suffern as one of the Shade Tree Commissioners, while Councilmen Hyland and Babcock were elected as members of the Board of School Estimates.

The following filed applications for liquor license: Inn and tavern—Henry Windham, East Front street; John A. Staats, Queen City Hotel; John Sullivan, Kensington Hotel; Jacob Bimm, Farmers Hotel, saloon—E. C. Wescott, East Front street; G. J. Weinman, Park avenue; Michael J. Devine, West Third and Liberty streets; Michael Watson, Grant avenue; Wholesale—George R. Westcott, North avenue; Frank Linke, West Front street; Eastern Bottling Company, West Second street. GOOD COURT CONTEST IN ABSTAINERS' HALL

The T. A. B. basketball five will tackle the Hope Chapel court warriors this evening, the battle being staged on the Temperance court, on West Fourth street. According to the press agent of the Abstainers, his team has the best material in this vicinity. Undoubtedly, the Hope Chapel leader feels the same way about his charges.

The old friendly rivalry between the Chapelites and St. Mary's is being revived. Although there is no actually representative St. Mary's basketball team in the field, the Tabs are generally considered as "St. Mary's," at least as being in the same class with the Hope Chapel team. As a preliminary attraction this evening, the "Cupids" and the boys of the High School Class at the Y. M. C. A. will clash.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION.

The Pastor's Aid Society and trustees of the First Presbyterian church have invited the members of the congregation of that church to a reception to be extended the pastor, the Rev. C. E. Herring, on Tuesday evening, January 16.

LOCAL MAN NAMED.

Joseph C. White, of this city, together with Fred S. and Walter C. White are named as incorporators of the Pequannock Valley Paper Company, of Morristown.

MAYOR LEIGHTON CALKINS' 1917 MESSAGE TO THE COMMON COUNCIL

What Has Been Accomplished During the Past Two Years and Recommendations for Future Betterment

Two years ago it was my privilege to submit to your honorable body a program for greater efficiency and economy in the administration of the affairs of the city. That program, a large part of which had already been carried out a year ago, has now been completed with the survey of departments and the appointment of a Research and Advisory Commission as an aid to the Council in the formulation of plans for the future development of the city. I feel indebted to you for your approval of my suggestions and for your hearty co-operation in giving full effect to them. It may not be out of place at this time to review briefly what has already been accomplished under this program, and what we may hope further to accomplish by adherence to it.

The Efficiency and Economy Program of 1915 and 1916.

Pending the completion of the survey, the sole purpose of which was to check our machinery for the transaction of business by expert comparison with the best modern practice in the management of municipal affairs, we directed our attention to what may be termed the high cost of living as applied to public affairs, and sought to reduce it by the application of the strictest economy consistent with the reasonable requirements of the public service. To that end we appointed on the Finance Committee the chairmen of the committees administering the important departments, centralizing fiscal responsibility and making it easier for each department to acquire a better knowledge of the needs of the others. For the same reason close business relations were established with the Board of Education, and the school and city budgets were prepared in joint conference. We improvised a budget system, not very scientific it is true, but at least better than none at all, which resulted in much more careful departmental estimates and more accurate information as a basis for fixing appropriations. The chairmen of Council committees co-operated with the heads of departments to the fullest extent in our effort to check the advancing tendency of the tax rate. As I pointed out a year ago, the public will more readily approve plans for betterments and improvements if officials show that they are interested also in annual comparisons relating to the per capita tax.

The tax rate for the year 1914 was 1.91. Of course the tax rate taken by itself does not tell the whole story, but when valuations are also considered we get a fairly accurate idea of what has been accomplished. The total increase in valuations for the two years 1915 and 1916 was about $360,000, which is less than the average yearly increase for a decade. Notwithstanding the falling off in ratables the tax rate was held at 1.91 for both years, during which tax rates and taxes have shown a very general, and in some instances a startling, advance throughout the county and State.

At the same time there has been no falling off in the service during these two years. On the contrary, many improvements have been made, the more important of which for the year 1915 were outlined in my last annual message. During the year just concluded we have added a number of men to the police force and the fire force. We have increased the salaries in both departments so as to bring them in line with well paid departments in other cities. We have displaced two more pieces of apparatus in the fire department which is now rapidly becoming completely motorized; and we have motor-driven patrol and service cars for the police department.

In the Street and Sewer Departments storm sewers are being installed and new connections are being relocated in anticipation of the extension of permanent pavements on through highways. A number of streets have been macadamized and contracts have been let for macadamizing others. They are all to be macadamized for the full width of the roadway. Repairing and resurfacing have been carried on as in previous years except that no such work not absolutely necessary has been done on streets shortly to be rebuilt with pavement of a permanent character. Road direction signs have been placed at several points, also school traffic signs throughout the city, and traffic posts at twenty-one street intersections. The widening of East Second street has been completed and that of Madison avenue nearly completed. A beginning has been made on the widening of Central avenue. The construction of sanitary sewers for the southwestern section of the city has been begun.

No review of the year would be complete without reference to the fine constructive work of the alms department which has included the adoption of a fixed monthly budget and close relations with the Charity Organization Society for the classification of cases for relief, resulting in better and more economical management. Enough was saved from the appropriation to cover part of the cost of extensive repairs to buildings, very much needed, but for which no allowance could be made at the beginning of the year. The very businesslike and willing co-operation of the Charity Organization Society has been of great aid and is much appreciated.

The Survey.

The foregoing will show in a general way what has been done in the last two years to maintain and even improve the service while holding the tax rate, and while awaiting the survey recommendations for improving our business methods in order to increase the efficiency of our departments without adding substantially to their cost of maintenance. It is not intended by this survey, as I have pointed out on several occasions, to attempt wholesale reorganization or to throw our departments into panic or disorder by a mad rush after innovations. The purpose is to have on file a book of reference, which gives not only the exact facts as to our present methods of transacting business but also many recommendations for increased efficiency by the adoption of standardized systems which are based on the experience of other cities and which can easily be had under our charter and laws. The report has already been of service by its endorsement of our plan to save a large annual appropriation for temporary repairs of water-bound macadam, substituting a definite policy for the construction of a certain mileage of permanent pavements yearly; also by its approval of the plans of the Police Board for the installation of the fixed post and flashlight system. I referred to these two matters at some length in my message a year ago.

A good example of the use to which the survey may be put is to be found in the commendable promptness and energy of the City Clerk in his plans for current auditing and purchasing. He has taken the recommendations to be found in our annual reports and in the survey report and has already made a beginning on a system which will enable us to dispense with a great deal of red tape and to acquire something approaching a real audit. If city officials and heads of departments will make like use of the survey report as a basis for intelligent planning in building up and improving the service, it should be of great value to the city for several years to come. I recommend its use in such manner; that is, for ready reference as improved methods are contemplated rather than for the purpose of making changes too rapidly, or too many changes at once. It is my opinion, however, that some of our financial and accounting methods are so palpably out of date that early attention should be given to their revision. We are seriously handicapped in budget making through inadequate accounting, as we are in the determination of our business problems. Correct information as to our financial condition, immediately available, is absolutely necessary to the exercise of good judgment in reaching business decisions. I also think that in the police and fire departments the training of men, the keeping of modern efficiency and merit records, and the adoption of standardized report forms, are matters of urgent importance.

Park Avenue Widening.

I take the liberty of repeating the recommendation of last year with respect to the widening of Park avenue between West Second and Front Sts. To further delay this much needed improvement is but to invite an added burden for the taxpayer. It can never be made at less cost than now, and sooner or later it must be made. If there is the slightest doubt in anyone's mind as to whether our traffic conditions make this expenditure necessary, the matter can be submitted to the Research and Advisory Commission for a recommendation. But I have always supposed that there could be only one opinion on the subject. Traffic conditions at Park avenue and Front street are already both intolerable and dangerous. They are becoming more so every day.

MAYOR LEIGHTON CALKINS

City Planning.

I have already referred to the ordinance which you adopted at my request last summer to create a Research and Advisory Commission. It is not enough that we have capable management of the routine business of the city; we must have definite policies with regard to its development. Some improvements to be made wisely must be considered with reference to the future. Others require investigation and study extending sometimes over a longer period than the terms of the Mayor, or of Councilmen; and so are either not considered at all, or if considered are abandoned before matured decisions can be reached. What we have needed is a permanent body, closely related to the Council, to which problems of this kind can be referred for thorough consideration. I referred last year to the question of municipal parks. The flood problem in the East End is another; the improvement of Green brook another; municipal ash and garbage collection, or regulation, another. I believe it will be found that in making provision for this new Commission we shall have taken a forward step toward capable government. The people of the city are to be congratulated that experienced men of affairs, having the confidence of the community, are found willing to serve in this line of work.

Referendum.

Under our Charter the responsibility for the administration of the affairs of the municipality, often involving the expenditure of large amounts for betterments and improvements, is lodged in the Common Council. To large extent it is left to that body to decide what is most conducive to the public welfare and for what and to what extent the people shall be taxed. This is as it should be. On the other hand I believe it to be a defect in our organization as a municipality that there is no means by which the Common Council may, in the exercise of its duties and if it deems advisable, submit a project under consideration to the people for an expression of opinion. For example the Research and Advisory Commission, if the question of public parks is referred to it for a recommendation, may advise the acquisition of considerable areas of land at various points, perhaps not for immediate improvement but against the day when the city is more built up and when values will be high. Or the Commission might submit a plan, involving considerable expense, for the prevention of floods in the East End. It would be not only of aid to the Council but really in accord with the principle of home rule if questions of unusual importance could be submitted to the people of the community for the purpose of ascertaining what they want and are willing to pay for.

The corporation counsel has drafted a supplement to the "Act to regulate Elections (Revision of 1898)," approved April 4, 1898, which provides in effect that whenever the Common Council wishes to ascertain the sentiment of the voters on any question, it shall by resolution so declare and the clerk of the county shall then be required to print the proposition upon the official ballot at the next ensuing general election. If it is your wish to have such an amendment to the election law presented to the Legislature, and you will so indicate by appropriate action of your honorable body, I shall be glad to request its introduction by our representatives, and to further its favorable consideration in such other way as I may be able.

The License Question.

Another purpose which might be served by statutory machinery for a referendum has reference to the license question. There is no local option law and our charter charges the Common Council with the duty of determining what is most conducive to the public good with respect to the regulation and prohibition of the sale of liquor. There is no way by which the Council, which I believe to be ready at all times regardless of personal views to act in accordance with public sentiment, can ascertain how the community really stands on this question. I assume that most people will agree that it would not be most conducive to the public welfare to force either a license or a no-license policy upon a community against its will. Law enforcement is a matter of tremendous practical importance.

I have heretofore thought that we had a fairly serviceable substitute for local option in that the voters have it in their power to elect men to the Council definitely pledged on this issue. Certainly no criticism may fairly be made if those who favor no license try to secure it by the only means the law provides. I believe it to be not only their privilege but possibly their duty to do so. But unless candidates for the Council from the several political organizations can be found to stand on either side of the question, it would appear that there is less opportunity by such means to get a clear and unequivocal expression of sentiment than if the question were separately submitted as a paramount issue, dissociated from the other qualifications for office of the candidates involved. I am not urging upon the Council that a vote be taken on the license question. But as it has recently been proposed that an informal or non-official election might be arranged, I would suggest that if the question is to be submitted to the people at all it would be better to make the vote a conclusive and authoritative test of public sentiment by surrounding it with all the safeguards provided by law when other elections are held. Such a statutory amendment would make it possible for the Council to order a referendum on the question; and I believe that the Council would so order whenever it appeared probable that public opinion had changed. This would not be local option, because the people would not be entitled in their own right to an election though they might at any time petition the Council for one. But the point is whether it would not be a better substitute for local option than what we now have.

Joint Sewage Project.

The Sewage Disposal Plant at the Darling farm was placed in service on November 28, 1916, and the following short account of this project, begun in August, 1912, by the preparation of preliminary plans, may be of interest to the people. After the plans had been approved by the State Board of Health a contract was made in November, 1913, by the municipalities of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen apportioning the expense among them at 68 per cent., 25 per cent. and 7 per cent. respectively; and steps were taken by each of them for the authorization of required bond issues. The cost of construction and operation is borne in proportion to the amount of disposal delivered by each municipality at the joint works. The site comprises about 97 acres and is located near the confluence of Bound Brook and Green Brook. Proceedings were begun early for the acquisition of rights of way. Bids were received from contractors in October, 1914.

The trunk sewer is 42 inches in diameter and of reinforced concrete. It extends about 13,000 feet from Rock avenue to the disposal plant and is built almost entirely on private right of way west of Rock avenue. It is planned to serve a population of 80,000. Plainfield's sewage reaches the head of the trunk line through two cast-iron siphon lines in Rock avenue, each of them 20 inches in diameter.

The disposal works consist of Imhoff tanks of the two-story stype, and will serve a population of 40,000. The sewage is clarified in the upper or settling compartments from which solid matter moves down through a trapped slot into the sludge-digestion chambers. Here it can be retained for six months or more until bacterial action has rendered the solid matter inodorous and capable of drying on adjoining sludge beds. The clarified sewage flows from the Imhoff tanks to siphon chambers, whence it discharges as a spray from nozzles over the surface of nearly two acres of filter beds of broken stone. After filtration the liquid is again passed through the Imhoff tanks for the purpose of retaining solid matter which at times becomes detached from the filtering material. When purified the sewage is conveyed through 3,000 feet of reinforced concrete effluent pipe and discharged into the brook below the wells of the Watchung Water Company.

A Survey of All Departments With an Impartial and Straight to the Point Criticism of Existing Conditions

George W. Fuller, of New York city, has been the designing and supervising engineer during the period of construction, and he is also supervising engineer now that the plant is in operation. Further detail, with financial statements covering all items of cost, may be had by reference to the reports of the Joint Meeting of the Councils of the three municipalities.

The New Municipal Building.

Following the purchase about a year ago of a site for the new City Hall, or Municipal Building, a competition was held for the selection of an architect. It was absolutely anonymous and fairly held. Three New York architects of good standing served without compensation on the jury of award; also the Mayor and a member of the Common Council, for the purpose of giving the city representation. As it turned out, the award which was by secret ballot was unanimous. It was advertised that any Plainfield architect might compete and a number elected to do so. In addition seven or eight New York architects of recognized ability were invited. It was what is known as a limited competition. The purpose was to have assurance that the successful competitor, whoever he might be, would be such an architect as the city would have been willing to employ if no competition had been held. The designs from Plainfield architects were all excellent and took high rank in the award.

Peck & Bottomley, of New York city, were the successful competitors. Their plans have been prepared with great care to produce a building of architectural merit which will be a credit to the community, yet simple in design and planned not for display but for the use to which it is to be put. It will be fireproof, with interior arrangement of departments so as to facilitate the transaction of business at a minimum of expense. The plans are so drawn that wings can be built at a future time if the growth of the city is such that a larger building is ever needed. The addition of these wings will add to the architectural beauty of the building rather than detract from it. The aim has been to give the city suitable quarters for carrying on the public business efficiently, something which we entirely lack at present, with reasonable allowance of space in the building as now erected for future requirements, and a definite plan for enlargement whenever that is necessary. The building is already in process of construction and should be ready for occupancy a year hence.

Street Traffic Regulation.

The regulation of street traffic has become a matter of urgent necessity. I do not know what was in the minds of the early Plainfield settlers but it would appear that they had little faith in the growth of the city, judging from the way they laid it out. I am afraid, too, that they were somewhat lacking in vision, and more concerned with the then present than with the future; possibly one reason for making the streets narrow was to shorten the passage of pedestrians across seas of red Jersey mud. Except for an occasional horse and buggy, I suppose most people went about on foot and always expected to do so. Be that as it may, Plainfield was never intended for the motor vehicle; at least not to the extent to which it has become a part of modern life. Our business now is to readjust the lay-out to meet existing conditions; and, as already stated, street widening is one of the adjustments which should have our early attention.

It is apparent however, that we shall never be able to widen our highways to keep pace with their use; and that we have arrived at a point where regulation must step in to safeguard the public convenience and safety. If we have seemed somewhat slow in this matter, it has been because the problem is not one which can be solved without a curtailment of privilege somewhere; and needless restraint of the free use of streets and public places, as indeed needless restraint of any kind, is to be avoided whenever possible. This matter is within the jurisdiction of the Board of Police which has had it under discussion for a considerable period and hopes soon to present, for trial at least, a plan which will meet the conditions from which we suffer the most annoyance and danger. We have hesitated to impose restrictions until satisfied of their necessity. If, when they have been imposed they shall be found to be unfair, or unwise, they will be modified or repealed and other means will be sought to provide a satisfactory remedy.

The year 1916 will long be remember as marking the voluntary retirement of Fire Chief T. O. Doane and City Clerk James T. MacMurray after many years of devoted service; and the death of City Treasurer William F. Arnold, faithful custodian of the city funds and public spirited citizen. New men have taken their places, keen in their interest for their work and well fitted for the performance of their duties. I record with sincere regret the retirement from the Council of men who have done much for the city and have helped me more than I can say in my work. To their successors, I give the same pledge I gave them, and you who remain, to be of what service I can to the Council in our joint labors for the city's welfare. I acknowledge my obligation to officials and others with whom I have been associated, and extend to you and to them my best wishes for a happy New Year.

LEIGHTON CALKINS, Mayor.

IN THE DANGER ZONE

SOB SISTER ARTISTS SOMETIMES ENCOUNTER STRANGE PERILS.

BY KATE BURR

MISS KATE BURR,

Buffalo Evening Times.

My Dear Miss Burr:—May I ask you candidly for information which I know your experience can truthfully give me?

First let me tell you my story.

I am a graduate of Detroit Central High School. After graduation I took a year at Ann Arbor, leaving Michigan University of Wellesley College, where I completed the sophomore year. But during the summer of 1915, my father was killed in an auto collision and I found our financial status was not what the family had supposed.

While in college, both at Michigan and Wellesley, I was associate editor of college publications and I grew to like the work and, they say, showed great aptitude for journalism.

When I found on the settlement of my father's estate that I would have to earn my own living, my thoughts turned to newspaper work. Through a friend of my father I have obtained an opening in New York on one of the dailies, and am more than anxious to begin at once.

But, Miss Burr, I am meeting with great opposition from mother and my one brother. They tell me the experiences a girl reporter meets with, particularly in large cities, are such that they would not allow me to encounter them.

Now, Miss Burr, I am twenty—nearly twenty-one years old—am level-headed, not strikingly handsome, although my friends call me pretty, and my enemies have been known to acknowledge that I am not plain. I have been to the Pacific coast alone and two years ago spent several weeks in New York, and I think I am able to take care of myself.

Miss Burr, I want you to tell me the plain truth—Is there any danger in being a girl reporter, or it is a figment of my mother's overworked imagination? The paper I am going to work on—if I can gain the consent of my too devoted family—has several well-known women writers on its staff, and I notice they have many murder case assignments and often police stories.

Thanking you for an early reply, I remain,

Yours gratefully,

HELEN AMSDEN.

Miss Amsden's personal letter lies before me for careful consideration, and I shall try, for her benefit and for the information of other young women who may look with longing to a career in journalism, to treat the question with absolute candor.

Are there dangers to girl reporters—particular perils to which a man is not subjected?

Yes and no.

Yes, because an ambitious city editor will more zeal for a beat, or "scoop," as we often term it, than for the personal welfare of his staff, often gives a woman reporter an assignment which is bound to place her in danger, if she is under orders from the city desk, there is but one of two things to do in such an emergency—accept the assignment or hand in her resignation.

When young women begin on a newspaper they are usually put on "general" if they want the full newspaper training. Exceptions are assistants to society editors, but the average aspirant for favors in journalism does not care to travel that lane avenue to success.

Right here in Buffalo we have had in my time one or two instances of real peril to women employed on the staffs of our dailies.

A friend of mine had been doing special work along a certain line of investigation regarding men out of employment. She had, at the instigation of the editor, gathered facts and a great deal of "soh sister stuff" and had signed her name to the articles which had appeared four times weekly for more than a month.

A CASE FOR A COOL HEAD.

One morning, she sat writing in her office which she shared with three other women, when the office boy appeared with a request for her to step outside the door to speak with a man who would not come in. The man was young, not overly well-clothed, and did not meet her gaze after the first quick look of inspection.

As he talked, he kept his hand in his right hip pocket, and before he had spoken three sentences the girl sensed something was wrong. She glanced back through the half-opened door. The women writers were hard at work. Not one of them caught her look of apprehension.

The man, however, noticed it.

Quickly he withdrew his hand with the revolver within it.

"I have felt it my duty to kill you," he said. "You are not on the side of the poor—we have too many rich already."

The girl was made of good stuff. Though her blood ran cold, her eyes met the insane youth's steadily. She had all her life been on the side of the under dog, and the injustice of the attack angered her. The anger made her fearless and cool.

"That is not true," she answered. "Put down your gun. You must not kill me until I have proved how mistaken you are to your satisfaction."

The man hesitated, then put his revolver back in his pocket, keeping his hand upon the handle.

The young woman pleaded her case with decision and force. She told him how she leaned to the side of the man who was down and out, how she had tried to help him with her pen.

Slowly the glare of hatred died from the youth's blue eyes. Yet he was not convinced.

"My head aches," he said slowly. "I will go home and look over your articles and if I find you are not telling me the truth I will come back tomorrow and kill you."

The city editor passed within a few feet of them as they stood there in the hallway. He looked curiously at the girl for something in her face seemed to strike him as unusual, but with the eyes of the man upon her the girl made no sign, and accompanied the man and his weapon to the elevator with the same cool manner that she exhibited over the trivial events of the routine day.

She saw the elevator door swing shut behind the madman, smiled a pleasant good bye at him, waved back into her own room and—fell on the floor in a faint.

A few minutes later two policemen appeared in search of the young man who had escaped from a private institution where he had been confined for many months.

The same danger might lurk over a man reporter or any writer whose specials were liable to attract the crank class.

As I said, when young women begin work on a paper they are usually put on "general."

One girl reporter in this town was thrown into the greatest danger by an imprudent city editor who sent her down in a part of the city where Chinamen congregate, to learn if a Chinese school was about to be established in this city.

A CHINESE EPISODE.

The girl, enthusiastic and longing to make a hit, went alone to the questionable locality, but lost her way, and met a woman relative of Billy Van, the minstrel, whom she knew since the young woman was plain green, and kept a watchful eye upon her meanderings.

The girl entered a Chinese joint where they told her she would find Chinatown's "big man." One Chinaman ironing a shirt was the only one visible when she came in, but from nowhere in particular, seven or eight men of the queue suddenly appeared in the small room. The outside door which she had left open closed noiselessly behind her, and before the young woman realized her position, she was surrounded by subtly smiling Chinamen, whose leering gaze sent cold chills chasing up and down her spine.

As the Chinaman in a stripe drew nearer, the girl stood as if petrified and unable to scream. At the juncture a curtained window was pushed wide open and the head of the woman who had made acquaintance with the terrified girl appeared at the opening.

"Yoh!" called the woman sharply, "open door belly quick—you babe!"

And a wiser young woman went back to a waiting city editor without her scoop, but with a lesson on the Yellow Peril which she will never forget.

The road to special writing, which I take it is Miss Amsden's goal, lies through the daily assignments given out from the city desk. A considerate city editor will send women to safe places, but the true stories above related demonstrate the fact that city editors are very frequently machines for news-getting. They have the nose for news and let nothing stand in the way of getting it.

On the other hand, girl reporters soon become acclimated to the newspaper game, and with their eyes and ears open, grow watchful and "seasoned," as it were.

If you will try out the great game, Miss Amsden, apply to it the same common-sense methods of procedure you would use in the test of any other business.

There are perils to stenographers, to young women teachers, to young women in stores.

But a few rules will simplify the dangers to which you might be subjected.

Do not go out of the beaten track of traffic—ALONE. Have some companion or friend with you, if going a doubtful locality in which to get your story.

Do not hobnob with strangers.

Do not go into dark hallways, nor into room situated in the rear of buildings or remote from the street.

Wear quiet, inconspicuous clothes—the sort which convey the idea of business pure and simple.

Given experience, common-sense, and being forewarned which is forearmed, I am sure the dangers of a girl reporter's career will be reduced to a minimum in your case, Miss Amsden.

Go in and win.

Moth Balls in Gasoline; But Not to Kill Moths

How much farther will a motor car go with moth balls in the gasoline than without moth balls in the gasoline?

This question is one that is being asked, indirectly, of the department of chemistry in the University of Kansas by residents and firms in different parts of the State, who are submitting for analysis various preparations said to give more mileage to gasoline as motor fuel.

One class of these preparations has been found to consist chiefly of naphthalene. Naphthalene, in its commonly known form, is nothing more or less than the humble moth ball. In its form for motor use it appears as a powder, colored to give it a different appearance, and perfumed with an aromatic oil to kill the moth ball odor, in the form of a lozenge, in capsules or dissolved in kerosene or gasoline.

Whether or not naphthalene will give more power to the gasoline the chemists' experiments have not gone far enough to determine. One chemist figured, however, that six cents' worth of naphthalene in moth ball form would give the same results as 2.89 worth of naphthalene in one of the common preparations for use in motor tanks, used in like proportions.

There apparently is no injurious effect from the use of naphthalene in motors. It apparently does give more mileage, but the chemists believe most of the extra mileage comes from decreasing the gasoline feed when using these preparations. Directions with preparations say the gasoline feed should be cut down. As most motorists probably feed too liberally this decrease in gasoline makes for more perfect combustion in the cylinders, reduces carbon deposits and naturally gives more mileage to the gasoline.

Other preparations to increase gasoline efficiency consist of kerosene, gasoline or high-grade lubricating oil, with a little ether or picric acid. The ether and picric acid give an extra kick, while the lubricating oil, having an extremely high boiling point, aids in efficiency by its lubricating properties. In old two-cycle engines lubricating oil was introduced into the cylinders with the gasoline, but in the modern motors this system of oiling was abandoned.

Labor Scarce in All Trades

Labor, both skilled and unskilled, is scarce locally, a situation that has been felt for months. The natural accompaniment of this, the high cost of labor, is also present. The chief concern of employers at this time is whether there is to be any relief in the coming year. This is answered in two ways.

Unskilled labor is expected to be more plentiful in 1917 than in 1916. This expectation is based on the decrease already made in this type of labor by munitions plants. This decrease is likely to be more marked in the months to come in the normal development of affairs and to be accelerated greatly if peace negotiations are begun. The munitions plants are chief factors likely to work in bettering the labor shortage and wage situation for the employer in the unskilled field; it being felt that the cessation of the European war would not mean a renewal of labor immigration for many months.

Improvement in the skilled labor shortage situation is not anticipated to any degree. Some skilled laborers left their trades to take advantage of the high wages offered unskilled workers in the munitions plants, but the return of these is not sufficient of a factor to be counted upon. The skilled labor released from munitions plants will be considerable, but they will serve only to fill partly the great gap which domestic business has been forced to sustain as best it could for the last year. The shortage still remains and there is not enough labor of a skilled sort in the country to relieve it.

MATURING SHARES MAY BE SET BACK IN 1917.

Building and loan associations in this section have had a big year in increasing membership and in number of shares issued, but not in satisfying year in lending money to their members. There is probably more idle money in the treasuries of the various associations at the close of the present year than has been the case in the last twenty years. The money could be lent, but the kind of borrowers designated as "good" are scarcer than in many years. Speculative loans are frowned upon in these days because of experiences in the past and the lines have been drawn close.

Several things contribute to this idle money. One is that during the last five or ten years there has been a steady awakening of the people, especially wage earners and moderate salaried men and women, to the fact that the building and loan movement is beneficial. They have therefore taken shares and have made their weekly or monthly payments regularly, and have regarded the transactions solely as providing them with a sound form of investing.

Members have rolled into the associations, and their money has also rolled in. Any of the associations can announce the opening of a new series of stock with a certainty of having from three to five hundred shares taken. The trouble is that they are practically all investing members and not borrowing members from whom the association can earn a profit for themselves and of the investing members. Thus is the primary object of the building and loan movement overthrown, for it was originally planned as a borrowing society in a given neighborhood. Another reason for present conditions is that there have been comparatively few withdrawels during the last year. These are a source of profit to the investing members.

There is no more difficult problem now confronting the officers and directors of building and loan associations than that of placing their money where it will bring home a profit. Banks and other institutions all have plenty of money and many persons have been persuaded during the last year to take straight mortgages upon their properties instead of building and loan mortgages. There is greater competition now between the building and loan associations and other financial institutions with money to loan than at any previous time in the more than eighty years that the former have been in existence in this country.

It is quite likely that this unprecedented condition will set back the maturing of shares in some of the associations owing to a lessening of profits on the money deposited by the members.

Reed Refers Bill to Justice Bergen

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, to whom bill of $250 for services as counsel to the Board of Freeholders in the Board's own investigation of Union county affairs was held up by County Collector Leavitt after objection had been made to its payment Saturday advised Attorney Samuel Koestler that he has referred the matter to Justice Bergen.

In his letter to Mr. Koetler Mr. Reed says he does not think this bill is in the same class as the one rejected by a decision of the Supreme Court, because, he states, his services were performed for the Board before the summary Supreme Court investigation was ordered.

The decision cited by Mr. Koestler, who made the protest as counsel for Freeholder Elias F. Applegate, covered a bill for counsel for the court in a Supreme Court investigation. It is contended by Mr. Applegate, however, that some of the services charged for by Mr. Reed were in connection with the Supreme Court investigation.

SOMERSET COUNTY MAY BE WITHOUT SENATOR.

Unless an imperative demand not now apparent should develop, it is probable that Somerset county will be without a representative in the Senate during the coming session. In any event the question of calling a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator W. S. Smalley will rest with the incoming administration.

Governor Fielder has said he has not even considered the advisability of a special election, because of the fact that a Senator would be elected in Somerset next fall in any event. In the absence of any request for an election he said it was his intention to leave the problem open for the incoming administration. As the new Senate will be overwhelmingly Republican it is the general belief in Trenton that no effort will be made to have an election called unless the initiative is taken in Somerset county.

Upon the convening of the Legislature next week the Senate as well as the Governor will have power to authorize an election if it so desires. In such an event the Senate would adopt a resolution authorizing the Somerset Board of Freeholders to call an election.

NO FIRES IN 3 YEARS; FEAR LADDIES WILL QUIT.

Fanwood Borough is trying to prove the worthlessness of a fire department. Not in three years has the old alarm bell sounded and the only fear now is that the rising generation will forget where it is located, in case of need.

The last time the volunteer fire laddies were called from their beds was on a cold January night in 1914 when a garage and two automobiles on the property of Dr. F. W. Wescott were destroyed at a loss of $4,000.

Because there seems to no longer be any danger of a fire, interest has been dwindling among the volunteers until now the active membership of the department has decreased to half its former size. To cap the climax Charles Sheelen, chief for the past sixteen years, says he is seriously thinking of resigning.

BOOTS AND SHOES SOAR.

The newest additions to the long list of articles on which prives have been forced up by the European war are books and rubber shoes. Owing to the scarcity of white paper book dealers are generally raising the prices of books about 20 per cent. One local bookseller has increased the price of his usual fifty-cent bargain books to sixty cents. While rubber goods are not yet assuming abnormal prices, there is a tendency to increase the cost of these also. Rubber shoes, for instance, have gone up slightly, but in no wise the same proportion as leather footgear. Other articles of rubber also show a slight rise in price.

He Thought Right.

Two of Britain's greatest fighters, Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar, and the Duke of Wellington, nicknamed "Old Nosey," met but once in their lives, and that meeting occurred in the little hall at 10 Downing street.

Beside the quaint old fireplace there those present entered into a general conversation, and Nelson was so impressed with the duke that he asked a servant who was the man with the striking nose.

"Ah!" said Nelson, "I thought he was no common man."—National Magazine

Love Insurance

By Earl Derr Biggers

Copyright, 1914, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"It wasn't Wall who had the duplicate made. It was—father—years ago, when I was still at home. He wanted money to bet, as usual—had the duplicate made—tricked and tricked."

"But," Allan objected, "he gave it to me to give to Miss Meyrick. Surely he wouldn't have done that!"

"How old is he now? Eighty-two? Allan, the old boy must be a little childish by now—he forgot. I'm sure he forgot. That's the only view to take of it."

A silence fell. In a moment the elder brother said:

"Allan, I want you to assure me again that you're marrying because you love the girl—and for no other reason."

"Straight, George," Allan answered, and looked his brother in the eye.

"Good kid. There's nothing in the other kind of marriage—all unhappiness—all wrong. I was sure you must be on the level—but, you see, after Mr. Thacker, the insurance chap in New York, knew who I was and that I wouldn't take the title, he told me about that fool policy you took out."

"It's no doubt the collar he was trailing you for, Allan."

"No! Did he?"

"All about it. Sort of knocked me silly for a minute. But I remembered the Harrowby gambling streak—and if you love the girl and really want to marry her, I can't see any harm in the idea. However, I hope you lose out on the policy. Everything O. K. now? Nothing in the way?"

"Not a thing." Lord Harrowby replied. "Minot here has been a belly help—worked like mad to put the wedding through. I owe everything to him."

The Duchess of Lissjore elected to give her dinner and dance in Miss Meyrick's honor as near to the bright Florida stars as she could. On the top floor of the De la Pax was a private dining room, only partially inclosed. There in the open the newest society dances should rise to offend the soft southern sky.

Being a good general, the hostess was early on the scene, marshaling her forces. To her there came Cynthia Meyrick, radiant and lovely and wide eyed on the eve of her wedding.

"How sweet you look, Cynthia!" said the duchess graciously. "But, then, you long ago solved the problem of what becomes you."

"I have to look as sweet as I can," replied the girl wearily. "All the rest of my life I shall have to try and live up to the nobility."

She sighed.

"To think," remarked the duchess, gazing over a great bowl of flowers, "that tomorrow night this time little Cynthia will be Lady Harrowby. I suppose you'll go to Ravedale Hall for part of the year at least?"

"I suppose so."

"Lytoo, have had my Ravedale Hall. Formal, Cynthia, dear, formal. Nothing but silly little halls, silly shoots. American men would die there. As for American women, nothing ever happens—the hedges bloom in neat little rows—the trees blossom—they're bare again. Cynthia, sometimes I've been in a state where I'd give ten years of my life just to hear the rattle of an elevated train."

She stood, looking down at the girl, an all too evident pity in her eyes.

"It isn't all it might be, I fancy, marrying into the peerage," Cynthia said.

"My dear," said the duchess, "when you introduced that brother of Lord Harrowby's this afternoon—that big splendid chap who said American looked better than a title to him—I could have thrown my arms about his neck and kissed him." She came closer to the girl and, still looking deep at her with infinite tenderness in her washed out eyes, "Wasn't there any American boy, my dear?" she asked.

"I—I—hundreds of them," answered Cynthia Meyrick, trying to laugh.

The duchess turned away.

"It's wrong of me to encourage you like that," she said. "Marrying into the peerage is something after all. You must come home every year—in fact on it, Johnson, are these the best caviar bowls the hotel can furnish?"

And the Duchess of Lismore, late of Detroit, drifted off into a bitter argument with the humble Johnson

CHAPTER XVI.

Paddock in Trouble.

MISS MEYRICK strolled away, out upon a little balcony opening off the dining room. She stood gazing down at the waving fronds in the courtyard six stories below. If only that fountain down there were Ponce de Leon's! But it wasn't. Tomorrow she must put youth behind. She must go far from the country she loved—did she care enough for that? Strangely enough, burning tears filled her eyes. Hot revolt surged into her heart. She stood looking down—

Meanwhile the other members of the dinner party were gathering with tender solicitude about their hostess in the ballroom beyond. Dick Minot, hopeless, glum, stalked moodily among them. Into the crowd drifted Jack Paddock, his sprightly air noticeably lacking, his eyes worried, dreadful.

"For the love of heaven," Minot asked, as they stepped together into a secluded corner, "what ails you?"

"Be gentle with me, boy," said Paddock unhappily. "I'm in a horrible mess. The graft, Dick—the good old graft. It's over and done with now."

"What do you mean?"

"It happened last night after our wild chase of Harrowby—I was fussed—excited—I prepared two sets of repartee for my two customers to use tonight"—

"Yes?"

"I always make carbon copies to refer to myself just before the stuff is to be used. A few minutes ago I took out my copies. Dick! I sent the same repartee to both of them!"

"Mirth, eh?" said Paddock grimly. "I can't see it that way. Anyway, this is my last appearance on any stage as a librettist. Kindly omit flowers."

And Mr. Paddock drifted gloomily away.

While the servants were passing cocktails on gleaming trays, Minot found the door to the balcony and stepped outside. A white wraith flitted from the shadows to his side.

"Mr. Minot," said a soft, scared little voice.

"Miss Meyrick," began Minot hurriedly, "I'm very glad to have a moment alone with you. I want to apologize—for last night. I was mad. I did Harrowby a very palpable wrong. I'm very ashamed of myself as I look back. Can I hope that you will—forget—all I said?"

"Can I hope that you will forget—and forgive?"

"I can forgive," she said softly, "but I can't forget. Mr.—Mr. Minot"—

"Yes."

"What—what—is—woman's greatest privilege?"

Something in the tone of her voice sent a cold chill sweeping through Minot's very soul. He clutched the rail for support.

"If—if you'd answer," said the girl, "it would make it easier for"—

"Oh, there you are, Cynthia. You are keeping the duchess' dinner waiting."

Cynthia Meyrick joined her aunt. Minot stayed behind a moment. Below, him Florida swam in the azure night. What had the girl been about to say?

Pulling himself together, he went inside and learned that he was to take in to dinner a glorious blond bridesmaid. When they were seated he found that Miss Meyrick's face was hidden from him by a profusion of Florida blossoms. He was glad of that. He wanted to think—think.

A few others were thinking at that table. Mrs. Bruce and the duchess among them. Mrs. Bruce was mentally rehearsing. The duchess glanced at her.

"The wittiest woman in San Marco," thought the hostess. "Bah!"

Mr. Paddock meanwhile was toying unhappily with his food. He had little to say. The attractive young lady he had taken in had already classified him as a bore. Most unjust of the attractive young lady.

"It's lamentable, really," Mrs. Bruce was speaking. "Even in our best society conversation has given way to the turkey trot. Our wits are in our feet. Where once people talked art, music, literature—now they tango madly. It really seems"—

"Everything you say is true," interrupted the duchess blandly. "I sometimes think the race of the future will be—a trotting race."

Mrs. Bruce started perceptibly. Her eyes lighted with fire. She had been working up to this line, and the coincidence was passing strange. She glared at the hostess. Mr. Paddock studied his plate intently.

"I fog one," went on the Duchess of Lismore, "do not dance the tango or the turkey trot. Nor am I willing to take the necessary steps to learn them."

A little ripple ran round the table—the ripple that up to now had been the exclusive privilege of Mrs. Bruce. That long paled visibly. She realized that there was no coincidence here.

"It seems too bad too," she said, fixing the hostess firmly with an angry eye. "Because women could have the world at their feet if they'd only keep their feet still long enough."

It was the turn of the duchess to start, and start she did. As one who could not believe her ears, she stared at Mrs. Bruce. The "wittiest hostess in San Marco" was militantly under way.

"Women are not what they used to be," she continued. "Either they are mad about clothes, or they go to the other extreme and harbor strange ideas about the vote, eugenics, what not. In fact the sex reminds me of the type of shop that abounds in a small town—its specialty is dry goods and notions."

The duchess pushed away a plate which had only that moment been set before her. She regarded Mrs. Bruce with the eye of Mrs. Pankhurst face to face with a prime minister.

"We are hardly kind to our sex," she said, "but I must say I agree with you. And the extravagance of women! Half the women of my acquaintance wear gorgeous rings on their fingers, while their husbands wear blue rings about their eyes."

Mrs. Bruce's face was livid.

"Madam," she said through her teeth.

"What is it?" asked the duchess sweetly.

They sat glaring at each other. Then with one accord they turned to glare at Jack Paddock.

Mr. Paddock, prince of assurance, was blushing furiously. He stood the combined glare as long as he could, then he looked up into the night.

"How—how close the stars seem," he murmured faintly.

It was noted afterward that Mrs. Bruce maintained a vivid silence during the remainder of that dinner. The duchess, on the contrary, wrung from her purchased lines every possibility they held.

And in that embattled setting Mr. Minot sat, next to the delicious lisp of the debutante at his side. What was woman's greatest privilege? Wasn't it—

His forehead grew damp. His knees trembled beneath the table. "Jephson—Thacker, Jephson—Thacker," he said over and over to himself.

After dinner when the added guests invited by the duchess for the dance crowded the ballroom Minot encountered Jack Paddock. Mr. Paddock was limp and pitiable.

"Ever apologize to an angry woman?" he asked. "Ever try to expostulate with a storm at sea? I've had it out with Mrs. Bruce—offered to do anything to atone. She said the best thing I could do would be to disappear from San Marco. She's right. I'm going. This is my exit from the butterfly life. And I don't intend to say goodby to the duchess, either."

"I wish I could go with you," said Minot sadly.

"Well, come along."

"No. I'll stick it out. See you later."

Mr. Paddock slipped unostentatiously away in the direction of the elevator. On a dais hidden by palms the orchestra began to play softly.

"You haven't asked to see my card," said Cynthia Meyrick at Minot's side.

He smiled a wan smile and wrote his name opposite No. 5. She drifted away. The music became louder, rising to the bright stars themselves. The dance hall had furnished so much bitter conversation at table began to break out. Minot hunted up the balcony and stood gazing miserably down at fairyland below.

There Miss Meyrick found him when the fifth dance was imminent.

"Is it customary for girls to pursue their partners?" she inquired.

"I'm sorry," he said weakly. "Shall we go in?"

"It's so—so glorious out here."

He sighed a sigh of resignation. He turned to her.

"You asked me what is woman's greatest privilege," he said.

"Yes."

"Is it—to change her mind?"

She looked timidly into his eyes.

"It is," she whispered faintly.

The most miserably happy man in history, he gasped.

"Cynthia! It's too late—you're to be married tomorrow. Do you mean—you'd call it all off now—at the last minute?"

She nodded her head, her eyes on the ground.

"My God!" he moaned and turned away.

"It would be all wrong to marry Harrowby," she said faintly. "Because I've come to—I—oh, Dick, can't you see?"

"See! Of course I see!" He clinched his fists. "Cynthia, my dearest"—

Below him stretched six stories of open space. In his agony he thought of leaping over the rail—of letting that be his answer. But, no, it would disarrange things so. It might even postpone the wedding!

"Cynthia," he groaned, "you can't understand. As unlikely as it is I've given my word. I can't explain, I can never explain. But, Cynthia—Cynthia!"—

Back in the shadow the girl pressed her hands to her burning cheeks.

"A strange love—yours," she said. "A love that blows hot and cold."

"Cynthia, that isn't true. I do love you"—

"Please! Please let us forget." She stepped into the moonlight, fine, brave, smiling. "Do we—dance?"

"Cynthia!" he cried unhappily. "If you only understood"—

"I think I do. The music has stopped. Harrowby has the next dance. He'd hardly think of looking for me here."

She was gone. Minot stood alone on the balcony. He was dazed, blind, trembling. He had refused the girl without whom life could never be worth while. Refused her to keep the faith!

He entered upon the bright scene inside, slipped unnoticed to the elevator and, still dazed, descended to the lobby. He would walk in the moonlight until his senses were regained. Near the main door of the De la Pax he ran into Henry Trimmer. Mr. Trimmer had a newspaper in his hand.

"What's the matter with the women nowadays?" he demanded indignantly. Minot tried in vain to push by him. "Seen what those London suffragettes have done now?" And Trimmer pointed to a headline.

"What have they done?" asked Minot.

"Done! They put dynamite under the statue of Lord Nelson in Trafalgar square and blew it sky high. It fell over into the Strand"—

"Good!" cried Minot wildly. "Good! I hope it smashed the whole of London!" And, brushing aside the startled Trimmer, he went out into the night.

CHAPTER XVII.

Minot Goes Through Fire.

IT was nearly 12 o'clock when Mr. Minot, somewhat calmer of mind, returned to the De la Pax. As he stepped into the courtyard he was surprised to see a crowd gathered before the hotel. Then he noticed that from a second floor window poured smoke and flame and that the town fire department was wildly getting into action.

He stopped. His heart almost ceased beating. That was her window—the window to which he had called her on that night that seemed so far away—last night! Breathlessly he ran forward.

And he ran straight into a group just descended from the ballroom. Of that group Cynthia Meyrick was a member. For a moment they stood gazing at each other. Then the girl turned to her aunt.

"My wedding dress!" she cried. "I left it lying on my bed. Oh, I can't possibly be married tomorrow if that is burned!"

There was a challenge in that last sentence, and the young man for whom it was intended did not miss it. Mad with the injustice of life, he swooped down on a fireman struggling with a wabbly ladder. Snatching away the ladder, he placed it against the window from which the smoke and flame poured. Its end up it.

"Here!" shouted the chief of the fire department, laying angry hands on the ladder's base. "Wot you doing? You can't go in there."

"Why the devil can't I?" bellowed Minot. "Let go of that ladder!"

He pushed into the room. The smoke filled his nostrils and choked him. His eyes burned. He staggered through the smoky desk into another room. His hands met the brass bars of a bed, then closed over something soft and flimsy that lay upon it. He seized the something close and hurried back into the other room.

A fireman at another window sought to turn a stream of water on him. Water—on that gown!

"Cut that out, you fool!" Minot shouted. The fireman, who had suspected himself of saving a human life, looked hurt. Minot regained his window. Disheveled, smoky, but victorious, he half fell, half climbed, to the ground. The fire chief faced him.

"Who was you trying to rescue?" the chief demanded. His eyes grew wide. "You idiot!" he roared. "They ain't nobody in that dress."

"Darn it, I know that!" Minot cried. He ran across the lawn and stood, a panting, limp, battered, indicrous figure, before Cynthia Meyrick.

"I—I hope it's the right one," he said, and held out the gown.

She took his offering and came very close to him.

"I hate you!" she said in a low tone.

"I hate you!"

"I—I was afraid you would," he muttered.

A shout from the firemen announced that the blaze was under control. To his dismay, Minot saw that an admiring crowd was surrounding him. He broke away and hurried to his room.

Cynthia Meyrick's final words to him rang in his ears. Savagely he tore at his ruined collar.

Was this ridiculous farce never to end?

As if in answer a distant clock struck 12. He shuddered.

Tomorrow at high noon!

Early Tuesday morning, while Mr. Minot still slept and mercifully forgot, two very wide awake gentlemen sat alone together in the office of the San Marco Mail. One was Manuel Gonzale, proprietor of that paper, as immaculate as the morn; the other was that broad and breezy gentleman known in his present incarnation as Mr. Martin Wall.

"Very neat—very neat indeed," said Mr. Wall, gazing with evident approval at an inky smelling sheet that lay before him. "It ought to do the work. If it does it will be the first stroke of luck I've had in San Marco."

Gonzale smiled, revealing two even rows of very white teeth.

"You do not like San Marco?" he ventured.

Beauty—and beauty to a marked degree—is a prominent characteristic of the CONWAY. The delicate grace of its line, the superb finish of its case can give you no other impression than one of beauty. You cannot realize that it is a player piano of moderate price.

Including Cabinet to Match, Bench, Cover and 25 Rolls of Music.

And yet, beauty was purely incidental—in the creation of this good instrument. First of all, it was made to be RELIABLE. That was the aim—to design a player-piano of sturdy strength and durability—for it was to be an instrument destined to carry a name that cannot countenance inferiority—the name of CONWAY.

It is the name of one of the greatest manufacturers in the piano industry—and his product is worthy of his name. It is one of the greatest achievements of the industry—a moderately priced player-piano of RELIABILITY.

Dice enough potatoes to make one quart; add one small onion, minced fine. Cook in salted water until almost done. Add one-half can of diced pimentos. Cook all five minutes more, drain and put in baking dish. Add sauce made of two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one pint of milk, salt and pepper and one-half pound of grated cheese. Cook until it bubbles and the cheese is thoroughly melted, pour over the potatoes and bake in the oven until a golden brown.

Savory Pork Chops.

Put pork chops into a baking pan with a thin slice of onion on each; also a bit of salt and a dash of pepper. Pour a little water in the pan and bake. They are delicious. The fat is crisp and the flavor is fine.

Fish Fritters.

Free the fish from skin and bones and chop finely. Season to taste with salt and paprika and to each cupful of the fish add one well beaten egg, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one small cupful of milk and one teaspoonful of baking powder, sifted with sufficient flour to form a batter that will drop from the spoon. Beat the mixture until it is full of air bubbles and fry by the tablespoonful in deep, hot fat to a rich dark brown. Drain on brown paper for a minute or two and serve garnished with parsley and lemon quarters.

Club Sandwich.

Toast three slices of bread, butter each slice, place a lettuce leaf on each slice and spread with mayonnaise dressing. On the first slice place some nicely fried bacon. Then put on a slice of toast, buttered and lettuced side up. On the second slice place some cold fried chicken. Then put on the third slice, buttered side down, over the fried chicken.—Farm and Fireside.

BETTER LIGHTS.

In homes where lamps are still used here are a few hints which greatly improve their lighting value: After washing the chimneys in hot soapsuds rinse in ammonia water. After partially drying with an ordinary cloth finish polishing with a starched one. Washed in this way they shine most beautifully. Soak the new wick in strong vinegar before using and dry before putting into the oil; also add a teaspoonful of fine table salt to the oil in the lamp and thus avoid having any odor during the burning.

Limited Ambition.

"You can't unscramble an egg," remarked the sententious person.

"I don't wish to," replied the practical citizen. "I'm perfectly content if I can afford the egg, regardless of how it's cooked."—Washington Star.

One Dead, One Dying, Driver In Elizabeth Jail

William Foster Tyrell was arraigned before a representative of Commissioner Dill and Judge William G. DeMeza here this afternoon on a charge of displaying license numbers on his automobile not properly accredited to him and held for hearing next Friday. Commissioner Dill delegated a man to Plainfield for the special purpose of arraigning the defendant and ascertaining the true facts of the case in which the youthful prisoner is concerned.

He was brought before City Judge DeMeza this morning but was held in $500 bail pending the action of State officials. Bail this afternoon was fixed at $1,500.

Tyrell was one of a party of four involved in a "joy-ride" to Newark Wednesday night when a car owned by Tyrell and bearing a Queen City Garage license tag hit an electric light pole in Springfield avenue, West Summit. Nicholas Miller, the driver, was arrested yesterday by Chief Brown, of the Summit police, and was this morning sent to the Union county jail at Elizabeth to await arraignment before Judge James C. Connolly on a charge of manslaughter. Paul Miller, a brother of the driver, died in Overlook Hospital four hours later with a fractured skull. Otto Zanstra, a Stirling baker, is in the same institution in a dying condition, a fractured skull and horribly mashed face being among his injuries. The Miller brother lived in Stirling. The dead Miller was twenty-five years old and drove for Israel Brennan, a beer distributor.

Since the fatality Chief of Police Kiely has been conducting a thorough investigation and has collected considerable piecemeal evidence that may result in long State's Prison terms for the surviving Miller and Tyrell. This is the third time Tyrell has been in trouble with the State Motor Vehicles Department, his arrest by Elizabeth detectives some time ago following a chase from that city to Newark resulting in his being stripped of his car and driver's license. Despite this Zanstra was arrested here recently charged with driving a car without a license and being under the influence of liquor, at the time of his arrest, yesterday by Lieut. Maurice Higgins Tyrell was at liberty under bail of $500 furnished by Postmaster A. E. Hoagland to appear for trial on the above charges next week. Mr. Hoagland appeared at police headquarters this morning and was relieved of the bond responsibilities. Winfield S. Angleman represents Tyrell.

According to the story related by the police Tyrell and Nicholas Miller, both of whom were connected with the Queen City Garage, applied to the owner, John D. W. De Forest, for permission to use a car license belonging to the garage to place on Tyrell's machine for the "joy-ride." Mr. DeForest told Chief Kiely that he had denied the request but that the men took the tag anyway. Mr. Tyrell, whose father is the assistant postmaster at Perth Amboy, is a cousin of Mr. DeForest's.

The accident happened near the West Summit station, when the party was returning to Plainfield after a trip to Newark, on a turn at the foot of a slope. A red signal light kept burning at the point to apprise motorists of the curve but Nicholas Miller, who is said to have been driving, declared that an automobile truck was approaching in the opposite direction. When he turned out to pass this vehicle the car swerved, according to Miller, and struck the pole with sufficient force to splinter it so badly that it will have to be replaced. Neighbors heard the sound of the shock, and, seeing the plight of the men, hurried out with blankets in which Paul Miller and Zanstra were wrapped, while an ambulance was summoned by telephone. All four men went to the hospital, and from there Miller Tyrell telephoned his mother, Mrs. Lena Fraser. Mrs. Frazer came to the hospital by automobile. Her son died about four hours after he was admitted.

The genius of Thomas Edison has made this possible. Golf Amateurism Muddle Cleared up by The Mayor

Mayor Leighton Calkins, long prominently connected with American golf in official capacities in both the national and metropolitan associations, and the man who drafted the constitutions for those two bodies, is brought up over the golf situation and speaks his mind in an open letter relative to some of the questions that are perplexing golfers all over the country.

"We seem all to be after the same thing—yet floundering about in seas of misunderstanding," writes Mayor Calkins, who then gives his ideas on how the present muddle may be cleared up.

In part, he says:

"Two things usually stand in the way when men try to adjust their differences. One of them is a misunderstanding of the issue. The other is distrust of the motives of those with whom you find yourself not in accord. I think that the approaching annual meeting of the national body can be made to serve the true interests of the game, if the men who are not in agreement go into the business session not so much for the purpose of finding fault as to find points of contact, in order that differences may be understood and ironed out.

"I am not in accord myself with the executive committee on the amateur definition. But I am in accord with what I am sure the committee aimed to accomplish by it—viz., the separation of sport for sport's sake from sport for a livelihood or for profit. I have always had the idea that many of our difficulties come from trying to make the definition too specific. Whether or not Mr. Quimet should be classed as a professional, his case could be decided quite as easily and as fairly if the rule provided briefly and concisely that 'an amateur golfer is one who plays the game only as a recreation, and who neither directly nor indirectly capitalizes his skill, reputation or standing as a player or teacher for the purpose of making money or for pay.'

"There are reasons for not bringing writers and course architects within the rule. Certainly the game would suffer if amateurs were not permitted to write books and articles and publish and edit magazines for a livelihood or pay. The professional player cannot do that kind of thing. And, as a rule, amateurs are far better course architects. Yet there are serious objections to this latter exception. There is too great an opening for an amateur who is successful as an architect to make it a business, and the work naturally leads to other services for pay which clearly encroach upon legitimate activities. It may be that the rule should also bar capitalizing knowledge of the game or prominence in it (excepting the writing, editing or publishing of books, magazines, articles, etc.) for the purpose of making money.

"But it is quite another thing to declare that one cease to be an amateur if his usefulness or profits in any business arise because of his skill or prominence in the game. One cannot easily rid himself of his general reputation, nor prevent some advantage accruing from it in legitimate business. Must one retire from business that moment he discovers that his skill or prominent in a game which he plays purely as a pastime, has enhanced his usefulness or gain from it?

"Or again, why should all young men be declared professionals if they handle golf supplies as the employes of others, whether or not they play the game well or are prominent in it? Such a rule cannot be enforced. There are thousands of players of no standing or reputation, some quite say-out-and-out duffers, who are professionals, according to that clause. It cannot be enforced and serves no useful purpose.

"It would seem, where most of us are in agreement as to what we want, that a way might be found to get it. But it is doubtful if a rule can be framed at a convention of delegates: A better way would be to have the meeting devoted to a discussion of this principle involved, and then appoint a commission to frame a rule and recommend it to the executive committee.

"I suggest a commission, because there are men previously active in the association and quite familiar with the problem who would be able to render valuable advice. Such men, for example, as Alexander Britton, of Washington; Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago; Sam Reenber, of Philadelphia, and others. A commission of fifteen, with the officers of the association also members of it, ought to be able to present a solution of the problem if time is taken for the project, instead of rushing headlong from one unsatisfactory rule to another."

Son and Partner Succeed Geo. Cole

After engaging in business in this city for thirty-seven years, George Cole has retired from active participation in the undertaking concern on West Second street and on January 1 the firm name was changed to Cole & High.

Clifford Cole, a son of Mr. Cole's, who has been connected with his father for some years, and William High, an embalmer of long experience in Rahway, are now actively in charge and are considering several changes of a modern nature. A New York office has also been opened and upon request Mr. Cole will handle cases.

STATE DENTAL BOARD DID EFFECTIVE WORK.

As the result of affiliation with the New Jersey Association for the Suppression of Vice and Impostors, the State Board of Registration and Examination in Dentistry has been more effective in its prosecution of illegal practitioners in dentistry the last fiscal year than ever before, according to the board's annual report just given out.

The success is attributed to the association, to which the State board paid nearly $1,000 during the year for membership and expenses. Ten cases against illegal practitioners were prosecuted in the courts and in every instance the defendants were fined. One case is now pending on appeal. Fourteen affidavits were submitted by practitioners suspected of breaking the law, assuring the board they would not commit any further violations.

AGED JJURIST WILL BE TENDERED BANQUET.

Several local lawyers will attend the dinner to be given by the bar of New Jersey in honor of former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, head of the law firm of Collins & Corbin. The dinner which is being gotten up by a committee headed by Maximilian T. Rosenberg, of Jersey City, is to take place January 27, at Delmonico's New York.

Mr. Collins was born in Stonington, Conn., August 26, 1846, of Revolutionary stock, and come to New Jersey to live in 1867. He has been practising law forty-eight years having been admitted to the Supreme Court bench by Governor John W. Griggs and served as a member of that tribunal seven years, resigning to resume practice. He served also as Mayor of Jersey City.

SENATE HONORS SMALLEY.

The Senate Tuesday afternoon paid a tribute to the memory of Senator William W. Smalley, of Somerset county, who died recently, by adopting the same resolution that was adopted by the Senators at the State House the day of the Smalley funeral. Leader McCran offered the resolution and it was adopted unanimously. Mr. McCran said the Legislature and the State had suffered a great loss in the death of Senator Smalley.

Tabs Plan For Birthday Event

At the monthly meeting of the Total Abstinence Benevolence Society held on Sunday plans for the forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of that organization were formulated. The celebration will take place on May 12.

Previous to the anniversary celebration it is planned to have a monster campaign for new members, teams having been picked to carry on this work. At the meeting the following committee was appointed to arrange details for the anniversary fete: John J. Hines, James E. O'Keeffe, Alfred E. La Porte, Daniel J. Guinee, Thomas P. Hines, Michael Caffery, Michael D. O'Keeffe, Joseph T. McCue, Jeremiah Callahan, John Welsh and John Barry. Mr. Welsh and Mr. Barry are charter members of the organization and have been active in its recent rise.

In order to assist the Knights of Columbus with their coming fair, the following committee was appointed by President John P. McCue: John Force, John J. Hines, Rufus LaRue, Elmer Blimm, M. D. O'Keeffe, Thomas P. Hines, Sr. Sheridan, Charles Schuck, Timothy Lyons, Hugh McDonnell, Frank Donnelly, James Fitzgerald, Daniel Guinee, Peter McDonough, Alfred E. La Porte, Joseph Carroll, Charles Wallowell, Jerry Welsh and Daniel Cregar. Mr. McCue is chairman of this committee. The Tabs act in conjunction with a committee appointed by the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

DONATION TEA WILL MARK ANNIVERSARY.

The Plainfield City Union of Kings' Daughters will observe its eleventh anniversary next Friday when it holds a donation tea and reception in the Day Nursery on West Front street. In the afternoon it will be from 3 to 6 and in the evening 8 to 10.

At a meeting held earlier in the present week final arrangements for the affair were completed. The general reception committee will be comprised of the officers of the union they being: President, Mrs. John A. Peterkin; vice president, Mrs. A. E. Faber, Jr.; second vice president Mrs. Sidney R. Ellsworth; recording secretary, Mrs. Van Buren; corresponding secretary, Miss Charlotte T. Finch, and treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Mott. Although the members of the entire fourteen circles in the union will help, the charge of the tea tables has been given to the Cup Bearers and Unity Circles. Arrangements are being made for an enjoyable musical program.

Regarding the many donations that are annually received, Mrs. Peterkin expressed the hope that not so many people would not give cereals but would contribute a larger variety of things, as it is all used for the Day Nursery and the amount of breakfast food is great at the expense of other articles.

TALK ON ANIMALS.

The local Boy Scouts, under the direction of Commissioner John Duffy, and the local branch of the S. P. C. A., have jointed for the purpose of bringing Dr. Norman H. Hecrest, a prominent member of the American Humane Association, here to lecture in February. It will be an illustrated talk on animals and will be held free to the public in the High School.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JANUARY 12, 1917

MISTAKEN IDEA OF NEW COMMISSION'S DUTIES.

Some Plainfield civic organizations as well as an individual element have conceived a mistaken idea of the object Mayor Calkins had in mind when he appointed a Research and Advisory Commission and the quicker this opinion is dispelled the sooner the body will be able to accomplish the ends desired. It is not a channel through which complaints of a general nature will pass; it is not a source for the settlement of community questions fostered by district factions; and it is not designed to work independent of the Common Council. The commission will investigate problems assigned to it by the councilmanic body but the latter organization will not be permitted to shift the burden of municipal government onto the shoulders of the commissioners.

There are certain issues that require painstaking searches and a careful collection of data that will enable the Common Council to act intelligently and to the best interests of the city when the propositions are put to a vote. Oftentimes these issues are strung out beyond the terms of the councilmen or mayor active in their introduction and the perpetual life of the commission personnel will enable a systematic follow-up in each instance. The commission must have the authorization of the Council before taking up any problem and the expenses attached to the investigation must be appropriated by the Common Council and endorsed by that body.

Certain civic organizations have already appointed committees to work with the commission with the idea that the "hobbies" fostered by these organizations will be taken up and disposed of immediately. However, the civic bodies will have to go to the Common Council first, as they have had to do in the past, but if authorization is given the commission to enter upon an investigation the assistance of the civic committees will probably be a valuable asset in facilitating the work.

IS YOUR HOUSE NUMBERED CORRECTLY?

Mayor Leighton Calkins and Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett have inaugurated a crusade to correct a long standing city-abuse of the municipal system of house numbering. The Mayor has threatened delinquents with prosecution and past experiences tend to indicate that an announcement of this kind coming from him must be taken at its face value. For years past a readjustment of house numbers has been greatly needed and although several attempts have previously been made to impress the importance of a regulated system on negligent citizens the result has not been entirely satisfactory. Property owners who are in doubt and do not wish to wake up some fine morning and find a police court summons awaiting them should consult their tax bills or Mr. Gavett at once. It would be well for every householder to make sure that his individual property measures up to the requirements of the house numbering ordinance.

Just at this time it might also be well for the local authorities to unite with those of the borough in an effort to rename some of the confusing streets now in existence. Parts of some thoroughfares run from the city to the borough with the same name on both sides and oftentimes the numbers are identical on either side. Then again there are streets and avenues in Plainfield with duplicates in North Plainfield also having the same house numbers. It appears that it would be the opportune moment to get together on the proposition and make some necessary changes.

MR. HETFIELD'S CONTENTION IN FREEHOLDER MATTER.

When Counselor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, advised Union County Register Frank H. Smith regarding the purchase of stock of the Lawrence Portland Cement Company by Freeholder Krousse, he was not connected with the County Prosecutor's Office, and had not been for a period of two years.

It is Mr. Hetfield's contention, and he so advised Mr. Smith that if a member of the Board of Freeholders or of any other governing body has no personal interest whatever, present or prospective in a contract, for public work, at its inception, nor any interest thereafter in such contract, except such that arises from the fact that a free and independent contractor purchases material from a corporation or corporations in which said member is a stockholder, for the completion of said public work, after the contract therefore has been awarded to the contractor by the governing body, it does not justify the conclusion that such member has any forbidden interest, directly or indirectly, nor does it violate the statutes of the State of New Jersey.

Mr. Hetfield also contends that the Lawrence Portland Cement Company, in which Mr. Krousse is a stockholder, has never sold or supplied any materials to the county, and any of said company's products which have been used on public work, have been purchased by free and independent contractors who had a perfect legal right to do so.

Mr. Hetfield also refers to that part of Judge Bergen's charge to the grand jury, after he had referred to the fact that some of the county officials were stockholders in the Lawrence Portland Cement Company, wherein he stated, "I do not say there is any crime about it as far as these facts show, but it is your duty to investigate to see whether, under such circumstances, the county is getting a fair show, and that the material bought for the county is bought free of any such influence."

The Record makes the above statement of facts in justice to Mr. Hetfield, and regrets that an innocent wrong was done him in an editorial in these columns last week.

MAY UNIONIZE FIRE DEPARTMENTS.

Union agents are now turning their attention to Fire Departments, thus seeking to get a foothold on public service and to unionize the employes. The methods being followed in Newark are similar to those employed in the movement to unionize the school teachers of that city. The authorities of the department have not been consulted and apparently their wishes in the matter are not regarded as of primary or even of major importance.

Among the school teachers the first effort to insert a wedge was addressed to one of the numerous associations into which the teaching force has divided its affiliations. Probably the Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association is looked upon as a ready-made medium through which the unionizing effort may be pressed to best advantage. Where there are organizations formed for the purpose of advancing, protecting and conserving the interests of department employes, the labor promoter finds the field more responsive to cultivation.

No intimation has been given as yet, publicly at least, either by the school or fire department authorities, as to how they regard the unionizing campaigns within their respective organizations. There is nothing to indicate whether they look upon the movement either with complacency, favorably, or with hostility. And yet it is a situation that calls for their keenest interest. The subject should be studied from all angles and the study should be made now while the campaign is in an incipient stage, so that if there is anything about it that is objectionable, or if it wholly so, the authorities will be in position to do whatever the situation calls for.

It is said that the program of the American Federation of Labor with respect to unionizing the public service involves a campaign that includes municipal, State and Federal governments. Some advancement has been made among municipal employes. New York and Chicago furnishes instances of this, although in Chicago a bitter conflict has been waging for three years between the school authorities and the city's unionized teachers. The present movements in Newark doubtless have their counterparts in other cities.

Some, who have no special power of imagination, might regard such a campaign as a potential menace, to the republic no less than to its lesser political divisions. And some might hold that those who are in the service of the city, the State or the nation, and who are, in theory at least, the servants of the public, should be chary about entering into affiliations that might tend to affect either the general public interests or their own value and character as the servitors of the people.

AS THE MAYOR STANDS, SO THE CITY STAND.

Asked to give an opinion on the status of Mayor Leighton Calkins and of Plainfield as a city in the New Jersey State League of Municipalities at Trenton Tuesday Mayor Raymond, of Newark, said in part: "Mayor Calkins is the type of man any city may well feel proud of. He is of sound judgement, thoroughly acquainted with municipal government and keenly interested in all that concerns his city, county and State. He is occupying a prominent place in the league and is making his presence felt by his activity at its meetings. Mayor Calkins has brought Plainfield to the front in this organization and as he stands the city stands."

Thus is expressed in a few words the attitude of the mayor of Jersey's largest city toward our mayor and town. Those who have followed the work of the New Jersey League of Municipalities know every word of it to be true and Plainfielders are just as sincerely confident of Mayor Calkins' ability as is Mayor Raymond or any of his other associates in the league. When Plainfield authorized the payment of a representative's annual dues in a State body of this kind it paved the way toward municipal prominence in New Jersey affairs and at the same time kept abreast of other progressive units of State government.

Considering the increase in automobile licenses of 1916 over 1915 the twenty-six additional deaths reported by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill for the year just closed over the twelve months previous is not alarming, in fact, the average is exceptionally low. Two hundred and fifteen persons met death as the result of automobile accidents in 1916 and the proportion when compared with that of other States having approximately the same number of cars is far below the record. New Jersey's laws for safeguarding the pedestrian and the enforcement of adequate traffic regulations are responsible for the good showing.

This should inspire the Legislature to take such action as will result in even stricter enforcement, especially against drivers who are convicted of operating their machines while "under the influence of intoxicating liquor;" and this action should be directed against the justices of the peace and police court judges who assume the right to show leniency to drunken drivers when the law says they must be sent to jail.

Improvement of our roads under the Edge-Oliphant plan of raising $15,000,000 to be spent for that purpose, during the next five years, will undoubtedly result in added risks and there is therefore the greater reason why the Legislature should provide more safeguards and support Commissioner Dill in his efforts to minimize the number of automobile accidents by strictly enforcing such laws as have already been enacted, but in the observance of which there has been too much laxity.

Any change in the coinage is likely at first to meet with more or less objection merely because it is a change. But the appearance of the new half-dollars, following the new dimes, should soon reconcile grumblers who have resented the efforts of the United States Mint authorities to produce something different in the fractional currency. The designs have the merit of being both simple and artistic, and are a distinct improvement in that respect on the pieces so long in use.

It is easy to say that any coin is good enough so long as the value is recognized at a glance. That is to give sole consideration to the bare fact of utility. But objects that pass so constantly in general circulation as the smaller coins should be rightfully made attractive to the eye. Every Government in its own way strives to reach that end as a matter of pride. Otherwise it would be enough to stamp circles of copper, nickel, silver and gold with numerals, and let it go at that.

This time the United States Mint has succeeded, with the help of the designer, in turning out new silver coins which far surpass in beauty those which they replace. That is justification enough, and in this case exceptionally so because some of the other issues in recent years did not deserve unqualified approval.

* * * * *

The calibre of publicity given a Plainfield hotel during the past few days in metropolitan court circles is not the kind encouraged by managers but it is the result of a circumstance that might befall the best regulated house. It is unfortunate that the name of this hostelry should be linked with the principles in a criminal case of this character but the fact that the present owner did not have control when the alleged incident occurred is sufficient to give the hotel a clean bill of health in the eyes of its patrons. Those who run public lodging and eating establishments are frequently called upon to discriminate between the good and bad type of patronage and it must be said to the credit of all local managements that everything possible is done to maintain the highest possible moral standard. The clerk involved in the Tanzer-Wax-Slade mess has never had connection with the Hotel Kensington under the present management and even if the alleged Osborne-Tanzer visit had occurred when the present owner was in control the circumstances would eliminate him from any degree of blame.

* * * * *

Although only passing thought has been given the proposition up to the present time it is imperative that something be done in the immediate future regarding the installation of a switch-board system of telephone communication between the various fire houses in the city. Under present conditions it is necessary for headquarters to call back on the central station before connecting with one of the other three houses. Thus, when the instrument at headquarters is in use it is impossible to communicate with any of the other stations or to receive an outside call. In case of emergency this might prove disastrous.

It has been suggested that a switchboard with at least three outside lines be installed and it is very evident that there is an urgent need for the improvement. It is frequently necessary to communicate with the captains of the various houses and it should be possible to do this without the aid of the central office. This is just one more step toward department efficiency that should be taken at once.

When the East End debaters get through telling the West End representatives all about the poor sewage facilities in the latter section of the city and the West Enders inform the East Enders that the flood conditions in that part make the East End unfit for human habitation it will be time for us mere lookers-on to shake the dust from our heels and wonder just why we're hanging around Plainfield after-all. It's a question in our minds whether or not these inter-sectional debates are a good thing for the community. We are fearful that the seekers of material for arguments will unearth such a vast collection of reasons why the respective ends of the municipality are not the best places to live that their audience will be given cause to ponder over the advisability of remaining in Plainfield. Debaters have been known to stretch their imaginations a point or two and it would not be surprising to find that even the civic workers will follow the same path in their material gathering.

Unfortunate it is that Councilman Charles Sminck should have been drawn in the panel of Grand Jurors who will pass upon the legality of some of the activities of the Board of Freeholders; particularly so because the name of the Lawrence Cement Company, in which he is interested, will come in for its share of attention. The adverse criticism that has sprung up in some quarters with the mention of the Plainfielder's name, however, is totally unjustified. Those who are acquainted with Mr. Sminck know him to be absolutely honest and conscientious in whatever relations he has formed with county or municipal matters. He has been summoned to do jury duty and it is his obligation to obey the beckoning finger of the jury commissioner. That he will discharge his share of the work in an impartial and painstaking manner is assured. There has been a hint of bias sentiment in the criticism of Mr. Sminck as a juror which is absolutely uncalled for.

For the benefit of those who are lying awake nights trying to picture what Senator "Jim" Martine will do upon being retired from official duties it might be said that there is plenty of unploughed soil in the city of his nativity and that Plainfield will probably be as attractive for him as ever. The "Farmer Orator" has announced that he will in the future shun the public spotlight but those who are intimate with "Jim" Martine know that wherever he travels the glare of the public are will always follow. Taking him at his word in regard to retiring from public office we have every reason to believe that the call of the hoe and spade will sound just as strongly in his ears as it did before he was elected to aid Woodrow Wilson in directing the interests of the United States. Plainfield has a warm spot for "Jim" and the Senator is known to have a warm spot for Plainfield.

These hay fever victims should begin their campaign now. It is too late after all the pollen bearing weeds are grown and distributing their poison around. Dr. William Scheppegrell, president of the American Hay-Fever-Prevention Association, says: "The association is engaged in a nation-wide publicity and educational campaign on the relationship of pollen to hay-fever and for the passage of laws for the eradication of the weeds that cause the disease." Ten among the largest American cities have passed laws for the eradication of hay-fever weeds and it is believed other cities will do so this spring

One hundred dollar bills were given as favors at a Binghamton (N. Y.) dinner this week. And maybe there wasn't a lot of applications for "seconds."

* * * * *

Republicans have entered upon a new year of work in absolute control of the Legislature and bound over to a series of pledges which have been classed in Democratic quarters as "idle promises." That there are some mighty important measures among them may be seen at a glance and the Republicans should be expected to carry out the major portion of them at least. To do so will entail some hard work during the present session and the task shapes up in mountainous proportions. The guiding hand of Governor-elect Edge will be put to the crucial test in the early stages of his administration but his constituents have no fear that he will be found wanting in his co-operation with the Legislature.

There will be a merry war with union labor if President Wilson carries out his threat to have legislation enacted by Congress making labor disputes subject to compulsory arbitration. The enthusiasm of Sam Gompers and the "Big Four" for the President has cooled since the days of the Adamson law legislation, when it was anything to get votes for Wilson. The fact is, the Adamson law is a thing that President Wilson does not want since he has had time to look it over.

The "Monkey Doodles" of Hans und Fritz For Plainfield Theatre Patrons Monday

Some of the pretty girls with Gus. Hill's big musical ... "Hans und Fritz," Plainfield, Theatre Monday, January 15.

If you desire a hearty laugh, and wish to free yourself from all the cares that this mundane sphere invitos and happens, we would suggest that you subscribe immediately for the latest Gus Hill triumph, "Hans und Fritz," which is to be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, January 15, matinee and night.

The offering is a musical comedy, entirely new and original lines with a special cast, plenty of pretty young women, a car-load of scenery, dancing, singing and infectious melodies and scenes and features sufficiently diversified to make the most gross-craving individual sit up and smile at this jolly world. The production which is based on the famous cartoons of ... Dirks, the originator of the Katzenjammer Kids, is in three acts. There is not a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain and each situation, bit, incident and dialogue spells action, animation and compels hearty laughter and hilarity.

You need not take our word for this shown. As your neighbor, friend, doctor or acquaintance. Consult your grocer, your butcher, your baker or candlestick maker and you will be apprised of the veracity of our statement. Hans und Fritz do things—big things, mischievous things and insipid things. But they do them so adroitly and amusingly that you are prone to forgive them their sins and regard as the funniest thing since the Captain, Mama Katzenjammer, Schwanweizer and the other lovable characters—characters you will know and love. Hans und Fritz get into all sorts of scrapes to be sure, but they succeed in pulling themselves out of lots of trying knots and situations with the result that they keep you in a turmoil of merriment and laughter. The piece has not been put together in slap-stick style, just for the purpose of shaping a show of crazy-quilt qualities. There is a plausible story, with enough tenseness and continuity to cause the auditor to follow the plot with increasing interest. The company contains thirty-five capable people and a satisfactory performance is assured.

"THE YELLOW JACKET."

"The Yellow Jacket" started in New York, went flat after a few performances, it was run out of town on a handcar, so far as appreciation on Broadway was concerned. That was several years ago. Then it was started through the provinces. Its departure from New York marked the beginning of one of the greatest triumphs in modern stage annals. The play has gone around the world. It has been acted in every modern capital. The Chinese minister went to see it in London, and it made him so homesick that he almost resigned his position. Underneath the conventions of the Chinese stage, which make the play irresistibly humorous in western eyes, there is a beauty and a truth about the story and its character with lift it far beyond satire.

So finally, "The Yellow Jacket" went back to New York. Keoku and London had agreed upon its merits, and Broadway consented to take another look. But the play has been staged there under difficulties. It was discovered that the theatres of Broadway were all occupied. Between "Good Gracious Annabelle" and "So Long Letty" there wasn't a place for "The Yellow Jacket" to slip in edgewise. It has to be presented on off afternoons for many weeks, until finally the Harris Theatre was vacated, and in the future "The Yellow Jacket" will be its regular attraction. So thoroughly have Keoku and London advertised the piece that it is going to run in New York until next summer.

STRAND THEATRE.

German official war pictures and a photo-drama de luxe adaption of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations" head the Strand Theatre program this week. Lolly Huff and Jack Pickford are co-stars in "Great Expectations," and the Famous Players Film Company who produced the film have given the stars an exceptionally well balanced cast including Frank Losee, Marie Wayne, Gladys Barton, Herbert Prior and W. W. Black. The story of "Great Expectations" details the thrilling adventures of "Pip," a young orphan who is brought up in the home of his brother-in-law, a blacksmith. He encounters an escaped criminal, Provis, while trying to elude his master's wrath, and is forced to smuggle food and a file to assist the criminal in furthering his escape. Provis is captured and the boy is in terror until the convict shields him with a lie. Because he is a refined looking little chap he is chosen by Mr. Jaggers, a lawyer, to become the companion of little Estella, the adopted daughter of Miss Havisham. There is much mystery and not a little that is horrifying about this Miss Havisham. She sits alone in a dark room clad in an old wedding dress. Pip's adventures at the hands of Miss Havisham, his love affair with the daughter of Estella, the mysterious legacy which makes him independent, and the final shocking discovery of the source of his wealth are all features in the absorbing story, set in the romantic atmosphere of which Dickens drew such sweeping pen pictures.

"THE THIRTEENTH CHAIR."

The curtain had just descended on the second act of "The Thirteenth Chair," the thrilling melodrama at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, when a man sitting well down toward the front of the orchestra seats drew an envelope from his pocket and, tearing off the back of it, hastily wrote a short message. Then he called an usher and, pointing toward a distinguished-looking gentleman sitting in a box, directed that his message be taken to him.

The man in the box was William Gillette, and the note which he received read as follows: "Well, Sherlock, who did it?"

And the greatest living Sherlock Holmes on the stage smiled and shrugged his shoulders to indicate his utter inability to solve the mystery Bayard Veiller has written in his story of "The Thirteenth Chair."

"SHOW OF WONDERS."

The "Show of Wonders," at the Winter Garden, now in its eleventh week, continues to draw packed houses to this home of musical extravaganza. That the wizards of the Winter Garden should have been able to have put on twenty of these huge, whizzing musical spectacles, each one to out-do the other in musical surprises, artistical astonishments, and scenic splendors, has been a matter for general wonder. When it was understood, however, that the Winter Garden staff is composed of the most expert craftsmen, employed the year around in putting together these spectacles, their completeness, as well as artistic finish, is easy to understand. Without evidently, let out on at the Winter Garden in a happy manner. The most talented singers and dancers from all parts of the world are selected for these extraordinary entertainments. The cast includes George W. Monroe, McIntyre & Heath, Howard and Howard, Walter C. Kelly, Tom Dobbins, Evidently, Miller, Daisie Irving, John T. Murray, Grace Fisher, Alexis Kosloff, White and Clayton, Sidney Phillips, Dan Quinlan, Edmund Mortimer, Eleanor Brown, James Grant, Ernest Hare, Virginia Smith and others.

WASHINGTON SQUARE PLAYERS.

For the benefit of the out of town public who invariably use Thursday for their day in New York, the Washington Square Players have added this day for a matinee, and those that avail themselves of the opportunity will do well, for these famous players may be seen in a series of four plays headed by "Hoshida," a Japanese play that has helped materially to establish this organization to the front ranks. The matinees are on Thursday and Saturdays and commence promptly at 2:30.

"HER HUSBAND'S WIFE."

Last Monday was a red letter day at the Lyceum, for on that night under the management of Henry Miller, a brilliant comedy by A. E. Thomas, "Her Husband's Wife," was produced, with a brilliant cast such as is rarely seen even on Broadway and which bespeaks for the comedy success from its initial performance and comprises Marie Tempest, Laura Hope Crews, Norma Mitchell, Henry Kolker, W. Graham Browne and Eugene O'Brien.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

At the Columbia Theatre the week beginning Monday afternoon, January 15, the Liberty Girls will present a new two-act burlesque called "Riley's Vacation," with an incidental operatic trailer entitled "The Hits in the Bathtub," written and composed by Frederick Chapin. Also, a long program of vaudeville specialties is announced, constituting a performance that in its entirety is said to be a marked departure from anything hitherto offered at the Columbia. The principal part both in the burlesque and the operetta will be played by Jack Conway, whose impersonation of Irish character is said to be unlike that of any other portrayer of this type in burlesque. Mr. Conway will have the support of several players of more than ordinary popularity among patrons of this form of entertainment. Among them are Fay Joerns, Dainty Dolly, Barry Melton, Arthur Mayer, James Collins, Frank Leonard, Mark Thompson, Edward Griffin and Michael Puglia. One of the most attractive features of the performance according to the announcements, is an elaborate presented musical number in which the female members of the company appear representing in make-up and dress the various fraternal orders, including Masons, Eagles, Knights of Columbus, Elks, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and many others. The vaudeville division of the performance is headed by the Three Bullova Girls in a sensational aerial act, and the Liberty Four, a male quartet, who will give scenes from a Broadway cabaret.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

The military operetta, "Her Soldier Boy," continues to draw capacity audiences to the Astor Theatre, and judging from present indications of popularity, Clifton Crawford, the star of the production and his associates, John Charles Thomas, Adele Rowland and Bertha Lyde, will not be released from Broadway duty for at least another year.

"Her Soldier Boy" is in a prologue and two acts, with book and lyrics by Rida Johnson Young, founded upon the story of Victor Leon. The music is by Emmerich Kalman, composer of "Sari," and additional numbers have been supplied by Sigmund Romberg and Clifton Crawford. A romance back of the lines in Belgium and the adventures of Teddy McLain, an American war correspondent, form the charming basis of the play.

In the company, in addition to the above-named quartet of stars, are Cyril Chadwick, Ellis Gergely, Mildred Richardson, Harold Vizard, George A. Schiller, Frank Ridee, Ward De Wolfe and Ethel Brandon. There is a chorus of sixty. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

"TREASURE ISLAND."

Although Chas. Hopkins' wonderful production of "Treasure Island" has passed its three hundredth performance there seems to be no abatement in the crowd that wants to see it and it is necessary to secure seats well in advance. Practically the same excellent cast that opened with its original performance remains and only changes have been made where it has strengthened the production.

Jungle Kings at Local Playhouse

Another popular bill is carded for the Plainfield Theatre for the latter half of the present week and should prove to be an excellent continuation of the one that pleased all patrons of the Second street house for the first three days of the week. An animal act, the kind that remains always popular in the hearts of old and young, is the feature attraction. "Addie and Her Lions" give local theatregoers a chance to see the beasts of the African jungle put through their paces" by a woman. Surrounded by a gilded cage Addie has the animals all about her and shows little regard for the danger she is exposed to in making them perform the tricks they have been taught.

Plenty of comedy marks the remainder of the bill with Hamburg & Lee, "the two noble nuts from funland," heading the procession. Richards and Montrose present an excellent comedy skit; Jack Marcus and Madge Casey are the characters in a musical comedy duo, and Jean Finneran winds up the vaudeville part of the program with a terpsichorean novelty.

Today the moving picture bill is headed by the fifth episode of the popular serial, "Peril of the Army," Pathe News and several Universal comedies complete the offering.

Gus Hill's latest laughing show of the year, "Hans und Fritz," will hold the boards at the Plainfield Theatre next Monday matinee and night, but Tuesday and Wednesday will see the ever popular vaudeville program as the attraction. It will be another bill of big hits including five numbers in all, and with the usual motion pictures will be fully up to the usual standard.

HIPP SURPASSES ALL.

Since Charles Dillingham assumed control of the destinies of the Hippodrome, it has startled the world with its achievements. The records of attendance for last season and this have never been equalled by any indoor amusement resort anywhere in this country or abroad, and it begins the new year with a brilliant outlook and with a proud and unprecedented past. The week between Christmas and New Year's added another surprising result to big theatre's remarkable records. Over sixty five thousand people witnessed "The Big Show" during Christmas week—66,886 to be correct. In other words, its vast capacity of 5,274 seats was taxed at each of the twelve performances and an average of 300 more accepted admissions at each. This stupendous nature of this result is best illustrated by the fact that this great number of patrons could not be accommodated at the highly vaunted comedy success in an entire month, where the capacity of the ordinary theatre is less than 2,000 and only eight performances are given weekly. Therefore, a success equal to one at the Hippodrome which runs one season would play to a public large enough to keep the production on Broadway for four solid years.

"THE CENTURY GIRL."

Peggy O'Brien, of "The Century Girl," provides Elsie Janis with an excuse to don one of the most charming gowns she has worn while appearing at the Century Theatre, New York. As the colleen of ready wit Miss Janis wears a plain skirt of apple green taffeta with a fluffy blouse of white. Across her back is thrown a short shoulder cape of green fastened across the front of the bodice with two bands of taffe. A wide-brimmed hat of the same material, turned up abruptly in front completes the costume.

The scene in which she gives her imitations of stage celebrities Miss Janis wears an effective, but extremely simple frock of white chiffon with elbow sleeves. A single red rose is fastened at the girdle and the full skirt gives a suggestion of pearl trimming.

To lend variety, Miss Janis also appears once in masculine evening dress and once in a wedding gown. As the Chicken in "The Chicken and the Hawk" costume has a skirt of ballet length in many shades of orange and brown, a tightly fitting bodice, and a most becoming brown and red bonnet.

PAVLOWA'S LAST TWO WEEKS.

Charles Dillingham has prepared to make the coming two weeks at the Hippodrome a series of notable performances. Besides the unrivalled, the final appearances in the program of "The Big Show" of Anna Pavlowa, the greatest of all dancers, who ends her engagement at the Hippodrome house on Saturday, January 29, and will not be seen in America again for two years. During this fortnight Pavlowa will present a series of special dances selected by request from her own favorite creations. On Monday she has selected for her own number, "Les Sylphides," and Tschaikowsky's new dance to a Strauss Waltz and Lincke's, "Gavotte Pavlowa," while her ballet principals and coryphees include for the first time "Gaite Parisienne," a Polka by Puni and the Bohemian Dance by Minkus.

All the other extraordinary features of the extensive program, with its minstrels turning from black to white; the song revue; the comedy features, and the remarkable ballet in which "The Merry Doll," are still retained, and in fact, as is the Hippodrome custom, new novelties are introduced weekly. Matinees are given daily.

"SERENONDA."

Julia Arthur produced at the Criterion Theatre last week "Serenonda," a romantic play by William Lindsey. Based on actual events in Southern France in the twelfth century, the troubadour period, the story has to do with the love of Baron Raimon, who, defeated in love, slays his rival at the altar rail and carries off the beautiful Serenonda to his castle. As a penance for the murder Raimon is sent away to the Crusades, and word comes home after several years that he has been killed. Serenonda has been left by Raimon in the care of his squire, and on the very day he returns from the Holy Land Serenonda and the Squire discover their mutual love.

Miss Arthur, who is now an actress-manager, produced and staged the play and selected the cast herself. The company includes Alphonz Ethier, Ivy Troutman, Robert W. Frazer, Sonia Marcelle, Brigham Royce and others.

"Under Cover" Photoplay at Proctor's Theatre Tomorrow

Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore head the photoplay program at Proctor's Saturday in a thrilling romance of production based on the brilliant stake triumph, "Under Cover," from the pen of Rex Cooper Megrue. This is a splendid picturization of the celebrated drama of love, laughter and mystery and thrills which captured Broadway not long ago, and scored one of the greatest successes of any dramatic production yet presented. In addition Saturday and in direct contrast to "Under Cover," the Metro Corporation contributes William Nigh, and a splendid supporting cast in a pleasing story entitled "Life's Shadows." A special feature for the children is that offered by the cartoon comedy entitled "Bunty on the Job," the same Jerry that has amused thousands of young and older folks throughout the country on the pages of the leading papers.

Monday's program is a double feature one and consists of a special Vitagraph Blue Ribbon production, "Whom the Gods Destroy," starring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey, the former returning to the lure of the screen after an absence of several years. In addition Monday a special ... engagement of Ormi Hawley in "Where Love Leads" will come in for a big share of attention.

On Tuesday, the most popular of the Triangle favorites will be seen at Proctor's. Douglas Fairbanks, comedy-dramatic star de luxe, will then be seen in his latest success, "The Matrimaniac," which created such a sensation recently at the Rialto Theatre, New York. Added features Tuesday include Douglas Gerard in "The Scratch of a Pen" and a laugh-impelling Keystone comedy.

On Wednesday, Gretchen Hartman and Alan Hale will star in William Fox's "The Love Thief," the "Crimson Stain Mystery" and a Keystone comedy will be shown. On Thursday, Frank Keenan will be presented in his greatest vehicle, "The Sin Ye Do," Pearl White will appear in "Pearl of the Army" and a Keystone comedy will be provided for variety.

"FOLLOW ME."

Anna Held will begin the seventh triumphant week of her engagement in "Follow Me," the sparkling musical comedy in which she has been welcomed back to the American stage, at the Casino Theatre next Monday night. The unique charm and piquancy of the French-American comedienne are set off to splendid advantage in the part of Mlle. Claire, a celebrated Russian actress, who unravels certain marital problems of her friends.

"Follow Me" is in three acts, from the German of Felix Doermann and Leo Ascher, with lyrics by R. H. Smith and music by Leo Ascher and Sibmund Romberg.

Miss Held is assisted by an unusually capable company of comedians, singers and dancers, including Henry Lewis, Letty Yorke, William P. Carleton, Harry Tighe, Sylvia Jason, Edith Day, P. Paul Porcasi, James Watts, Wilmer Bentley and Edwarde and Elisa Cansino. In addition there is a large chorus of "typical Anna Held beauties." Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

"CAPTAIN KIDD, JR."

The ninth week of the run of Captain Kidd, Jr., at the Cohan and Harris Theatre, New York, finds that charming play enjoying a season of prosperity that is demonstrated in house-full audiences at every performance of Mrs. Rida Johnson Young's comedy of youth, love and adventure.

"COME OUT OF THE KITCHEN."

Ruth Chatterton and her company gave a performance of "Come Out of the Kitchen" at George M. Cohan's Theatre Monday morning. It was for newspaper men and newspaper women whose working hours are such that they have no time to attend the theatre at the usual hour.

"JOAN AND THE WOMAN."

One of the greatest films yet produced and one that is attracting great crowds to the Forty-fourth Street, is Cecil DeMille's Cinema masterpiece, "Joan and the Woman," featuring Geraldine Farrar and an exceptionally well placed cast. Matinees are given daily.

JOY FIGURES FOR NEW YEAR

GAIN IN TRADE STUPENDOUS

Here are some of the things 1916 did:

Increased foreign trade of the United States to amazing sum of $7,847,000,000, a gain of $2,500,000,000 over 1915. Exports $5,182,000,000, as large as entire foreign trade in 1915.

It brought the greatest demand for copper ever known. Result, a runaway market. Record production and price.

Increase output of pig iron by 34 per cent. over 1915 and advanced prices from $18.50 to $30 a ton.

Sent the gross business of the railroads above $3,757,000,000, an increase of half a billion over 1915, while net income for the first time in railway history crossed the billion-dollar mark.

Sent wages up 10 per cent. on the average and put them at the highest level in the world's history.

Gave Uncle Sam a gold stock nearly double that of his nearest competitor, France. One billion dollars has been added to the gold stock of the country since the outbreak of the war.

Soldiers Worrying About the Money

Do we get paid or do we not? That's what the members of Company K, of this city, would like to know. At the quarterly meeting of the board of officers of the Second Regiment held in the regimental armory at Trenton on Saturday night it was verbally reported that unless a company has sixty-five men on its roll no pay could be drawn, under the provision of the new Federal law. The local company lacks the required number.

At a meeting of Company K on Monday evening it was announced that there was a rumor to the effect that companies which were "not quite up to the required strength would receive their pay despite the fact that the present ruling reads otherwise. The problem is "will the boys get their pay?" On Monday evening it was also announced that the annual inspection by an army officer would take place on January 29. After this, it was said, there will be a call for company advance guard duty and instruction in the use of ammunition. One hundred per cent. medals for perfect attendance during the past year were awarded at the meeting and silver medals for perfect attendance for three years were awarded to Robert F. Dentz and Alfred Trotter.

The basketball team of the Netherwood Reformed church will get into action tomorrow night when it plays a team from the National City Bank of New York on the local court. The game will start at 8:00.

S. P. C. A. ELECTS AND PLANS FOR THE YEAR.

Plans were made for an active year at the annual meeting of the Plainfield branch of the S. P. C. A. on Monday afternoon. After the election of officers a general discussion followed during which it was planned to hold several lectures and other events in the next few months. The reports of the various officers for the past year were read and on the whole showed the society to be in a flourishing condition.

The officers elected at the meeting were: President, J. D. Loiseaux; first vice president, Rev. M. Vicar Stevenson; second vice president, Judge William A. Codington; third vice president, George Kirch; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Duffy treasurer, Mrs. Roger Stephens; executive board, Mrs. Dexter Tiffany and Roger Stephens for three years, and Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, J. D. Duffy and Howard Huntington for two years.

"PIGS IS PIGS"—EATABLE OR AROUND THE TABLE.

When William J. Mahoney, of Liberty street, was announced as the successful contestant in a bowling contest at the Tabs' alleys a week ago, his many friends gathered around to suggest a celebration. As quiet's price was a whole pig, it was decided that there should be a "pig roast." Michael D. O'Keeffe, who is prominent in all T. A. B. affairs, offered the use of his house for the occasion and as a result the "roast" was held there on Tuesday evening.

Dinner was served at 8:30 o'clock after which there was considerable speechmaking. Mr. O'Keeffe, the toastmaster, was introduced by Frank Donnell and musical numbers, including vocal selections, were rendered by members of the T. A. B. minstrel troupe. A monologue by Roger Murphy provoked plenty of mirth, as did an exhibition of step dancing by Alec McDonald. Those who assisted in the cooking were: Mrs. Daniel Guinee, Mrs. John Donnelly, Mrs. Thomas Dunphy, Mrs. Timothy Meaney, Mrs. C. Lynch, Mrs. M. Hines and Mrs. M. D. O'Keeffe. The waitresses were: The Misses Kathryn McCauley, Mary Murray, Annabelle McAfee, Alice McAfee and Mary O'Keeffe. Music for the occasion was furnished by Professor "Al" Squiers.

As a result of the "feast," William J. Mahoney Association has been organized with the following officers: D. J. Guinee, Thomas Hines and Frank Donnelly. Those who were among the "diners" on Tuesday evening were: William J. Mahoney, Thomas P. Hines, Daniel J. Guinee, Frank D. Donnelly, James P. O'Keeffe, Joseph A. Roach, William Kane, M. D. O'Keeffe, Rufus Larew, James Monahan, Henry Winters, Michael Montferrat, Richard Lawton, John P. Hines, Roger Murphy, Joseph C. Donnell, John Force, Alec McDonald, Joseph McCue, Thomas F. O'Keeffe, Frank Force, Jeremiah Callahan, James Kyle, Cornelius Regan and Charles A. Higgins.

FINE YEAR OF WORK FOR LOCAL Y. W. C. A.

At the monthly meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association a most interesting report was submitted, including a comparison of the work accomplished in December, 1915, and during the past month. The average number using the building daily during the past month was 161, while the average daily attendance for the year previous was 79.

The number of calls during the month just passed was 774, as compared with 663 the year before. There were 435 calls last month as against 306 the previous year. Nine committee meetings were held last month, with an attendance of 65. There was also a big increase in the number of lunches and suppers served during last month over the corresponding month of the previous year. The increase, in all branches, over the year 1915, is shown to an indication that the social service work of the local organization is being more clearly recognized each year.

BOARD MEETS.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education on Tuesday night, notification was made of the appointment of Councilmen Joan A. Babcock and Thomas P. Price as members of the Board of School Estimate. The Board appointed as its representatives President Archibald Cox and Vice President Floyd T. Woodhull. SETTING A RECORD.

When the Plainfield High School basketball five suffered a 61 to 21 defeat at the hands of the Horace Mann School artists last week, a record for the season in scoring by the latter was set. DEATHS OF A WEEK

PNEUMONIA CLAIMS ALEXANDER E. FABER.

Pneumonia claimed another victim in this vicinity last Saturday when Alexander Edward Faber, aged eighty-six, passed away at his home at 38 Rockview avenue, North Plainfield. The funeral services were held at his late residence on Monday morning at 11 o'clock with the Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, pastor of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiating. Interment was made privately in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Faber was born in Hamburg, Germany, June 30, 1831, and was of Danish parentage. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johannis Heaneburg Faber, of Altona, Denmark, and had an uncle who was Bishop of Denmark for years. He came to America when a boy of six and after marrying Miss Isabelle Rowley, of Clavarick, N. Y., in 1873, he moved to Plainfield in 1875 and had made his home here ever since.

For many years he had been engaged in the tobacco business and was head of the G. W. Faber Company, Inc., importers of cigars and tobaccos, and located on Thirty-seventh street, New York. Although he was intensely interested in the welfare of this place, he never entered public life.

He is survived by three children, two sons and one daughter. They are William E. and Charle Edward Faber and Mrs. Edmund Rushmore, all of this city.

Private funeral services were held Sunday at the late home for Miss Marie Louise Barre, who died at 930 Putnam avenue Saturday after a brief illness. Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, conducted the service in the presence of immediate friends and relatives. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Miss Barre had been a resident of this city for the past sixteen years and was well known among a large circle of friends. She was the daughter of Marie A. Barre and the late William Barre, of Brooklyn, and for many years was a member of the Plymouth church, that city. Besides her aged mother, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. William Murray, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Almet F. Jenks, also of that city. Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, of Belvidere avenue, is a niece.

The boy had been sick for a long time with complications. Besides his mother, he is survived by a grandfather, John Borman.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LYNCH.

Shortly after suffering a stroke of apoplexy, the second within two years, Mrs. Albert B. Smith died suddenly at the Homestead, Fanwood, on Wednesday. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her mother, Mrs. Jeremiah Manning, of Myrtle avenue, and was in charge of Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Smith had made her residence at the Homestead for a number of years and had been in good health until the time of her death with the exception of her illness two years ago. Besides her husband and mother, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Charles Rocap, of Myrtle avenue, and a brother, James C. Manning, of Madison avenue.

JOSEPH MILANI.

After failing in health for nearly a year, Joseph Milani, aged forty-six, died at his home on Duer street, North Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon. The fatal illness that resulted in his death began on Sunday with a heart affliction. Funeral services were held Thursday morning from the late residence and later from St. Joseph's church. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Milani was a native of Italy, coming to this country when a young man. For several years he resided in New York and moved to Plainfield about twelve years ago. At one time he kept a bakery on West Front street but had lately retired.

MRS. HENRY A. BERGEN.

Word has been received here of the death at Hartford, Conn., on Wednesday, of Mrs. Henry A. Bergen, a former resident of this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at Runyon's parlors with Lydia Chapter, Order Eastern Star, in charge.

Prior to removing from this city about a year ago, Mrs. Bergen resided on Arlington avenue. She was a member of Lydia Chapter and took an active part in its activities, continuing her membership in the order after leaving Plainfield. Little can be learned of her surviving relatives, although it is known that a daughter, Miss Lucy Goeller, and a son at one time lived in the city.

MRS. MARGARET SPILLANE.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Spillane, who died Wednesday morning at the age of fifty-six after a long illness, was held at the funeral chapel on West Fourth street Wednesday night in Rochester, N. Y., where a service and the interment took place.

A native of France, the deceased had been a resident of this city for over a decade and had lived for some time with her son. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church, and up to a few days before her death had enjoyed excellent health.

BENJAMIN JOHNSON.

The funeral of Benjamin Johnson, the sixteen year old youth who was killed Sunday at the local railroad station, was held Wednesday afternoon from Calvary church at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery. The funeral was attended by the colored Boy Scouts, of which he was a member, and friends and relatives.

Johnson was on his way to Newark Sunday morning when he tried to board a moving train. He was thrown against the girders of the Watchung avenue bridge and dragged under the tracks. Both legs were nearly severed and he died several hours later in Muhlenberg Hospital. He lived with his parents at 305 Plainfield avenue and is also survived by a sister.

Fighters Selected For Battle of Words

At the January meeting of the East End Civic Association held on Tuesday night in the Netherwood Reformed church, it was announced that a challenge to a debate had been received from the members of the West End Community Centre. It was decided to accept the defy.

The merits of the East End of this city as contrasted with those of the West End will form the subject for debate. The East End cases will have Robert Newton Crane, Councilman Charles S. Sminck and the Rev. Edward S. Ralston as champions, while the argument that the West End has more desirable features than the East End will be offered by City Clerk John J. Carroll and T. C. Vail. The third member of the West End team has not been chosen. The debate will be held on Monday evening, January 22.

Five new members were received in the organization on Tuesday evening, among these being Councilman Theodore Martin. It was decided to request the Board of Health to make frequent inspections of ice cream sold in the city; to urge the Public Utilities Commission to make an investigation of the conditions of the trolley service and to request the Common Council to place more hydrants in that locality.

Mayor Addressed Board of Health

The January meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health was held on Tuesday evening, when a reorganization of the Board for the coming year was made. The election of officers resulted in the return of the following to the posts held by them during the past year: President, Dr. H. D. *Cochauer; secretary, Dr. G. B. Gal*burrow; treasurer, Stephen H. Voorhees.

Present at the meeting was Mayor Leighton Calkins, who made a brief address in which he touched on civic topics in general and on matters of particular interest to the Health Board. Informal discussion of health conditions in this city, in addition to routine business, occupied most of the time.

The resignation of William Addis to take effect on February 12 was received and his petition for a pension laid over until the February meeting. Mr. Addis will have served twenty years as plumbing inspector on that date and by law is entitled to a pension. The petition of John Casey, an inspector, for a salary increase was laid over until the next meeting.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED.

As yet no agreement between the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School maidens, in regards to their annual basketball series, has been reached. The local young women wish to play the game with six basketeers, while the borough maidens can see no reason why the new departure should be given their consent. Unless some agreement is reached shortly there may be no 1917 series.

Temporary Settlement With Bosses Ends Short Strike

After a strike lasting one day, nearly six hundred machinists and apprentices employed in the three printing press shops in this vicinity returned to work Wednesday morning after the local union heads had reached a partial agreement with representatives from the three shops affected. Although the differences between the printing shops and their employes have been settled, at least for the time being, it is rumored, and with excellent foundation, that unless other manufacturing concerns in the city grant certain concessions by January 15 there will be another walk-out, this time effecting many more than the first.

After gaining nothing from several months' negotiations with the officials of the Scott and Potter Printing Press Companies, of this city, and the Hall Printing Press Company, of Dunellen, a strike was called for 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. After an all day conference between officials of Plainfield Lodge, International Association of Machinists, and representatives of the three printing shops affected, a partial agreement was obtained and the men returned to work Wednesday morning. When the strike was first called the men wanted an immediate increase of from 42 to 44 cents an hour to 50 cents, but a mutual agreement talks for a scale of increase of two cents an hour at once and on July 2 a similar raise.

Although the machinists in the three printing shops were the first ones to go out on strike all those in the city under the protection of the union are demanding increases in wages and a report prevalent for several days is that next Monday is the date set for a walkout of the men of the Pond Tool Works, the largest plant in the city, unless the demands are granted. With the successful termination of the first strike, the local and district labor leaders have dropped their attention toward conditions in the printing shops and are now looking toward the other shops.

No effort will be made, it is said to try and secure a wage increase at Saurer's because of the unorganized labor employed there that would make a general walkout impossible. A large portion of the men are what are known as "floaters" in labor circles and would not agree to arrangements made by the union.

Because of the "contract system" that is used by the Pond Tool Works, that factory is the next on to which the union has turned its attention. Pond's is the only factory in the city employing that method and one of the few in the East. Because of the unevenness of pay caused by "contracting" the plant has long been the object of attention in labor circles and it is probable that the present trouble is partly an effort to try and eliminate the practice. Although nothing can be obtained in the way of a statement from officials at the Pond plant as to what has been demanded or what will be done, it is known that certain conditions have been imposed by the International Association of Machinists that will have to be met on or before Monday to prevent a strike and complete tie-up of the plant.

The Pond Tool Works employs the largest number of men in the city, nearly as many as all the other concerns put together, and because of its "contract system" has a widely varied wage scale. For instance, an expert wheel borer is set to work to cut out so many pieces and whatever time he can make that is the time men have to do it in the same time to receive the standard wage and if not they only get a percentage. Because of that some are getting as much as sixty cents an hour and others but thirty or thirty-five cents.

Wherever the system has been employed it has caused discontent and because of numerous strikes has been gradually disappearing until Pond's is one of the last to have it. Because of that fact whatever occurs in the way of a settlement will be of considerable moment in the labor world and in the case of a strike it is likely that men high in organized labor circles would come here to look after the interests of the men. In asking for an increase in wages the men, on the whole, claim that the discontent is caused by the failure to get money increase in proportion to the increased cost of living.

Come In and Talk It Over

Union County Agency, 8 West Grand Street, Elizabeth

Yes, he Still has a Good Kick Left

"Some of the Democratic politicians are wondering what Farmer Jim Martine will do with himself when his term as United States Senator expires on March 4. It is his boast that he would never accept appointive office, also that he has been active in the public life of New Jersey for more than forty years.

"When he leaves the Senate there will be no chance that Farmer Jim would be asked to accept an appointive office, even though he might, in a moment of weakness, unbend and consent to accept one. President Wilson long ago severed diplomatic relations with the Plainfield orator, so there is no hope of an appointment coming to him from the White House; and with New Jersey overwhelmingly Republican what chance does a war horse Democrat stand of connecting with the political plum trees in this State?

"But Farmer Jim will not, we may be sure, curl up and go to sleep when he returns to Plainfield. There are still a good many kicks left in him and he will employ them, if our guess is half right, in stirring things up when he gets back home in New Jersey. We expect to see the Farmer Orator running for office at the first election in Union county."

Why worry about "Farmer Jim?" He may never run for office again, but he's bound to continue to be one of the big figures in New Jersey's politics, and he is in the happy situation of occupying a place in the hearts of the people of his home State that few have ever held. He can see a long way into the future and we wouldn't be at all surprised if we saw him bobbing up as a candidate to succeed Senator Hughes when his term expires next year.

MONEY SCARCITY! WHAT SAY YOU ABOUT THIS?

Breaking all its coinage records, the Philadelphia mint during 1916 produced 238,469,769 domestic coins in denominations ranging from one cent to half dollars and value at $9,344,266. An unprecedented demand for dimes, nickels and pennies will keep the plant running day and night until early summer.

Gold, silver and nickel coins totalling 31,876,328 pieces were minted for Central and South American governments.

The two young men are planning to ship aboard another liner the forepart of next week which will go to Liverpool.

ASSOCIATION OFFERS PRIZES FOR ESSAYS.

In an effort to obtain the views of local people as to why local tradesmen should be patronized, the Business Men's Association has offered two cash prizes of $5 each for the best letter on "Why Shopping in Plainfield is Advantageous."

One prize will be given to an employe in a local store and the other to a citizen. The contest will close on January 20 and on or before that date all letters must be in the hands of William G. DeMeza, who will do the judging, assisted by several others.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

The bill of former State Senator Charles A. Reed for services as counsel to the Board of Freeholders during the Board's investigation of county affairs, will be paid by County Collector Leavitt after he receives a written opinion from County Attorney William R. Codington, of Plainfield, advising him to do so.

The bill for $320 was held up by Mr. Leavitt after protest had been made to its payment by Attorney Samuel Koestler, representing Freeholder Elias F. Applegate. It was claimed that in order to be in a position to make a claim for compensation against the county Reed should have been appointed by the Supreme Court. The matter was informally called to the attention of Justice Bergen, but he would not rule on it.

VERY MUCH ALIVE.

Reports that reached this city from Newark yesterday to the death of John DeHart in a Newark hotel proved upon investigation to be untrue. Mr. DeHart was reached by telephone at the Hall Printing Press Company's plant in Dunellen yesterday afternoon and proved to be much alive. The Newark police found the body of a man in the Commercial Hotel in that city and reported it to be that of DeHart.

LECTURE POSTPONED.

The illustrated lecture on the Hawaiian Islands scheduled to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Hunt at the Plainfield High School last evening, was postponed on account of the fact that slides were delayed in transit from Honolulu. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. O'Brien, of East Orange. The wedding is expected to take place early in the summer.

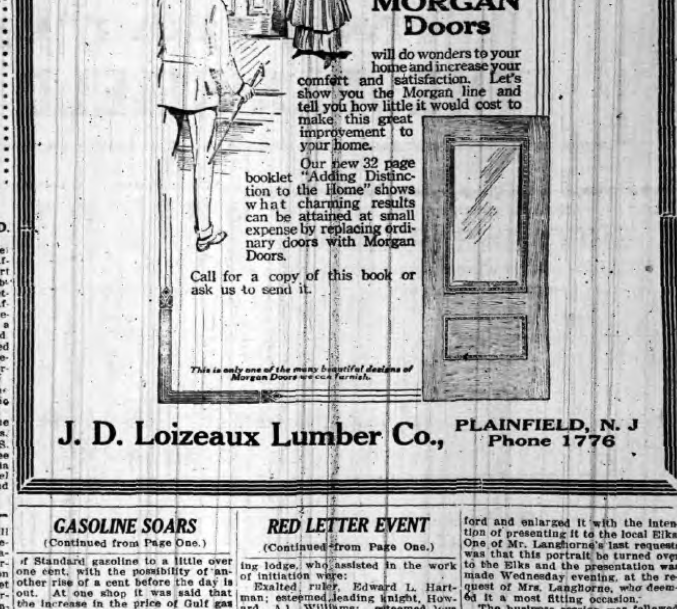
TALK ON PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The regular monthly meeting of the West End Civic Association was held in the auditorium of the Washington School last evening and was an open one, at which an interesting talk on "The Public Schools" was delivered by Dr. Henry M. Maxson. Dancing followed the address and refreshments were served.

FATHER DALEY RETURNS.

The Rev. Joseph Daley, of this city, who has been spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Ann Daley, of Division street, has returned to Boston, where he is engaged in missionary work. Father Daley is a Jesuit priest and received his early education in St. Mary's School, this city.



GASOLINE SOARS

of Standard gasoline to a little over one cent, with the possibility of another rise of a cent before the day is out. At one shop it was said that the increase in the price of Gulf gas would remain at three cents.

It is believed that the rise in the price of the "fluid that makes the car go" is due to the fact that one of the local merchants visited each of his colleagues on Wednesday evening and suggested to them that the best way to handle the situation would be to make a uniform scale of increase. One of the proprietors failed to make a change, although he was willing to do so. He made inquiries and was told that a rival concern had not raised the price and so he did not feel justified in "taking a jump." But it is understood that the rival concern's price has advanced three cents, the gas being the product of the Standard Oil Company. It was also announced this morning that an advance of one cent in "charge account rates" had been made.

RED LETTER EVENT

ing lodge, who assisted in the work of initiation were:

During the course of the evening, Exalted Ruler Edward L. Hartmann, of Newark, presented the Plainfield lodge with the award won at the State reunion held in Newark last summer. At that time, the local Elks captured second price for having the best decorated float in line. The award, not considering the evidence of good will and friendship which accompanied the presentation, was in itself a most suitable price. It consists of a bronze pedestal, upon which rests statuary of the same material, illuminated by electric lights. The speech of presentation was made, on behalf of the Plainfield lodge, by Past District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler John H. Cose. In addition to the presentation of the Newark award, Assemblyman William N. Runyon presented to the large an enlarged portrait of Frederick Sandford. This portrait was made by the late Frank C. Langhorne, who, prior to his death, picked out what he considered the best picture of Mr. Sandford and enlarged it with the intention of presenting it to the local Elks. One of Mr. Langhorne's last requests was that this portrait be turned over to the Elks and the presentation was made Wednesday evening, at the request of Mrs. Langhorne, who deemed it a most fitting occasion.

The business session was followed by an entertainment in which the members of both the visiting and local lodges participated. A social time followed and there was a plentiful supply of good things to eat and drink. The early morning return of the visitors to Newark was marked by more than one statement to the effect that the Plainfielders were the jolliest hosts in Jersey, or anywhere else, for that matter.

MOTHERS WANT WOMAN APPOINTED TO BOARD.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association held an important meeting in the Evergreen Avenue School on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. C. L. Riley in charge. Mrs. Charles Monroe reported on the school luncheon, stating that more help was needed at the Stillman School. The executive committee recommended that the Mothers' Association endorse a resolution requesting Mayor Calkins to appoint a woman as a member of the Board of Education.

It was announced by Mrs. G. Stuart Simons that on February 14, Dr. Maxson would give an address on "What the Public Schools Aim to Do For Us." On March 14, an all day meeting will be held.

Mr. Wall snorted angrily.

"Like it? Does a beheaded man like the ax? In a long and golden professional career I've never struck anything like this town before for hard luck. I'm not in it twenty-four hours when I'm left alone, my hands tied, with stuff enough to make your eyes pop out of your head. That's pleasant. Then, after spending two months and a lot of money trailing Lord Harrowby for the family jools, I finally cop them. I give the crew of my borrowed boat orders to steam far, far away and run to my cabin to grloat. Do I gloat? Ask me if I do not gloat. I find the famous Chalin Lightning's collar is a very superior collection of glass, worth about 23 cents. I send back the glass and stick around, hoping for better days. And the best I get is a call from the owner of my yacht with orders to vacate at once. When I first came here I swore I'd visit that jewelry store again—alone. But there's a jinx after me in this town. What's the use? I'm going to get out."

"But before you go," smiled Manuel, "one stroke of luck you shall have."

"Maybe. I leave that to you. This kind of thing"—he motioned toward the damp paper—"is not in my line." He bent over a picture on the front page. "That cut came out pretty well, didn't it? Lucky we got the photograph before big brother George arrived."

"I have always found San Mateo lucky," replied Gonzale—"always, with one trifling exception." He drummed reminiscently on his desk.

"I say, who's this?" Mr. Wall pointed to a line just beneath the name of the paper. "Robert O'Neil, Editor and Proprietor," he read.

"Ah, my very virtuous managing editor," he said. "One of those dogs who dealt so finely with me. I have told you of that, Manuel Gonzale does not forget." He leaned closer. "This morning at 2, after O'Neill and Howe had sent today's paper to press as usual, Luypas, my circulation manager, and I arrived. My virtuous editors had departed to their rest. Luypas and I stopped the presses. We substituted a new first page form. O'Neill and Howe—they will not know. Always they sleep until noon. In this balmy climate it is easy to lie abed."

Again Manuel Gonzale gurgled.

"May their sleep be dreamless," he said. "And should our work of the morning fail may the name of O'Neill be the first to concern the police."

Wall laughed.

"A good idea," he remarked. He looked at his watch. "Nine-fifteen. The banks ought to be open now."

Gonzale got to his feet. Carefully he folded the page that had been lying on his desk.

"The moment for action has come," he said. "Shall we go down to the street?"

"I'm in strange waters," responded Martin Wall uneasily. "The first dip I've ever taken out of my line. Don't believe I'll either. A man should have his specialty and stick to it. However, I need the money. Am I letter perfect in my part, I wonder?"

The door of the Mail office opened, and a sly little Cuban with an evil face stepped in.

"Ah, Luypas," Gonzale said, "you are here at last! Do you understand? Your boys, they are to be in the next room—yes? You are to sit near that telephone. On a word from my friend, Mr. Martin Wall, today's edition of the Mail is to flood the streets, the newsstands, instantly. Delay might be fatal. Is that clear?"

"I know," said Luypas.

"Very good," said Gonzale. He turned to Martin Wall. "Now is the time," he added.

The two descended to the street. Opposite the Hotel de la Paz they parted. The sleek little Spaniard went on alone and mounted boldly those pretentious steps. At the desk he informed the clerk on duty that he must see Mr. Spencer Meyrick at once.

"But Mr. Meyrick is very busy today," the clerk objected.

"Say this is life and death," replied Gonzale, and the clerk, wilting, telephoned the millionaire's apartments.

Finally Spencer Meyrick appeared, pompous, red faced, a hard man to handle, as he always had been. The Spaniard noted this, and his slits of eyes grew even narrower.

"I have something to show you, said Gonzale politely and removed from his pocket a copy of the San Marco Mail, still damp from the presses.

"HARROWBY WASN'T TAKING ANY CHANCES."

Underneath, in slightly smaller type, Spencer Meyrick read:

REMARKABLE FORESIGHT OF ENGLISH PEERLESS HUNTER WHO WEDS MISS PATRICK TODAY—TOOK OUT A POLICY FOR £2,000 WITH BOYDS, SAID TO BE PAYABLE IN CASE THE BEAUTIFUL HEIRESS SUFFERED A CHANGE OF HEART

Prominently on the page was a large photograph which purported to be "an exact facsimile of the policy." Mr. Meyrick examined it. He glanced through the story, which happened to be commendably brief. He told himself he must remain calm, avoid fireworks, think quickly. Laying the paper on his knee, he turned to the little

"I hate you!" said Cynthia Meyrick.

"What trick is this?" he asked sharply.

"It is no trick, sir," said Gonzale pleasantly. "It is the truth. That is a photograph of the policy."

Old Meyrick studied the cut again.

"I'll be hanged!" he remarked.

"I have no desire to annoy," Gonzale went on. "But there are 5,000 copies of today's Mail at the office ready to be distributed at a signal from me. Think, sir! Newsboys on the street with that story at the very moment when your daughter becomes Lady Harrowby!"

"I see," said Meyrick slowly. "Blackmail."

"You're a clever little dog," said Meyrick through his teeth.

"You are not exactly complimentary. However, let us say for the argument you buy the Mail at once. I am, by the way, empowered to make the sale. You take charge. You hurry to the office. You destroy all copies of today's issue so far printed. You give orders to the composing room to kill this first page story, good as it is. 'Please kill,' you say, a term with newspaper men."

"Um! And your price?"

"It is a valuable property."

"Especially valuable this morning. I take it," sneered Meyrick.

"Valuable at any time. Our presses cost $1,000, our linotypes $2,000. And there is that other thing—so hard to estimate definitely—the wide appeal of our paper. The price—well, $15,000. Extremely reasonable. And I will include the good will of the retiring management."

"You contemptible little"— began Spencer Meyrick.

"My dear sir, control yourself," pleaded Gonzale, "or I may be unable to include the good will I spoke of. Would you care to see that story on the streets? You may at any moment. There is but one way out—buy the newspaper. Buy it now. Here is the plan: You go with me to your bank. You procure $15,000 in cash. We go together to the Mail office. You pay me the money, and I leave you in charge."

Old Meyrick leaped to his feet.

"Very good!" he cried. "Come on!"

"One thing more," continued the crafty Gonzale, "it may pay you to note—we are watched, even now. All the way to the bank and thence to the office of the Mail we will be watched. Should any accident, now unforeseen, happen to me that issue of the Mail will go on sale in five minutes all over San Marco."

"I understand! Come on!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

"There Will Be No Wedding."

THERE must be some escape. The trap seemed absurdly simple. Across the hotel lawn, down the hot avenue, in the less hot plaza, Meyrick sought a way. A naturally impulsive man, he had difficulty restraining himself. But he thought of his daughter, whose happiness was more than money in his eyes.

No way offered. At the counter of the tiny bank Meyrick stood writing his check. Gonzale at his elbow. Suddenly behind them the screen door slammed, and a wild eyed man with flaming red hair rushed in.

"What is it you want?" Gonzale screamed.

"Out of my way, Don Quixote!" cried the red topped one. "I'm a wounded and fatally stricken Irishman. Are you Mr. Meyrick? Well, tear up that check!"

"Gladly," said Meyrick. "Only"—

"Notice the catbirds down here?" went on the wild one. "Noisy little beasts, aren't they? Well, after this take off your hat to 'em. A catbird saved you a lot of money this morning."

"I'm afraid I don't follow"— said the dazed Spencer Meyrick.

"NO? I'll explain. I have been working on this man's paper for the last week. So has a very good friend of mine. We knew he was crooked, but we needed the money, and he promised us not to pull off any more blackmail while we stayed. Last night, after we left the office, he arranged this latest. Planned to incriminate me. You little devil"—

Manuel, frightened, leaped away.

"We usually sleep until noon," went on O'Neill. "He counted on that. Enter the catbird. Sat on our window-sill at 10 a. m. and screeched. Woke us up. We felt uneasy. Went to the office, broke down a bolted door and found what was up."

"Dog!" foamed Manuel. "Outcast of the gutter"—

"Save your compliments! Mr. Meyrick, my partner is now at the Mail office destroying today's issue of the Mail. We've already ruined the first page form, the cut of the policy and the negative. And we're going north as fast as the Lord will let us. You can do what you please. Arrest our little lemon tinted employer if you want to."

Spencer Meyrick stood, considering.

"However, I've done you a favor," O'Neill went on. "You can do me one. Let Manuel off—on one condition."

"Name it."

"That he hands me at once $200, $100 for myself, the other for my partner. It's legitimate salary money due us. We need it. A long walk to New York."

"I myself"— began Meyrick.

"Don't want your money," said O'Neill; "want Gonzale's."

"Gonzale's you shall have," agreed Meyrick. "You pay him!"

"Never!" cried the Spaniard.

"Then it's the police," hinted O'Neill. Gonzale took two yellow bills from a wallet. He tossed them at O'Neill.

"There, you cur"—

"Careful," cried O'Neill, "or I'll punch you yet!"

He started forward, but Gonzale hastily withdrew. O'Neill and the millionaire followed to the street.

"Well, my boy," answered Spencer Meyrick, "if I can ever do anything for you in New York come and see me."

"You may have to make good on that," laughed O'Neill, and they parted.

"In the nick of time," he cried. "Me the fair haired hero. And here's the face, Harry—the good old railroad face."

"Heaven be praised," said Howe. "I've finished the job, Bob. Not a crave of this morning's issue left. The fate! North in parlor cars! My tobacco heart sings. Can't you hear the elevated"—

"Music, Harry, music."

"And the newsboys on Park row"—

"Caruso can't touch them. Where can we find a time table, I wonder?"

Meanwhile, in a corner of the plaza, Manuel Gonzale spoke sad words in the ear of Martin Wall.

"It's the jinx," moaned Wall, with conviction. "The star player in everything I do down here. I'm going to burn the sand hotfooting it away. But whither, Manuel, whither?"

"In Porto Rico," replied Gonzale. "I have not yet piled my trade. I go there."

"Palm Beach," sighed Wall, "has diamonds that can be observed to sparkle as far away as the New York society columns. But, alas, I lack the wherewithal to support me in the style to which my victims are accustomed."

"Try Porto Rico," suggested Gonzale. "The air is mild—so are the police. I will stake you."

"Thanks. Porto Rico it is. How the devil do we get there?"

Up the main avenue of San Marco Spencer Meyrick walked as a man going to avenge. With every determined step his face grew redder, his eye more dangerous. He looked at his watch. Eleven.

The eleventh hour! But much might happen between the eleventh hour and high noon.

In the Harrowby suit the holder of the title, a handsome and distinguished figure, adorned for his wedding, walked nervously the rather worn carpet. His brother, hastily pressed into service as best man, sat puffing at a cigar with a persistency which indicated a somewhat perturbed state of mind on his own part.

"Brace up, Allan," he urged. "It'll be over before you realize it. Remember my own wedding. God, wasn't I frightened? Always that way with a man. No sense to it, but he just can't help it. Never forget that little parlor, with the flower of Marion society *all about, and me with my teeth chat*tering and my knees knocking together."

"It is a bit of an ordeal," said Allan weakly. "Chap feels all sort of—gone—inside."

The telephone, ringing sharply, interrupted. George Harrowby rose and stepped to it.

"Allan? You wish Allan? Very well. I'll tell him."

He turned away from the telephone and faced his brother.

"It was old Meyrick, kid. Seemed somewhat hot under the collar. Wants to see you in their suit at once."

"What—what do you imagine he wants?"

"Going to make you a present of Riverside drive, I fancy. Go ahead, boy. I'll wait for you here."

Allan Harrowby went out, along the dusky corridor to the Meyrick door. Not without misgivings, he knocked. A voice boomed, "Come!" He pushed open the door.

He saw Spencer Meyrick sitting purple at a table and beside him Cynthia Meyrick in the loveliest gown of all the lovely gowns she had ever worn. The beauty of the girl staggered Harrowby a bit. Never demonstrative, he had a sudden feeling that he should be at her feet.

"You—you sent for me?" he asked, coming into the room. As he moved closer to the girl he was to marry he saw that her face was whiter than her gown and her brown eyes strained and miserable.

"We did," said Meyrick, rising. He held out a paper. "Will you please look at that?"

His lordship took the sheet in unsteady hands. He glanced down. Slowly the meaning of the story that met his gaze filtered through his dazed brain. "Martin Wall did this," he thought to himself. He tried to speak, but could not. Dumbly he stared at Spencer Meyrick.

"We want no scene; Harrowby," said the old man wearily. "We merely want to know if there is in existence a policy such as the one mentioned here?"

The paper slipped from his lordship's lifeless hands. He turned miserably away. Not daring to face either father or daughter, he answered very faintly:

"There is."

Spencer Meyrick sighed.

"That's all we want to know. There will be no wedding, Harrowby."

"Wha-what!" His lordship faced about. "Why, sir, the guests must be downstairs!"

"It is unfortunate, but there will be no wedding." The old man turned to his daughter. "Cynthia," he asked, "have you nothing to say?"

"Yes." White, trembling, the girl faced his lordship. "It seems, Allan, that you have regarded our marriage as a business proposition. You have gambled on the stability of the market. Well, you win. I have changed my mind. This is final. I shall not change it again."

"Cynthia!" And any who had considered Lord Harrowby unfeeling must have been surprised at the anguish in his voice. "I have loved you—I love you now. I adore you. What can I say in explanation of this? We gamble, all of us. It is a passion bred in the family. That is why I took out this absurd policy. My dearest, it doesn't mean that there was no love on my side. There is—there always will be, whatever happens. Can't you understand"—

"Cynthia," he asked, "have you nothing to say?"

The girl laid her hand on his arm and drew him away to the window.

"It's no use, Allan," she said, for his ears alone. "Perhaps I could have forgiven, but somehow I don't care as I thought I did. It is better, embarrassing now it may be for us both, that there should be no wedding after all."

"Cynthia, you can't mean that. You don't believe me. Let me send for my brother. He will tell you of the passion for gambling in our family. He will tell you that I love you too."

He moved toward the telephone.

"No use," said Cynthia Meyrick, shaking her head. "It would only prolong a painful scene. Please don't, Allan!"

"I'll send for Minot, too!" Harrowby cried.

"Mr. Minot?" The girl's eyes narrowed. "And what has Mr. Minot to do with this?"

"Everything. He came down here as the representative of Boyd's. He came down to make sure that you didn't change your mind. He will tell you that I love you."

"Nonsense!" he cried. "There is no need to"—

"One moment." Cynthia Meyrick's eyes shone strangely. "Send for your brother, Allan, and—for—Mr. Minot."

Harrowby stepped to the telephone. He summoned his forces. A strained, unhappy silence ensued. Then the two men entered the room together.

"Minot, George, old boy!" Lord Harrowby said helplessly. "Miss Meyrick and her father have discovered the existence of a certain insurance policy about which you both know. They have believed that my motive in seeking a marriage was purely mercenary; that my affection for the girl who is—was to have become my wife cannot be sincere. They are wrong—quite wrong. Both of you know that. I've sent for you to help me make them understand. I cannot."

George Harrowby stepped forward and smiled his kindly smile.

"My dear young lady," he said, "I regret that policy very deeply. When I first heard of it I, too, suspected Allan's motives. But after I talked with him—after I saw you—I was convinced that his affection for you was most sincere. I thought back to the gambling schemes for which the family has been noted. I saw it was the old passion cropping out anew in Allan—that he was really not to blame—that beyond any question he was quite devoted to you. Otherwise I'd have done everything in my power to prevent the wedding."

"Yes?" Miss Meyrick's eyes flashed dangerously. "And your other witness, Allan?"

New Prices for Bread

EVERY INGREDIENT USED IN THE BAKERY, and every item entering into the production and distribution of bakery products, has increased from 14 to 100 per cent. in market value, since August, 1916.

THE BAKER CANNOT BE EXPECTED TO ABSORB this enormous increase nor any considerable part of it; and for the first time in the history of the craft, the public has recognized the fact that bakers are the victims, equally with the consumer, of causes beyond their power to control.

THE INCREASE IN COST OF PRODUCTION of bread during the last ten years, due to competitive improvement in quality and food value, and to competitive advancement in hygienic manufacture and delivery at the instance of public demand, has been from twenty-five to fifty per cent.

ECONOMY IN MANUFACTURE AND DISTRIBUTION of bread, as effected by invention and improvement of manufacturing and merchandising efficiency, has reached its limit. Hereafter increased cost of production from whatever cause, must be met by increased receipts, meaning advanced prices.

ORDINARY FLUCTUATIONS IN THE PRICE OF FLOUR can not be expressed in the price of bread except by comparative variations in the weight of dough to each loaf; because it requires an advance of about two dollars in the price of flour per barrel to warrant an advance of a cent in the price of a small loaf; and we have no fractional currency.

THE PRESENT EXTRAORDINARY MARKET PRICES OF RAW MATERIALS have made it necessary to establish a new scale of prices for bakery products, and new scaling weights for dough in the pan.

MORE MONEY OR LESS WEIGHT OR BOTH, according to each baker's method of getting a compensatory price for his product, is now the rule; and competition still insures to the consumer the utmost value for his money.

THE BAKER'S PROFIT on a loaf of wrapped bread weighing a pound, at normal prices for materials, was about two-tenths of a cent. It costs about four-tenths of a cent to wrap it in waxed paper.

HUNDREDS OF OLD-FASHIONED BAKERS—victims of high cost of materials and labor plus expensive new methods on the one hand, with lack of courage to advance prices on the other, have gone to the wall since August.

THE ANTI-TRUST LAWS PROHIBIT CONCERTED ACTION in the matter of making prices. Acting upon their individual initiative, bakers in the United States have not attained uniform results for the industry by or in attempting business readjustments to meet the present unusual conditions.

MANY BAKERS ARE STILL UNABLE to see their way to readjustment, and are losing money. Gradually the business men among them are accepting the inevitable necessity; while others succumb, victims of their own unfitness to continue in business.

THESE RELIABLE BAKERS ARE WORTHY OF YOUR TRADE. PATRONIZE THEM.

Wilbur Chairman of New Committee

The appointment of a new road committee that puts the management of the county roads in the hands of the "insurgent" members of the Board of Freeholders was announced last week by Director George G. Teller. Samuel P. T. Wilbur, of this city, recognized as a member of the "Old Guard," has been made chairman, and Henry Krouse, the former chairman, retains a membership, although the other three members are men originally favored by Director Teller.

Changes in other committees were not so pronounced, the increase of the membership of the public grounds and buildings committee from three to five being the most notable action taken. Local men were elected to serve on the following committees: Auditing and roads committee, S. P. T. Wilbur, who was also made a member of the committee instructed to settle with the collector; lunacy, elections, hospitals, Legislature, and soldiers' headstones committees, James P. Buckle.

In addition to the standing committees, special boards to confer on various subjects were formed. One of these committees was instructed to consider the re-building of a bridge over Green brook at Plainfield avenue, on the grounds of the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium. A meeting with the Freeholders of Somerset County is planned by the members of the Union County body. County Collector Leavitt was authorized by resolution to turn over $37,000 worth of tuberculosis bonds to the State Trust Company, of this city, the highest bidder for the bonds. County Attorney William R. Codington was given the use of the room in the rear of the director's desk for the purpose of advising members of the Board and other county officials who desire information. This office will be opened on Tuesdays and Fridays.

County Must Pay the Bill

Justice James J. Bergen has assessed the costs of the recent Supreme Court investigation of county affairs against the taxpayers of Union county. The decree means that in the opinion of the Justice the investigation was justified.

There was hardly any doubt that the costs would have to be paid by the county, so the most surprising development in connection with the decree was the fixing of compensation of Attorney Samuel Koestler, counsel for the petitioners, at $250. Mr. Koestler asked the court for $500 in addition to his expenses, declaring that he had devoted nearly all his time for six weeks to the investigation. The court refused to allow that amount and later fixed compensation at $250.

The total cost of the investigation, as fixed, is $1,388.25. Of this amount $500 goes to Commissioner Hugh K. Gaston, of Somerville, for twelve days' work; $562 to George D. Ziegler, the court stenographer, of New Brunswick; $250 for Mr. Koestler for personal services, and $76.25 for Mr. Koestler for expenses.

The list of expenses filed by Mr. Koestler totaled $104, but Justice Bergen refused to allow an item of $22 for a copy of similar proceedings in Warren county. Mr. Koestler said that this information helped him considerably in the investigation, but the justice was of the opinion that it was unnecessary. A charge of $6.40 improperly made by Z. K. Norman, of the county clerk's office, was reduced to 56 cents.

At the opening of the proceedings Mr. Koestler moved that the costs of the investigation be assessed against the county; that counsel fees be allowed for the petitioners' side, and that the bond of $3,000 posted by the petitioners be discharged. In offering his own bill, Mr. Koestler said he thought it was justified by the time he devoted to the work and by the big benefit to the county which he thought would result from the investigation.

In refusing the request for $500, Justice Bergen said it would not do to make investigations of this sort profitable to lawyers. In that event, he said, a flood of investigations would be requested. The justice referred to the statement in Commissioner Gaston's report to the effect that Mr. Koestler had helped him during the investigation, and he said that this entitled him to some compensation.

Although Justice Bergen did not make the suggestion directly, it was inferred from his remarks that as Mr. Koestler was employed by the petitioners he should be compensated to a large extent by them.

WHAT SOCIETY IS DOING DURING WINTER MONTHS

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Miss Duryea and Belgian Soldier Will Visit City

In the Hartridge Auditorium on Sunday evening, Miss Nina Duryea, a New York woman, who has been instrumental in rendering much assistance to the stricken Belgians, will make an address on the behalf of the local branch of the Belgian Relief Association. Miss Duryea, who returned from Europe only last week, was requested to speak here before beginning a lecture tour in this country.

Since the beginning of the present war, a band of local women, acting as a branch of a larger organization, have issued many appeals for assistance for the stricken Belgians. Local people have responded readily to the call for aid and it has been the good fortune of the Relief Association to extend much-needed help to the stricken people across the sea. Not one box, sent by the Plainfield branch of the organization, has been lost in transit, this being due in a great measure to the fact that the goods were consigned to Miss Duryea, who personally supervised their distribution in Belgium. By sending the goods to individuals, it has been found that little or no loss is suffered. At the present time, Miss Duryea lives in a chateau in Belgium. When assistance was most needed she gave it and she has been foremost in a splendid work that followed later. For the aid rendered by the local organization, she is particularly grateful and feels that the best way she can show her appreciation is by lecturing in Plainfield first. Miss Duryea accompanies her talk with stereopticon views of actual conditions. She will talk in Princeton on Thursday.

Accompanying Miss Duryea to this city will be the first Belgian soldier to come to the United States since the outbreak of the war. He was an opera singer at the time of the declaration of hostilities and was one of the first to come to the aid of his country, fighting in the trenches for many months. He was later injured and lost the sight of his eye. King Albert then gave him permission to come to this country to assist in the work of relief. At the Hartridge Auditorium on Sunday evening he will sing many of the Belgian national anthems and a few operatic selections.

This entertainment is for Plainfield people and no admission will be charged. It is expected that a large attendance will greet Miss Duryea and the unfortunate soldier whose commission now is not to fight but to give thanks to the people of the United States and, in this instance, the people of Plainfield, for the aid given the Belgians during their time of suffering.

In order that his parishioners may hear Miss Duryea, the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, pastor of the Grace Episcopal church, this city, has cancelled his regular Sunday evening services.

Bible Students Name Their Cast

Under the auspices of the Probasco Bible Class, of the First Baptist church, a two-act comedy entitled, "Too Many Husbands," will be presented in the Plainfield High School Auditorium the early part of March. Mrs. G. Stuart Simons has been engaged as coach, and held the first rehearsal last night.

It is understood that the Probasco Bible Class is to present a play each year and the choice of "Too Many Husbands" will necessitate a new departure in the way of choosing the cast. According to the casting requirements of this play it is necessary that there be three female principals. However, these parts will be taken by the male members of the class and it is expected that success will attend their efforts to impersonate members of the fairer sex.

Among those who have been chosen to take part in the production and the characters they will portray are: Colonel Theodore Green, Edwin Rudolph Chandler; Dorothy Crane, Mr. Martin; Chauncey Chilton, Harold Leadbitter; Harold Brown, Murray Stowe; Arthur Maitland, Randolph Stelle; Millie Brown, A Newmiller; the Reverend Orasby, Herb Terry; Mrs. Sheffield, Irving Pratt; Mollie, Mr. Sullivan; Flynn, Dutcher Pardon organization would accept the challenge but the expectations were upset. The young women who will debate are the Misses Anna McGinnis, Anna Daly, Elsie Moulton and Helen Brynarski. A dance will follow the debate.

Girls Club to Give Playlet

At a meeting of the Chi Gamma Chi, a society of young women of St. Joseph's parish, Sunday afternoon, it was decided to give a play, the presentation of which will take place before the commencement of the Lenten season. In giving this production, the young women will have the assistance of several of the young men of St. Joseph's church.

While a definite decision has not as yet been reached it is stated that the title will be "Commencement Days." Many of those who were instrumental in making a "Russian Romeo" presentation such a success will lend their assistance to this organization. The young ladies and six male characters in the play. At the present time, those in the cast are: The Misses Anna McGinnis, Helen Brynarski, Anna Daly, Elsie Moulton and Teresa McCullough; also Frank Hart, William Mead; Andrew McDonough, Fred Dressel and Edwin Schlegel.

In addition to the play it was decided at the meeting to hold a debate in St. Joseph's Hall on Thursday evening, January 25. Some time ago a challenge was received from the St. Mary's Literary Club. At the time it was not expected that the young women of the Catholic organization would accept the challenge but the expectations were upset. The young women who will debate are the Misses Anna McGinnis, Anna Daly, Elsie Moulton and Helen Brynarski. A dance will follow the debate.

COLLECTING OLD PAPERS FOR BELGIAN RELIEF WORK.

Society of Plainfield is to take a hand in the paper situation. While the result is not likely to be as great as the high cost of that commodity, it is certain to prove that it's an ill wind that does not bring good to some one.

Some time ago the housewives of this city were requested to save old paper, including newspapers, and magazines. The request was also made that this paper be put up in bundles in order that it might be readily carted away by those who are active in the work of the local Belgian Relief Association. Many householders signified their intention of assisting in the relief work in this manner and assurance has been received that to-day when the bundles will be gathered in. The Boy Scouts will assist in the work, two boys being assigned to each automobile. Mrs. W. W. Walton of Hillside avenue, has requested that all those who are willing to loan their automobiles for the work of collection communicate with her. It is expected that fully a dozen or more cars will be at the service of the Relief Association to be used in various sections tomorrow. The papers when collected will be sold and the money derived from the sale turned over to the treasurer of the Belgian Relief Association, which numbers among its members many society people of Plainfield.

COMMUNITY CENTER ELECTS ITS 1917 OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the West End Community Centre, held in the Washington Street Methodist Episcopal church, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, John J. Carroll; vice president, W. J. Boyd; secretary, Mrs. W. W. Galloway; treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Vail.

The reports submitted indicate that the past year has been an active one for the Community Centre. The treasurer reported a balance of over $150 in the treasury. Standing committees will be appointed by the president at a later date.

LARAMIE PARK A. C.

Sometime in the near future the boys of the Laramie Park A. C. will present a two-act sketch, which will be followed by a dance. Elaborate preparations are being made and without a doubt it will be a big success.

TOWNSEND SPOKE.

William R. Townsend, city collector of taxes, was the speaker at the Y. W. C. A. last Monday evening. His subject was "How the City Money is Collected and Distributed" and his talk was heard by a large gathering of business women of this city.

Following a short honeymoon trip Miss Lena, Sbiarello and Dominick Sollotro, both of this city, who were married last Sunday afternoon in St. Mary's church, will take up their residence on Plainfield avenue, this city. The couple received many suitable gifts from their large circle of friends.

SOCIETY

Society Cast In a Playlet

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on Saturday evening, January 13, a one-act play, written by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins, of North Plainfield, will be given for the benefit of the Prince of Wales Relief Fund. One performance will be given in the afternoon, being primarily for the children. The play will be repeated at 8:30 in the evening.

In addition to Mrs. Perkins' playlet, which has been entitled "The Queen of Hearts," a program of motion pictures, interspersed with Irish airs by a well known singer, has been arranged. In the afternoon special features for the children will be offered and it is expected that the attendance at both performances will be large. Nelson Ramsay is the manager of the affair and will be assisted in the scenic direction by Miss F. E. Kenyon. Prominent society people of this city and North Plainfield have been cast in the production, among those who will enact roles being Mrs. Edwin Rudolph, Harold Underhill, Walter L. Righter, Clifford McGee, Warren Ackerman, Nelson Ramsey, Miss Elizabeth McGee and Mrs. Malcolm Perkins. Included in the cast are six small choir boys of the Grace Episcopal church, this city. The committee in charge of the affair is desirous of stating that there will be no reserved seats.

Regarding the affair, Mrs. Perkins stated that the worth of the cause for which it is being given is fully recognized and that the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield, in her opinion, would take advantage of the opportunity afforded them to assist in the good work which has been and is being carried on by the Prince of Wales Fund.

In the Park Club tomorrow evening there will be an informal dance for members. Music will be furnished by Conrad's band and it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

It is the purpose of the members of the North Plainfield club to hold informal dances on each Saturday night during this month. This is a new departure, having been started shortly after Christmas. Whether or not the custom will be kept up during the month of February is not known.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Compton, of East Third street, are entertaining their son, whose home is in Virginia.

Sergeant Ivins to Play Santa Claus

Invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Marguerite Carpenter, to Clinton Fox Ivins, son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, of Watchung avenue, have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Halsted, of Watchung avenue. The marriage and reception will take place on Thursday afternoon, January 18, at 4:30 o'clock.

Mr. Ivins, a graduate of Princeton, is a member of Troop D, holding the rank of sergeant. He is a salesman, with offices in New York city. Miss Halsted is very popular in the younger set of the city.

Mayor and Mrs. William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, left yesterday for Fort Meyers, Florida, where they will spend some time visiting the Mayor's brother, "Al" Smalley, formerly of the borough. While in the South, Mayor "Bill" expects to do considerable hunting. During Mr. Smalley's absence Alexander Milne, president of the North Plainfield Common Council, will be acting Mayor.

Society in Plainfield and North Plainfield has but few engagements for the next few weeks, notwithstanding the fact that in other parts the exodus has started toward balmy Southland winter resorts. Until Lent the social sphere of this city and vicinity is usually replete with attractions although at the present time there are only a few social affairs for which invitations have been issued. The holidays set having returned to school, leaves a noticeable dearth in the round of dances, bridge parties and entertainments.

However, the musical recitals which have been given in this city during the past few weeks and some of which are still to be given, will undoubtedly attract a large number of society people. The Hofman recital, to be given on January 18, and the appearance of Miss Anna Case on January 18 may be credited with reviving interest in the local social world. At a date to be announced later society of this city will present a dramatic offering in which the participants will be all local people. Aside from the fact that there are a number of social events scheduled for the forepart of next month it may safely be said that there is a lull in the social sphere of this city and borough. "Early to bed" is likely to be an added winter attraction.

Dinner Given to Bride-to-be

At their home, 218 East Seventh street, on Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick tendered an informal "kid party" in honor of Miss Katherine Ginna, daughter of Mrs. Daniel T. Ginna, whose engagement to Roger D. Mellick, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, was announced recently. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion and music was furnished by Conrad, of New York city.

Those who were invited guests were: The Misses Katherine Ginna, Elma Iradell, Elizabeth McGee, Priscilla Parker, Ruth Thompson and Katherine Drayton, and Warren Ackerman, Reginald Rowland, Roger D. Mellick, Hughton Pond, Walter Bigney, Linney Rushmore, Kenneth Brown, T. M. Day, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Ralston and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lord.

Miss Anna Case, noted Metropolitan soprano soloist, will give a concert in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on Thursday evening, January 18. The concert will be under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of the King's Daughters.

This will be Miss Case's first appearance in local circles since she became famous in the Metropolitan Opera House. She was at one time soloist in the First Presbyterian church, this city, when Clifford A. Bradley was the organist. Miss Case is a Somerville girl, having been educated in the schools of that place, where from the first her talent as a singer was recognized.

Her rise to fame began to bring fame to Somerville. The other whose name has been heralded afar is Miss Ruth St. Denis.

ANTICIPATE A TREAT.

It is expected by those in charge of the recital to be given by Josef Hofman in the Plainfield High School Auditorium on Tuesday evening, January 23, that there will be a large representation from surrounding towns in attendance.

It has been announced that Mr. Hofman will present a most delightful program of selections. The local management of the Plainfield High School Auditorium is to be congratulated upon securing such a noted musician as Mr. Hofman, who is considered by many as the peer of all pianists in the world. At a meeting of the T. A. B. Society held in the organization's hall on West Fourth street Sunday afternoon it was decided to render all possible assistance to the Knights of Columbus in their coming fair to be held from February 10 to 17 inclusive. A similar meeting was held by the Ancient Order of Hibernians who also expressed a willingness to assist the Knights as much as possible.

The Knights of Columbus are conducting this fair in their own hall, the original expense of which can rightfully be ascribed as being directly responsible for the coming event. It is necessary for the Knights to make this event both a social and financial success and the following committee, appointed at the last meeting of the Local Council, is in charge of the affair: A. A. Cannon, chairman; T. F. Carty, treasurer; Peter McDonough, Garret J. Reading, P. P. Keogh, J. J. Carty, E. P. Varley, D. B. Doyle, G. J. Tobin, John Keeley, A. A. Kenny, John Mountaffrey, T. J. What the People Are Doing in Religious Circles During Winter

Country Needs Good Citizens. Good Christians Make Good Citizens

IT was Daniel Webster who said, "Whatever makes men good Christians makes men good citizens."

If ever there was a time when this country needed good citizens it is now. There is no better way to make a good Christian and a good citizen than to exploit the GO TO CHURCH movement. Talk it up wherever you go. Every time you GO TO CHURCH try to get some one to go with you. If you have a friend who is derelict in his religious duty plead with him. Point out to him that it is his duty as an American citizen to GO TO CHURCH.

IT OFTEN HAS BEEN SAID THAT, NEXT TO THE CHURCH, THE NEWSPAPERS ARE THE MOST POWERFUL AGENTS FOR GOOD. MANY NEWSPAPERS HAVE TAKEN UP THE GO TO CHURCH SLOGAN. NEWSPAPERS, LIKE THE CHURCHES, ARE INTERESTED IN THE GENERAL WELFARE OF THE PEOPLE. HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF PERSONS WHO SELDOM WENT TO CHURCH NOW GO EVERY SUNDAY AS A RESULT OF THE SPLENDID PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN THAT HAS BEEN WAGED. THERE IS NO DENYING THIS WONDERFUL GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT. IT IS GETTING ON TREMENDOUSLY. IT IS CONFINED TO NO PARTICULAR SECT OR CREED. THE CHURCHES OF ALL DENOMINATIONS HAVE BEEN BENEFITED.

Now that the GO TO CHURCH movement is in full swing, keep it going. Don't cease in your efforts. Crowd the churches. If there isn't enough room build more edifices. Remember the words of Webster that "whatever makes men good Christians makes them good citizens." This country wants good citizens. Today it is more than ever the country of promise.

If you GO TO CHURCH don't think that there your duty ends. Don'd be surprised how easy it is to get others to join the GO TO CHURCH throng. In one town in the middle west there was a GO TO CHURCH converts' competition. The man who won the contest got 110 others to attend divine service on Sunday.

Never let an opportunity go by to sing the praises of the GO TO CHURCH movement.

Religious Advertising In Papers Generally Favored

In an effort to outdo their competitors, "the world, the flesh and the devil," Milwaukee clergymen are advocating the purchase of advertising space in the papers. The Milwaukee Sentinel broached the subject to them, and they all favor such methods of spreading religion.

The pastor of one of the largest churches in that city, the Rev. C. H. Beale, of Grand Avenue Congregation church, says: "People will come to church when they are aware of what we have to offer them, and the best way we can make them aware is through the newspapers."

When his attention was drawn to the fact that some church ads are hemmed in between burlesque show bills, "movie" head lines, etc., he merely asked: "Why should we not compete with the amusement column for a place to go on Sunday, and if they did what is the church mentioned there they might not think of it."

Rabbi Samuel Hirshberg, of Milwaukee, said: "Although the Jewish churches do not advertise, the clergy sees no objection to the practice. It is quite consistent with progress and shows commendable industry on the part of the minister."

Presbyterians to Raise 1917 Budget

At a meeting of the members of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church held in the chapel of the church last night it was unanimously voted to raise the church budget from $6,400 to $7,000. This is occasioned by the increase in the expenses of running the church. Other matters incidental to the running of the church were discussed.

William H. Shotwell created a pleasant impression when he arose at the meeting and spoke of an effort that is being made to enlarge the chapel, the present edifice having grown entirely too small. It is expected that between $4,000 and $5,000 will be needed to erect the addition and although no solicitations have yet been made Mr. Shotwell announced that several contributions have already been received, including amounts from Rutgers Cadmus, Mrs. Abram Cosine, her daughter, Mrs. George Carter, and Mrs. William H. Shotwell. This new endeavor is entirely foreign to the effort to secure funds for the Italian mission and has not as yet been put before the congregation as a whole.

WILL HAVE CHARGE.

A team of Billy Sunday workers will have charge of the 7:00 morning service at the First Presbyterian church Sunday. The Bible school and Sunday school will meet at 9:45 and the Christian Endeavor Society's session will be in the evening at 7:00, followed by the evening service at 7:45. At the evening service Rev. Charles E. Herring will preach the second of a series of sermons on "Types of Men," his subject for this occasion being "The Popular Man Who Didn't Make Good."

An effort has been made to secure a number of women to speak on the various phases of work covered by the World Wide Guild. Among those expected to be present are Mrs. William Fenimore, of Montclair, who is one of the State officials; Miss Alma Noble, of Buffalo, executive secretary of the national organization, and Miss DeLand, of New York, who is connected in the home mission field. Miss Amy Conant, of this city, who is State secretary of the World Wide Guilds, will also be present and it is possible that several others may be secured within the next few days.

MEMBERS REQUESTED TO SUGGEST SERMON TOPICS.

Members of the Morrow Memorial M. E. church, Maplewood, are asked by the Rev. Charles L. Walworth, pastor, in a pastoral letter sent out Saturday to suggest topics for a series of sermons which he intends preaching in the near future.

The clergyman writes: "If you were on your way to church and could have the opening of the sermon, what subject would you select? Has the minister failed to touch your deepest need? He wants to. You are thinking about a good many things. You have a right to have. Personal problems, biblical, theological, ethical, religious, social, philosophical, domestic. Perhaps you wonder why I do not talk about these. I would. If I could read your heart. I want to know any subject of peculiar interest to you, your problem if you have one. Help me in discovering which are vital to your in your daily living. I want to help you build a working faith."

ILLITERATE ALIEN A MENACE TO THE COUNTRY.

Before the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last week, Miss Anna Rhodes, of the Women's Branch of the National Americanization Society, spoke on the subject of "Our Newest Americans" or the "Foreigners." Miss Rhodes told the audience that upon entering this country the immigrant is carefully examined, but that upon entrance he is almost entirely forgotten. The illiterate alien, the speaker said, with his totally un-American ideas, is a menace.

In addition to explaining the condition of the foreigners who enter this country, Miss Rhodes gave a clear idea of just what is being done to educate the children of these aliens. Of particular interest to Plainfielders was the speaker's talk on night schools. On this phase of the subject, Miss Rhodes stated that it was an easy task to get the adults to go to these schools, but that it was a hard matter to keep them there. Miss Rhodes denounced childish methods employed in the education of the adults, citing several simple sentences used in the evening schools as evidence.

FINAL MEETING.

Tonight will mark the scheduled close of a week of prayer meetings that have been conducted at the Monroe Avenue church. Rev. J. E. Washabaugh, of Cranford, will be in charge and an interesting time is expected. Tuesday night the Ladies' Aid Society was in charge, Wednesday night Rev. P. G. Mission Attracts Many to Church

The mission for men, which is now being conducted in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church by the Rev. Father Stanton, a noted member of the Jesuit Missionary Band, has been most successful and will close on Sunday evening. The attendance has been good and the inspiring sermons by Father Stanton have been well appreciated.

Of the series of talks delivered by the Jesuit Father, that given on Monday evening, being on "Sin," was most important. The text of Father Stanton's sermon was "I Will Not Serve." The men were present on Sunday evening for the discussion on "Sin" by an eloquent sermon on the value of the "Soul," the text being "What Does It Profit a Man If He Gain the Whole World and Suffer the Loss of His Own Soul?" That the loss of one soul cannot be matched by the loss of all the wealth in the world and that sin was the only evil that could cause such a loss was the connecting statement between the two talks. In the beginning," said Father Stanton, "Lucifer the Prince of the Archangels, revolted against God and would not serve. For that one mortal 'Sin' he was thrown into hell." The seriousness of "Sin," with all its attendant horrors, both in this life and in the hereafter, was brought out and the various kinds of "sins" were taken up, individually. The subject of "hell" was discussed on Tuesday evening, the horrors of that state being vividly portrayed.

Father Stanton is a Jesuit priest of unlimited ability in the conduct of missions for men. He is stationed in New York city and has been giving missions for a number of years. His jovial manner and his stories that are true to life appeal to his hearers and his wide and varied experience with men in all walks of life peculiarly fit him for his work. In addition to the evening services, which include recitation of the Rosary, sermon and benediction, masses for men making the mission are celebrated at 5:30, 6:30 and 8 o'clock each morning. It is estimated that over seven hundred men of St. Mary's church are making the week's retreat.

PASTOR HARE AGAIN TALKS ON THE BORDER.

"Eventually, we shall have to go into Mexico as we went into Cuba and to the Philippines—as a friend or a big brother, to show them the way."

The Rev. Dr. J. Madison Hare, chaplain of the Fourth New Jersey regiment and pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, thus told 120 ministers yesterday of the Mexican policy he deemed necessary for this country. The occasion was one of the speakers at the luncheon to the chaplains of the Army and National Guard, given by the Clergy Club at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant.

Dr. Hare charged that the churches at home had not played fair with the chaplains on the border, and had not supported their ministers in the field financially as they should have. The criticism to which the State troops had been subjected, he asserted, was due to the fact that they had been expected to accomplish in two months what the regular army does in six.

The regular army was also blamed for the slowness with which the Guardsmen went to the border, by the Rev. Dr. William T. McCord, chaplain of the Seventh Regiment.

A stir of surprise was caused by a statement of the Rev. Dr. Ford Cooper Crocker, chaplain of the Seventy-first Regiment, that a white woman was safer among the Mexicans than among some of the communities on this side of the Rio Grande.

"I used to feel that if we had trouble with Japan, the spirit of the men, especially of the Far West, would be able to rise up and sweep everything before it. I now feel that the trained man is what you need. Personal courage will not withstand the modern implements of war unless you are prepared."

VOLUNTEER BIBLE CLASS ELECTS YEAR'S OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the Volunteer Bible Class of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held Monday evening, at which time the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. Those who were chosen are Mrs. Birney Hudson, teacher; Mrs. J. R. Groendyke, president; Mrs. C. A. Wiggans, first vice president; Mrs. Wiggans Sebring, second vice president; Mrs. Thomas T. Barrett, secretary; Mrs. A. C. Spangenberg, assistant secretary; Mrs. Van Doren Vail, treasurer; Mrs. Van Doren Vail, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. A. N. Lagron, corresponding secretary.

Following the election of officers, a social time was enjoyed during which reports were read and plans for the year discussed. The class has a membership of sixty-two now, a gain of seventy-three during the year. The Bonnie Burn inmates were remembered to the extent of $200 and $50 was given to missions. Garments will be made for many children and other reports were equally as encouraging.

CLERICUS MET.

The monthly meeting of the Plainfield Episcopal Clericus was held Monday afternoon at the home of Rev. H. Sis G. Burrell, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. The topic under discussion was taken from R. J. Campbell's latest book, "My Spiritual Pilgrimage," and was led by Rev. L. E. Hubbard, of Elizabeth. The book is now being discussed in English religious circles and provided interested discussion at Monday's meeting.

Go to Church. Going to Church Will Convert Even the Hypocrite

ONE of the reasons given by some people for refusing to GO TO CHURCH is that there are "too many hypocrites" going to church today.

Perhaps it is true that there are some hypocrites in church on Sunday. But these people cannot deceive the Almighty. They can only deceive men. Besides, there always is a chance that even a hypocrite will see a light. If he is constant in his attendance at church the hypocrisy is bound to disappear. Sincerity surely will follow.

Many a man has started to GO TO CHURCH just for the sake of making a good impression, and eventually he has become a God fearing, upright citizen. No man can listen to a sermon every Sunday and be deaf to the word of God as expressed by the clergyman. He is bound to be a Christian in time.

IT IS TRUE THAT MANY SINNERS GO TO CHURCH. THE CHURCH IS THE PLACE FOR SINNERS. IT IS THERE THAT THEY WILL BE CLEANSED OF THEIR SINS. THE CHURCH ALSO IS A PLACE FOR THE GODLY. IT GIVES THEM THE STRENGTH TO PERSEVERE IN THEIR GODLINESS. IT GIVES THEM THE SOLACE OF RELIGION. SOME PEOPLE NEVER GO TO CHURCH UNTIL THEY ARE STRICKEN WITH SOME GREAT SORROW. THEN THEY ASK GOD TO HELP THEM BEAR THEIR SUFFERING. THEY FIND THE CONSOLATION IN CHURCH THAT THEY CANNOT FIND ANYWHERE ELSE. IT IS NOT FAIR TO GO TO NEGLECT HIM AND HIS CHURCH UNTIL THE HOUR OF SORROW AND MISFORTUNE.

The GO TO CHURCH movement is one that cannot be denied. It is the most splendid thing that was ever undertaken in this country. The cities are the better for it. The country is the better for it.

Is there the slightest reason why you should not GO TO CHURCH next Sunday?

GO.

GO EVERY SUNDAY.

Missionary Societies to Observe Ruby Anniversary

Plainfield will be the scene in February of one of the largest religious gatherings of is history when over five hundred delegates of the Women's Baptist Home Missionary Societies of Northern New Jersey convene for a banquet to mark the ruby jubilee since the formation of the movement. Banquets are to be held all over the county at the same time and this city, together with Camden, has been chosen as the New Jersey center. Local women prominent in the work are already making preparations for the event and expect soon to make definite announcement as to where it will be held.

In connection with the celebrating of its fortieth anniversary, the Home Missionary Society of the United States is trying to raise $40,000 required for five lines of work, including a Christian community centre; a memorial to Joshua B. Moore, a missionary for girls in connection with normal school work in Porto Rico; to extend work in Central America, and to build and endow a fund to help sick missionaries. An effort is also to be made to raise $500 to be used as the salary of an Italian missionary at Montclair. Of the money which is to be needed it is expected that Northern New Jersey will contribute its share at the banquet in this city.

Although it is not yet certain where the affair will be held, it is likely that the First Methodist church will be the gathering place for the delegates who will represent the hundreds of societies connected with every denomination in the northern part of the State. A number of prominent speakers will be present at the all day session and a committee composed of local women is now busy arranging a program and other details to insure the comfort of the hundreds of women that will flock to Plainfield on the day the banquet is held.

Aeroplane Made Here Does Well In Test Flight

After experimenting, planning and constructing for over a month the Standard Aero Corporation, whose factories are located on upper North avenue, completed the first "Model J" machine yesterday and under the supervision of five Government inspectors put it through a rigid test that proved, on the whole, entirely satisfactory.

The "Model J" aeroplane is one type of machine that the local plant is now working on full time for to fill contracts made with the Federal Government totaling over a million dollars. Of that specific type the Standard Aero concern has contracted to make eighteen of for the Government. They sell at $12,000 each and are intended for training purposes in teaching aviators attached to the army corps the art of flying.

"Model J" has a ninety horsepower, four cylinder motor, flies at a rate of from 80 to 100 miles an hour, sixty-six miles an hour and can rise 4,800 feet in ten minutes. It has a spread of forty-two feet, weighs 2,200 pounds when loaded and is equipped with a dual "dep" controller. It measures 420 feet over all, has a "chord of air" and a gap between planes of six feet.

Work on the constructing of the "Model D" machine, of which the Standard Aero Corporation has a contract for thirty-two, has not yet been actually started. Up until the present time it has been confined merely to the experimental stage as the type of aeroplane called for is of the latest model and will include features that have never before been put to practical use. Like the "Model J" plane, it will be designed for two passengers, a pilot and observer, but will sell for $21,000. They are termed in the vernacular of an aviator as twin motor, two place tractor biplanes with pontoon attachments.

"Model D" is declared to be the last word in aeroplane construction. The two motors develop 250 H. P. combined and can be operated either single or double. The operate two propellers working in opposite directions at 1,300 revolutions to the minute, thus developing a maximum speed of 100 miles per hour and minimum of 46 miles per hour. The machine can rise approximately 5,000 feet in ten minutes and with a carrying capacity of 110 gallons of gasoline has a flying radius of 500 miles. The "thrust" of the six cylinder motors is equivalent to 1,400 pounds and the spread of the entire machine is sixty-four feet. The forward cockpit, fitted for the observer, has space for a machine gun of the Lewis type and will be the first of the Government machines to be equipped with them. Directly behind is the pilot's cockpit.

The local factories of the Standard Aero Corporation have become important factors in the United States' aeroplane manufacturing resources and at the present time the corporation is working on $1,056,000 worth of contracts that will keep the concern busy for nearly a year. Five Government inspectors are on duty at the two local plants the entire time and under whose immediate supervision each machine is turned out. With the exception of the engines, cloth for the planes and varnish with which they are coated, everything is manufactured here and each piece and section has to be inspected and approved before it is made a part of a machine. Each aeroplane as it is completed is tested at the plant before it is taken to Mineola for a trial flight. Not until after each one has passed successfully all the tests is it finally turned over to the Federal Government.

Beside the two most recent Government contracts, the Standard Corporation is busy completing two others. One was awarded by the Navy Department and calls for three "Model H-3-H" machines costing $17,000 and the other is for twelve of the "Model H-2" type.

The Grand Jury is understood to have investigated yesterday the alleged overcharges made by County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer against the county for services of "field parties." It was alleged in the report of Commissioner Hugh K. Gaston, who conducted the Supreme Court investigation of county affairs, that charges of $28,000 were made unlawfully against the county by Mr. Bauer in four years.

It is understood that a thorough investigation of the alleged overcharges of $28,000 made by the Grand Jury, for the purpose of finding exactly what the field parties cost Mr. Bauer, it is said, the inquest is examining employes in his office who made up the parties.

1917 Xmas Fund Will Set Record

The 1917 Christmas Fund Club of the Plainfield Trust Company has now gotten fairly started and has turned out to be the biggest of any yet held. The total number of persons now saving is slightly over 6,800, an advance of nearly 1,000 over the enrollment of the 1916 club. An idea of how necessary the club has become to Plainfield people is obtained by comparing the number enrolled in the recently started club with the population of approximately 25,000 drawn from, the percentage being about one-sixth.

The sum that will be released next December will be considerably in excess of $2500,000, one of the largest in the State to be saved. It takes the constant attention of three clerks to handle the money daily deposited and causes a line to be formed in the bank all through the day.

Hall Resigns as Freeholder

Freeholder Burton P. Hall, of Fanwood, has resigned from the Board of Chosen Freeholders. His resignation has been in the hands of Director George G. Felter for some time and will probably be presented at the next meeting. Mr. Hall gave the interference of his pate affairs with his duty to the county in his position of freeholder as the reason of his resignation.

Mr. Hall denied stoutly the rumors that his action was the result of the recent investigation. His relations with the other members of the Board had always been of the most cordial and pleasant, he said, and he regretted sincerely that he felt obliged to resign. But as his business prevented him from serving the county as he believed he should, he decided to step out and give another man a chance to represent Fanwood.

Freeholder Hall has been a member of the Board since 1910. His term would have expired at the end of this year. Although his resignation was believed to be a certainty some time ago, he was placed on the following committees for 1917 by Director Felter: Collector's bond, appropriations, settle with collector, hospitals. He was chairman of the last committee.

Mush Diet Squad Gains in Weight

According to reports made by Recruiting Officer John A. Gaffney at noon today the mush diet squad, including sixteen of Plainfield's most prominent citizens headed by Judge William Newcorn, has gained an even four pounds during the experimental period. Former Fire Chief T. O. Doane was the largest individual gainer, his surplus being eight ounces. Mr. Gaffney was the only one to drop weight, his losing one and one-half pounds, but he assigns the falling off to the strenuous work necessary in recruiting the squad and the unusual amount of activity he was forced to expend in properly supervising the recruits.

Should the results be satisfactory the board of county chosen freeholders will extend the mush diet will be cut down to 1,600 calories. Results to date have been entirely satisfactory and the squad has now been brought up to the maximum "war strength." The large number on the waiting list are anxious to form a new squad and Mr. Gaffney is seriously considering the possibility of launching the project. Among those now in the squad are Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Judge Newcorn, Martin Stutsman, William Nevius Pound, Recruiting Gaffney, Judge William G. De Mezz, Richard A. Claybrook, Henry Rogers and Neimiah Gazelle.

Dr. Pittis Lost Only One Finger

The past week has seen rapid strides for the better in the condition of Dr. Albert Pittis and it is now only a question of a week or so before he will be able to leave Muhlenberg Hospital. An operation was performed Wednesday to take off the remainder of the little finger on his left hand. His arm, which, it was at first thought would have to be amputated also, will soon be back in its normal condition and when he leave the institution where he suffered for nearly three months, it will only be by noticing that his finger is gone that anyone will have a hint of the ordeal through which he passed.

As soon as the doctor leaves the hospital he will take several week's trip through the South and upon his return will immediately take up his practice which it was stopped short last November when he was stricken with blood poisoning.

Ex-Jail Bird Found Guilty

Bolek Brolieski, alias Peter Sackowitz, of Passaic, was found guilty of having fleeced Anna Tomlaska, a Plainfield young woman, of $648 by a jury in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth yesterday after a four-day trial. Josephin Rokoski, accused of being the "come-on" in his confidence game, was also found guilty, but with a recommendation for mercy. Assistant Prosecutor Martin P. O'Connor represented the State, Weinberger & Weinberger, of Passaic, Sackowitz, and Frank J. Burns, the Rokoski woman.

The State's last two witnesses, a mathematics teacher and chauffeur, of the Partridge Academy, where the complainant was employed as maid, undermined the alibi which counsel for Sackowitz tried to build up. Both testified they had seen Sackowitz in Plainfield on visits to the complainant on days when his counsel tried to prove that he had been in Passaic.

In behalf of Mrs. Rokoski, who introduced Brolieski to Anna Tomlaska, Mr. Burns claimed there had been no proof offered that she participated in aided him in fleecing Anna of her money. Although his motion that the court direct the jury to bring a verdict for acquittal in her case was denied, he emphasis of the point noted resulted in the recommendation for mercy.

Sackawitz has already served five years at Trenton for a misdemeanor of the same sort at Paterson, while the New York authorities are waiting for him on the same charge. As the sentence on conviction in a case of this kind is from one to seven years, they must wait some time before they get him back to New York State.

Jury Could Not Agree on Verdict

After wrangling for hours and not being able to come to an agreement Robert Keenan, foreman, reported to Judge Hetfield, of the District Court, at 9 o'clock last night that after being out since 5 o'clock the jury in the case of Marchant Brothers against the Ford Taxi Co. stood eight to four in favor of the defendant. The case will probably be retried sometime in the near future.

The suit is the result of an accident several weeks ago when a taxicab owned by Hunt and driven by one of his men and a milk wagon owned by the Marchants collided on Watchung avenue, the horse attached to the wagon being killed. Marchant Brothers sought to recover $250 damages. Robert Newton Crane was lawyer for the defendant and Martin Stutsman was lawyer for the complainants.

James J. Strappe Found Dead in Bed

James J. Strappe, of 607 John street, who for a number of years has been employed by former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, died suddenly at his home this morning. He had been ill with heart trouble during the past week, but seemed to be steadily improving. His death comes as a shock to his many friends in this city.

He was a member of St. Mary's church and prominent in the Knights of Columbus and other Catholic organizations. Besides his wife and two daughters, Margaret and Catherine, he leaves three brothers, Edward, John and Thomas, all of this city. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been made.

Aged Man Injured At Railroad Depot

His failure to get off the train at Westfield resulted seriously for F. B Sandborn, an aged journalist, at the Plainfield depot last night when he fan into a baggage truck and injured his hip. Mr. Sandborn commutes daily to New York but failed to alight at his home station last night.

The train's next stop was Plainfield and he hastened from the west bound side to the east bound side in order to catch a train back to Westfield. His haste caused him to bump into the truck with sufficient force to stun him for several minutes and he insisted on a doctor being called. Patrolman John Kelley summoned City Physician Norman W. Curtis and the man was removed to his home, 265 Kimball avenue, in the ambulance.

PAID LAST TRIBUTE.

Assistant County Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, was among the hundreds of people from all over the State and in all walks of life who attended the funeral services of former Chancellor William Jay McCarter which was held at Westminister church, Elizabeth, Wednesday. Impressive services were conducted for the jurist and were in charge of Rev. Louis B. Crane. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

DEATHS AT HOSPITAL.

Two colored deaths were reported from Muhlenberg Hospital today. Robert B. Norwood, of 544 West Third street, who atempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor late in December, died last night, and George Johnson, of Muhlenberg place, who was received Monday, died early today.

City Building In Bad Slump

Building in Plainfield is in the midst of the worst slump it has experienced in many months. So far during 1917 there have been but seven permits filed with Building Inspector T. O. Doane. Two were filed previously to January 5 for a total of $9,000 and since then five have been approved by the inspector amounting to $13,900, bringing the total for the year to $22,900.

The largest was filed by the officers of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and was for the erection of an addition and other improvements to the clubhouse of the order located at 911 East Front street, the details of which are described on another page.

Percy A. McVey filed plans for a house of frame construction to cost $2,500. It will be two stories in height and contain all modern improvements. The Shiloh Baptist church was granted permission to start work on the erection of a rectory at 515 West Fourth street to cost $7,500. It will be plain stone high and of frame construction. James W. DeGraf filed suitable plans for a brooderhouse to be built at his place on Plainfield avenue and Samuel riney, of Mariners place, filed plans for a garage to cost $100.

Officials of the Vitaphone Company, whose factory is located just east of the Netherwood station, announced this week that they would shortly file plans for the erection of an addition to their plant. The probable size or cost has not been given.

Miss Turney Bride Of Kasper Heries

Miss Elizabeth M. Turney, of Rosevelt, and Kaspar Heries, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Heries, of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, were united in marriage at St. James' Roman Catholic church, Roosevelt, on Wednesday, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. M. J. Haggerty, pastor of that church.

The maid of honor was Miss Francis Herries, of North Plainfield, a sister of the bridegroom, while the best man was Daniel Turney, a brother of the bride. The bride wore a travel suit of blue broadcloth with hat to match. The maid of honor also wore a suit of blue broadcloth with hat to match. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Richard McDonald, of Roosevelt. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents from her large circle of friends both in Roosevelt and in this city. Following a honeymoon trip, the couple will reside in Port Reading, where the bridegroom holds a responsible position with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

FAITHFUL COP GETS LEAVE.

After trending the streets of Plainfield for the past fourteen years Arthur McGinley has been granted a leave of absence from active duty on the Plainfield police force and is now under the car of physicians in an effort to recover his health. For sometime past he has been handicapped by stomach trouble and constant walking in patroling his beat has aggravated it.

Tyrell Trial On In Police Court Today

Facing three charges, anyone of which will probably mean a half sentence in case he is found guilty, Foster Tyrell the owner of the automobile that figured in a collision which resulted fatally for Paul Miller and Otto Zanstra on Wednesday night, January 10, is being tried before City Judge William G. De Mezz today. A representative of the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner's office appeared here today to press the following complaints against the young man: Driving a car while under the influence of liquor, driving without a license and using another man's license tag on his car. The last named is the only charge connected with the accident, the other two having been made previously to January 10.

Winfield S. Angleman is defending Tyrell and the State's case is in the hands of a lawyer from the commissioner's staff. Tyrell entered a plea of not guilty on all three charges and it is expected that the hearing will last the greater part of the day.

Judge De Mezz in his jurisdiction is a matter of this kind and if Tyrell is found guilty the court will be obliged to send him to the county jail at Elizabeth.

When arraigned before Judge De Meza a week ago today Tyrell was released in bonds of $1,500, which were secured by his father, the assistant postmaster at South Amboy. He was arrested by Lieut. Maurice Higgins after an investigation had been conducted by Chief of Police Kiely.

According to the information gleaned by the Plainfield department, Tyrell, the Miller brothers and Zanstra, set out on a "joy-ride" in an automobile owned by Tyrell and bearing a Queen City garage license tag on Wednesday night, January 10, headink for Newark. On the homeward trip the party were around by Summit with Paul Miller at the wheel and in attempting to swerve out for a motor truck he lost control and the machine plowed up against a pole on the Springfield road.

Nicholas Miller and Zanstra were rushed to Overlook Hospital, Miller dying four hours later and Zanstra living for four days. Tyrell and the other Miller escaped injury. Miller was taken into custody by Chief Brown, of the Summit police force, and the next morning was taken to Elizabeth and arraigned before Judge James C. Connolly on a manslaughter charge, held in bail of $1,500. Tyrell came to his home here after the smashup and was located at the garage.

Following the arrest of the two men John D. W. DeForest, owner of the Queen City garage, where two of the men were employed and owner of the license used on the "death car," declared that he had warned Tyrell not to use his license tag. DeForest is a cousin of Tyrell's.

When the accident occurred Tyrell was at liberty under bail to answer to a charge of driving an automobile without a license and while intoxicated. He was arrested in Elizabeth sometime ago and his driver's license was taken away from him.

Francis J. Blatz Favored For District Court Judge

Activity locally during the past fortnight has tended to indicate that the race for the District Court judgeship in Plainfield has narrowed down to Francis J. Blatz. Members of the vicinage bar who practice here have given his name their endorsement, almost to a unit, as have also many city, county and State officials and he is now prominently identified with the Republican party.

When the appointment is made by Governor Edge next month it is likely that he will be honored for the position that carries with it an annual salary of $2,000. Others still being mentioned as possible candidates are Henry Crane and Robert Newton Crane.

Mr. Blatz has practiced law at Plainfield for twenty years and has been connected in recent years with the firm of Codington & Blatz. He studied Blackstone in New York University and was graduated with an LL. B. degree in May, 1897, passing the bar admittance examinations one month later. In 1902 he qualified as counsellor.

As a member of the Plainfield Common Council, of which he is serving his second term as president, Mr. Blatz has probably gained the major portion of his recognition as a hard and earnest worker. He has maintained an intimate acquaintance with municipal affairs and has been actively identified with the G. O. P. in city, county, State and Federal work.

Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., is arranging to hold a pinochle party on Wednesday night, January 31.

GOING TO JERSEY CITY.

The officers of Plainfield Lodge of Elks together with a large delegation will pay a fraternal visit to Jersey City lodge Monday night and at that time will do the initiatory work for the Hudson county boys. An entertainment and general good time has been arranged for to follow the meeting and it is hoped by the local lodge that a large number will go.

TO INSTALL OFFICERS.

Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., will install officers at its meeting Thursday night, the installation to be followed by a supper and smoker.

TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY.

Camp No. 1, P. O. of A., is making arrangements for the observing of its sixteenth birthday anniversary on February 16. A committee has been appointed to take charge and are planning an elaborate program for the occasion. The new officers of the camp took charge at the last meeting and are as follows: Past president, Mrs. Grace Cook; assistant past president, Mrs. Mary Johnson; president, Mrs. Emma Brown, of Garwood; assistant president, Mrs. Mary Clawson; vice president, Mrs. Della McDowell; conductor, Mrs. Jenetta Van Pelt; sentinel, Mrs. Ruth Hampton; recording secretary, Mrs. Helen Freeman; financial secretary, Mrs. Lucetta Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Cable.

The appointments made by the president were: Chaplain, Mrs. Ora Eckart; assistant recording secretary, Miss Alita McDowell; orator, Theodore Van Pelt. These officers will be installed at the next meeting.

INSTALLATION POSTPONED.

Plainfield Lodge, I. O. B. A., has postponed the installation of its officers until January 24.

EAGLES TO BOWL.

Freedom Castle, Knights of Golden Eagle, will have Newark Lodge as their opponents when they roll their next match in the order's bowling league in this city next Wednesday.

KNIGHTS READY.

The bowling team of Watchenk Council will not roll its next game in the Knights of Columbus Bowling League until February 2, when it will have the Star of Bethlehem pinners as their opponents on the local alleys.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

In the presence of delegations from several nearby lodges, the new officers of Miantonomo were installed last week by Charles L. Holstein, Jr. They are as follows: Prophet, Elmer Bailey; sachem, Edwin Terry; senior sagamore, Henry Fields; junior sagamore, Leo Foling; chief of records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, Charles L. Holstein, Jr.; trustee, Thomas N. Parsons; representative to the great council, Charles L. Holstein; alternate representative to the great council, Peter Sheridan.

NEW OFFICIALS.

The newly elected officers of Martha Washington Council, D. of A., that were installed at the last meeting were: Councilor, Mrs. Mary Hoffman; assistant councilor, Mrs. Mary Walsh; vice councilor, Mrs. Anna Schmidt; assistant vice councilor, Miss Alice Lude; conductor, Mrs. Nettie Mobus; warden, D. N. Van Orden; recording secretary, John Allen; financial secretary, J. S. Walsh; inside sentinel, Charles Parson.

MUSICIANS ELECT.

The Plainfield Musicians' Union held its annual meeting Sunday and elected and installed the following officers: President, Andrew G. Carpenter; vice president, Gustav Meisner; recording secretary, F. J. Squire; financial secretary, Charles A. Nichols; treasurer, H. Hogan Hansen; serjeant-at-arms, Harold B. Storr; trustee, George W. Scott; Fred F. Van Eps, William N. Runyon; board of directors, Charles M. Suhr, Frank L. Manchester, Louis Clauss and George H. Bennett.

Two prominent members of Plainfield Lodge of Elks have recently been honored at Bound Brook. Leon DuFour has been reappointed a councilman and John J. Campbell has been elected president of the Holy Name Society of that place.

TO CHOOSE DELEGATES.

At the next meeting of Unity and Perseverance Lodges, K. of P., delegates will probably be chosen to go to Lakewood on January 29, when the degree of knight is made on members of Lakewood Lodge.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY WILL MEET TO ELECT.

The Holy Name meeting scheduled for last Sunday was postponed and will be held in Social Hall on Liberty street on Sunday afternoon, when the election of officers for the coming year will be held.

At this meeting a committee will be appointed to assist the Knights of Columbus in their coming fair and, in all probability, plans for a grand rally will be discussed. It is expected that there will be a large attendance at this meeting. The retiring officers are Peter McDonough, president; John J. Gallagher, secretary, and Michael McCaffery, treasurer.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The Sunday-school of the Netherwood Reformed church last week elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Claude Gonod; associate president, Horace J. Martin; secretary, Horace Adams; treasurer, S. O. Rush; librarian, Homer Scruton.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement of Miss Edith Crane Hedge, daughter of Mrs. Campbell T. Hedge, to Elmer Ellsworth Wigg, of Westfield, was announced at a luncheon given at the Hedge home in East Orange last week.

WHIST PARTY AND DANCE.

A whist party and dance will be held under the auspices of the Young Men's Hebrew Association on Wednesday evening, January 24. It is planned to hold a package party on Wernesday evening, February 14.

SENIOR CLASS DANCE.

In Saengerbund Hall tomorrow evening the Senior Class of North Plainfield High School will hold a dance, admission to which will be by ticket. This affair will be held regardless of the outcome of the basketball contest in the afternoon and, if victory is registered by the borough lads, will be more or less in the nature of a celebration.

DANCING CLASS MEETS.

The dancing class conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Hebrew Association met in the society rooms last evening for instruction by Professor Samuel Goodman, of the Remennyi's Studio, New York city. This was the third meeting of the class.

WEEKLY DANCE HELD.

The weekly dance for members was held in the Park Club on Saturday night, being largely attended. Music for the occasion was furnished by Van Eps. A similar event will be held tomorrow evening.

"Smoking Pollutes God's Free, Fresh Air"—Martine

United States Senator James E. Martine speaking of the petition from the 47,000 residents of the City of Washington, asking for a referendum on the prohibition question, vigorously advocated passage of an amendment to a liquor prohibition bill making it unlawful to use tobacco in any form on the streets or in public buildings in Washington. His amendment offered during the Senate debate on the prohibition bill, was rejected, but the bill for a "dry" District of Columbia was passed.

"If this bill is to be passed," urged Senator Martine, "it will be to the shame and humiliation of the great Senate of the United States unless we pass it rightly. Let us make this capital a model city, a real nice city, not only free from liquor, but also free from tobaccom fumes, free from cigars, cigarettes and pipes; a city free from quids of tobacco and expectorated tobacco juice. Millions of money are spent each year in this unfortunate habit. It pollutes God's free air; it is surely a benefit to no man.

"The argument against the use of liquor is that it has no food value. God knows there is no food value in tobacco. Therefore, let us abolish the use of it."

Senator Martine then offered the amendment which read that it should be unlawful in the District of Columbia to offer for sale, to vend, barter or give tobacco in any form, and that to smoke, chew or snuff on streets or in any public buildings in the District of Columbia would be unlawful and punishable by a fine of $500. For a second violation the penalty would be doubled, and so on ad finitum.

There was much laughter and applause from the galleries when Senator Martine said, "I offer that amendment in all sincerity." Continuing the Senator from New Jersey declared:

"I want to say that I am fortunate in the fact that my lips have never been polluted with tobacco in any form whatever. I realize that almost all my fellow Senators obtain infinite pleasure out of tobacco using. In God's name and in the interests of humanity, in the interests of thousands of weak and puny boys and men, sniffing and sucking on the end of a cheroot or of a little cigarette, I ask you to make the self-sacrifice, you from Georgia, South Carolina and other parts of the country, who represent fortunes in money as well as the comfort physically of chewing the noxious weed.

"I am so utterly opposed to the narrow thought of prohibition that I confess I am unable to find words to adequately express my feeling. I say that prohibition laws do not prohibit. In Georgia and in Kansas, and in almost every other prohibition State there are more arrests for drunkenness than elsewhere. Your prohibition laws are futile and a failure.

"I say substitute something better for the open bar before you abolish it. All mankind were not born alike, nor are they blessed with the same surroundings. In an open room, in which men sit in a gilded palace and drink whisky or beer or wine any worse than the open bar? And yet right within the commonwealth of Georgia open rooms are maintained where men sit and drink whisky and beer and everything else they desire."

Lo and Behold! A Model Borough

The borough of North Plainfield is a peaceful little hamlet, with a police force to protect it, if need be. But from December 30 to January 10, inclusive, there was little or no necessity of resorting to that august body. During that space of time no arrests were made.

But despite the earnest efforts of the little town across the brook to become a model of righteousness, there was an end to the "clean slate." Two Jamtowners from Newark, who cared but little for the borough record—perhaps still less for their own wandered into town and conveniently forgot to secure licenses before making their rounds. The eagle eye of the law soon captured them and then came the blot on the escutcheon.

Included in this ten days' reign of quiet was New Year's Day, generally considered the time when additional cells are needed. But on New Year's Day there were no arrests made in North Plainfield, due, undoubtedly, in a large measure to Mayor William L. Smalley's ban on the notorious "Tom and Jerry." His Honor has deserted for the sunny clime of Florida confident that there will be but little judicial work piled up to await his return.

BUSINESS WOMEN MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Business Women's League will be held this evening in the rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Discuss Plans For a School

In the Netherwood Reformed church on Monday evenin a debate between the West End Community Centre and the East End Civic Association will be held. The relative merits of the West End of the city as contrasted with those of the East End are to come up for discussion.

The theory that that section of the city west of Park avenue holds forth better advantages than does the section east of the same boundary line will be upheld by Edward C. Vail and John J. Carroll. The opposite arguments will be offered by Robert Newton Crane, Councilman Charles S. Smincк and the Rev. Edward S. Ralston. This debate was arranged as a result of a challenge issued by the West End association. The East End body agreed to the contest willingly and it is said that each side is prepared to fight to a finish. The public is invited to hear this debate.

COMMITTEE TO COLLECT $200,000 Y. M. C. A. FUND.

Another step toward the actual obtaining of the new Y. M. C. A. building for Plainfield was accomplished this week when a committee of twenty-five men who took a prominent part in the raising of the $200,000 fund were chosen to act as a continuation committee to supervise the actual collecting of the money that was subscribed and deposit it with the Plainfield Trust Company. The committee is headed by James W. De Graff as chairman and includes: Ernest R. Ackerman, L. D. Albin, J. Herbert Cook, William G. Cooke, George Horne, William A. Garrigus, Joseph W. Gavett, Arthur M. Harris, William C. Hubbard, J. McClymont, Jr., J. H. Manning, George Megrew, William D. Murray, Charles A. Rice, George M. Rittenhouse, Joseph W. Sandford, Edgar F. Sheppard, Percy H. Stewart, Elliot Laidlaw, William S. Tyler, D. M. Van Vliet, Stephen H. Voorhees, O. B. Whitford, A. C. Estes, secretary.

The appointment of an advisory committee, which is to suggest a location erection and other details in connection with the building, will be made in the near future. The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held on January 25.

CITY LEAGUE SESSIONS TO BEGIN FEBRUARY 5.

According to present indications the City League will resume regular sessions on February 5, although no definite call has as yet been issued by the president of the circuit, Walter C. Debbins.

At the present time it looks as though the league will be made up of at least five of the clubs that competed last year. However, there was some talk of enlarging the circuit to include eight clubs, although nothing definite has been done in that respect. The Baptist team has elected Daniel Randolph manager to succeed Duncan Patterson, while the other managers will probably be as follows: Tabs, James Scott; Hope Chapel, Britt Martin; Netherwood, John Coughlan, and Dunellen, Thomas Apgar. It is not known whether or not the Farmers intend to enter a team in the league this year. There is some talk of entering a team from St. Joseph's, in North Plainfield, and such an outfit would have Earl Moran or Eddie Conway at the helm. It is planned to open the 1917 season on April 29.

PRIZE WALTZING.

One of the features of the eleventh grand ball of the local Iron Moulders' Union, No. 305, which will be held in Rannenbund Hall this evening, will be prize waltzing. Music for the affair will be furnished by Halbfoerster's Tango Band of Elizabeth.

HELD ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the Netherwood Association held on Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, A. C. Wilmerding; vice president, E. P. Thomas; secretary, F. F. Lorenz, and treasurer, R. C. Wilmerding.

SEWING CLASS TO FORM.

A class in first aid is to be formed in February at the Young Women's Christian Association and all those who are interested should notify Miss Aller at the association rooms.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., JANUARY 19, 1917.

MR. BLATZ ENTITLED TO JUDGESHIP HONOR.

That Francis J. Blatz is rightfully entitled to the Plainfield District Court judgeship appears to be the verdict of not only his colleagues in the law profession but also of the leading city and county officials. His qualifications merit the honor and there should be no obstacle in the path of an appointment in his favor. Governor Edge will render his decision in the matter next month and if the balance is weighed correctly he will find public sentiment so overwhelmingly in favor of the Common Council president that he will be bound by conscience to confer the laurels on Mr. Blatz.

Twentieth century politics have produced the twenty minute voter and the twenty day party worker—Mr. Blatz is neither. During his twenty years spent in practice of local law he has gained the reputation of being a year-around Republican champion. He has made his influence felt strongly in his home city, in Union county and in the State of New Jersey. The welfare of the party has been his personal interest; he has sacrificed his time in behalf of the G. O. P. cause.

In selecting Mr. Blatz as the new presiding officer of the local District Court Governor Edge will be conferring a favor on his constituents and at the same time will be striking the normal chord in the pulse of public opinion. The selection is certain to meet with unanimous approval.

It is essential that the best man be appointed in this instance. It is imperative that certain changes be made in the conduct of the local District Court and the Plainfield public looks to Mr. Blatz as the man to make them. His pledge is short and simple; he has promised to devote his time to a painstaking study of conditions and we have sufficient confidence in him to rest assured that he will spare no effort to produce some radical results. His appointment will not mark the beginning of his acquaintance with District Court work for he has been possessed of an intimate knowledge with civil law during years of practice in the judiciary.

Mr. Blatz's friends at present cannot foresee a change in sentiment that will threaten defeat and we look to Governor Edge to give him the right to the title of judge.

RAILROAD CROSSING NEEDED AT THIS POINT.

Appeals have come to the Record office during the past two weeks from taxpayers residing in the extreme West End of the city soliciting the aid of this paper in bringing before the public the need of some kind of a crossing over the Central Railroad between Grant and Clinton avenues. The demand is presented but no remedy is suggested and at this time a satisfactory solution to the problem appears to be mighty dubious.

West End residents are certainly at a disadvantage when they desire to reach a point between Clinton and Grant avenues on the north side of the railroad from the center of these two avenues on the south side. A long, round-about jaunt is made necessary by the absence of a suitable crossing. An overhead bridge or even a pedestrians' subway would call for a right-of-way through some property owner's premises on the north side of the railroad if such an improvement was attempted and the persons demanding the convenience would in all probability be the last to consent to having their land cut up for this purpose. However, if the exact location of such a bridge or tunnel can be determined and if the property owner affected will volunteer his aid it is likely that the Central Railroad officials will assist in supplying the feature.

SAME RECOMMENDATIONS ARE STILL BEFORE US.

Recommendations made by President Harold D. Corbusier and Secretary Charles B. Lufburrow on behalf of the local Board of Health for the coming year savor to some extent of the calibre offered in the past for betterment of sanitary conditions locally. In them we find suggestion for a revival of activity in some directions and a hint of something to be added to present burdens along other lines. Taken as they are put forth by the Health Board the five findings offer a working basis for investigation by the new City Advisory and Research Commission but they will first have to be brought to the attention of the Common Council once again in order that authorization be given the commission.

The recommendations follow:

1. That the Common Council consider again the proposition of the collection and disposal of garbage and refuse.
2. That Green brook be thoroughly cleaned each summer when the water is low.
3. That at least one public comfort station be established at a convenient location in the city.
4. That refuse cans be placed at suitable places on the sidewalks in the main parts of town, as this will assist greatly in maintaining the cleanliness of the streets.
5. It is also desired that storekeepers be prohibited from sweeping the refuse from their stores onto the sidewalks and that the sidewalks be cleand by collecting the refuse therefrom instead of sweeping it into the streett.

It is generally conceded that Green brook should be kept free from refuse; we should have a municipal system of garbage and ashes collection; a public comfort station would be a convenience; refuse cans are essential to clean thoroughfares, especially in the business section; and storekeepers should be prohibited from using the sidewalks as dirt and filth depositories. But how long have we been harping on some of these issues; how long is it going to take to solve the ones that are rust-covered from lying in vault of public discussion; and what activity is the Board of Health going to show in aiding the city to accomplish the improvements?

FUTURE OF THE GUARD AND PLAINFIELD'S ARMORY.

Just what caused the delay in taking definite steps towards the erection of the new National Guard armory in Plainfield is difficult to explain. Although the appropriation of State money was due November first it is apparent that some hitch has occurred to delay the actual construction of a "drill shed." This might be traced back to the existing feeling over the status of the National Guard; just what the future holds forth for it is very uncertain. Governor Fielder in his budget message to the Legislature declared he considered it unwise to provide for new armories or to enlarge old ones until the future of the Guard is definitely determined. This is all well and good as far as it goes but how about the several armories that have been authorized, including Plainfield's?

The average taxpayer is not aware of the vast amount of money it has cost the State to maintain the National Guard during the past twenty-four years but it would be well for the Legislature to direct the Economy and Efficiency Commission to compile statistics along this line before further development under the present unsettled conditions is attempted. The Guard's reputation has been knocked sky-high during the past three months and even the champion of this brand of service will admit that the future is none too bright and that serious consideration should be given the granting of contracts for armories not already underway. Plainfielders would like to see a modern armory erected in this city, they have wanted one for years, but the broadminded taxpayer will admit that the armory business in New Jersey resembles all too strongly the river and harbor "pork" bills in Congress.

GASOLINE STANDARD GROWING NECESSITY.

When the Bureau of Mines of the Department of the Interior at Washington requests the State of New Jersey for information on existing or proposed legislation relating to gasoline, kerosene or other petroleum products this State will face the cold fact that it has no such legislation. The national bureau is preparing standard specifications and one of the first things for the new administration to bring up is the establishment of an adequate system. There has been no legislation of the kind in New Jersey since 1882, an act in that year having been passed to regulate the sale of petroleum and one section of it contains standards for petroleum. That was before the development of the gasoline engine and the general use of gasoline for motorboat and automobile propulsion and other uses that have come to the front in commercial activities during the past two decades.

There are no municipal ordinances defining the standard of gasoline in any part of the State. Samples tested in Newark for specific gravity showed a wide variance, no two giving the same results. The Federal authorities indicate by their action that they have the standardizing thought under consideration and such a standard should be brought about in the interest of the trade and the gasoline purchasing public.

JUST WHAT THE DIRECT TAX WILL MEAN TO YOU.

Few people have any idea what the proposed Edge bill for a direct State tax to pay for the construction of the State highway system means. The plan is to raise $15,000,000 in annual installments of $3,000,000 for five years, the money to come from a direct tax of one-tenth of one per cent. on all ratables in the State. Although the taxpayers of the State have demanded an improved and adequate State highway system the measure proposed by Governor Edge to defray the cost is at variance with the ideas of those responsible for the move.

Just what does this direct tax mean to Union county? What does it mean to the individual taxpayer of the county?

The annual report of the State Board of Taxes and Assessments shows that the ratables of Union county in 1916 totaled $177,449,251. A direct tax of one-tenth of one per cent. upon this means that Union county property owners would be forced to pay at least $177,449 annually into the Edge road fund, and increased valuations, which may be expected annually, would bring the amount to a higher figure.

To the individual taxpayer it means that on every $1,000 in ratables he would pay $1 annually for five years. The man who owns a piece of property worth $5,000 will pay $25. The amount will jump to $50 on the $10,000 piece of property, and large propertyholders—corporations and concerns engaged in the development of real estate—will find a very noticeable addition to their tax bills.

INVESTIGATIONS! WHAT DO THEY ACCOMPLISH?

Investigations are the style in politics now. From Congress down to Freeholder Boards, they're all doing it. Commissioners are renting roll top desks, hiring stenographers, summoning witnesses, seeing the country and smoking choice cigars (often at taxpayer's expense). Cost of loving is the favorite subject now, but the labor question, decline of country life, taxation and many local problems are continually being raked over.

Often the only result is publication of a ponderous black covered report that gathers dust in libraries and store rooms. Legislators distribute copies to friends who are pleased to be thus recognized. The reports contain much useful information but there is often such a mass of statistics and conflicting opinion as to leave the subject in a worse fog than before.

Ordering an investigation is a favorite political device. It keeps the public quiet, gives the impression that something is being done and holds down the lid.

The idea of investigation is good. A business corporation gives to any new problem the most intensive study and exhaustive tests. But it does not place such investigations in the hands of "lame ducks!" out of a job.

Frequently the reports of these commissions are well arranged, with practical commendations. But politicians, whose chief interest is distributing plums and pork feel helpless in the presence of big human problems requiring constructive ability. If public interest has died down, the report is apt to be pigeon holed. If the people would elect their servants on a basis of business rather than politics, there would be more investigations that really investigate and fewer reports that merely create paper stock for the junk man.

DOES OUR PRISON "MAKE" OR CURE CRIMINALS?

Investigators have brought to the attention of New Jersey's taxpayers the deplorable conditions prevailing in the State's Prison at Trenton; the institution has been stamped as mediaeval, unhealthy, monstrous and overcrowded. By comparison Sing Sing is admitted to be a cozy corner. The Jersey prison is antiquated in structure, degrading in influence and inefficiently managed. State Prison Inspector Walter M. Dear, of Jersey City, has denied the investigator's charges that men and women have been confined in the same cell but admits that a "few of the criticisms are true." He has promised to run down the causes for existing conditions; it is his business to do so and the State's machinery should be at his disposal in a crusade to better matters.

It is a fact that two, three and even four men are confined together in the same cell, in violation of the law.

It is a fact that dungeons exist and that men are incarcerated therein and given only bread and water twice a day.

It is a fact that men have been chained to the walls of underground dungeons.

It is a fact that every day a man serves in a dungeon is added to his minimum sentence.

It is a fact that women convicts are confined with men, and that cell 55, wing 4, is kept apart for that purpose.

It is a fact that women prisoners eat, sleep and live in their cells and work on sewing machines in the corridor outside their cells.

It is a fact that there is no dining hall and that men are fed in their cells or in the corridor.

It is a fact that the men have only half an hour's recreation a week and that the recreation yard for fourteen women convicts is larger than the recreation yard for 1,200 men.

It is a fact that in the newest wing seventy cells are so damp that they cannot be used, and that on occasions the corridor is so wet that the keepers have to wear rubbers.

It is a fact that consumptives circulate with the well, exposing them to contagion.

It is a fact that the first offender is thrown in with the habitual criminal.

It is a fact that men are punished by being put face to the wall and that sometimes they are kept there all day without food.

It is a fact that a commodious bath-house, with hot and cold water supply, is used only two months in the year.

It is a fact that for ten months in the year the convicts are given only a bucket of water once a week in which to bathe, that after bathing they must wash their clothes in this water and then wash out their cells.

It is a fact that the hospital is too small and its equipment inadequate.

It is a fact that the management of the prison is vested in a board of inspectors who meet only once a month, and whose members are from scattered parts of the State.

It is a fact that the board of inspectors of six members appointed six committees, a chairmanship for each member, creating so much more interference.

It is a fact that some of the shops where convicts are employed by private contractors are ill-ventilated and dark.

It is a fact that more than 100 men are employed on a contract in violation of the law.

It is a fact that much space is given over to these private contractors for use as store rooms.

It is a fact that the board of inspectors turns the convicts over for work on the public roads at the rate of $1.25 a day, which is paid by the taxpayers, but that the board turns the convicts over to private contractors at thirty-five cents a day.

It is a fact that goods made in the prison for private contractors are not marked "Manufactured in New Jersey State Prison," and that this is a violation of the law.

It is a fact that the powers of the principal keeper (warden) are little more than those of janitor.

"VILLA OR BUST;" AMERICA HAS "BUSTED."

As Funston quit Vera Cruz so will Pershing evacuate Mexico—empty handed and chagrined. The former failed to gain reparation for the insult offered to our sovereignty at Tampico and the latter failed to get the bandit Villa. Both missions proved a sameless waste of time, energy and money and the administration has had its hand "called" in both instances.

"Villa or Bust" was Uncle Sam's slogan when he dispatched a collection of his best to the barren hills of Greaserland and it is now all too apparent which end of the phrase has been carried out. A casual survey indicates that the expedition has profited the United States nothing—not even to gain the recognition of the Carranza government on the legitimacy of the intrusion into Mexican territory. The country has waited for ten months for Pershing to bring Villa back—alive or dead—now the American-Mexican Joint Commission is to be dissolved and the general leader will be recalled.

We have gained nothing but the memories of Parral and Carrizal are still keen in the minds of the American and under the present policy it would be well to take no more chances with the suspicious, headstrong, astute and resourceful Carranza. Get out of Mexico and stay out and keep closed eyes on the anarchy prevailing across the international line. Many weary months have been spent in an attempt to induce Carranza to give some sort of an ex post facto approval to the American invasion but the minutes of the Washington sessions will show that we have accomplished naught.

THE WEEK'S REVUE

Sliding One Across at Bill's Expense.

During a slow afternoon this week "Bobby" Crane quit "mayoring" in the east and long enough to put this one across on "Bill" Nash.

Bobby—"Say, Bill, did you hear about the Board of Health putting the Public Library under quarantine?"

Bill—"No, is that a fact? I live out that way you know and have occasion to go home once in a while."

It was worth $5 express charges for a Texan to send $96 in pennies to his wife as alimony payment. He evidentally recalls her need for pin money.

"Spreadeagleing" might be a good stunt to practise on Villa when he is landed. As a National Guard medicine it was a failure.

There ought to be an Osborne around here willing to serve a trial term in our State Prison.

At any rate we'll all admit that Rae Tanzer prefers "Jim" Osborne to "Charlie" Wax.

Now we'd all like to know why they insist on riding New Jersey governors to the inauguration scene in a funeral coach?

If it is proven that any Congressman reaped an advantage from the alleged "leak" there will be plenty of Congressional timber in sight when the next election rolls around.

Since the new quarters and half dollars appeared in Plainfield they seem to have gathered considerable disfavor. But we haven't heard of anybody turning one down to date.

There are some people who are looking forward to National Pay Up Week as a chance to gain further cheerful credit.

Four more States have adopted "How Dry I Am" as their national song.

The reported burning of another American alive by Villa should arouse keen indignation for our country has taken a firm stand that no Americans should be exterminated save by shooting or hanging across the border.

We have frequently run across the kind of people who forbid reporters to put their names in the paper but who are lined up at the newsstand waiting for the first copies to see what has been said about them.

Washington legislators are waxing enthusiastic over agricultural development. Probably trying to make two plums grow where one grew before.

* * * * *

Evidence that Plainfield still has some available talent lurking beneath the plum tree was plainly seen at Trenton Tuesday. For a city "that doesn't amount to much in Union county" (according to Elizabetheans) we were fairly conspicuous at the inaugural ceremonies.

Chickenpox led the list of communicable diseases throughout the State during September. Considering the fact that we haven't a Broadway in Jersey this report is rather unique.

Peculiar, isn't it, how conveniently Harry Thaw's insanity comes to the rescue every time he is threatened with removal back to New York State in the law's custody?

* * * * *

A full day off each week, two afternoons and the use of the family car and chauffeur were three of the demands made by a Patersonian girl aspiring to the position of maid. We also suspect she probably wanted banker's money and a personal attendant when she went out seven nights a week.

* * * * *

The young man who claimed he had "pull" enough to get out of jail even if the city court did send him to Elizabeth for violations of the State automobile law may have a chance to prove his boast after all.

It is little wonder that the jury considering the Horse vs. Taxi case in the District Court yesterday could not agree on a verdict. It was a case of a Ford automobile and a Packard horse, if we are to judge by the amount of damages asked, and anyway the value of old Dobbin is an unknown quantity these days.

* * * * *

It is little wonder that Plainfield merchants are continually shouting the "Shop at Home" slogan when we take into consideration the fact that even the younger generation goes elsewhere for what it wants. For a referee to officiate over a Plainfield-North Plainfield interscholastic basketball match the schoolboys have imported a product from West Orange.

The Scoutmasters' Association has planned a very attractive week for the aniniversary of the Scout movement. On Thursday evening, February 8, each troop will conduct a "father and son" supper, at which time an annual report of the troop's activities will be a part of the program; the reading of a message from the president of the National Council B. Conference for Scout Officials.

The new Department of Education which has recently been established at National Headquarters announces a series of conferences to be held at Columbia University on February 2 and 3. The program will include not only lectures and discussions but practical demonstrations. It has been arranged that the lectures, conferences, demonstration and practice work will meet the specific needs of scoutmasters, members of local councils and troop committees, executive officers, commissioners and deputy commissioners.

The following are typical subjects to be discussed: Essentials in the successful leadership of boys (positive characteristics, personal habits, attitude toward boys and toward the scout program). The technical side of the scout program, troop management, different types of scouts, problems of discipline, etc.

It is desired that all scout officials any places in the country feel free to take advantage of this conference and it is hoped to have a goodly showing from Plainfield.

PASTORS FAVOR ADVERTISING.

Religious advertising in general and newspaper advertising in particular were recommended to the Pastors' Association of Dallas, Texas, by the publicity committee of the association. A lengthy discussion followed the reading of the report.

The committee declared that full investigation had disclosed that newspaper advertising was the best form of publicity for the pastors of Dallas, and recommended liberal use of newspaper space and printers' ink. The advertising should be placed in the newspapers on Saturdays, the committee said, in order to stimulate church attendance on Sundays.

The Dallas Advertising League at its meeting appointed a committee to co-operate with and assist the pastors in the preparation of copy for the church advertising.—Editor and Publisher.

Saurer Employes Rehearse For Show

The employes of the Saurer shop in this city are rehearsing for a minstrel show to be given for the benefit of the shop band at a date to be announced later. The proceeds of this affair will be used in the purchase of new instruments. It is planned to secure the Plainfield High School auditorium for the presentation.

The band at the present time is composed of sixty members and creates a good impression at its first public appearance in Knights of Pythias Hall last month. James Hallard is manager of the minstrel show and would like to hear from anyone who desires to take part in the production. Mr. Hallard can be addressed at his home, 1430 West Third street.

St. Stephen's church, in the East End of the city, will have a week's revival next month when Rev. J. Attwood Stansfield, of New York, will conduct a series of daily services from February 4 to February 11. There will be at least two and possibly three services daily. An early celebration of Holy Communion will be the first service each day and will start at 6:30. It will be for business men and others who are not at leisure during the day. There will be a second celebration of Holy Communion at 10:30, at which time there will be a series of instructions of the Sacrament of the Altar. A preaching service will be held each night at 8 o'clock with Dr. Stansfield in charge. A question box will also be a feature.

Dr. Stansfield has done nothing for a number of years but conduct special revival services and his work has met with success wherever he has gone. He recently conducted one at Jamestown, N. Y., where he preached to large congregations and at the conclusion of his mission had seventy persons ask for confirmation.

ARE YOU EFFICIENT?

Try These Tests, but Do Not Yield to Despair if You Fail.

Are you efficient? The awful query refuses to down. Turn to the clock it, the fast wheels in the sky, it thump it, the ungreased cranks of the elevated screech it. If you are an old business fogy the question burns in the eye of every paying employee. You find your wife measuring the distance from the range to the kitchen cabinet and your son computing the power necessary to propel a football in the lowest arc. The telephone company advises you to give your name instead of saying "Hello." "

Blessed be the concrete of thought if not of deed. Concreteness enables you to see just what the efficiency masters mean. One of them, William Fretz Kemble, hello in Industrial Management "How to Test Your Employees." Of course every man who reads it will first test his most important employee, his father's son. Watch and pad and pencil are all that are needed to acquaint yourself with your virtues and faults. In thirty seconds answer as many of these questions as you can:

Give the name of a vegetable, a metal, an insect, a reptile, a fish, a man, a woman, an ocean, a lake, a town.

If at the end of the half minute you have written only "beet, gold, flea, adder," you are pretty poor. If you have also put down "trout, Edison, Addams, Atlantic," you are up to human average of eight answers. If you feel that you can go beyond ten answers you may describe the color of water, tea, beer, ivory, the sky, grass, milk, chalk, coal and skin. But men who go beyond fifteen answers in Industrial Management "How to Test Your Employees." Of course every man who reads it will first test his most important employee, his father's son. Watch and pad and pencil are all that are needed to acquaint yourself with your virtues and faults. In thirty seconds answer as many of these questions as you can:

But men who go beyond fifteen answers in Industrial Management are rare. They should have secretaries, limousines and big black cigars.

Next try to answer five "difficult questions" in twenty seconds:

First.—Who is the greatest living general?

Quick, now, and pick a short name that doesn't take a long time to write.

Second.—What is the most powerful force in the world?

Perhaps love isn't, but it's a shorter word than militarism.

Third.—What is the greatest modern discovery?

Quick, man! Radium will do.

Our secretary of commerce probably would not answer that in less than 11,840 words. You perhaps will write "ships" or "railroads" and pass on to the last:

Fifth.—What is the cheapest food for the human race?

Bread, unless you are a fiend for lentils or employed by the makers of fluted oat corn. But you ought to answer three of the questions in twenty seconds, says Mr. Kemble. If you answer fewer it indicates "slowness or deliberation in thought."—New York Sun.

The "Lady Reporter" in Japan.

One of the newest stunts of the Japanese newspaper is to employ the "lady journalist," which is considered a remarkable innovation in a country where women is emerging more and more from the seclusion of her home.

"Is the lady reporter's work satisfactory?" I asked the editor.

"Yes, in a way, but she is not satisfied with writing personals. I find that she wants to crowd in fine pieces for woman's rights and equal suffrage. We have to go pretty carefully on that sort of thing in Japan, you understand, and keep a pretty close watch on what she writes, because it is likely to have a meaning that men do not wholly understand."—Archie Bell in World Outlook.

Bench and Bar.

Sir Edward Carson is noted for his ready Irish wit. On one occasion in court, when the judge, with whom he had had more than one passage of arms, pointed out to him the discrepancy between the evidence of two of his witnesses, one a carpenter and the other a saloon keeper, he answered, "That's so, my lord, yet another case of difference between bench and bar."—London Standard.

TITLES IN RUSSIA.

Where There Are Only Two Classes, Nobles and Peasants.

Contrary to the laws existing in England and Sweden, in Russia when a lady belonging to a titled family marries a Russian gentleman without a title she takes her husband's name entirely, and the only right left to her of her former title is to write on her visiting cards and official papers "Mrs. So-and-so, born Princess, Countess or Baroness So-and-so." Her children are called by their father's name. There are only a few exceptions to this rule.

In Russia no middle class or gentry are known. There are only nobles and peasants. The czar, however, grants sometimes for special merit the right to be styled a nobleman and also for the same reason the titles of count and baron and occasionally that of prince.

All those merchants who have kept their firms always flourishing for a hundred years have the right to receive the foreign title of baron. This law was made by Peter the Great over 200 years ago, but the merchants very seldom accept this title and generally decline the privilege.

In former days when the peasants were still slaves they had no family names, but were called by their father's Christian name. Peter's son was called son of Peter—in Russian Petrov; so also Smirnov—Simon's son; Ivanov—Ivan's (John) son, and so on. When slavery was abolished and the emancipation proclaimed by the Emperor Alexander II they all kept these names. Since then many of them have received the right to belong to the class of nobles.

The Russian clergy, belonging to the class of peasants, for it very seldom happens that nobles become priests, have special family names. Their names mean always a feast day or a precious stone or something connected with a church. In former days the clergy was a class apart, and a son of a clergyman was bound to be a clergyman, and when they first entered the church they chose a name for themselves.—London Answers.

ROCK OF GIBRALTAR.

The "Key of the Mediterranean" Has Had a Stormy History.

England has been in possession of the rocky promontory of Gibraltar since 1704. From that time to this it has been a crown colony under the administration of a governor. By reason of its important strategical position it is called the "key of the Mediterranean."

Gibraltar has had a stormy history. In 711 the rock was taken by the Arab chief Tarik, who called it Jebel-al-Tarik (Hill of Tarik) and built a fortress on the promontory. Part of these ruins is still extant. In 1309 it was taken by the Castilians, only to be recaptured by the Moors in 1333. It was held by them until 1462. Following the taking and sacking of Gibraltar in 1540 by Barbarossa, extensive military works were built there by order of Charles V.

In 1704 the promontory was captured by a combined force under Sir George Rooke and the Prince of Hesse-Darmstadt, fighting for the Archduke Charles of Austria. The moment it fell into their hands the British admiral threw off the alliance with the Austrians and took complete possession of the works.

British possession since that time has been unbroken, although it was under a Spanish siege for nearly three years and eight months, beginning in 1779 and ending in 1783. Gibraltar is on the point of falling because of the starvation of its defenders.

"Line and Staff Officers."

Broadly speaking, the distinction between a line officer and a staff officer is that between the fighter and the nonfighter. The staff officer has nonmilitary duties. He may, for example, be a member of the medical corps, an instructor at a military institute or have charge of some administrative department of the army or navy. The word is also used for those men attached to the staff of the commander in chief. A line officer is literally that: he is the man in the field or on a battleship to do the actual fighting.—New York Sun.

CHURCH BELLS VS. GOLF AND AUTOS; CLERGYMEN ENLIST NEWSPAPER ADS TO HELP DEFEAT LATTER INFLUENCE

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner, D. D., pastor of the Grace M. E. church, in New York, writes interestingly in "Advertising News:"

It is right to have ambition. It is foolish to lose purpose to succeed is the church or the ministry. It is just as essential as it is in politics or business. Dr. Weigle, of Philadelphia, built his audience from seventy to 600 in a few weeks by publicity.

What is church publicity?

The church that does not see lives transformed is a club and not a church. Advertising must get people into the church who are not yet open disciples, and then have enough gospel power to work transformation in their lives.

When the writer came to New York seven years ago, Grace church was in the middle of a block literally and figuratively. Nobody knew where it was, or that it was doing business. Mayor Gaynor was asked to speak at a church banquet. He consented, and agreed to bring all the commissioners. Eight were requested, and came. They included the police, the fire, the street cleaning and health heads. It was so notable that next day the daily papers had an average of a column and a half to two columns concerning the meeting. And so people began to find Grace church.

In Seattle a group of laymen agreed to co-operate with their pastor in a church union service. The Presbyterian church, with Dr. Mc-Laughlin, moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly, as pastor; the Methodists, with Dr. Leonard, now a bishop, and the Congregational church were working together. These laymen shot off bombs every afternoon on the different corners of the street. At night they burned red fires on the same corners. They then had a band and marched through the streets carrying red fire.

The band stopped on the corner and played, while they minaled with the crowd and urged people to come to church. They were business men, and went to the newspapers and insisted that this meeting be given the right of way on the front pages of the dailies. Three thousand people signed cards by the time the meetings were over.

The Rev. Henry Rompel, a young minister, in Illinois, started a three weeks' revival meeting. The planned wide publicity, though the meetings were to be held in a small town. He awakened the whole community, and instead of only three weeks he ran nine weeks, with the auditorium packed regularly and scores joined the church.

Advertising can enforce thinking if it is valuable with trifling things how much more potent with great! Full England did not use chewing gum. Wrigley wanted to get them into the habit. He has been carrying on a series of advertisements, some thing like this: One picture shows a father bringing Wrigley's chewing gum to the son. He says, "This, my dear, is a piece of sweets which you can chew a long while and it will not lose its sweetness." The child had been accustomed only to candy and was interested at once. The child asked: "Can I swallow it?" The father answered, "It is not meant for you to swallow, but it won't hurt you because it is made out of the finest juice." One can tell by the smells like peppermint." "Yes," the father answers, "it has peppermint in it, and that is why it is splendid for your teeth and indigestion."

Religious testimonials are valuable. A. W. Shaw, who founded the magazine called "System," was honored in an unusual method on his 25th anniversary. Many of the men who started with him graduated out into better positions. They gathered in a group, wrote testimonials of their indebtedness to him, and gathered testimonials from noted businessmen concerning the helpfulness of Shaw and his work. The bought a whole page and printed these testimonials.

B. C. Brown, in Chicago, paid $100 for a space in "The Tribune" and printed there only a passage of Scripture. Later he met two businessmen who said they had decided to join church as a result of reading the advertisement.

Church publicity gets results.

Bonner went into the "New York Herald" office one day with the words "Read Mrs. S.'s new story in the 'Ledger.'" He left it, and came away. Some hours afterwards he found the newspaper and reading it rushed wildly to the "Herald" office and told them to stop it. They told him it was too late. He carried his advertisement in with the suggestion that they put it in one line. They thought he said one page. He said: "I can't pay for the page." They said, "It is too late to stop it." As a result the "New York Ledger" ran through three issues, and he kept it up.

Nashville, Tenn., spent $100,000 in 16 months and as a result secured 56 factories and 152 conventions.

Des Moines through two years of publicity secured 10 factories and 1,400 new houses were built.

Newark has one of the most widely used libraries in the country. Over 1,000 questions are answered daily; 1,000,000 books are taken out every year—that is 5 each minute. This comes about because the librarian at Newark uses publicity constantly, and pushes the library before the eyes of the people.

Toronto, Canada, started out to raise a fund to help the families of young men who had enlisted as soldiers. The undertook to get $500,000. They employed billboards and every kind of publicity possible. When they ended, it was found that they had $880,000 instead of $500,000.

The Belgian Relief Fund was not bothering its money rapidly. The committee decided to get space in the newspapers for publicity. Immediately $162,000 came as the result of publicity work.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Society, in 1912, received $19,000,000. They spent out of this $2,250,000 for publicity and as a result increased the income 29 per cent. The story of Tubercular Little Joe, with his picture, strapped to a board, told in public print, through advertising space, brought thousands of dollars into the Charity Society of New York.

Jacob A. Riis ran his summer home for needy children by public appeals in the same way.

Ten years ago a bank was counted wild-cat that would employ advertising. Today no bank can succeed without it.

An advertising expert remtads us that in the old days the bell and the steeple did the church advertising. Now both of the auto are so much more claimant than the bell that the church bells are forgotten. Itis the business of the church to enforce upon its quota of men that golf and the automobile will not alone test fit them for Monday's work. No man can have sanest judgment, calmest nerves, most patient persistency without the freshening and strength which religion brings. It is no accident that preachers' sons with a strong religious atmosphere about them, succeed sixteen times more than the sons of men of any other profession.

Often a pertinent phrase wakes people up. In an attempt to sell the goods manufactured by the blind, the following line was used: "It is not the blindness that hurts, but the idleness of the blind." Naturally it immediately awakened one to see the peculiar misery and help alleviate it. We must help people see that it is not sin, as the breaking of an arbitrary law, but avoid it because of the misery it causes. Picturing that, people will get away from the danger of it themselves and help pull others out of it.

Church advertising is sensible. George A. Jackson, a widely known theological teacher, says "Christ's miracles were only the bell tolled to bring the people to hear His words." He preached in a boat. He drove people out of the temple with a whip, and then they came to listen. Paul spoke from the prisoner's seat to the judge until he was convinced. He went about the streets of Rome chained to a soldier, and that was sure to attract a hearing.

Wesley stood on his father's tombstone in order to get a hearing for the gospel when he was turned out of other places. He rented a foundry and used it as a church, which was a shocking thing to do. He took illiterate men and turned them into preachers.

In Brooklyn two men were preaching, one had an empty church, the other had a great crowd. The great crowd was preached to by Pastor Russell, who knew how to do publicity and so he had the crowd.

Annette Kellerman Will Show at Proctor's House

For the week starting Monday, January 22, the management of Proctor's local photoplay theatre has booked a program of wonderful photoplay features, starring some of the greatest and most popular stars in the business. On Monday, Vitagraph presents a marvelous and realistic picturization of the famous stage success "The Ninety and Nine." Mrs. Vernon Castle appears in the second chapter of the serial "Patria," and a laugh-compelling Keystone comedy completes the program.

On Tuesday and Wednesday special arrangements have been made to offer the famous aquatic star, Annette Kellerman, who is to presently star at the famous New York Hippodrome, in one of the greatest spectacular productions ever offered on the screen, "Neptune's Daughter."

Added features on Tuesday include a Keystone comedy and the latest Pathe weekly, while on Wednesday in addition to the headline feature, the 15the episode of the "Crimson Stain Mystery" and the latest Pathe weekly will be shown.

On Thursday, Clara Williams appears in Triangle's "Three of Many."

On Friday, beloved Mary Pickford will appear in one of her greatest successes, "Hulda from Holland," and Wilfred Lucas will contribute his share of the entertainment by appearing in "The Microscope Mystery."

Saturday's program consists of Cleo Ridgeley nad Wallace Reid in "The House of the Golden Windows," and Lionel Barrymore in Metro's "The Brand of Cowardice."

ANNETTE KELLERMAN COMING TO THE HIPP.

Charles Dillingham authorized the announcement yesterday that Annette Kellermann, the renowned diving Venus, will appear in person at the Hippodrome beginning Monday, January 22, filling the time now allotted on the program of "The Big Show" to Anna Pavlowa and the ballet. Miss Pavlowa, as already stated, closes her limited engagement of twenty weeks on Saturday preceding that date.

It was demonstrated yesterday after several weeks of experiment that the engineering problems had been solved and that the great Hippodrome can present a water spectacle, in addition to the musical comedy and circus features, minstrels and other pageantry and still keep entirely intact the huge ice pond for "The Merry Doll," which, owing to the continued skating interest, he wished to retain. To do this it has been found necessary to construct a third stage floor and the Hippodrome will be the only theatre ever designed with three stages. The lower one will support the ice tank, the Record that the plan he intended for a massive aquatic spectacle and which entailed the building of enormous tanks above the stage level, was entirely practicable.

Monster Spectacle On Hippodrome's Big Stage.

Although many rumors have been circulated and printed concerning the engagement of the famous swimming beauty at the big playhouse, Mr. Dillingham withheld the public announcement until he was convinced that the plan he intended for a massive aquatic spectacle and which entailed the building of enormous tanks above the stage level, was entirely practicable.

"SHOW OF WONDERS."

The "Show of Wonders" at the Winter Garden, which has passed its one hundredth performance, promises to eclipse all its predecessors in popularity. That the theatre-going public has found greater joy in this, the twentieth Winter Garen extravaganza, is but another proof that the devices of these unique entertainments are masters in the art of spectacular extravaganza. The bloom does not rub off the peach at the Winter Garden. In the whole world there is no other institution of its kind. Attempts have been made to plagiarize its plan of entertainment; but these, in the main, have been but dismal imitations. Night after night there gathers at the Winter Garden theatre parties made up of entertainment seekers from all walks of life. Here one is sure to find a delectable evening bursting with comedy, music and girls. The large cast includes George W. Monroe, McIntyre and Heath, Howard and Howard, Walter C. Kelly, Tom Lewis, Marilyn Miller, Dalsie Irving, John T. Murray, Grace Fisher, Alexis Kosloff, White & Clayton, Sidney Phillips, Dan Quinlan, Edmund Mulcahy, Eleanor Brown, James Grant, Ernest Hare Virginia Smith and others. Matinees occur on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Every Sunday night there is a concert made up of all the leading entertainers of New York.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

Capacity houses continue to be the rule at the Astor Theatre where the military operetta, "Her Soldier Boy," is the attraction. With a brilliant cast headed by Clifton Crawford John Charles Thomas, Adele Rowland and Beth Lydy, with charming music and a book genuinely humorous, this operetta, now in its sixth week, has already been recorded as one of the most popular offerings ever presented on Broadway.

In the company, in addition to the above-named quartet of stars, are Cyril Chadwick Ellis Gergely, Mildred Richardson, Harold Vizard, George A. Schiller, Frank Ridge, Ward De Wolfe and Ethel Brandon. There is a chorus of sixty. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

for the production proper, and the new floor for the aqueous spectacle, including Miss Kellermann, will be a portable construction placed over the other two, to be set in place and removed by hydraulic devices. Few details of this new athletic-water novelty for the Hippodrome are being announced, but it is stated that Miss Kellermann will swim and dive, and as it has been several years since she has been seen in the flesh, doing the remarkable things which have made the motion pictures—of which "The Daughter of the Gods," now running, is a splendid example—of unusual interest, that statement alone promises to attract widespread attention. The new spectacle is being staged by R. H. Burnside and the musical setting is by Raymond Hubbell.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS."

"No German student ever was proudey of his dueling scars than those girls are if they get scraped on the rocks," said one of the directors of William Fox's $1,000,000 picture beautiful, "A Daughter of the Gods." He referred to the score or more of beautiful amphibians, who, as mermaids and water nymphs, act as a foil to the marvelous aquatic accomplishments of Annette Kellermann, the star of the fairy photoplay. These girls, selected from the best swimmers and divers to be found in the United States, were frequently in actual danger of losing their lives in the lashings they got from the tides of the Caribbean. Instead of deterring them from taking chances, the scars they received from being dashed about on the rocks came to be cherished badges of courage and the girl who came back to New York without such evidences of her prowess was commiserated by her more fortunate sisters.

"THE WANDERER."

Next Tuesday evening, January 23, at the Manhattan Opera House, West 34th street, Messrs. William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will produce, for the first time in America, "The Wanderer," a new Biblical play by Maurice V. Samuels, founded upon "Der Verlorener Sohn," by Wilhelm Schmittbonn, which was produced in Europe by Prof. Max Reinhardt. The scenes are laid in the Holy Land and in Jerusalem three thousand years ago and in general "The Wanderer" follows the parable of the prodigal son as narrated in the gospel of St. Luke, chapter fifteen. The play has been staged by Ben Teal, with dances arranged by A. Kosloff, and the incidental music is by Anselm Goetzel. The scenery and costumes are from original designs by Stern, the artist for all of the Reinhardt productions, and whose last work seen in America was the production of "Sumurun."

Theatre Bill "Riot of Fun"

Manager Shannon, in securing a bill for the latter half of the week at the Plainfield Theatre, obtained a variety of numbers that include a little of everything on the vaudeville stage. The headliner is Mlle. Peylanis with her cockadoos, a number the like of which has seldom appeared at a local playhouse.

Other numbers on the bill include "Australian Stan Stanley," who is a riot of fun with his nonsensical antics and witty stories. One of the hits of the program is a skit in song entitled "The Wise Guy" and Wild & Leckler are the principals in a clever and original musical comedy duo. The last number on the bill is "The Kentucky Four," a corps of blackface funsters. The seventh episode of "Pearl of the Army," featuring Miss Pearl White, will be the moving picture attraction at the theatre today. There will also be Pathe's Weekly and several Universal comedies.

The usual Monday extravaganza will be eliminated next week and in its place Manager Shannon has secured an excellent vaudeville bill supplemented with moving pictures.

STRAND THEATRE.

At the Strand Theatre Marie Doro will be seen in "Lost and Won," a gripping drama of newspaper life written especially for her by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf and prepared for the screen by Margaret Turnbull. The story has to do with "Cinders," a little newsgirl who on a bet is made the ward of a wealthy stockholder, he wagering that he can transform the newsgirl into a society belle within a year. The girls becomes a reporter on the paper which she formerly sold. When her benefactor is about to win the wager, he loses his money and is arrested for theft, and the former newsgirl and reporter, by her cleverness, discovers the identity of the real thief and frees the man whom she loves, and who has learned to love her. Not only is Miss Doro seen as a newsgirl on the streets, in a ragged suit and dilapidated hat, but after her rise in society she is given an opportunity to wear some beautiful gowns. The Famous Players Film Company, producers, have given Miss Doro an excellent supporting cast, including Elliott Dexter, May Kelso, Carl Stockdale, C. H. Geldert, Sydney Dean and Robert Gray.

Other films of interest to be shown are "King of the Rail," a new comedy entitled "The End of a Perfect Day" and the Strand Topical Review, including interesting news pictures from this country and abroad.

On the musical program is Knud Dahlgaard, a Danish violin virtuoso who will make his American debut. Mr. Dahlgaard will execute one of the most difficult musical feats, that of playing Paganini's Variations on one string. For his second number he will play Ole Bull's "Saterjenten's Sondag," a Scandinavian composition of much charm and beauty. Grace Hoffman, the talented coloratura soprano, and Enrico Arenson, the Russian tenor, will also be heard. The concert orchestra, under the direction of Carl Edouarde, will render an operatic overture and play incidental music to the subjects shown on the screen.

"LOVE O' MIKE."

Miss Elisabeth Marbury and Lee Shubert presented for the first time in New York at the Shubert Theatre, Monday evening, a new musical comedy in a prologue and three acts, entitled "Love O' Mike." Miss Marbury has rapidly gained a distinctive place in the theatrical world as a producter of smart and dainty musical plays in which an atmosphere of fashionable modernity is conveyed. It was she who presented "Nobody Home" and "Very Good Eddie," both of which musical comedies were enormously successful in New York and other cities.

"Love O' Mike"—a comedy of youth and infectious gaiety—is the work of Thomas Sydney, with lyrics by *Harry B. Smith and music by Je*rome Kern. It gains its title from the presence at a house party at a fashionable country place of Lord Michael Kildare, a British ex-army officer, who is in this country buying munitions, and wit hwhom all the young ladies of the party are madly infatuated, to the disgust and discomfiture of the male members of the group. The latter seek in various ways to rehabilitate themselves in the eyes of the maidens, the while they plan revenge in the unmaskine of the swaggering Michael. How well their efforts succeed and how they change their minds about the Britisher when they learn he has done his bit in the trenches and received the Victoria Cross for bravery are the mainsprings of the action.

Submarines threaten to become as familiar to New York audiences as Zeppelins are to London theatregoers. The undersea boat adds local color to a scene between a mermaid and a diver in the Century Theatre's entertainment, "The Century Girl." Corals and lobsters, a few anemoeas and a lobster or two lend atmosphere. The latter are contributed by the Dillingham-Ziegfeld chorus.

EX-BROKER, EX-MAYOR, EX-COMMUTER, EX-FARMER, HEEDS CALL OF THE CURB

In these twentieth century days of American hustale and bustle we frequently hear of persons effecting a "come-back" in various walks of life but one that smacked of the genuine occurred several days ago, when Thomas S. Young walked out on the floor of the Produce Exchange, New York, just two years after he had retired to his little farm and chickens in Fanwood. The men who had known him for over fifty years stared and then stared again before they recognized in him the man who has been a figure in the Exchange for over half a century. After managing to live in retirement for two years, Mr. Young has sold his chickens and again returned to the excitement in the pit of the Exchange and taken up the burden as the oldest commuter on the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Mr. Young first appeared on the floor of the Produced Exchange early in 1850, when he was a young man, and had remained there ever since. Forty-seven years ago he moved out to Bound Brook, commuting every day despite the fact that he had to get up before the chickens each morning in order to get to New York before noon. A year later he moved to Plainfield and has made his home there since. From then until he quit two years ago he had not missed altogether five days from business and figures that he has purchased well over five hundred monthly tickets for which he paid something over $3,500. Not long before he decided to give his chickens all his attention he was found to have commuted longer than any other person on the Jersey Central.

During his residence in Fanwood he has seen it grow from a hundred or so inhabitants and when it was incorporated as a borough some thirty-five years ago had the honor of being its first mayor. He has also held several others offices and to this date takes a keen interest in its municipal affairs.

A few weeks ago Mr. Young said he would let the farmers raise chickens because a stockbroker couldn't and make money. A short time later he had sold them all and now can be seen any morning running for the 7:49 at the age of 84 with the other "Young" business men.

The former football star won in three games, 7-15, 17-16 and 15-10. Mr. Guernsey is well known in this section and is a frequent visitor. Some time ago announcement was made of his engagement to Miss Margaret Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Henderson, of Fanwood.

DEATHS OF A WEEK

James H. Searing Highly Respected

Following a period of failing health indirectly attributed to a fall he sustained in December, 1916, while on his way to attend the memorial services of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., James H. Searing, seventy-six years old, was stricken suddenly with acute pneumonia at his home on Watchung avenue Monday night and died shortly before 5 o'clock the following morning. His illness was not considered serious until a few minutes before death and he passed away before all of the members of his family had arrived at his bedside. Surviving him are two daughters, Miss Sadie M. Searing and Mrs. Charles Zimmer, with whom he lived; Edward C. Searing, foreman of the Record's mechanical department, and a half brother.

Although of an unassuming disposition and a devotee to home life Mr. Searing made a host of friends during his thirty-seven years' residence in Plainfield, coming here from Westfield. He had no fraternal affiliations but maintained a keen interest in the affairs of the local Elks' lodge, of which his son is tiler. His religious interest were with the Trinity Reformed church and the wholeheartedness and earnestness which characterized his everyday life were conspicuously manifested in St. Paul's Brotherhood and the Dutch Arms Club, two church organizations to which he belonged.

Mr. Searing will probably be best recalled by Plainfielders for his association with the Exempt Firemen. He was a member of the old Gazelle Engine Company and watched with pride the progress of the department in after years.

Coincident with the death of the Plainfield man was the announcement made the day before that former Freeholder James A. Burnett, of Union, his cousin, had passed away suddenly following an attack similar to Mr. Searing's.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon with the Rev. John Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, in charge. Numerous floral tributes were received at the late home today, among them being tokens from the church organizations, the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, the Plainfield Record employes, and scores of individuals with which the deceased held acquaintance. The pallbearers were: W. A. Woodruff, H. F. Seader, T. E. Van Zandt, J. M. Welsh, A. K. Willett and L. M. Leek. Burial will be made in Hillside cemetery.

MISS KATE F. KIMBALL.

Miss Kate F. Kimball, a resident of this city for many years during her early life, passed away at the home of her brother, Arthur Kimball, of St. Cloud, East Orange, on Wednesday after an illness that had been growing gradually more severe since she suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1909. The funeral services will be held at St. Cloud tomorrow afternoon and will be private.

Miss Kimball was in her fifty-eighth year and coming her when a child had made her home in Plainfield until about twenty-five years ago. She attended the local schools and was a graduate of Plainfield High School in the class of 1877. She took an active part in religious and literary circles and at the time Bishop Vincent formed the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle in this city some thirty years ago was made its executive secretary, holding that position until the time of her death.

Showing a fondness for things of a literary nature in early life, Miss Kimball had considerable success as an author. One of her last publications was a book entitled "An English Cathedral Journey." She wrote a number of other books of a similar nature that were authorities in their field.

Miss Kimball was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kimball, and beside the brother with whom she lived, she is survived by three brothers and one sister. They are Alfred R. Kimball, of New York; Professor A. L. Kimball, of Amherst College; James E. Kimball, of West Seventh street, this city, and Miss May W. Kimball, of New York.

ALBERT A. LANCE.

Albert A. Lance, aged sixty-five, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Monday after a short illness due to appiexy. The body was sent to Somerville, his former home, for interment. Although he had been in failing health for some time it was not until he fell suddenly unconscious in the bathroom of his home on Craig place Sunday night that it became severe. He came to this city from Somerville six years ago and was connected with A. V. D. Honeyman, of North avenue. He leaves a brother and sister, both of Somerville.

WILLIAM R. FABER.

Two weeks after the death of his father, Alexander E. Faber, of Rockview avenue, William R. Faber, aged forty-four, passed away at his home on Park place Sunday after a several weeks' illness with pneumonia. The funeral was held from the late home Tuesday at 11 o'clock, with the Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, officiating. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Faber was taken ill shortly after his father's death, and for that reason was unable to attend the funeral. Complications set in and offered little chance of recovery. He was secretary of the A. E. Faber Co., Inc., of New York, of which his father was president, and was widely known in this city. He was a member of both the Park Club and Idlewood Golf Club and took a prominent part in their activities.

He is survived by a wife and two children, Helen and William R. Faber. A sister, Mrs. Edmund Rushmore, and a brother, Charles Faber, also survive.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Von Minden, mother of Judge R. P. F. Von Minden, of New Market, were held from the residence of her son yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Interment was made in the South Plainfield cemetery. Mrs. Von Minden died at the home of her son Monday from apoplexy.

Mrs. Von Minden was a native of Germany and came to this country half a century ago. From New York she came to New Market, where she remained for the past twenty-six years. She was sixty-nine years old and had been in excellent health up until the time she retired Sunday night. Her son is the only near surviving relative.

EUGENE A. LAINE.

Funeral services for Eugene A. Laine, for many years a resident of this city, were held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Elizabeth, Tuesday morning. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, this city. Mr. Laine had been ill for the past two weeks with an attack of grip that developed into pneumonia.

Mr. Laine was a resident of this city for many years and enjoyed a wide acquaintance. When he first came here from New York as a young man he opened a barber shop on Park avenue and later removed to the corner of Second street and Park avenue. Selling out, he moved to South Plainfield and kept a hotel there for several years before returning to Plainfield and joining the police force. During his residence here he was a member of the volunteer fire department and for sometime was its assistant chief. For some years he had made his home in Elizabeth, where he died.

He is survived by a wife and brother-in-law, Eugene Reilly, of Union.

EDWIN SHROPSHIRE

Following a stroke of appiexy, Edwin Shropshire died Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Mobus, of Watchung Avenue. Funeral services were held at his daughter's home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. C. C. Caine, formerly rector Grace M. E. Church, officiating. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Shropshire was born in south Jersey and spent the greater part of his life in that section. For the past fifteen years he had lived with his daughter, having retired from business. He was fifty-seven and had enjoyed excellent health until stricken Monday.

JOHN T. CONKLIN.

Following a lingering illness, John T. Conklin, aged twenty-eight, died Thursday in Muhlenberg Hospital, where he had been taken on Wednesday. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 at the Trinity Reformed church, Rev. John Y. Broek officiating. Interment will be made in Somerville.

Mr. Conklin had been a resident of this city practically all his life. Born here, he was for sometime a clerk in the local postoffice. He had spent some time in the last few years at Atlantic City and other resorts for the benefit of his health.

Surviving him besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Conklin, of Madison avenue, is a brother, James B. Conklin, an employe of the postoffice and lieutenant in Company K.

MRS. ANNA V. WAHL.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Victoria Wahl, who died at her home in Scotch Plains Monday, was held at St. Mary's church, this city, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Wahl was thirty-two years old and had been sick a short time. Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Florence and Anna Wahl.

School Work Up in The Air

As yet no settlement of the electrical contract for the Emerson Avenue School has been reached. The Manhattan Engineering Company originally awarded the contract, was declared bankrupt sometime ago and Ryder & Graves, of this city, were authorized to continue with only the necessary electrical work, pending an agreement with the metropolitan corporation.

Up to the present time nothing decisive has been accomplished in regard to either securing another firm to finish the work or in regard to an adjustment on the part of the Manhattan Engineering Company. Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools, stated the other day that it was necessary to have the local company finish the electrical work connected with the heating and ventilating system. Until a decision has been arrived at, the public inspection of the school will have to be postponed.

FRATERNAL VISIT.

Last night a large delegation from Plainfield Lodge, A. O. H., including the officers, attended the installation services of Division 2, Elizabeth.

HANDBALL FANS ARE PLANNING TO ORGANIZE.

Handball is to the son of Erin what baseball is to us. The Celt who comes to this country to take up his residence finds that our methods of play are vastly different from those enployed in the old country. He finds that because Ty Cobb can bat in the .300 class and can circle the bases at an amazing rate of speed, the Georgia Peach is idolized. In very few places does he find that the game of handball is known, much less played.

But the Celt who comes to Plainfield will find that the game of his choice is very popular here. He will find that there are two handball courts in this city, one of which is open to the public, being situated on the property of St. Mary's church; the other being situated in the rear of Fire Headquarters. A Handball Club has been formed in this city and a dance will be held under the auspices of that organization in the near future, the proceeds to help defray the cost of erecting a concrete court.

BACHELOR CLUB DANCE.

About fifty couples were present at the Bachelor Club's dance held in Debele's Hall, Chatham street, North Plainfield, last Friday night. The affair was in charge of C. L. Wahl, Jr., and George Baldwin. Music for the occasion was furnished by Berrell's orchestra, of Bernardsville.

National Guard News

Since the Spa Girl encampment twenty-four drills were held before the year of 1916 closed, by the First Battalion of the Second Regiment, including Company K. Other companies had but nineteen drills. The law requires twenty-four drills for pay, but it is understood that the companies which did not live up to this ruling will get paid, anyhow.

Colonel Horace M. Reading has announced that the members of the Second will be paid in the near future. Captains of the respective companies have affixed their signatures to the payrolls and everything is ready now but the money, which is expected in a few days. Wages will date from July 1 last.

Second Regiment guardsmen are disappointed in the announcement made last week to the effect that the entire machine gun company to be attached to the Second Regiment, including two men from Plainfield, is to be recruited in Trenton. The local gunners expected that each part of the company would be recruited from the companies comprising the First Battalion, the headquarters of which is the Elizabeth Armory, and efforts do bring about that end had been made by Lieutenant Frank V. Lowden and several other officers of the battalion. The supply company also will be recruited in Trenton.

The appointment of a medical officer to succeed Captain Harold A. Kraker, of the Second Field Hospital Company, is expected to be made before the organization masters for the Federal inspection. Captain Kraker's resignation was accepted last week.

Vigorous opposition to any form of universal military service or training was expressed before the Senate military committee at Washington Saturday by several speakers for the American Union Against Militarism. Physicians and physical educators, including Dr. De Lamar, Warbasse, of New York, assailed particularly the suggestion that physical benefit would be derived from military training in the schools. Their views were followed by a delegation of college men under the leadership of Max Eastman, formerly of Columbia University.

The committee, which has under consideration Senator Chamberlain's universal training bill and has heard a number of army officers and others in its support, set aside three days in which to hear witnesses designated by the Union against militarism. At the outset Saturday representatives of the Union made it clear that they were not opposed to building up an adequate army and navy, but would direct their arguments during Saturday's session and those this week specifically against any proposal for universal service.

The group of physicians and physical educators contended that the sort of physical training required in a military course lacks elements of exercise essential to well rounded bodily development, and that military drill in schools does not really teach boys the art of war, because they are too young to handle real weapons and underscore the efforts of adequate instruction.

The Federal inspection of the Second Infantry commands, including Company K, of Plainfield, and the First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry, including Troop D, of Plainfield, will be held on January 29 and 30, in compliance with tentative orders received last week. The inspection will be conducted under the direction of the Inspector General's Department of the United States Army, assisted by inspector-instructors detailed by the War Department. According to the national defense act of June 3, no organization can be inspected twice by the same inspector-instructor. By this ruling the inspector-instructors assigned for duty with the National Guard of New Jersey, most of whom have been on duty in this State for more than a year, will be detailed temporarily to other States, and Federal officers on duty in other States will be sent here to inspect the New Jersey commands. The inspection of the Second regiment will probably be conducted by Captain Carnell B. Hodges, on detail with the New York National Guard.

CO. K TO ATTEND.

The second annual indoor athletic meet of the Singer Employes' Association and First Battalion, Second Regiment, will be held in the Field Battalion Armory, Elizabeth, on Saturday evening, February 17. It is expected that a large number of Company K men from this city will attend the affair.

Y. M. C. A. COMMITTEE ARRANGING A SERIES.

The religious work committee of the Y. M. C. A., of which George E. Hall is chairman, has completed arrangements for the holding of a series of Sunday afternoon meetings in the Plainfield theatre. The first one will be held next Sunday when Rev. R. W. Marsh, of Woodbridge, will be the speaker.

The committee has also arranged for open meetings at the association building each Sunday from 2:30 until 7:30 o'clock, when a program of moving pictures will be shown of the works of various authors after which pictures illustrative of biblical times will be shown. At 6 o'clock supper will be served, followed by a Bible study hour, and at 7:30 the services in one of the churches will be attended in a body.

MAY CONSOLIDATE.

Plans are rapidly reaching that point where definite action will be taken toward the consolidating of the four local Jr. O. U. A. M. councils, including Somerset, Franklin, Benevolent and Plainfield. Committees from all four councils are being appointed and it is then near future they will hold a joint meeting and discuss the advisability of such a more thoroughly. If the idea becomes a reality it is probable that the clubhouse on East Front street recently obtained by Franklin Council and which is to be enlarged will be used. Several of the councils have to vacate their present quarters in the spring and that fact may help in a consolidation.

Stories sent from the border station while the Jersey boys were soldiering at Douglas to the effect that Danny Cupid was working over time and that Jersey parsons would find plenty of business awaiting them when the troops returned have held good in all quarters. In the "doughboy" units the marriage rate has been particularly high and even our Plainfield troop has been struck by Danny Cupid's arrow.

Since returning home the troop has heard of the marriage of Sergeants Percy Ransome and Clinton Ivins and it is believed that the marriage date for Bugler Warren Ackerman and Private Reginald Ralli are not far distant.

Indicating that there has been a lapse of activity since he submitted his original application last August, Captain Charles Peterson has received a communication from the local Common Council requesting him to put in writing once more his request for a municipal appropriation of $15,000 to aid in the erection of the new Plainfield armory. Captain Peterson has complied with the request and has made it plain that he intends to do everything possible to facilitate getting the new structure underway as soon as possible.

Although Major Hebart Brown, of the First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry, has appointed First Lieutenant Daniel Runkle as the commanding officer of Troop D, as the result of Captain Albert Borden's resignation, it is generally believed that when the election is held the acting captain will decline to allow his name to be used as a candidate. His friends in the guard claim that he is not desirous of rising to the captaincy and considerable activity has been in evidence among the enlisted men in an effort to rout out suitable material.

As first lieutenant Mr. Runkle fully demonstrated his ability at Douglas and it is with deep regret that the soldiers have learned of his stand in the election matter. As a drill leader he has no peer in the Lyric reunion and the members learned to respect him at the border station particularly because of his ability to handle them on the drill field.

Second Lieutenant James N. Charles is being mentioned for the captaincy laurels and by the right law of succession the office should be his. Whether or not he will accept is still a matter of speculation. First Sergeant Robert H. Cox, and Sergeants Walter L. Richter and Percy Ransome are also possibilities. There has also been some activity in behalf of former Top Sergeant Brown Rolston, who resigned from the guard at the border to return to his ranch home and business. However, it is not believed that he will be eligible to enter the race.

Officers in charge of National Guard drills in all parts of the State are complaining over the poor attendance at the weekly instruction night. This is particularly noticeable in the units which returned from border duty and some drastic steps will be taken to correct the delinquents to answer to the roll call in the future. Under the terms of the new Federal act members of the militia may be brought before the Summary Court officer for failure to attend drills and this action may have to be taken in several local cases. Troop D has suspended drills during the months of January and February but a stiff schedule of makeup work is being mapped out for the forepart of March.

Company K held an election Monday night at which time three sergeants and five corporals were chosen. The drill that followed was in preparation for the annual Federal inspection on January 29 and 30.

Corporals Myron Glover and Ellis Carman were elected sergeants as well as Privates Arthur Hoyt. Mr. Hoyt was chosen because of his superior military knowledge. He is a veteran of the Spanish American war and a former member of Co. K, re-enlisting as a private at the start of the Mexican trouble. He was at one time a lieutenant in the guard. The five corporals chosen were Private R. Pearsall, Adam Miller, F. H. Bowe, Percy Clarke, Albert Trotter and Harold Willard.

POSTPONE INSPECTION.

Official notification was received by Captain Peterson yesterday that the Federal inspection of the Second Regiment, of which Company K is a part, has been postponed from December 29 to February 5.

WILL HOLD ANNUAL PLAY ON MARCH 8.

The Sophomore Play Committee at the Plainfield High School has decided to hold its annual play on Saturday evening, March 8. The production will be staged in the auditorium of the High School.

Chester Sours has been appointed chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements and Harold Biddle and Miss Ariadne Gilbert, members of the faculty, have been chosen to coach the cast. Just what play will be presented has not yet been decided upon.

WILL CONDUCT EUCHRE PARTY.

The ushers of St. Joseph's church, in the borough, conducted a euchre and "500" party in the parish hall on Tuesday night of last week. At this affair, it was announced that the Women's League would hold a euchre for the benefit of the church on Wednesday evening, January 31.

TOWNSEND SPEAKS.

William R. Townsend, city tax collector, made an interesting address before the Business Women's League in the Young Women's Christian Association building last Friday evening. His subject was "How the City Money Is Raised and Expended." He told of the various sources of taxes, including the difficulty encountered in collecting some of it. The next meeting of the league will be held this evening and will be in the form of a supper session.

News Oddities

DIES FOR A PENNY.

Philadelphia.—Crawling under a bed to put a penny in a bank last night, 4-year old Harry Bashkow, of North Fourth street, set fire to his clothing and was burned to death.

CAVE-MAN 40 YEARS, DIES.

Lancaster, Pa.—Disappointed in love, John Mead, lived alone more than 40 years in a cave on the Susquehanna hills, and is now dead here.

GETS LIEN ON TOMBSTONE.

Atlantic City.—Judgment in the amount of $600, which if not paid would authorize him to remove a marble monument from the grave of the late Henry Bellis, former Boardwalk amusement owner and rolling-chair baron, is demanded by O. J. Hammell, a stone-cutter of Pleasantville, in a suit filed in the District Court today against John B. Black, attorney administrator of the Bellis estate after the young widow had been removed.

JOKER IS SHOT.

Woodsfield, Ohio.—Harold Shorts, 14, may die as a result of playing "a joke." He blackened his face with soot and went to a neighbor's house to have some fun. William Bright, 12, son of Henry Bright, saw Shorts coming and, mistaking him for a chief, seized the family rifle and fired through the door. The bullet hit young Shorts in the neck.

THIEVES CHLOROFORM HOGS.

Des Moines, Ia.—Edward Roelscher, a farmer living near West Union, Ia., has been puzzled for several months because of the mysterious theft of fat hogs from his pens at night. Three times the pens have been raided, with never so much as a squeal. But now Roelscher knows. Eight hogs vanished overnight while a hired man slept in a nearby barn. The thieves left two chloroform bottles behind them.

They had given the hogs the anaesthetic and carried the limp bodies to a wagon.

DIES SUPPORTING THEORY.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—In attempting to prove that a 32-calibre revolver was a harmless weapon, August Francike, 38, killed himself. He drew a revolver from his pocket and argued that such a weapon was harmless. Placing the barrel to his chin, he snapped the trigger, and the bullet crashed through his jaw and entered his brain.

PIGGS NO LONGER.

Denver.—By a court order, Wilfred Le Roy Pigg, son of W. F. Pigg, builder, is now Wilfred Le Roy Chin. Mr. Pigg made application for the change of name so that his two young children might be spared the humiliation they suffered at the taunts of playmates when a boy. Mr. Pigg said today that his brother, Frank, who is also the father of a young child, will make a similar application to the court.

POLICE GETS CONVICTS JOBS.

New York.—Seventy hundred ex-convicts have been put in placing employment by the Police Department of New York and have been given all kinds of jobs, according to the efforts to lead honest lives within the city. Commissioner Woods told about this comparatively little known work last night to an appreciative audience in Carnegie Hall. He explained: "We have done it because we believe this is one of the very best ways of preventing crime."

Aero Workers Held Banquet

In Sebring's Auditorium last evening, the annual dinner of the Standard Aero Club, composed of employes of the Standard Aero Corporation, was held, about forty members of the organization being present. Addresses on subjects of interest to those engaged in the construction of aeroplanes were made by Chief Engineer C. H. Day and General Manager T. H. Huff, of the Standard Aero Corporation. Routine business was transacted during the course of the evening and the dinner was served by Caterer Erwin Y. Neighbor. Vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by some of the club members.

At the meeting it was decided to hold a minstrel show on February 17, the place to be agreed upon at a later date. Rehearsals will begin at once and it is expected that the blackface art, as demonstrated by the Aero men, will be worth witnessing. It was also decided that the club should go in a body to the Aeronautical Exposition on February 10. The Standard Aero Corporation will have a booth at this exposition and it is planned to have the members of the Aero Club gather at this point. In order that employes and any outsiders who may be interested in motors may learn more of the subject, Mr. Day and Mr. Huff will give weekly lectures in Eagles' Hall, this city. The public is cordially invited to attend these talks. Ralph H. Crosby, president of the Aero Club, was in charge of last night's gathering.

Meet by Chance After 22 years

After being separated for twenty-two years, part of which they were thousands of miles apart, Abraham Lincoln Martin, of West Sixth street, Plainfield, and Frank Martin, demonstrator, met by chance in Plainfield the forepart of the week. As boyhood "pals" they were members of a club known as the Sober Nine, in Elizabeth. Coincident with their meeting was the chance appearance of Harry Austin, an employe of the Plainfield Theatre, who also produced Sober Nine credentials and the third part of the organization founded at the County Seat many years ago held a "surenuff" reunion.

Mr. Martin is well known in Plainfield and Mr. Austin is likewise well acquainted. Mr. Covell has traversed the globe demonstrating a patent potato peeler and has accumulated a neat fortune with the novelty. After running across Mr. Martin he said that it had been his one ambition to again meet the Plainfield man, about whom he had thought hundreds of times but had never been able to locate him.

Established in Plainfield in 1900.

Excellent Report On T. B. Activity

The annual report of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield was made public this week, and is the most encouraging of any since the league was first formed in 1908. The work of the league, which consists of maintaining the open air school on Muhlenberg place, the free clinic on Madison avenue and the care of "out-patients," involved the handling of $4,686, which was subscribed by 435 persons. The league now has $15,000 in its invested funds and owns the school property valued at $3,000.

The report of the treasurer showed the league started off the year with $725, received $2,110 from the members, $1,351 from invested funds and $500 from the city. After all expenses were paid for the current year a balance of $91 was left on hand at the beginning of 1917. It has been decided to set aside $200 as a recompense to doctors for work done at the clinic. Miss Addie Parker Jackson has undertaken to improve the physical condition of the children at the open air school and is to keep an account of their improvement. The visiting nurse reported that during the year she made a total of 1,632 visits, 337 being to the school and 1,405 to private homes.

NO INTERSCHOLASTIC SERIES FOR THE GIRLS.

Announcement has been made by Albert Earley, principal of North Plainfield High School, that there will be no girls' interscholastic series this year. At least Mr. Earley stated that he had cancelled the games, owing to the fact that no satisfactory agreement regarding the number of players to be used could be arrived at.

Some time ago it was announced that the Plainfield High School maidens would use six players during the contests. The borough young women were at a loss to understand the reason for using the sixth contestant and entered a protest. However, they were willing to play half a game with six players and the other half with five players. This arrangement did not meet with the approval of the city team and Mr. Earley cancelled the games for this year. It is understood that the reason advanced by the local team for advocating the use of six players is the fact that it would lessen the strain on the muscles and nerves of the young women participating. In the opinion of the North Plainfielders the courts on which the contests would be staged are not large enough to make such a precaution necessary.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Plan For Big Convention of Church Bodies

During the past week the Women's Home Missionary Societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Temple Baptist church and First Baptist church have been busy making active preparations for the observing of the ruby jubilee of the Women's Home Missionary Societies of the United States in this city on Tuesday, February 20. On that date delegates from societies all over northern New Jersey will flood the city attending one of the biggest conventions yet held in Plainfield.

Because of the size of the affair a large number of committees and sub-committees are needed. The general supervision of all arrangements has been placed in the hands of Mrs. Reuben Knox, who will be assisted by the heads of the main committees, including Mrs. Walter Freeman, chairman luncheon committee; Mrs. J. H. Buchanan, chairman reception committee; Miss Helen Armstrong, chairman decoration committee, and Miss Sarah Conover, chairman financial committee. They will be assisted by general committees from the three churches.

Starting at 10 o'clock in the morning, the convention will include a morning and afternoon session with a luncheon served at noon. The meetings will be held in the First Baptist church and the luncheon in the First Methodist church. In the morning the program will take the shape of a "round table," when a general discussion of missionary affairs will be held and business matters transacted. In the afternoon the "ruby coronation" will take place, marking the fortieth anniversary since the formation of the societies.

At both the morning and afternoon sessions many of the five hundred odd delegates from all over northern New Jersey will make addresses, but the principal speakers will include women prominent in the national councils of the societies, Mrs. Charles Summer Brown, of Cincinnati, who is vice president of the national organization, will be the chief speaker, while Mrs. Reuben Knox, Trenton, secretary for the Middle States, and Miss Burroughs, who is in charge of a missionary training school in Washington, D. C., will also be recognized as noted addressers.

The convention to be held in Plainfield is the only one in many that will be held all over the United States on that date in connection with the ruby jubilee of the formation of the Women's Home Missionary Societies of the United States. Two more conventions will be held in New Jersey, the other one being at Camden.

In connection with the observance an effort is being made to raise $40,000 required for five different lines of work, including a community centre, a memorial to Joanna B. Moore, a dormitory for girls in connection with normal school work in Porto Rico; to extend work in Central America and as a fund to help sick missionaries.

Although it has not yet been definitely decided as to whether or not such an affair will be held or not, it is now being considered as to whether or not it would be possible to hold a convention of the World Wide Guilds of Northern New Jersey in this city on the same day that the Women's Missionary Societies' convention is held. The present plan is to hold it in the First Baptist church on the night of February 20, and a decision will be arrived at within the next few days.

One reason for the possible holding of the World Wide convention on the same day is that either is the many women who are members of the older society are leaders and prominent workers in the various guilds about the State and would find it easy to attend both on the same day.

Miss Anna E. Case.

Case, whose program for the evening was unusually pleasing.

Miss Case is a Somerville woman, whose rise from the position of choir singer to operatic star is well known. Her New York recital in October of last year was the culmination of a well carried out plan to rise step by step from the humble calling of choir soloist to the envied position of Metropolitan prima donna. It will be remembered that Miss Case was at one time soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, this city.

Although the social season before Lent has a little more than five weeks to run, quite a number of local people have already deserted the bleak North and have migrated southward, many of them to the sunny region about Florida. During the Lenten season nearly a year ago, there is a lull in social activity, not only locally, but generally. The cold weather and the increasing social whirl of the South has a tendency to depress this.

Locally, the South has claimed several citizens, including Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Irons, who have a winter residence at Ormond Beach; Mrs. Maxwell Perkins, who will go to Ormond Beach; Mayor and Mrs. William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, who will spend some time at Fort Pierce, Florida; Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, who are spending the winter months at Ormond Beach; Attorney and Mrs. William R. Codington, who will also spend some time at Ormond Beach; Mr. and Mrs. James C. Mansfield and Mrs. Frank Ferguson in Florida; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Babcock and Dr. William L. Saunders. The call of the South has been issued pretty regularly each year, but this is the first time that the voice has been heeded to any great extent by residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The social calendar for the coming week, including tomorrow, is not entirely a barren one. In the auditorium of the High School tomorrow afternoon and evening, a playlet, written by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins and entitled "The Queen of Hearts," will be presented and will attract all those interested in the relief work of the Prince of Wales Fund. On Tuesday evening, the Josef Hofman recital will be the attraction. Mr. Hofman will present a varied program, in which Chopin will be featured. A whist party and dance has been arranged by the Y. W. H. A. for Wednesday evening, with the usual informal dance at the Park Club on Saturday night. Other events are being planned and it is expected that the pre-Lenten activities of the local social world will attract considerable attention.

The work of the association during the past year is pointed out in the report of Miss Katherine Aller, general secretary of the association, included two great celebrations, one the jubilee event and the other the Biederwolf meetings. The first required the combined efforts of all the members of the association while over one hundred young women of the association personally assisted in the Biederwolf campaign. The treasurer's report showed that there is a balance of $72.68 in the treasury of the association.

Paper Collection Was Profitable

Owing to the fact that even after the collection of paper was made by the Belgian Relief Association on Saturday, there were still a large number of people desirous of giving old paper to the association, it was found necessary to continue the work of collection on Monday.

All day Saturday, members of the association, assisted by the Boy Scouts of the city, undertook the work of gathering up the paper. One large van, which was manned by ten Scouts, broke down on Saturday and this fact retarded the work to some degree. Many private cars were used and the plan was most successful from a financial and social viewpoint.

Discuss Plans For New School

A meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew Association was held on Wednesday evening, when plans for the erection of a new quarters for the organization and for the Hebrew School were discussed. At the gathering were representatives of Jehuda Halevi Camp, No. 57, Order Sons of Zion, who offered their co-operation in the coming project. It is expected that the assistance of other Hebrew societies throughout the city will be obtained.

At the present time, due to the untiring efforts of Benjamin Kline, Louis Pregel, Henry Rosenbaum, Harry Katz, William Augenblick and others, a Hebrew School has been maintained in this city, where children are taught the rudiments of Hebrew as well as Jewish history. Of late there has been an ever-increasing enrollment of students and the quarters originally provided have proved most insufficient for the needs of the school. The work of the Young Men's Hebrew Association has also been retarded and the erection of more suitable quarters is recognized by the local Jewish association as a necessity. Three or more proposed plans were submitted at the meeting on Wednesday evening and it is expected that each will be given due consideration.

Belgian Rally Brings Forth Scope of Work

Before a capacity audience in the Hartridge Auditorium last Sunday evening, Mrs. Nina Duryea, a New York woman who resided in Belgium at the time of the declaration of hostilities, delivered an address regarding the work accomplished by the Belgian Relief Association. Mrs. Duryea was introduced by the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of the Grace Episcopal church, who made an eloquent address in which he paid a tribute to the Belgian nation and thanks to Mrs. Duryea for all that she has done for the refugees.

With her stories of destroyed villages and with her thanks for what Americans have done to allay suffering, was interwoven the plea that additional help be given those women and children who are suffering and who will have to suffer because of the death of those upon whom they were dependent. The local branch of the Belgian Relief has responded nobly to the call of the needy. Mrs. Wallace announced that difficulty in getting milk supply and bacon encountered but that, through the kindness of Mr. Van Boskerck, a New York firm, had agreed to hold a certain amount for the Belgian Relief Society at a reduced price.

Francois Van Vaerenberg, the Belgian soldier and operatic singer, who is with Mrs. Duryea, rendered national and popular songs in an interesting manner. Van Vaerenberg, although suffering from wounds and from rheumatism contracted in the trenches, was extremely entertaining and seemed to still possess a pleasing tenor voice.

The local branch of the Belgian Relief Association also expresses its thanks to Edward Lewis, a New York musician, who gave his services as accompanist, to Mr. Sewing who contributed his car and to Boy Scouts, broke down on Saturday and this fact retarded the work to some degree. Many private cars were used and the plan was most successful from a financial and social viewpoint.

Converts Hold Big Gathering

A number of local people attended a Catholic Converts' meeting held in St. Joseph's Hall, Roselle, last Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Union County Federation of the Holy Name Society.

A program of religious and of social value had been arranged and H. Paul Greenwood, of this city, was chairman of the meeting. It is estimated that there were fully six hundred persons at the meeting, most of them being converts. The principal speakers were Stuart West, financial editor of the New York Globe and president of the Converts' League of New York, and Professor W. H. Schulz, head master of Carlton Academy, Summit. Professor Schulz will be remembered as having delivered a lecture on "Why I Became a Catholic" before a number of Plainfield people in Columbus Auditorium some time ago.

Dr. Schulz stated at the Roselle meeting that the respect for authority has had much to do with the conversion of a large portion of people who, otherwise, become unbelievers or neglectful. It was stated at the gathering that there are forty-five thousand converts to Catholicism in the United States each year. George H. Riley, of Westfield, president of the Union County Federation of Holy Name Societies, arranged for the meeting.

Dr. Hudson Leads Local Delegates

A number of Plainfielders are planning to attend the conference on evangelism, to be held in the South church, Newark, next Monday. Representatives from all the Baptist churches north of Trenton will be present and an interesting program has been arranged.

Dr. Birney Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is chairman of the State committee on evangelism which will hold the conference. In the morning Rev. George Wood Anderson, who is conducting a evangelistic campaign in New Brunswick, will address the conference, in the afternoon the various phases of evangelism will be studied and in the evening Rev. Peter C. Wright, of Philadelphia, will be the speaker.

Next Synod Will Be Held in N.Y.C.

At the invitation of Bishop Greer, of New York, the fouth annual synod of the Episcopal church of New York and New Jersey, which includes the missionary district of Porto Rico, will be held in the New Synod Hall at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York city, on the second Tuesday in January, 1918. The third annual synod of the province at the Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City, which ended last Thursday, was productive of much discussion of the attitude of the church on the liquor question.

At the opening session last Wednesday the Rev. Professor Charles H. Boynton read the report of the Provincial Commission on Religious Education which told of the demonstration work, mid-week religious instruction, and instruction in the home. He dwelt on the marvellous growth of mid-week religious instruction and pointed out how politic it was that religious education should not be confined to Episcopal children but that some effort should be made through an official Provincial Secretary to reach the children in the public schools.

At the afternoon session the Rev. A. Elmendorf, of Newark, read the report of the Provincial Commission on Social Service, and introduced resolutions on local option and voluntary total abstinence. Bishop Frederick Courtney made a strong plea for voluntary total abstinence on the part of the Episcopal clergy and laity and the recording of the names of those in favor of it on the minutes. The original resolution on voluntary total abstinence was passed at the following morning session.

At the dinner given that evening by the Church Club of New Jersey, Dr. James Dillard, of Charlottesville, Va., urged the training of Episcopal women as teachers for the public schools, in order to reach more children; the Rev. Howard Melish, of Brooklyn, made an impassioned plea for broader social service; and Bishop Tucker, of Kyoto, told the deputies that Japan is sincerely desirous of preserving unbroken the friendly relations which have existed between her and America for the past five decades.

At the morning session on Thursday, the Rev. Frederick Longley read the report of the Provincial Commission on Missions and stated that the church has never been better organized for progressive missionary propaganda than it is today. Dr. John Harding, Provincial Secretary for Missions, also reported, and Bishop Burch, Suffragan Bishop to New York, spoke on the church's duty to the foreign peoples in this province. Bishop Lloyd, president of the Board of Missions, advocated the placing of the church's business in the hands of its laymen.

At the final session resolutions to make Porto Rico a special charge of the province, and endorsing the Smith-Hughes bill for the Federal regulation of motion pictures, were passed. Bishops Greer, of New York, and Burgess, of Long Island, and the Rev. David L. Ferris, of Rochester, spoke on the usefulness of the Provincial Synod. Resolutions of thanks for the entertainment, endorsing total abstinence and to take into consideration the establishment of a farm colony for inebriates were passed.

First M. E. Women Plan Social Events

Because the First M. E. church is participating in the union evangelistic services the Ladies' Aid Society of the church has decided to postpone the children's entertainment which it had arranged for this month until the forepart of March. At that time sixty children of the Sunday-School will render the evening's program, which will be preceded by a dinner.

During the middle of February, the exact date not yet having been decided upon, Mrs. Frank A. Paterson, of Colonia, will lecture in Vincent Chapel under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and will give a demonstration of domestic engineering, showing how the modern kitchen should be conducted. She will explain her electrically equipped kitchen in Colonia, which has been inspected by several thousand women. She completed giving a series of lectures in New York last week.

The United Society of the society will be held on January 25 and will be in the nature of an all day session. It will be in Vincent Chapel and at noon a luncheon will be served. The proceeds will be devoted to the aid fund of the church.

FINAL UNION SERVICE TO BE HELD TONIGHT.

Tonight's union service in the First Presbyterian church will mark the completion of the evangelistic program arranged jointly by the First Presbyterian, First M. E., Trinity Reformed and First Baptist churches of the city. The original plan was to have it last for one week only, but the attendance at each union service was so large that it was decided to continue for the second week.

Tonight the services will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, being the speaker. A chorus will render special singing under the direction of Clifford Braider. Last night Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was the speaker of a largely attended service held in Trinity Reformed church.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN ELECTS.

At the annual congregational meeting of the Swedish Lutheran church held last week the election of officers resulted as follows: Secretary, Albin Swanson; deacon, for three years, Julius Tbolen; trustees, for three years, Olaf Olsen and Albin Olson; delegate to the conference meetings to be held in New York city next summer, John Gjettleson; delegate to the synodical meeting at Rock Island, Ill., June, the Rev. C. A. Anderson; sexton, John Gjettleson, of 207 East Front street.

Many a man's good reputation is due to what isn't found out about him.

Large Attendance For Guild Session

Members of the World Wide Guilds from all over Union county have been arriving in Plainfield throughout the day to be present at a banquet to be given in the chapel of the First Baptist church tonight. Besides the members of the Guilds of the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist churches of this city, there will be members present from Westfield, Roselle, Elizabeth, New Market and Scotch Plains and from present indications there will be several hundred in attendance.

Arrangements for the banquet have been under the general supervision of Miss Agnes Cheever with committees from the local Guilds assisting. A number of people prominent in the missionary field have been invited to be present in an effort to secure several speakers to make addresses on the various phases of work covered by the World Wide Guild. Beside Miss Amy Conant, who is State secretary of the World Wide Guilds, and who resides in this city, it is expected that three other women will speak. Mrs. William Farmer, of Boston, one of the State officials; Miss Alma Noble, of Buffalo, executive secretary of the national organization, and Miss Grace Dale Land, of New York, who is connected in the home mission field, have been invited and expect to attend.

Week's Revial For St. Stephen's Church

The churches of Plainfield are planning to take another active part in a series of revival services and although they will not be held in this city they are attracting nearly as much interest as the Biederwolf campaign last spring. When "Billy" Sunday opens his campaign in New York during the forepart of April hundreds of Plainfielders are planning to attend the meetings and it is probable that a number of the local churches will join together and arrange for a special train to take those in who wish to go.

Teams of Sunday converts fresh from the Philadelphia campaign had charge of the services in several of the local churches last Sunday morning and aroused great enthusiasm among the congregations. It is highly probable that a section of the mammoth tabernacle will be set aside for the use of Plainfielders who wish to attend.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH.

In the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday, January 28, there will be a musical service, in which Shubert Linscott, who recently played at one of the morning musicales given by Miss Van Boskerck and who is scheduled to give another recital in this city at a later date, will take part.

Dr. E. Mettler Davis, of Brooklyn, will open the service with an organ recital which will be followed by selections rendered by a quartet choir, consisting of Miss Vernon Watt, soprano; Miss Grace J. Carroll, contralto; Samuel E. Craig, tenor, and Shubert C. Linscott. The public is cordially invited to attend this recital.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

At the last meeting of the Senior Baraca Bible Class of the Temple Baptist Sunday-school the annual election of officers took place. Those chosen were: President, Frank Force vice-president, Henry Viebrock; recording secretary, Pierre Moore; Pastor E. C. Conover; assistant teachers, Frank Stewart and A. F. Boyd.

Be an Enthusiast Talking Up the Go to Church Movement

Be an enthusiast in the GO TO CHURCH movement. Enthusiasm always is a splendid thing. It is doubly and trebly so when it is exercised to get people to GO TO CHURCH. Billy Sunday enthuses over religion. He carries his hearers off their feet.

There's one thing about talking up GO TO CHURCH. It is godly. It is unselfish. Your neighbor, in the wildest stretch of his imagination, cannot accuse you of an ulterior motive when you ask him to GO TO CHURCH.

A parent will insure himself in order that his wife and children may not suffer in the event of his death. That is a praiseworthy act. How about the insurance of their souls? No Christian parent will ask his children to remain away from church. On the contrary, he will urge them to go. The surest way to get them to GO TO CHURCH is to GO TO CHURCH himself.

IT IS SO EASY TO BECOME ENTHUSIASTIC OVER RELIGION AND THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT. THE SUBJECT INSPIRES ENTHUSIASM. IT INSPIRES ELOQUENCE. IF A MAN HAS ANY CHRISTIANITY LEFT HE'LL LISTEN TO A PLEA TO GO TO CHURCH. WE ASK THE MAN WHO DOES NOT GO TO CHURCH TO GO BACK TO HIS BOYHOOD DAYS. AS A BOY HE WENT TO CHURCH. HE WAS GODLY THEN. IT IS HARD TO UNDERSTAND WHY, WHEN A YOUTH REACHES HIS MAJORITY, HE FALLS AWAY FROM CHURCH. SOME OF THE FLIPPANT YOUTHS ARE INCLINED TO SNEER AT THE YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH. IN THEIR BLINDNESS THEY ARE LIKELY TO CALL HIM A WEAKLING. ON THE CONTRARY, HE IS STRONG AND THEY ARE THE WEAKLINGS.

If on your way to church you meet a friend who does not GO TO CHURCH plead with him. Ask him to be a good fellow and grant you a favor. You are not asking a loan. You are asking him to better his body, his mind and his soul. He'll see the light.

Get others to GO TO CHURCH.

Dr. Paul Harrison and Bride Nearing End of Long Journey

Word has been received in this city within the past few days from Rev. Dr. Paul Harrison and his bride, who represent Trinity Reformed church in the Arabian mission field. Dr. and Mrs. Harrison have reached Kobe, Japan, on their way to the Orient to resume their missionary work and will not arrive at Bahrein, Arabia, where the mission is located, until late this month or early in February. From Kobe they will proceed to Columbo, Colon and Bombay, India, and from there they will complete the last lap of the journey more than half way around the world and which will have taken them more than four months to Bahrein. They left this city on November 17 and went overland to Seattle, where they took passage for Kobe. The long trip was made necessary on account of the European war, which shut off the route by the Mediterranean.

Dr. Harrison's recent trip home was the first since he went to Arabia in 1910 and during his visit he took as his bride Miss Regina Raub, of Baltimore. Mrs. Harrison returned to the mission field with her husband and will help him in his work. They will be in Arabia for several years before they return to the United States and from time to time will send letters telling how their work is progressing.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WEEK.

Christian Endeavor Week will be observed by the various societies throughout the city during the week beginning January 28, when a series of events will be held under their auspices. On Tuesday of that week a social evening will be enjoyed at which time an entertaining program will be rendered and an otherwise enjoyable time spent. On Thursday night there will be a rousing mass meeting attended by every Christian Endeavor member in the city. Several other events are being planned in order to make a full week's program.

AIDED THE CAUSE.

Plainfield's churches and clergymen took an active part in the campaign that was waged throughout the country both for and against the amendment that was brought up in Congress yesterday. The bill aims to exclude liquor "ads" from the U. S. mails and further curtails the traffic. Dr. D. W. Skellenger, pastor of Hope chapel, went to Washington last week to present a petition from Plainfield people to Congressman John Capstick endorsing the bill. A number of local voters and residents also wrote to Congressman Capstick.

REV. BIRNEY S. HUDSON

Editor of the Record:

I have with pleasure read your last issue and especially the religious page. I am glad you think religion in its various phases is important enough to claim the space of a whole page.

The people need to know not only what is being done on Sunday and in Plainfield, but also every day and in all the world, and that this which appeals to the deepest nature of man has recognition in a large way.

The more statesmanlike you represent the religious world activities, the more you make everyone to feel the importance and dignity of religion as an experience, and the higher will be the standing of your journal in the estimation of the people.

Yours truly,
Birney S. Hudson.

REV. CORTLANDT H. MALLERY

Editor of the Record:

The Plainfield Record is to be congratulated on its "Religious Page" as exhibited in last Friday's issue. Never before, to my knowledge, has a Plainfield paper devoted an entire page to strictly religious activities.

The churches of our city owe the Record a debt of gratitude for placing before its large "Congregation" in such a newsy and convincing form not only the news of religion but also its necessity and helpfulness in the lives of the men and women of our community.

The press in this way can be a most valuable handmate of the Church in furthering the cause of good citizenship.

Yours sincerely,
Cortlandt H. Mallery.

REV. CHARLES E. HERRING

Editor of the Record:

I saw your Religious Page of last week's paper and was pleased with it. I think Plainfield people should appreciate the fact that a whole page is given to religious activities in the city and think they do. It is a unique feature and I approve of it heartily as do the other ministers, I think. I for one will stand by you in gathering news for the page.

Sincerely yours.
Rev. Charles E. Herring.

the soul of the other witness against him in agony. This was too much—too much!

"Oh, Minot," pleaded Harrowby—"you have understood?"

"I have felt that you were sincerely fond of Miss Meyrick," Minot replied. "Otherwise I should not have done what I have done."

"Then, Mr. Minot," the girl inquired, "you think I would be wrong to give up Allan for the wedding?"

"I—I—yes, I do," writhed Minot.

"And you advise me to marry Lord Harrowby at once?"

Mr. Minot passed his handkerchief over his damp forehead. Had the girl no mercy?

"I do," he answered miserably.

Cynthia Meyrick laughed, harshly and ruthlessly.

"Because that's your business—you mean, little business," she said scornfully. "I know at last why you came to San Marco. I understand everything. You had gambled with Lord Harrowby, and you came here to see that you did not lose your money. Well, you've lost! Carry that news back to the concern you work for! In spite of your heroic efforts you've lost! At the last moment Cynthia Meyrick changed her mind!"

CHAPTER XIX.

Cynthia Bound With Harrowby.

LOST! The word cut Minot to the quick. Lost, indeed! Lost Jephson's stake—lost the girl he loved! He had failed Jephson—failed himself! After all he had done, all he had sacrificed, a double defeat was doubly bitter.

"Cynthia, surely you don't mean"—Lord Harrowby was pleading.

"I do, Allan," said the girl more gently. "It was true what I told you there by the window. It is far better. Father will go down and say I'm not to be married after all?"

"Cynthia," cried Harrowby brokenly. There was no reply. Meyrick went out.

"I'm sorry," his lordship said—"sorry I made such a mess of it, the more so because I love you, Cynthia, and always shall. Goodby."

He held out his hand. She put hers in it.

"It's too bad, Allan," she said. "But it wasn't to be. And even now you have one consolation—the money that Boyd's must pay you."

"The money means nothing, Cynthia"—

"Miss Meyrick is mistaken," Minot interrupted. "Lord Harrowby has not even that consolation. Boyd's owes him nothing."

"Why not?" asked the girl defiantly.

"Up to an hour ago," said Minot, "you were determined to marry his lordship."

"I should hardly put it that way. But I intended to."

"Yes. Then you changed your mind. Why?"

"I changed it because I found out about this ridiculous policy."

"Then his lordship's taking out of the policy caused the calling off of the wedding?"

"Yes. Why?"

"It may interest you to know and it may interest Lord Harrowby to recall that five minutes before he took out the policy he signed an agreement to do everything in his power to bring about the wedding. And he further promised that if the wedding should be called off because of any subsequent act of his he would forfeit the premium."

"By gad!" said Lord Harrowby.

"The taking out of the policy was a subsequent act," continued Minot. "The premium, I fancy, is forfeited."

"He's got you, Allan," said George Harrowby, cyaning forward, "and I for one can't say I'm sorry. You're going to tear up that policy now and go to work for me."

"I for one am sorry," cried Miss Meyrick, her flashing eyes on Minot. "I wanted you to win, Allan. I want you to win."

"Why?" Minot asked innocently.

"You ought to know," she answered and turned away.

Lord Harrowby moved toward the door.

"We're not hard losers," he said blankly. "But—everything's gone. It's a bit of a smashup, Goodby, Cynthia."

"Goodby, Allan—and good luck."

He stood for a time, not daring to move. Cynthia Meyrick was at the window; her scornful back was not encouraging. Finally she turned, saw Minot and gave a start of surprise.

"Oh—you're still here?"

"Cynthia, now you understand," he said. "You know why I acted as I did. You realize my position. I was in a horrible fix"—

She looked at him coldly.

"Yes," she said, "I do understand. You were gambling on me. You came down here to defend your employer's case. Well, you have succeeded. Is there anything more to be said?"

"Don't there? On the ramparts of the old fort the other night"—

"Please do not make yourself any more ridiculous than is necessary. You have put your employer's money above my happiness—always. Really you had it rather cheap today, with your condemnatious advice that I marry Harrowby. Aren't you beginning to realize your own position—the silly, childish figure you cut?"

"Then you"—

"Last night when you came staggering across the lawn to me with this foolish gown in your arms I told you I hated you. Do you imagine I hate you any less now? Well, I don't." Her voice became tearful. "I hate you! I hate you!"

"But some day"—

She turned away from him, for she was sobbing outright now.

"I never want to see you again as long as I live," she cried. "Never! Never! Never!"

Limp, pitiable, worn by the long fight he had waged, Minot stood, staring helplessly at her heaving shoulders.

"Then, I can only say I'm sorry," he murmured. "And—goodby."

He waited. She did not turn toward him. He stumbled out of the room.

Minot went below and sent two messages, one to Jephson, the other to Thacker. The lobby of the De la Paz was thronged with brilliantly attired wedding guests, who, metaphorically, beat their breasts in perplexity over the tidings that had come even as they craned their necks to catch the first glimpse of that distinguished bridal party. The lavishly decorated parlor that was to have been the scene of the ceremony stood tragically deserted. Minot cast one look at it and hurried again to his own particular cell.

He took a couple of time tables from his desk and sat down in a chair facing the window. All over now. Nothing to do but return to the north as fast as the trains would take him. He had won, but he had also lost.

It was late in the afternoon when the clamor of his telephone recalled him to himself. He leaped up and seized the receiver. Allan Harrowby's voice came over the wire.

"Can you run down to the room, Minot?" he inquired. "The last call, old boy."

Minot went. He found both the Harrowbys there, prepared to say goodby to San Marco forever.

"Going to New York on the Lady Evelyn," said George Harrowby, who was aggressively cheerful. "From there I'm taking Allan to Chicago."

Lord Harrowby smiled wanly.

"Nothing left but Chicago," he dasswied. "I wanted to see you before I went, Minot, old chap. Not that I can thank you for all you did. I don't know how. You stood by me like—like a gentleman. And I realize that I have no claim on Boyd's. It was all my fault. If I'd never let Martin Wall have that confounded policy! But what's the use of lifting? All my fault. And—my thanks, old boy!" He sighed. "Nonsense!" said Minot. "A business proposition solely, from my point of view. There's no thanks coming to me."

"It seems to me," said George Harrowby, "that as the only victor in this affair you don't exhibit a proper cheerfulness. By the way, we'd be delighted to take you north on our boat. Why not?"

But Minot shook his head.

"Can't spare the time. Thank you just the same," he replied. "I'd like nothing better."

Amid expressions of regret the Harrowbys started for the elevator. Minot walked along the dusky corridor with them.

"We've had a bit of excitement—what?" said Allan. "If you're ever in London you're to be my guest. Old George has some sort of berth for me over there."

"Not a berth, Allan," objected George, pressing the button for the elevator. "You're not going to sleep. A job. Might as well begin to talk the Chicago language now, Mr. Minot. I, too, want to thank you."

They stepped into the elevator. The door slammed; the car began to descend. Minot stood gazing through the iron scroll work until the blond head of the helpless Lord Harrowby moved finally out of sight. Then he returned to his room and the time tables, which seemed such dull, unhappy reading.

Jack Paddock appeared to invite Minot not to take dinner with him. His bags, he remarked, were all packed, and he was booked for the 7 o'clock train.

"Did I say her father was in the plumbing business?" he inquired. "My error, Dick. He owns a newspaper out in Grand Rapids. Offered me a job any time I wanted it. Great joke then; pretty serious now, for I'm going out to apply. The other day I had a chill. It occurred to me maybe she'd gone and married the young man with the pale purple necktie who passes the plate in the Methodist church. So I beat it to the telegraph counter, and"—

"She's heart whole and fancy free?"

"O. K. in both respects. So it's me for Grand Rapids."

"Good boy!" said Minot. "I knew this game down here didn't satisfy you. May I be the first to wish you joy?"

"You? With a face like a defeated candidate? I say, cheer up! She'll stretch out eager arms in your direction yet."

"I don't believe it, Jack."

"Well, while there's life there's still considerable hope tying loose about the landscape. That's why I don't urge you to take the train with me."

An hour later Mr. Paddock spoke further cheering words in his friend's ear and departed for the north. And in that city of moonlight and romance Minot was left practically alone.

He took a little farewell walk through that quaint old town, then retired to his room to read another chapter in the time table. At 4:20 in the morning, he noted, a small local train would leave for Jacksonville. He decided he would take it. With no parlor cars, no sleepers, he would not be likely to encounter upon it any of the startled wedding party bound north.

He rushed through the gate just as it was being closed and caught a dreary little train in the very act of pulling out. Gloomy oil lamps sought vainly to lessen the dour aspect of its two coaches. Panting, he entered the rear coach and threw himself and his bag into a seat.

Five seconds later he glanced across the aisle and discovered in the opposite seat Miss Cynthia Meyrick, accompanied by a very sleepy eyed family.

"The devil!" said Minot to himself. He knew that she would see in this utter accident nothing save a deliberate act of following. What use to protest his innocence?

He considered moving to another seat. But such a theatric act could only increase the embarrassment. Already his presence had been noted—Aunt Mary had given him a glare, Spencer Meyrick a scowl, the girl a cloudy vague "Where have I seen this person before?" glance in passing.

Spencer Meyrick went forward to the smoker. Aunt Mary, weary of life, slid gently down to slumber. Her unlovely snore filled the dim car.

Some sense in looking out now. Minot saw a shack that seemed familiar, then another. Next a station, bearing on its sad shingle the cheery name of Sunbeam. And close to the station, gloomy in the dawn, a dedicated chauffeur beside an aged automobile.

Minot turned quickly and caught Cynthia Meyrick in the act of peering over his shoulder. She had seen the chauffeur too.

CHAPTER XX.

"One last ride together."

THE train had stopped a moment, but was under way again. In those brown eyes Minot saw something wistful, something hurt, saw things that moved him to put everything to a sudden test. He leaped to his feet and pulled madly at the bell cord.

"What—what have you done?" Startled, she stared at him.

"I've stopped the train. I'm going to ride to Jacksonville as I rode to San Marco ages ago. I'm not going alone."

"Indeed!"

"Quick. The conductor will be here in a minute. Here's a card and pencil. Write a note for Aunt Mary. Say you'll meet them in Jacksonville. Hurry, please."

"Mr. Minot!" with great dignity.

"One last ride together, one last chance for me to—to set things right if I can."

"If you can"

"If—I admit it. Won't you give me the chance? I thought you would be game. I dare you!"

For a second they gazed into each other's eyes. The train had come to a stop, and Aunt Mary stirred fretfully in her sleep. With sudden decision Cynthia Meyrick wrote on the card and dropped it on her slumbering relative.

"I know I'll be sorry—but"— she gasped.

"Hurry! This way! The conductor's coming there!"

A moment later they stood together on the platform of the forlorn station, while the brief little train disappeared indignantly in the distance.

"You shouldn't have made me do that!" cried the girl in dismay. "I'm always doing things on the spur of the moment—things I regret afterward."

"I know. You explained that to me once. But you can also do things on the spur of the moment that you're glad about all your life. Oh—good morning, Barney Oldfield."

"Good morning," replied the rustic chauffeur with gleeful recognition. "Where's it to this time, mister?"

"Jacksonville. And no hurry at all." Minot held open the door, and the girl stepped into the car.

"The gentleman is quite mistaken," she said to the chauffeur. "There is a very great hurry."

"Ages of time until luncheon," replied Minot blithely, also getting in. "If you were thinking of announcing something then."

"I shall have nothing to announce, I'm sure. But I must be in Jacksonville before that train. Father will be furious."

"Trust me, lady," said the chauffeur, grinding again at his hooded music box. "I've been doing stunts with this car since I saw you last. Been over a hundred miles from Sunbeam. Begins to look as though Florida wasn't going to be big enough, after all."

He leaped to the wheel, and again that ancient automobile carried Cynthia Meyrick and the representative of Boyd's out of the town of Sunbeam. But the exit was not a laughing one. The girl's eyes were serious, cold, and with real concern in his voice Minot spoke:

"Won't you forgive me—can't you? I was only trying to be faithful to the man who sent me down here—faithful through everything, as I should be faithful to you if you gave me the chance. Is it too late, Cynthia?—

"There was a time," said the girl, her eyes wide, "when it was not too late. Have you forgotten? That night on the balcony when I threw myself at your feet and you turned away—do you think that was a happy moment for me?"

"Was it happy for me, for that matter?"

"Oh, I was humiliated, ashamed. Then your silly rescue of my gown, your advice to me to marry Harrowby"—

"Would you have had me throw over the men who trusted me?"—

"I—I don't know. I only know that I can't forgive what has happened in a minute"—

"What was that last?"

"Nothing."

"You said in a minute."

"Your ears are deceiving you."

"Cynthia, you're not going to punish me because I was faithful? Don't you suppose I tried to get some one in my place?"

"Did you?"

"The day I first rode on this car with you. And then I stopped trying"—

"Why?"

"Because I realized that if some one came in my place I'd have to go away and never see you again, and I couldn't do that. I had to be near you, dear girl—don't worry, he can't hear, the motor's too noisy—I had to be where I could see that little curl making a question mark around your ear, where I could hear your voice. I had to be near you even if to do it I must break my heart by marrying you to another man. I loved you. I love you now"—

A terrific crash interrupted. Dolefully the chauffeur descended from the car to make an examination. Dolefully he announced the result.

"Busted right off," he remarked. "Say, I'm sorry. I'll have to walk back to the garage at Sunbeam, and—and I'm afraid you'll have to jest sit here until I come back."

"Cynthia," Minot cried, "I worship you! Won't you"—

The girl gave a strange little cry.

"I wanted to be cross with you a little longer," she said almost tearfully. "But I can't. I wonder why I can't? I cried all night at the thought of never seeing you again. I wonder why I cried? I guess it's because for the first time I'm really in love!"

"Cynthia!"

"Oh, Dick, don't let me change my mind again—ever—ever!"

"Only over my dead body!"

With one accord they turned and looked at that quaint southern chauffeur plodding along through the dust and the sunshine. It did not seem to either of them that there was any danger of his looking back.

And happily he didn't.

THE END.

"I wanted to be cross with you a little longer," she said.

In the morning dry and rub off the skins with a cloth; pack them into a crock and cover with vinegar that has been boiled with a spice bag, a tablespoonful of salt and a piece of alum as big as a filbert. Reheat the vinegar once a week for three weeks.

Stage All Set For Title Tilt

The first game of the annual interscholastic basketball series between North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools will be played in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow afternoon. Naturally, victory is expected by each contestant and a series of triumphant "war whoops" and yells are being planned by the cheer leaders of both institutions.

It is highly probable that the North Plainfield five will line-up with "Bill" Ahern and La Porte as forwards, and Seidel and Willett as guards. Force will play centre. The Red and Blue will have "Art" Kyle, "Shelly" Condray, "Phil" Mills and "Polly" Snyder on the court, with a host of substitutes ready for the emergency call. An injury sustained in a recent contest may keep "Andy" McDonough, rated as one of the borough's best players, out of the game.

Plan War Against High Food Prices

The high cost of living in Plainfield and vicinity will undergo a rigid investigation if the plan of Charles J. Heinzer, of Dunellen, becomes a reality. Mr. Heinzer has recently been elected president of the "National Producers' and Consumers' Association," with headquarters in this city. The other officers are: Secretary, E. C. Miller, 202 West Second street; treasurer, Christopher R. Hobson, 507 Grove street, Westfield; collector Frank J. Kese, 927 West Fourth street; buyer, Lester Ramsey, 616 Liberty street.

The object of the association is to furnish commodities direct from producer to consumer. The members of the association plan to make it not only a buyer but also a producer of certain kinds of commodities. Applications for membership in the organization must be made to officers of the association.

ELECTED TO U. S. G. A.

The Shackamaxson Country Club, which is located in the Willow Grove section of Fanwood, is now a member of the United States Golf Association, having been elected a member at the annual meeting of the association held in New York last week. Although it is admitted that the Shackamaxson course is one of the best in the East the Fanwood club was unsuccessful in securing any of the tournaments that are to be held during the coming year.

BASEBALL AGREEMENT.

A. P. Timme, president of the Milwaukee American Association baseball club, of which Jack Martin, of this city, is a member, has announced that he has made an arrangement with the Cleveland Americans whereby he will get first choice of the Indian discards and will ship some of his best talent to the Clevelands. The first deal, under the new regime, was the purchase by Milwaukee of Outfielder Dan Moeller, Catcher J. H. De Barry and Infielder Barbare. Cleveland has claimed no one as yet.

NOTHING TO GIVE AWAY.

The editor who has any space to donate to "the askers" this year must be facing economic conditions not known to the majority.

If the commercial value of advertising space has never before been fully recognized by the editors of newspapers, present cost-conditions should bring the matter sharply home.

The paper dealer does not donate a generous quantity of his commodity to the paper just as a sign of his appreciation of the business given to him on a cash basis. In fact, he has always sold his product as a commodity; yet, when this same commodity has been utilized as a component part of that more finished product, the newspaper, it has often lost, in the view of the editor and of the space-grafter, any semblance of commodity value. It has been transformed into something which may be either sold or given away, according to whim.

As everything entering into the finished product—the newspaper—has a definite value, and costs real money, why should the newspaper be sold for less than it costs to produce it? Why should advertising space in it be given away—or a great deal of it awarded as a bonus to anyone who will pay cash for a little of it? The editor, unable to produce any part of his newspaper without expense, cannot afford to dispose of it, or of the advertising space in it, on any other than a cash basis. The "asker" is out of order.—Editor and Publisher.

AUTO ADVERTISING.

Daily newspapers obtained $15,017,067 worth of automobile advertising in 1916, to which must be added $2,003,413 for accessories, making the total $18,020,480. The total advertising for the county amounted to $23,103,180. The daily newspapers were given 85 per cent. of all automobile advertising. Of the $15,017,067 automobile advertising in the newspapers, $9,010,240, or 60 per cent. was paid for by the manufacturers, while $6,006,827, or 40 per cent. was paid for by dealers. This is $10,221,022 in excess of the amount carried in 1915.—Editor and Publisher.

ELECTRICIANS CONVENE.

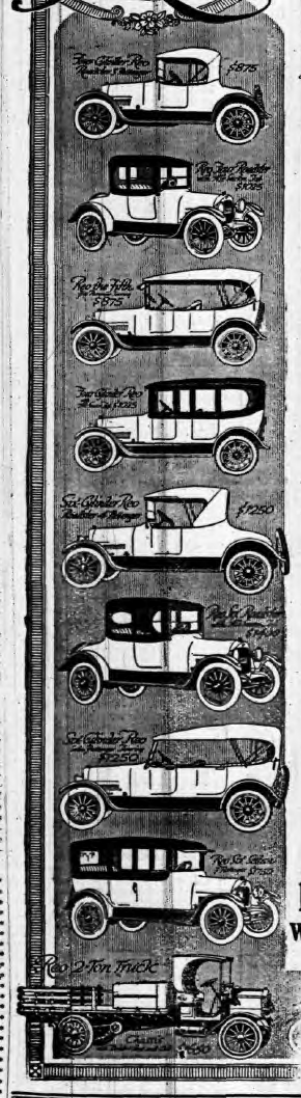
Reo



Here We Show The Full Reo Line

TEN REOS to choose from the coming year—a car for your every need, including the needs of your business.

DOES THAT SOUND flippant? We assure you we do not mean it so. Nor is it far-fetched by any means.

IN TRUTH we do not know of anyone who owns one of every Reo model, but we could name several who own as many as four or more Reos of different types.

IT ISN'T UNCOMMON to find business men who own both 2-Ton and ¾-Ton Reo trucks, and one or more Reo pleasure cars as well.

AND IT ISN'T DIFFICULT to think of many who might profitably own even more of every model.

ONE THING IS SURE: You find more Reo models in the same owner's garage than of any other make.

THAT'S BECAUSE once a man owns a Reo he is "sold" on Reo quality, Reo dependability, and Reo low cost of upkeep.

SO WHEN HE DOES need another car or truck, either smaller or larger than the one he has, first thing he does is to find out whether Reo makes such an one.

"50 PER CENT OVERSIZE" in all vital parts, the Reo standard factor of safety, is in all Reos—look them over at the show.

LET A REO MAN go over the stripped "cut out" chassis with you.

THEN YOU'LL KNOW why Reos are so reliable and so almost unbelievably economical in upkeep.

NOT THE CHEAPEST to buy—but the cheapest to own—that is the Reo slogan.

THE GOLD STANDARD OF VALUES

Winter Is Only Beginning

If the freezing cold weather of the last week can be used as a guide.

Whether it be a dress or a coat, a skirt or a suit that you seek, we stand ready to prove that KRAUTHAMER values are supreme even when at regular prices. When sold below cost, surely we are justified in our claim that the "high cost of living" has a stanch enemy in this factory.

Sea Disaster Survivor Was Deserted Here

Edith Williams, 10 years old, formerly of West Third street, this city, is an inmate of the Mary Stevens Hammond Home in Hoboken, while the State Board of Children's Guardians is searching for her father, who is alleged to have deserted her in a furnished room in Plainfield. The little girl is a survivor of the Lusitania disaster, her mother and three children having gone down with the ship. The Hammond Home, where she is now held, is a memorial to the wife of former Assemblyman Ogden H. Hammond, of Somerset, who was lost in the Lusitania disaster.

The child says her father was a steward in the employ of the Cunard line and that when she and her little brother were saved on their way home to England the father decided to take them to America to stay with friends. They moved around considerably and a few weeks ago were in Plainfield. When her father disappeared the case was reported to the police and the child was sent to the home in Hoboken.

The Williams family was well-known in the West End section of the city at the time of the sea disaster. The father left his home here and set sail aboard a Cunard liner for England, where the family formerly lived. During his absence the mother and three children were known to be in limited circumstances and were cared for by charitable West End residents. Enough money was eventually collected to send the family back to England, where the mother planned to seek her husband. It was while en route to Europe on the Lusitania that Mrs. Williams and three of her children were drowned. The third little girl, Edith, was brought back to Plainfield sometime later.

Pension Fund the Topic For Clergy Supper

At a meeting of the clergymen and vestrymen of Grace Episcopal, Holy Cross, St. Stephen's and Heavenly Rest churches, which will be held following a dinner at Truell Inn this evening, steps will be taken toward the organization of a committee to look after local interest in the pension fund which is to be raised for the benefit of Episcopal clergymen, their wives and children.

The purpose of the pension fund is to provide adequate support for clergymen of the Episcopal church who become disabled. Provision is also made for the widows and children of clergymen of this church. It is expected that the benefits to be derived from this plan will be manifold, inasmuch as the idea is one that is destined to have wide scope, affecting clergymen of all branches, that is, clergymen who have reached stated periods of service and classification. A prominent feature of this plan is the payment of a fifty per cent. annuity to the clergyman who retires at the age of sixty-eight. Other allotments vary according to the length of service and the salary received by the clergymen affected. Regarding widows and children of clergymen, it is proposed to give to them half of the amount their husbands have been entitled to since marriage. Fixed sums are also provided for the orphans of clergymen, these sums varying according to the age of the child.

To the accomplishment of this great undertaking is attached numerous difficulties, but it is hoped that these will be overcome without serious trouble. For some time actuary experts have been at work upon the clerical list of the Episcopal church, numbered at 5,500 Episcopal clergymen in this country. The basis for a fund of this sort was furnished largely by Robert Henderson, who is the chief actuary expert of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, the fund has been voluntarily subjected to the inspection of the Department of Insurance. The personnel of its officers is of the best.

The president of the fund is the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D. D., bishop of Massachusetts; Monell Sayre is the secretary and J. Pierpont Morgan is the treasurer. Mr. Sayre will be the chief speaker at tonight's meeting. Associated as members of the executive committee are Samuel Mather, of Ohio; William H. Truesdale, president of the Lackawanna Railroad; William Morgan, president of the Merchants' Association of New York city, and Charles Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

In order to secure the necessary amount of money to insure success, it will be necessary to exact a certain premium from each parish annually. This premium will be in the nature of a percentage of the rector's salary. In addition, a sinking fund will be needed, and it is expected that this fund will total about $5,000,000. In order to raise this amount of money, a campaign has been inaugurated, resulting in the collection of $4,000,000. According to Bishop Lawrence, there is every indication that the required amount will be secured by March 1.

A delegation from Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., will be selected within a short time to go to Washington, D. C., on March 4 to attend the inauguration ceremonies. The rapidly thinning ranks of the feeble and gray boys in blue will form the escort, but because of their increasing age the line of march has been shortened for them.

R., Sons of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps, will go to Boston next August to attend the annual encampments of the branches from all over the country. TABS VICTORIOUS.

"MIKE" LAVERETTE ROUNDS UP THE GUILTY PARTIES.

After keeping the detectives of two railroads on edge for over two weeks and making them think it was an organized movement to cripple the telegraph and telephone service, William Figel, fourteen, and Adam Vaneshesky, eighteen, were arraigned before Judge Sutphen at Bound Brook Wednesday charged with stealing between 10,000 and 15,000 feet of copper wire from the Lehigh and Jersey Central Railroads. Both youngsters were held for appearance in the Juvenile Court today.

Mike Laverette, a Jersey Central detective, and County Detective George Totten caught the pair Wednesday afternoon at Bound Brook just as they were preparing to make another raid on the wires of the Jersey Central. For the past two weeks they have defied the efforts of detectives and taken wire from the systems of the Lehigh and Jersey Central, in some cases as much as a thousand feet at a time. As often as possible they would sell the wire and were beginning to reap a big return when caught.

DR. PITTIS WELL AGAIN; EAGER TO RESUME WORK.

Practically recovered from the ordeal which nearly caused his death, Dr. Albert Pittis has left Muhlenberg Hospital after being a patient there for nearly three months and will leave in a few days for a southern trip. Upon his return he will resume his practice as a physician in this city.

Although Dr. Pittis will be forced to take things easy until he gets his entire health back, he expects to feel as well as ever in the course of another month. Refusing to allow his infected arm to be amputated even against the advice of attending surgeons, he now has recovered from the blood poisoning with only a little finger gone.

Weekly Tips On Mush Diet

During the past week the mush diet squad has added the following to its roll: Police Captain John J. Flinn, Lieut. Maurice Higgins, Walter C. Dobbins, Josiah Hemnich and George Hafner.

John A. Gaffney, the recruiting officer and father of the mush club, gives the following receipt for cornmeal mush:

"Cornmeal mush or hasty pudding for breakfast, and fried mush, mush with fruit or cheese for dinner, make a splendid substitute for baker's bread. If the average American family used hasty pudding, served in the many splendid ways in which the good cook knows how to prepare it, the cheap corn crop would go far toward obviating the necessity of high-priced wheat flour.

"Cornmeal made into hasty pudding is the finest kind of breakfast food. Years ago, before the advent of the prepared cereals it was the common breakfast food, but, because it was cheap and common, hasty pudding was gradually pushed off the bill of fare. Today it is coming back, as it has every right to do.

"Lay in a store of cornmeal, the old-fashioned, yellow cornmeal if you can get it; the modern bolted white meal, if that is the only variety at your grocers, and try your hand in preparing some of the old-fashioned dishes. Make some hasty pudding for breakfast.

"The most convenient utensil is a double boiler. The elaborate directions usually given in the cook books are quite unnecessary. There is no reason why you should run the risk of making the porridge lumpy by pouring the meal into hot water. Put the meal into cold water and heat it gradually and gently. It will not lump nor stick to the dish.

If a fireless cooker is at hand, so much the better; but without a cooker, and even without a double boiler, hasty pudding may be satisfactorily prepared over the fire, if only the temperature is kept sufficiently low to prevent burning.

"There are many ways of using hasty pudding besides serving it with milk and cream. It is often eaten with maple syrup, molasses or other syrup, or with honey and butter. The addition of butter makes a palatable dish, and it also balances the meal by furnishing the necessary fat.

"Renew your acquaintance formed in childhood and long forgotten, with hasty pudding. In these times of high food prices it will nourish you cheaply."

Auto Paint Shop On East Front St

Hervey Vroom, the well known local sign painter, and Herman Johnson, formerly of Detroit, have opened what is to be known as the Leading Auto Paint Shop. Their establishment is in the Pitts building on West Front street and includes a large garage in the rear.

It is the intention of the owners to do only first class work. Mr. Vroom needs no introduction to the local people and Mr. Johnson's experience as an expert auto painter with the Packard, Chalmers and Cadillac companies of Detroit fits him for the work here. The establishment will be entirely equipped by the first of the month.

His Resignation May Cause Fight

With the resignation last week of Burton P. Hall as a member of the Board of Freeholders Fanwood Borough and Fanwood Township are without representation on that body for the first time since 1910 and before a successor is found it would seem from present indications that a merry fight will ensue. Instead of waiting for the next election the same plan as was adopted in 1910 will probably be resorted to. At that time a joint session of the Borough Council and Township Committee was held when it was mutually agreed to appoint Mr. Hall to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John Robinson.

Aside from the fact that no one seems particularly anxious to become a Freeholder, there is likely to be a hitch when it comes time to decide from which of the two places the new member of the Board is to come. Mr. Robinson was a resident of the township and the successor of the borough. For that reason the township contends that it is its turn to have the appointment, while the borough does not appreciate that fact.

LOCAL DENTIST WILL ENTER FRENCH SERVICE.

Dr. Harry L. Bull, of Watchung avenue, has volunteered his services to the French Government as a dentist and has had his offer accepted. He expects to receive word in short time as to when he is to sail for France and it will not be before he reaches that country that he will know where he is to be assigned or what sort of dental work he will be required to do.

Dr. Bull has been a practicing dentist in this city since succeeding Dr. F. W. French about a year ago and previous to that time was engaged in business in Dunellen.

FRIENDSHIP LODGE.

Friendship Lodge, D. of R., will install its newly elected officers on February 13 and at that time the appointive officers will be named. The officers elected at this week's meeting include: Past noble grand, Mrs. Ella Peterson; noble grand, Mrs. Anna Ketterling; vice grand, Mrs. Margaret Carter; recording secretary, Mrs. Mary Welsh; financial secretary, Frederick J. Welsh; chaplain, Mrs. R. Poole; warden, Mrs. Anna Latourette.

Silhouettes Latest in Photography; Any Amateur Can Make Them

SHIRLEY MASON, McClure Pictures.

"Blessed be the man who first thought of taking silhouettes," say the amateur photographers these days. Silhouettes are the newest things in photography, and they are especially popular because anyone can take them. They are the only sort of photographs that invariably are good, and they'll stand indefinite enlarging. They're a godsend to the person who usually gets about two really good pictures out of a roll of film.

Shirley Mason, one of the stars of McClure Pictures' Seven Deadly Sins, has a girl friend who took a beautiful silhouette of Shirley with a two dollar camera. The picture is shown in the illustration above. The process, as explained by Miss Mason is this:

You need two adjoining rooms and a dark evening. Turn on all the lights in one room. The more light, the better the silhouette. Keep the other room dark. Open the door between. Hang a very thin sheet in the doorway in the light room.

Put your camera on a stand in the dark room and shoot toward the shoot. Put the person you want to photograph in the doorway, between the camera and the sheet, several feet from the sheet. Your subject should be placed so that no light reaches the side of his body nearest the camera. Get your focus right. Give three or four seconds' exposure. Print dark. And there's your silhouette.

He was a member of the Independent Gun Club and well known in this section. Beside Mrs. Lowrie, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Nelson Wiley and a brother, John Van Dyke, both of this city.

MRS. S. W. BATCHELOR.

The funeral of Mrs. Saphronia Woodward Batchelor, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday night when she had but two more days to live before being ninety-four, were held at Worcester, Mass., Tuesday afternoon, and interment was made at Millburn, that State. The indirect cause of her death was a fall suffered at the home of her son, George H. Batchelor, of West Seventh street, several weeks ago, the shock being too great for her to stand in her advanced age.

Mrs. Batchelor was born at Grafton, Mass., on January 22, 1824, one of twelve children of Samuel Hall, a prosperous farmer of that place. A curious feature of the family was that each child's name began with "S" and that each lived to be over ninety, the only one now surviving, Mrs. Ellen Morse, of Wabash, Mass., being ninety-one.

She was married in 1846 and continued living near her home until the death of her husband in 1900, when she removed to this city to make her home with her son. She was a descendant of Revolutionary lineage and had many friends in this city. Besides her sister, she is survived by the following relatives: Two sons, George H. Batchelor, of this city, and Sanford Batchelor, of Farnumsville; one granddaughter, Mrs. Albert Kennelly, of Cranford, and two great granddaughters, Edith and Barbara Kennelly.

JOSEPH F. BODO.

The funeral of Joseph F. Bodo, who died Wednesday, was held at St. Mary's church this morning and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. He was well known in the West End of the city, where he owned and operated a restaurant. A wife and daughter survive.

Proctor's Bill Full of Thrills

The program outlined by the Proctor management for the week beginning Monday, January 28, is a huge and pretentious one and should attract large crowds of film fans to that popular theatre. On Monday Theda Bara will appear in her latest Fox production, "The Vixen." Mrs. Vernon Castle will be offered in the third episode of the film serial, "Patria," and a merry making Keystone comedy will complete the show.

Arrangements have been made for the retention of "Patria" two days at Proctor's so that it will appear every Monday and Tuesday starting the coming week. Therefore on Tuesday the program consists of "Patria" with Mrs. Vernon Castle, "The House Built Upon Sand," and another one of those laugh-inspiring creations.

On Wednesday George Walsh is starred in "The Island of Desire," the last episode of "The Crimson Stain Mystery" will be shown, and a Keystone comedy will be added.

The program for the remainder of the week is equally as interesting and entertaining, featuring such well known artists as Pauline Frederick, Gail Kane, Marguerite Clark and Viola Dana.

Some of the big productions to be presented at Proctor's in the near future include "Charlie Chapin in Easy Street," "The Sex Lure," Clara Kimball Young in "The Foolish Virgin," Mary Pickford in "The Pride of the Clan," Anita Stewart in "The Girl Phillipa," and many other large productions.

STRAND THEATRE.

At the Strand Theatre George Beban will be seen in "His Sweetheart," a new photo drama written by himself and Lawrence McCloskey and produced by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company under the direction of Donald Crisp. In "His Sweetheart" Mr. Beban is seen as Joe, the iceman in a tenement district. Into his basement store and home he brings his sweetheart, who is none other than his little old mother from Italy. Thus, the pretty daughter of the shoemaker in the next basement, is quite disturbed over Joe's announcement of the coming of his sweetheart, as she cherished a deep but unexpressed love for the popular little ice man. How Joe's mother is arrested for theft and prosecuted by the man for whose election Joe is working and how Joe falls in with a gang of crooks and finally vindicates his mother and himself and wins Trina for his wife is told in a masterly manner and acted with artistic finish by the star and a capable supporting cast, including Sarah Keenan, Helen Jerome Eddy, Harry Devere and Kathleen Kirkham.

Another German military picture will also be presented, showing German detention camps where Mohammedam prisoners are kept and allowed to carry out their religious ceremonies for which purpose the German Government erected Moscheo Victor Moore will be seen in a new comedy entitled "A Homeless Honeymoon." Other pictures of interest to be shown are butterflies and bees in colors, and The Strand Topical Review.

The musical program is a varied and pleasing one. Knud Dalgaard, Danish violinist, who created a sensation last week will play Vieniawski's Polonaise and Bach 'Aria for one string (G). Axel Holm Bording will accompany him on the piano. Naline Legot, the beautiful and talented Russian soprano and Augusta Bouillies, baritone, will sing a duet and Henry Antrim, a tenor, will render a solo accompanied by harp and violin obligato by Mr. Dalgaard. The concert orchestra, under the direction of Carl Edouarte, will play an operatic overture and incidental music to the subjects shown on the screen.

LOVE O' MIKE."

"Love O' Mike," a new musical comedy of youth and infectious gaiety, will begin the third week of its engagement next Monday night at the Shubert Theatre, under the direction of Elisabeth Marbury and Lee Shubert. With the presentation of this entertainment, Miss Marbury maintains her distinctive position in the theatrical world as a producer of smart and dainty musical plays, and "Love O' Mike," bids fair to duplicate the success of "Nobody Home" and "Very Good Eddie."

"Love O' Mike" is the work of Thomas Sydney, with lyrics by Harry B. Smith and music by Jerome Kern. It gains its title from the presence at a house party at a fashionable country place of Lord Michael Kildare, a British ex-army officer, with whom all the young ladies of the party are madly infatuated. The other male members of the group, much disgusted, seek to gain favor again in the eyes of the maidens, the while they plan revenge upon the swaggering Britisher.

CARNEGIE HALL.

Mendelssohn's Elijah is an oratorio in which the greatest singers find ample opportunity to display their best art. Jenny Lind, Emil Pischer, Lilli Lehman, Alma Gluck, Paul Althouse and Clarence Whitehill are some of the famous singers known, with the exception of Jenny Lind, on the programs of the Oratorio Society of New York in its twenty performances of this dramatic choral masterpiece. Louis Graveure, the now celebrated Belgian lieder-singer, will add to the strength of the vocal forces to be marshalled by the Oratorio Society at Carnegie Hall on February 13. The other soloists will be Albert Lindquest, Grace Kerns, Helen Hersey and Nevada Van der Veer. A full symphony orchestra and the famous chorus of the Society complete the ensemble under Mr. Kommenich's baton.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JANUARY 26, 1917.

WHY ALL THIS CHECKER PLAYING?

Suspiciously similar to the time-honored political trick of "passing the buck" is the attitude taken by State Senator Carlton B. Pierce in the matter of recommending a Plainfield District Court judge. That he is attempting to dodge the issue and shift the responsibilities is evident but his reasons for trying to "wash his hands" are not so plain.

Why should it be necessary to appoint a committee of local citizens to single out a suitable candidate? When Messrs. Calkins, Ackerman and Holt learned that they were to be made the "goats" in the recommendation work, they resigned from the committee and in doing so they took the only proper course. It is the duty of the legislator to suggest a rightfully entitled candidate and if Senator Pierce is willing to admit that he is incompetent to name a choice he should enlist the aid of a Union county assemblyman, particularly so when there happens to be one in the city which the appointment will affect.

Indications are that Senator Pierce has failed in his attempt to "pass the buck." It is logical to expect that his next move will be to unearth a "dark horse." The identity of the "go-between" candidate is a matter of conjecture at present but it is safe to conclude that the names of those on the rumor list will not receive the unanimous endorsement of those who will be directly affected by the appointment—and in this class we include the Blackstone practitioners of the city.

Competency as a lawyer, judicial ability, and loyalty to the party in power are the factors to be considered in awarding the honor. There are good lawyers in Plainfield who would not make good judges and there are men admirably fitted for the bench who have made no sacrifice in behalf of the Republican party.

If Senator Pierce admits that he is not sufficiently acquainted with Plainfield to make a selection, we will also admit it. The office is an important one and it has it's attractive features. In order to single out the best timber the legislator must be intimately familiar with the man, the city and the conditions.

We contend that Assemblyman William N. Runyon is the man to be appealed to by Senator Pierce. There is no individual on the face of the globe better qualified to decide the problem but he may have personal reasons for not wanting to "shoulder the buck" and if so he is rightfully entitled to refuse to act. Assemblyman Runyon is a Plainfield lawyer, he is a competent judge of the character and ability of the talent eligible to the honor, and we have sufficient confidence in him to know that his verdict will be an unbiased one and that it will be accorded unanimous endorsement.

CITY HALL TO FULFILL A WANT LONG NEEDED.

In today's Record is published the first official announcement of plans for the cornerstone laying in our new City Hall. The selection of February 11 as the date for the ceremony and the framing of a definite program of procedure causes us to realize for the first time that we will soon find our city government wheels operating under one roof.

The advantages of concentrating the various departments will be manifold; energy that has been wasted in the past will be directed toward attaining a superior degree of municipal efficiency. At present the units of city government that should be co-workers are scattered in various quarters and it is next to impossible for the department heads to systematize their respective branches in order to reap the greatest amount of good at the least expense of time and money.

The ranks of those who opposed the construction of such a building are being steadily depleted. As it becomes a reality the city is aroused to a realization of what it is going to mean and that it will eventually result in an economic program of municipal government.

• • • • •

WHY NOT MAKE THAT APPROPRIATION?

Just why the Common Council is delaying action on the application of Company K for a municipal appropriation toward the erection of a suitable National Guard armory in Plainfield has not been explained. Now that the state appropriation of $25,000 is available those interested are naturally anxious to get the construction work started and it would be to the interest of the city to facilitate the operations in every way possible.

Since the advance in the cost of building materials it has been found that $25,000 is insufficient to take care of the construction costs but the $15,000 which the municipality is permitted to donate by law would bring the amount up to a figure that would erect a creditable structure. While we are at it we might as well have an armory that will be a credit to Plainfield and the $15,000 would be well spent.

Besides the State money the Guard is entitled to an appropriation of $20,000 from the county but this money must be used to purchase the site. Several are now under consideration and the local committee is planning to meet with the military board in the near future to arrive at a definite decision.

Application was made to the Council some months ago but there has been little or no evidence of action on the part of the City Fathers. The guard officials are aware that the request is one that will need careful consideration but they feel that sufficient time has been given the Council to act either one way or the other regarding the proposition.

OUR BILL-BOARD PROBLEM EXPANDING.

Developments during the past fall and winter months tend to indicate that Plainfield is approaching a crisis in the bill-board and advertising sign nuisance. In short, the bill-board privilege is creeping to the back doors of property owners in the residential section and the sooner the city curbs the spread of the paster the less we are going to suffer. The United States Supreme Court rendered an opinion last week upholding the constitutionality of the Chicago bill-board regulation of 1911, prohibiting the establishment of bill-boards on residential streets without the permission of at least half of the property owners in the immediate neighborhood.

At the present time Plainfield's problem is not a serious one but it is noticeably evident that the bill-board is getting closer to the residential section each day of the year and some streets, outside the business district, have already been cluttered with brilliantly colored signs.

The opinion from the highest court in the United States may at some future time result in a decision that objects which are offensive to the eyes of the great majority of persons may be regulated equally with those which offend the senses of smell or hearing, or that threaten the safety of person or of property.

ADVERTISING IDEALS. WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

Newspaper advertising ideals vary in city and country but the object of the publishers—to get the cash for the space—is the same the world over. While it is next to impossible to discriminate between the over-zealous merchant who thinks nothing of stretching a point in his advertising to draw customers to his store and the merchant who sticks religiously to the truth in heralding his wares for sale the Record is taking every precaution to bar all copy from its columns that savors of "fake." It is essential that the newspaper in a city like Plainfield have the co-operation of the business element in attaining this ideal and already this clean-cut policy has won recognition and brought its reward in an increasing volume of local display advertising.

"I am inclined to the opinion that the advertising columns of a newspaper should be a blank wall on which any man might write, subject only to the most obvious restrictions, such as the refusal of copy for cancer cures and the like. The public should be told the newspaper has no time to investigate the truth of its advertisers' statements and that it must look out for itself. I wouldn't knowingly take a crooked advertisement, but I wouldn't turn a man down because I did not know him to be honest."—Arthur Brisbane, New York Journal.

"Call the advertising columns of a newspaper a blank wall if you will. Then it is the positive duty of the newspaper to its readers to see that no man is allowed to write on that wall unless his hands are clean. The advertising profession should be and is destined to be as honorable as that of the law or of medicine. It can't be unless its hands are clean."—Richard H. Waldo, New York Tribune.

STATESMEN AND SPECULATORS.

"Tom" Lawson, the noted stock market operator, says that someone made $60,000,000 on advance information about the President's peace note. The public feels comforted to think that Congress is investigating the alleged "leak." But it's an elusive subject. Probably the result will be merely some more black covered government reports, interesting to students and valuable to the junk man.

Of course our public servants never speculate. But somebody may have office boys or second cousins to whom money could be loaned and increment thereof received. He would not know where it came from.

The stock market dances at the end of the Washington wire, and millions can be picked out by forestalling the newspapers. The outsider condemns with fine rectitude, never having had the chance.

You wave a ten-thousand dollar bill in a public man's face, and he laughs. Moral standards are really higher than they used to be. Also in some cases there is a feeling that more refined methods pay better.

The chance to make a million on Wall street might have no strings visible, no suggestion of influencing a public official's course. It might come indirectly, involving the betrayal of no confidence. But usually the tip giver turns up later expecting his fair return.

The Washington circle includes an army of camp followers with anxious ears to the ground for salable or usable information. It must be difficult for public officials not to do business with this crowd, as they have influence at home. The chances are that that $60,000,000, if it was made, went to this element and their backers. The less our public officials have to do with this crowd, the better for their careers. An inglorious but safe and clean five per cent. is better business than speculation, if a public official wants to settle down in Washington.

ARE WE QUALIFIED TO LECTURE WARRING NATIONS?

Homicide records of the United States for the year 1915 do not indicate any increase in respect for human life. There is a decrease from the total for the preceding year, but it is so slight as to be merely a fluctuation. For the last ten years the rate has been practically stationary and has averaged higher than during the preceding decade.

Throughout the United States there were eight homicides for each 100,000 inhabitants, while London has only one per 100,000. But the contrast between North and South is even more ominous. While New York's rate is four and Boston's five, New Orleans has twenty-three, Charleston twenty-four, Atlanta thirty-five, Memphis eighty-five. From four to six times as many negroes as whites are shown to have been killed in States where the records are kept seperately, but there is nothing to show in each case whether the killing was done by a white or a black.

There is something of the Pharisee about a nation which expresses shuddering horror at the wholesale slaughter of war, while it seems indifferent to the retail slaughter wrought by private war within its own borders. If we are deeply enamored of peace, why not begin by enforcing respect for the sanctity of human life at home? Having done that, we shall be in better position to lecture other nations on the wickedness of war.

Investigators of the marvelous power of radium are not only busy holding out hope, but are giving up something to worry about. It is now calculated that if there is in the earth only one part of radium in each million million, a quantity that is believed to have been exceeded where investigations have been made, the effect will be to raise the temperature of the earth's core 1800 degrees in 100,000,000 years. This heat would in the process of being generated have the effect of consuming the crust on which we live, after which it would escape into space and the world would grow cooler again and a new crust would be formed. Recent experiments have shown that a gram of radium generates 133 calories an hour, which in a year of 8760 hours would amount to 1,160,000 calories, or in the active lifetime of a gram of radium 2,900,000,000 calories, as compared with 2200 calories as the heat-producing power of an equal quantity of coal. Discoveries made while the Simplon tunnel was being driven convince scientists that radium is much commoner than had been previously supposed.

Proper care of children's teeth appears as the result of a series of tests made in the schools of Cleveland to have improved their mentality by 99.8 per cent., or practically doubled their capacity for learning. Some allowance must be made, of course, for the fact that the so-called psychological test has not reached the stage of perfection, but even then it has been made clear that the teeth have a marked influence on the mental state as well as the physical health. The latter phase has long been recognized. The report on the Cleveland experiment is all the more significant in view of the statement made by experts that nearly all children in the public schools of the larger cities suffer from defective teeth in greater or less degree, the proportion of those needing the services of a dentist being given as 99 in New York and 84 in Boston. The reason for the superiority of Boston teeth is not made plain, unless it be that parents have more generally acted on their own initiative. Bad teeth mean more than aches and pains.

Those who have occasion to patronize the North avenue taxi line cannot help but notice the change that has come over it during the past month. Although the average citizen honestly believes that one policeman is as effective as another in any line of duty the orderliness of the hack stand in recent weeks must be credited solely to "Big John" Kelley, the patrolman who has been "covering" this beat. There is a tendency toward rowdyism in this quarter at all times, but those responsible have been given to understand that Kelley means business and will not put up with the trifling some of the other officers stand for. They know that perfect order must be maintained and the hack ordinance must be obeyed to the letter when Kelley is in that territory. Would it not be well to make this beat a permanent year around station for an officer who has demonstrated his efficiency along this line? Policemen are human and it is natural for humans to specialize. There are only a few beats in Plainfield that would be bettered by constant supervision by the same officer but we contend that this is one of them.

There is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us that it hardly behooves any of us to talk about the rest of us. But it is safe to conclude that the debaters selected for duty in that West End-East End word battle will overlook this admonition in compiling data for the big event. The honored ones in each part of the city are busying themselves trying to unearth harsh things to sling at those from the rival quarter and at the same time are attempting to accumulate data that will produce an exodus of citizenship from one part to the other. At any rate, the debate will be one well worth while and it behooves the Plainfield civic worker to take a night off on that occasion and get acquainted with the true status of the case.

Law-enforcement officers, administration heads and superintendents of eleemosynary institutions agree that the prohibition law has been signally beneficial. Statistics tend to bear them out. Non-support cases, commitments of insane to the county jails, vagrants, jail prisoners, police arrests, intoxication cases and penitentiary population have decreased. A white record is beyond human hopes. Drunkenness is not the cause of all insanity, or of all family desertion, or of all crime, or of all vagraney. Only one item—intoxication—is possible of elimination. Even that possibility may be classed as theoretical.

The class of student taking advantage of the night courses in our public schools indicates that this branch of educational work has found a permanent place in Plainfield. Practically every nationality is represented on the rosters and the eagerness of the foreign element for enlightenment on matters American is very evident. The teaching corps is a capable one and the efficiency of the system is increasing rapidly.

An unusually large number of "customers" has been rounded up by the Plainfield police force during the past month, the city court sessions in some cases requiring the better part of a day. Al. G. Fields Appears Here Next Wednesday

It is a well-known fact that Al. G. Field has not only kept minstrelsy in pace with the elaborate scenic developments of the stage, but has often blazed the way, and this season his production is on a plane which places it among the big stage spectacles of the day.

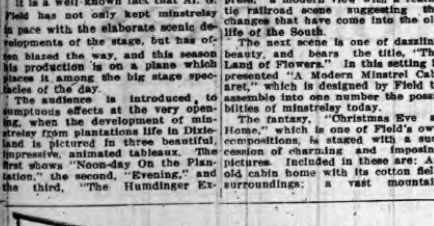
The audience is introduced to sumptuous effects at the very opening, when the development of minstrelsy from plantations life in Dixieland is pictured in three beautiful, impressive, animated tableaux. The first shows "Noon-day On the Plantation," the second, "Evening," and the third, "The Humdinger Express," a modern view with a realistic railroad scene suggesting the changes that have come into the old life of the South.

The next scene is one of dazzling beauty, and bears the title, "The Land of Flowers." In this setting is presented "A Modern Minstrel Cabaret," which is designed by Field to assemble into one number the possibilities of minstrelsy today.

The fantasy, "Christmas Eve at Home," which is one of Field's own compositions, is staged with a succession of charming and imposing pictures. Included in these are: An old cabin home with its cotton field surroundings; a vast mountain gorge, with a water-fall, a river, and a weird environment; a rich drawing-room interior, and finally the roof-tops of a big city, with Santa Claus and his reindeers mounting to the sky.

The back-ground for the saxophone sextette ollo number strikes a new note, also. The baseball travesty, "The Battle of the Bats," shows first a familiar exterior of a baseball ground, and then the diamond itself, flanked by the bleachers and so arranged as to vividly suggest the immense crowd of fans.

The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels will appear at the Plainfield Theatre Wednesday, matinee and night.



ANNETTE KELLERMANN AT THE HIPPODROME.

Charles Dillingham introduced Annette Kellermann, the renowned diving Venus, as the star de luxe of "The Big Show" at the Hippodrome public. Mr. Dillingham is again demonstrating the seemingly inexhaustible resources of this huge playhouse for it is announced that by means of a new super-structure over the stage floor proper a spectacular aquatic scene has been devised without dispensing with any of the other popular features of "The Big Show." Therefore a conquest of the sea will be added to the novelties which already utilize the sky, the land and the ice. The spacious pond, which has been submerged a foot beneath the stage floor, will be retained and "The Merry Doll," with its beautiful skating experts and exhibition of winter sports will be kept entirely intact, as will the minstrels with the now famous "four hundred" who change from black face to white in the twinkling of an eye and all the other much-talked-of novelties. In addition innumerable new features will be introduced throughout the gorgeous spectacle and as the climax will come the diving Annette Kellermann in person—"herself."

Miss Kellermann will appear in her own aquatic creation which is called "The Queen of the Mermaids," assisted by her own company of two hundred water nymphs, sprites and mermaids together with all the Hippodrome chorus girls. The lyrics of this fanciful scene were written by Anne Caldwell, while the musical setting is by Raymond Hubbell. All the water nymphs were trained personally by Miss Kellermann, while the entire production was staged by R. H. Burnside, the Hippodrome's general stage director. The huge tanks of real water are disclosed as crystal pools in a grotto at the foot of "The Enchanted Waterfalls" and it is promised that the thousands who have seen Annette, the water sprite in her remarkable scenes on the screen, now have the privilege of seeing her in the flesh, surrounded by her real live school of mermaids, in a startling spectacular scenic setting such as only the Hippodrome can visualize. Matinees are given daily.

"A New York Girl" The Attraction at The Plainfield Theatre Monday

"Ninety in the Shade," a two- act musical oddity which fairly bristles with comedy, will furnish amusement next Monday at the Plainfield Theatre, when Peter S. Clark's "A New York Girl" Co. will be the drawing factor. W. L. Ballauf, who wrote this vehicle, has hit upon a happy theme and has handled it in his own inimitable style, introducing a line of comedy which is strictly original. It is up to the minute in every respect with a military tone and a suffragette coloring. None of the principals are kept in the background or forced to hide their talents for each one has been given abundant opportunity to show that he or she is capable of. Babette heads the cast and burlesque devotees are perfectly familiar with this beautiful actress who has made such a reputation for herself in burlesque. Francis Tait Botsford is the prima donna. Sylvia Brody, the soubrette, while Mamie Mitchell and Jane Pearson complete the list of feminine principals. Harry Bentley is the chief comedian and his comedy is more than ever effective in this production. Clare Evans and Irving Sands further strengthen the comedy staff. Walter Pearson, "the Beau Brummel of all straight men," is a further acquisition to the cast. There is a chorus of pretty girls which is augmented by eight chorus men. It is one of the best singing and working organizations which ever graced burlesque. The chorus as well as the feminine principals have been provided with a wardrobe of striking beauty and originality. The musical program contains more real hits than any show on the Columbia Circuit, some of them frequently being accorded a number of encores which threaten to disrupt the show. Many really clever specialties are interpolated, including one by Babette, and there are other novelties and innovations such as are seldom found on a burlesque bill. The entire show is free from anything that is either questionable or suggestive, the talent of the performers being such as enable them to do their work without crossing the border line of decency. Women and children go to see "A New York Girl" Co. and come away having enjoyed a show that contained nothing of an offensive nature. Public approval all along the line proves the show to be one of the most pleasing of all the Columbia Circuit's offerings.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

Rose Sydell, burlesque's most fascinating and popular star, will make her annual appearance at the Columbia Theatre the week beginning Monday afternoon, January 29. She comes with a brand new two-act satire called "A Trip to Washington" and will have the support of the German comedian, Johnie Weber, and W. S. Campbell, both of whom are as familiarly identified with Miss Sydell's London Belles organization as is the star herself. The new piece will be presented in eleven scenes and with a prodigal display of costume and electrical and mechanical effects that are said to excel anything hitherto shown in the presentation of burlesque. Throughout the two acts, several novel vaudeville specialties will be introduced and the Messrs. Weber and Campbell will be seen in a new version of their highly amusing act called "Oh Papa!" which is given in conjunction with an exhibition of living models for which several scenes that are said to be beautiful examples of the scene painters' art have been specially provided. Other vaudeville acts will be contributed by the principals in the cast, among them Frances Cornell, an English singing comedienne; Lew Teal, in a three-r monologue; Smith and Pullman, in an exhibition of modern dances, and the Gayety Trio in a repertoire of popular and classical songs. Besides these Miss Sydell will have the support of Ward Caulfield, Arthur Delmore, Grace Tremont, Amy Gordon and others. An unusually large chorus made up entirely of girls, who will be seen in a long program of lively musical features, is announced as one of the most attractive elements of the performance.

"FOLLOW ME."

Anna Held will begin the tenth capacity week of her engagement in "Follow Me" at the Casino Theatre, next Monday night. Miss Held's unique charm and personality were never given greater opportunities than in this sparkling musical comedy, in which she plays the part of a celebrated Parisian actress.

"Follow Me" is in three acts, from the German of Felix Doermann and Leo Ascher, with lyrics by R. B. Smith and music by Leo Ascher and Sigmund Romberg. The action of the play is laid in and about Paris. There are twenty-five musical numbers.

Miss Held's supporting company includes Henry Lewis, Harry Tighe, Sylvia Jason, Letty Yorke, William P. Carleton, Edith Day, P. Paul Porcast, James Watts, Wilmer Bentley and Eduardo and Elisa Cansino. In addition, there is a chorus of fifty girls, who uphold the well established Anna Held traditions for beauty. Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

"THE CENTURY GIRL."

The recent successes of the Century Theatre, with its big revue, "The Century Girl," filling the immense auditorium and "The Cocoanut Grove" on the roof crowded to overflowing, cannot be credited to any other source than the brilliancy of the attractions. Still the accessibility of the theatre adds greatly to the pleasure and comfort of its patrons.

No other theatre in New York is so easy of approach. Take any street car you will from the Battery to the Bronx, and it will deposit you within a block of the Century. Located at 62d street and Central Park West, it is adjacent to Columbus Circle, one of the largest traffic centres in the city. Around its car line loop pass the Broadway, the Eighth avenue and the Fifty-ninth street cars. The subway has a station there. And it is on the route of the Fifth avenue busses.

The Century Theatre's flashing electric roster of stars can be sighted but a block distant on 62d street from the Columbus avenue street cars. And the Ninth avenue elevated has a station at 66th street.

For automobiles, the accessibility of the theatre is unique in the city of New York. No blocks of congested traffic ever distract from the zest of an evening at "The Century Girl." With a spacious automobile entrance on 62d street, a street that contains no car line, with a retinue of starters and out-door ushers, the stream of motors glides smoothly to the door and then on, depositing the occupants without difficulty or delay. Even the extra press of automobiles brought to the Century by the opening of the new roof entertainment occasioned no traffic problem. After the theatre motor patrons find the same celerity and convenience as before. There is so much parking space in the vicinity of the theatre that their chauffeurs can be found immediately they are wanted.

From every transportation viewpoint—surface line of subway, elevated busses or automobiles—all roads lead to the Century Theatre.

J. M. Whiton Valuable Addition to Commission

J. M. Whiton, of Central avenue, was sworn in as successor to Dr. F. C. Ard, also of this city, as a member of the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission, in the office of the county clerk at Elizabeth Tuesday by Deputy County Clerk Z. E. Norman. Although appointed only a few days ago by Justice James J. Bergen, Mr. Whiton was almost immediately sworn so that he could act with the commission in Tuesday afternoon's conference on an additional appropriation of $16,000 with the Freeholders' Mosquito Committee.

Mr. Whiton, whose appointment was suggested by Dr. Ard himself, is considered especially well qualified for his position as a member of the Mosquito Commission. His time may be called his own, for he is a retired banker. Combined with this, he has had the opportunity to study extermination methods during his visits to Panama, while Colonel Goethals was ridding the zone of fever-breeding insects. The new member will finish Dr. Ard's unexpired term, which will end May, 1918.

COMMERCE CHAMBER WILL DISCUSS ISSUE.

At the next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the proposition of daylight saving will be discussed and an effort will be made to have the local body pledge its efforts to have the plan adopted.

This same subject will be discussed at the meeting of the National Chamber of Commerce in Washington next week. This topic is one that has the active support of a large number of local citizens, among whom is former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who sees in the idea a plan that can be developed into one of the most successful creations of the twentieth century.

The idea embodied in this movement is that daylight hours should be used to the best advantage. The sacrifice of sunlight which might well be used for recreation and other leisure activities would be done away with if the proposed plan were put into operation. In ancient times the working day began much earlier than it does now. This is probably due to the fact that we have at our disposal, at the present time, various means of artificial illumination. The sunlight is thrown away and in its place is substituted a much inferior system of illumination.

While it is only natural to expect that the daylight saving system, as advocated by local citizens, will require a distinct departure from present customs, still it is the prevalent belief that the plan is worth testing.

$25.00 Cash Rewards For Finding WHO IS WHO. Keep your eye on the RECORD.

Mr. Whiton has lived in Plainfield for thirty years. He is at present on the board of directors of the Muhlenberg Hospital.

Tuesday afternoon's meeting with the freeholders was the commission's first conference with them since the board refused to listen to the request for an extra appropriation of $16,000 until more details of the proposed plan for irrigation of 300 acres of marsh in Union township, on the banks of the Elizabeth River, had been worked out. As the mosquitoes born and reared on this tract are known as long-distance flyers, the mosquito commission will try earnestly to have the extermination of this breeding place effected.

Since the board referred the question to its mosquito committee, the commission has had one of its engineers at work boring into the ground and ascertaining the levels and grades. If the freeholders can see their way clear to permit the beginning of the work this spring in a year or more one of the worst mosquito holes in the county may be eradicated.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

Plainfield Lodge, Jr. O. U. A. M., observed the fifth anniversary of its formation in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall on Front street Wednesday night with a banquet and entertainment. Over a hundred people were present, including Judge Leon Sanders, of New York, and a number of visitors from neighboring lodges. The entertainment committee was composed of Edward Zerkendorf, Isidor Schneider, Nathan Berger and Edward Gibbert.

ACCEPTS NEW POSITION.

Abraham Sirota has resigned his position as manager of the Union Pacific Tea Company's store on Somerset street, North Plainfield, and has accepted a position with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, in the Newark office. Mr. Sirota's position as manager of the borough store has been taken by F. Thompson, who was formerly manager of the A. & P. store at the corner of Manning avenue and Somerset street.

ANNIVERSARY PLAY.

Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, is planning for the holding of an entertainment in Co. K hall on February 17 to mark the sixteenth anniversary since its charter was closed. Ladies' night will also be observed at the same time and the occasion will be made a gala one.

PREPARE FOR FAIR.

A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of this city was held in Social Hall, on Liberty street, on Wednesday evening, when preliminary arrangements for the coming Knights of Columbus fair were made.

Florence La Badie the Only Star Who Knows How to Run a Camera

FLORENCE LABADIE, Thanhouser Star, "Talking Shop" With the Cameraman ....

Florence La Badie, of the Thanhouser studios, is a star who does NOT want to direct. Neither does she yearn to write her own scripts, but—

She would love to be a "camera woman."

There never has been such an individual, of course, which is perhaps why the ambitions of beautiful Miss La Badie tend that way. The fact remains, however, that the young star has taken up the study of the camera and finds it most fascinating.

"When I first went into motion pictures," says Miss La Badie, "I knew no more about the camera than I do about constructing an aeroplane. One of the saddest moments in my life came shortly after I joined the Thanhouser company. The director told me savagely that I had caused a filation,' and it nearly broke my heart. Attempts to apologize were awkward, because I did not have the slightest idea of the nature of my crime. Now I know why scenes are taken in certain lights, what colors in costumes to avoid and the poses that will be effective. It is a great help in my work."

ALI RAJAH ENGAGED FOR REMAINDER OF WEEK.

In response to a request by a large number of the women who have seen her remarkable ability in mind reading and second sight, Ali Rajah has consented to give a private performance immediately after the afternoon show today at which only women will be permitted to be present. At that time she will answer any question she is asked. Ali Rajah & Co. is one of the few vaudeville acts that has stayed in Plainfield an entire week without having a falling off in attendance. Each performance has been well received and Ali Rajah has been showered with questions, all of which she has answered.

With the exception of Ali Rajah & Co. an entire change of bill will greet patrons of the theatre the last part of the week. The bill is as good as the one for the first three days and includes: The Bayside Comedy Four, Fred Thomas & Co. in a vehicle entitled "Dog, Dog, Who's Got the Dog?" DeLea & Orma, the seven feet of comedy, and the Banquets in a musical and singing skit. Tomorrow the eighth episode of "Pearl of the Army" will be the moving picture offering as well as Pathe and Mutual comedies.

Next week will see the return of the ever popular "country store" night, when gold pieces, other handsome presents as well as laughs will be given away.

STEARNS-KNIGHT

FOUR and EIGHT CYLINDER

The Lure of the Stearns-Knight Car

THE Stearns-Knight produces in the mind of the spectator the same sensation of satisfaction that comes to one gazing upon some masterpieces of Design and Building.

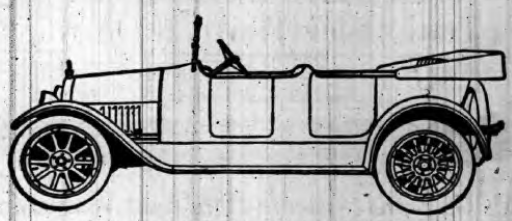
Hidden yet subtly felt, like the architecture of a Greek Temple, are the strong construction lines of the famous Stearns Chassis.

Sturdy and Doric in its strength and simplicity, the Stearns Chassis form the foundation for the superior elegance which characterizes The Stearns-Knight Car.

Grace, Balance and Unlimited Power—these three form the Trinity which make The Stearns-Knight a masterpiece among cars, the one car that you will desire—the car that you should own.

In Construction it represents the world's greatest power plant combined with the final development of the long famous Stearns chassis—a chassis comparatively light, yet offering the same sturdiness which distinguished the older and heavier models.

In Performance it meets every requirement. Responding instantly to the slightest touch of the throttle it glides with equal silent ease through crowded streets and over the roughest country roads. Its steady, persistent flow of power permits a performance on the grades heretofore unequalled in a motor car.



Eight Cylinder, $2250
Four Cylinder, $1495

The Body is also worthy of special mention. The supreme effort of a master coach builder, it appeals to the feminine love of grace and beauty, while satisfying the masculine demand for comfort and room.

We call special attention to the Sleeve valve principle which means no valves to grind, no engine trouble from improperly working valves.

Valve Mechanism—Two concentric sleeves, one within the other, and sliding up and down between the walls of the cylinders of the pistons, are the valves of this motor. Slots in these sleeves register with one another and with ports in the cylinders at proper intervals, producing large and direct openings into the combustion chamber from the exhaust and inlet ports, and assuring positive valve action at all times.

The sleeves are operated independently by small connecting rods working from two eccentric shafts which are driven by silent chains from the crank shaft.

Aside from the duplication of parts, the action and operating mechanism of these sleeves is identical with the four-cylinder motor.

MERCER

MOTOR CARS

IN spite of the abnormal conditions existing in the material market during the past few months, the Mercer models are held to the absolutely high standard of construction for which Mercer cars have long been recognized. No compromise of any kind has been allowed, even in the most minute detail.

The new series follows closely to the lines of the preceding models. Changes and improvements have been made, but they are in the nature of refinements. Consistent with the established policy of the Mercer Automobile Company to build only a limited number of highly developed, medium-weight, four-cylinder cars of known quality, this latest series of cars represents the best efforts toward what the makers consider an "ideal" car, honestly built and honestly sold.

Mercer bodies are built, first with the idea of comfort in mind—comfort for the passengers in the tonneau, and comfort for the front seat passengers. Everything of a freakish or faddish nature has been eliminated.

The Touring model is a roomy, six-passenger car, particularly adapted to general family use. The Sporting type is a snappy four-passenger car, which, because of its lowness and lightness has more than the average speed possibilities. The Runabout is a graceful two-passenger car with all the riding comfort of the larger models. The Raceabout, as its name implies, is a typical speed car, designed for the use of amateur sportsmen. Its guaranteed speed is one mile in 48 seconds. Wire wheels on Sporting and Raceabout models; left hand drive and center control; short turning radius.

THE PLAINFIELD RECORD

Morgan Will Offer Eugenic Marriage Bill

Radical eugenic provisions are contained in a bill soon to be introduced into the Legislature by Assemblyman Charles L. Morgan, of Elizabeth. The measure will make it a crime for persons afflicted with certain diseases to marry, and will require all physicians to report these diseases to the State Board of Health regularly, as is now done with contagious diseases. This bill promises to attract attention that will be more than State-wide, and it is understood that there will be some opposition to it because of its drastic regulations.

Assemblyman Morgan states that it is not his intention to exploit these afflicted persons, nor to make the reports on their affliction public records, but to aim at the general good of the people of the State by preventing the marriage of such persons, and through birth control stop the increase of these ailments and finally eradicate them. The records to be required, if the bill becomes a law, will be used only in case of the prosecution of the persons.

Mr. Morgan has made a study of the institutions of the State, and he declares that it takes one-third of the revenues of the State to support defectives whose condition he claims is largely the result of those diseases. At this rate, it is costing the State $2,6000,000 a year to care for these defectives.

"This is a real problem," says Assemblyman Morgan, "and the people must face it, because the longer it is delayed the more disastrous will be the consequences. If the bill does nothing more than to arouse the people of the State to the seriousness of this issue, it will at least have been worth while to have worked for its enactment.

"We hear much about the conservation of material resources. The greatest single item to be conserved is the health of the citizens. Nothing can be accomplished solely by legislation. Legislation and education must go hand in hand. The citizen must understand that he is not an independent creature and that he can not do with his body as he desires, because the welfare of the future race depends upon the proportion of care and observation of certain natural laws."

Interest Keen In Big Show

In the opinion of Manager Jimmy Hallard, it's going to be some show. On Tuesday evening, another rehearsal for the minstrel entertainment to be given for the benefit of the Saurer Motor Company Band was held. About 60 employes of the plant were present and the spirit of "get-togetherness" was very evident.

It is the intention of those who are promoting the show to make this affair one that will outshine all other blackface efforts attempted by local artists in the past. In short, this show is to be a regular "old time" minstrel extravaganza.

Among those who will take part in the affair are the following: Jimmy Jamieson, manager of the Pilgrim Soccer Football Club; Jack Morten; Tommy Apgar, who led the Dunellen Baseball Club last year, and Andy Crozier. There will be a large chorus.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

The engagement of the military operetta, "Her Soldier Boy," at the Astor Theatre, continues to be triumphantly successful, and indications points that this musical attraction will not be forced to evacuate its position on the Broadway front for many months. A cast headed by Clifton Crawford, John Charles Thomas, Adele Rowland and Beth Lyly, a score of exceptionally charming qualities and a book genuinely humorous combine to make the production one of the most popular ever offered in New York.

"Her Soldier Boy" was written by Rida Johnson Young, from the story by Victor Leon, while the music is by Emmerich Kalman. Additional numbers have been provided by Sigmund Romberg and Clifton Crawford. A romance back of the lines in Belgium in which an American war correspondent is the dens ex machina forms the story of the play.

In the company, in addition to the above-named quartet of stars, are Cyril Chadwick, Ella Gergely, Mildred Richardson, Harold Vizard, George A. Schiller, Frank Ridge, Ward De Wolfe and Ethel Brandon.

Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

PLAINFIELD JURORS.

Jurymen who have just been drawn at Elizabeth to serve at the present term will have to arrange their business affairs so as to enable them to serve for two weeks beginning Monday. Plainfielders whose names were drawn included Stephen H. Beeching, Arthur J. Dunn, George F. Edwards, Jr., Chauncey B. Koons, William P. Corbett, Albert D. Beers, William C. Dunham, Isaac Schwed.

ACKERMAN NAMED.

In announcing his appointments to various offices throughout the State this week, Governor Edge named Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, as a member of the State Board of Education to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of United States Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

An apron sale will be held in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church for two days starting on February 9.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. W. P. Collier, of 523 West Fourth street, are the parents of a girl born to them on Sunday night.

Lester R. Mellick, of Fairmount and Park avenues, sailed on Saturday on the S. S. Carolina, for San Juan, Porto Rico, West Indies.

Planning For Building Fund

At a recent meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, S. Schwartz, who offered a lot on Washington street as a site for the proposed new building for the organization, stated that his gift was still open, although the original time limit expired on January 1, of this year. Mr. Schwartz's offer was enthusiastically received.

In a short time the association expects to send out teams to collect funds for the erection of this new building. A campaign which, it is hoped will, be as effective as any of like nature held in this city in the past, will get underway in a few days. At the present time it looks as though actual building will commence within a month.

The need of a new institution both for the Y. M. H. A. and for the Hebrew School has been apparent for some time and the campaign which is to be inaugurated has been under consideration for some time. The committee in charge of this work consists of Harvey L. Rothberg, as chairman; S. Schwartz, honorary member; S. H. Schwartz, Benjamin J. Kline, Harry Dreier and William Augenblick.

Feminine Debaters Squelch the Males

In St. Joseph's Hall on Wednesday evening, the young women of the Chi Gamma Chi club, of North Plainfield, defeated the members of St. Mary's Literary Club, of this city, in a debate on the question: Resolved, That immigration to the United States should be further restricted by the Literacy Test.

Those who represented the victorious club were: The Misses Anna McGuiness, leader; Helen Brymarski, Anna Daly and Elsie Moulton. They defended the negative side of the argument, while Joe Gallagher, leader, Edwin L. Sullivan, Frederick Greene and Edward J. McCann composed the losing team. A social hour followed the debate.

Wesley J. Dunn Weds Miss Small

Wesley J. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Dunn, of East Front street, and Miss Jessie Small, daughter of Mrs. Mary M. Small, of Fanwood, were married in the Westfield Presbyterian church by the Rev. W. R. Steans, the pastor, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Miss Loraine Dunn, a sister of the bridegrom, was maid of honor, while James Small, a brother of the bride, was best man. Following the reception at the home of the bride's mother, the couple departed on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside in Fanwood for the present. The bride is very popular in the younger set of Fanwood and is well known in this city. Mr. Dunn is a well known member of the Plainfield Fire Department.

College Directress 25 Years a Sister

Sister Mary John, directress of Mount St. Mary's College, will observe Monday the twenty-fifth anniversary of her religious profession, the event to be quietly marked by those at the college. It is expected that visiting clergymen and sisters, and patrons of the college from the various parts of the State will either be present or send their congratulations.

Sister Mary John's home was at Lambertville and she entered the Convent of St. Joseph at Bordentown in 1889, where for sixteen years she was directress. This honored position she continued after Mt. St. Mary's College was opened in 1908. Under her supervision the college has continued to grow and prosper, her students being accorded high honors in different parts of this and other States.

Will Investigate Anderson's Plan

William C. Hopkins, employed as an inspector of accounts by the State Board of Education, will hold a conference in Plainfield this afternoon with former Assemblyman William De la Roche Anderson to discuss the various phases of Mr. Anderson's plan to save the State money in the purchasing of school supplies. Hugh B. Sweeney, secretary of the local Board of Education, who uses a somewhat similar plan to that proposed by Mr. Anderson, and Assemblyman William N. Runyon will also be present and, give their opinion as to the merits of the project.

If the results of the meeting prove satisfactory to a degree where it appears that the plan is a feasible one a conference will be held in Trenton in the near future, at which committees from the Senate and Assembly would be present.

Mr. Anderson's plan, in a general way, calls for the appointment of a State buyer who will purchase supplies for the schools directly from the wholesalers at a large saving.

COUNCIL OFFICIALS.

The Plainfield Building Trades Council elected officers to serve for the coming year at its last meeting they being nearly the same as the ones who have served for the past year. They will be installed at a meeting to be held tonight and are: President, John Corey; vice president, W. V. Sutton; recording secretary, John Cordova; financial secretary, Russell Hann; treasurer, Harry S. Dorflinger; trustee, John O'Brien. August Reid and A. H. Seal.

WELL, THEN, MAYBE WE'LL CALL IT A BOARDING HOUSE.

Noticing a story in the Record several weeks ago to the effect that Plainfield is the "hotel of New York," several of Fanwood's mathematicians have done a little figuring on their own account and are now ready to claim that that borough is as big a "hotel" when it comes to a comparison of size as this city.

With a population of a little under eight hundred, there are two hundred odd commutation tickets purchased at the Fanwood station each month, that figure being raised by nearly one hundred in the summer. At the rate of $7.50 a ticket Fanwood business men pay something like $1,500 monthly into the coffers of the Jersey Central. When that is compared with Plainfield it is found that the percentage of commuters is considerably larger.

TO ENTER NEW FIELD.

Harold F. Biddle, a member of the faculty at the Plainfield High School, has announced that he is to go into the real estate and insurance business with offices in the State Trust Company building. It is not known whether or not Mr. Biddle will retire from the teaching profession.

The Boy Scouts of Plainfield have been most highly honored with the receipt of an invitation from the National Department of Education to give an exhibition of expert scouting along engineering lines. A picked troop of scouts will be sen to Columbia University on Saturday, February 2, to give an exhibition drill in setting up a thirty-one foot portable bridge, and convert same into a forty-foot signal tower, before the conference of scout officials and expert instructors from all the eastern States.

This is the season for boys to join the scout movement. A boy who is not a scout today is not up to date. Three full new troops were registered at Headquarters this week. Troops 18, 19 and 20, and in the course of another week troops will be registered from Temple Baptist and Grace M. E. Sunday-schools.

That the Scout movement is an non-sectarian organization, approved by all denominations is proven by the large majority of Sunday-schoolls in this city that have adopted scouting for its boys. Scout Headquarters has just received the written approval of Cardinal Farley, from Rev. James A. M. Faul, bishop of Trenton, and Rev. J. J. O'Connor, bishop of Newark.

Once more an appeal is made for more men who can spend one evening each week to the training of boys. Another department of the work has just been opened to men who will act as "big brothers" to so-called wayward boys. In most cases a little personal interest and supervision is all that is necessary to restore such a boy to his proper standing and manliness. The scout executive announces that he can use twenty-five men if they should apply tomorrow. Here is a chance for real service to the growing boy and to Plainfield. To the men interested in work along these lines, a call at Scout Headquarters on East Front street, telephone 3085, will bring detailed information and co-operation.

National Guard News

COMPANY K INSPECTION.

Pursuant to a clause of the National Defense act, which was passed June 3, 1916, every company in the First Battalion of the Second Regiment N. G. N. J., including Co. K, of Plainfield, will be inspected by Federal officers before the end of the first week in February. Specific orders for the proposed inspections have been issued and are now in the hands of the local officers.

The schedule, as understood at this time, provides for the inspection of Company K, of Plainfield, Tuesday night, January 30. Company I will be examined Thursday, February 1; Company F, Friday, February 2; and Company C, Saturday, February 3. It may be that the latter date will be brought back to February 1.

All properties at the First Battalion Armory in Elizabeth will be examined and checked up by officers detailed from the regular United State Army and the organization will receive credit for only that property which is found by them. A regular inventory is to be taken by the visiting officers.

When the inspecting officers examine the muster rolls they will find many cases of absentees. It is estimated that nearly 100 men in the Elizabeth companies work nights and cannot possibly attend drills.

NOTES OF THE TROOP.

First Class Private John Caulfield took a position during the past week with A. W. Andrews, a former sergeant in the troop, in Brooklyn.

Privates William James and Richard Walker, who visited this city last week, following their return from South America, have sailed for Liverpool as cadets aboard an ocean liner. Both have been given leave of absence from drills.

TROOP INSPECTION.

Federal Inspection of Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, N. G. N. J., will be held Monday and Tuesday nights in this city. The inspection will be held in the Putnam avenue armory, and in accordance with the national defense act provisions, absentees will become liable to fine or imprisonment.

Examinations for Troops A and C of Newark, began last night and will continue tonight and tomorrow night.

COL. LIBBEY DEFENDS GUARD.

In his inaugural address Lieutenant Colonel William Libbey, of Princeton, who acted as range instructor while Company K was at Sea Girt this summer and who has been re-elected president of the National Rifle Association of America, takes issue with those who believe the National Guard's swift decline in force cast by the result of the recent mobilization.

"Why not enlarge the National Guard?" says Colonel Libbey. "Make service in it compulsory and arrange the service in such a way that it will requore everybody to do his share at some time, in some way. Let the men developed in the great schools of West Point and Annapolis be the officers (for the training), but let them put the responsibility of carrying out the work under their direction upon the bravest officers as fast as these can be qualified by test and experience. Our regular officers are drawn from every State. Why should not some of them be sent back to their own States to do this work?"

COMPANY K DRILL.

Although the annual inspection of Company K will be held Tuesday night in the local armory Captain Peterson has announced that the weekly drill will be conducted Monday night as usual. A full attendance is desired as matters pertaining to the inspection Tuesday night will be brought up.

HEARD LECTURE.

Over three thousand employes of the New York Telephone Company, including several from this city, gathered in Carnegie Hall, New York city, on Tuesday evening to hear Colonel Goethals lecture on the "Panama Canal." The talk was essentially for telephone employes, but the topic was of considerable interest to the general public.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Lilliputians Will Be Married Twice

One of Plainfield's unique weddings in more ways than one will take place on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday next week when Miss Elizabeth Warren, the diminutive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Russell Warren, becomes the bride of Thomas Thumb, another midget. Both are residents of Plainfield and attend the First Presbyterian church, the pastor of which, Rev. Charles E. Herring, will officiate at the two ceremonies in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Both the bride and groom are Lilliputians and have lived in this city for the past ten years. He is three feet six inches tall and she somewhat smaller. MANDAY AFTERNOON CLUB ELECTS FOR YEAR 1917.

At a meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, to be held in the parish house of the Congregational church on February 5, the annual election of officers will be held. It is expected that each one of the 221 members of the club will be present at this meeting.

The Monday Afternoon Club was organized in 1888 with Miss E. E. Kenyon as its first president. The purpose of the organization is to further the study of literature and the cultivation of art. Assistance in many other civic enterprises has also been rendered by the club. There have been formed various departments, prominent among which is the art department, the literature department and the miscellaneous department. Each department is under the care of a committee. The work of the art department is fostered by Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. Raymond W. Charles and Miss Elsie Suffin; the literature department is in the hands of Mrs. Robert Lowrey, Mrs. William H. Murray and Mrs. Daniel Runkle, while the miscellaneous department committee consists of Mrs. C. G. Munroe, Mrs. Henry C. White and Mrs. F. Wilbur Cornwell. The entertainment committee is made up of Mrs. C. Boardman Tyler, Mrs. W. B. Tyler, Mrs. George L. Babcock and Mrs. David J. Randall. Under the auspices of these various branches, a number of lectures have been arranged. Each Monday afternoon there is a meeting of the club and a program of special interest is arranged. Several of the lectures arranged by this organization have been open to the public in general and have proved very interesting. While most of the affairs are held in the parish house of the Congregational church, some of them have been given in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School and, on one or two occasions, in the Hartridge auditorium.

At the present time there are over two hundred active members of the organization and the following are the officers: Mrs. Alvah Allen Cowperthwait, vice presidents, Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. F. O. Herring, Miss Emiline B. Hartridge; recording secretary, Mrs. Mayberry B. Meltzer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Herbert C. Penn, and treasurer, Mrs. William C. Hubbard.

MAY PATTERN LEAGUE AFTER GOTHAM SYSTEM.

At a recent meeting of the Public Recration Committee held in the library of the Plainfield High School, a league for children of an athletic league similar to those of the New York schools were discussed.

It is expected that badge tests will be conducted for physical efficiency and it is planned to hold an athletic meeting in the near future. A gratifying increase in the attendance at the various activities arranged by the committee was reported. WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY AFFAIR FEBRUARY 21.

The members of the Jefferson Democratic Club, of this city, plan to celebrate Washington's Birthday this year in fitting style. Preliminary arrangements for this affair were completed at the last meeting of the organization.

It is also planned to hold a dance before the Lenten season. At the meeting arrangements for this event were also discussed. It is expected that various committees will be appointed by President David Coleman in the near future.

POSTPONED MEETING.

Owing to the fact that many members of the local Holy Name Society attended the Union County Federation meeting in Elizabeth last Sunday, the scheduled meeting of the local organization was postponed until this Sunday, January 28. Election of officers will be held at this meeting.

SOCIETY

Chapter Organizes to Offer Relief

There was organized in this city last May a society known as the Plainfield Chapter of the National Special Aid Society. The purpose of this organization is to render assistance when it is needed and to be of service to the nation if occasion should demand.

Fortunately, there has been no dire need of assistance on the part of the people of this city or nation. Hence the women who have banded together to form this club have formed what is to be known as the National Special Aid Sewing Branch of the Belgian Society. This branch will send its finished products to Mrs. Frederick Wallace, of Hillside avenue. The outfits which are to be made are for boys of six and over. Each outfit is to contain underwear, hose, stockings, pajamas, trousers, shirts, sweater and cap, a cake of soap, a towel and an inexpensive toy. Members of the National Special Aid or anyone interested in helping in the making of these outfits are asked to send checks to Mrs. James M. Charles, treasurer, Belvidere avenue. All persons who are willing to assist in the sewing are requested to communicate with Mrs. Frederick Goddard, of East Ninth street.

AMATEURS DO WELL IN "QUEEN OF HEARTS."

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School, under the auspices of the New Jersey Branch of the Prince of Wales Relief Committee, a winter carnival was presented last Saturday afternoon and evening. One of the many features was a one act playlet entitled "The Queen of Hearts," and written by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins, of North Plainfield, in the cast were many of the society folk of this city and North Plainfield, including Lawrence H. Van Buren, Harold Underhill, Walter L. Righter, Clifford McGee, Warren Ackerman, Milton Ramsey, Miss Elizabeth McGee and Mrs. Maxwell Perkins. Also in the cast were six small choir boys of the Grace Episcopal church.

The playlet as presented was very interesting and the talent exhibited by those in the cast suggested the professional rather than the amateur. In addition to this stage production other features were enjoyed. One of the most notable of these features was a "goose" who took money from those in the audience, returning gifts in exchange. The auditorium was filled with woodland scenes. Japanese tea gardens and other bright novelties. The proceeds from this affair will be devoted to the purchase of material for hospital supplies and dressings for the wounded soldiers and sailors of the Allies.

Lecture Series Interests Many

Commenting upon the lack of social activity in the city, a prominent local society woman ventured the opinion that the scarcity of social functions has been due in a great measure to the more serious work being undertaken by the various members of the social set. It is the prevalent opinion that the unusual slack has been caused by the activity of various war relief committees, made up in the main of society women. In this city, as in other places, there are numerous bands of women engaged in the work of rendering assistance to stricken Europe. The rejection of the entertainment and the adoption of a more beneficial occupation has met with general approval in local social circles.

The close proximity of the Lenten season is also viewed as a prominent reason for the decline of social action in this vicinity. With Lent about five weeks off, the gradual lessening of the social whirl is being felt. During the penitential season, of course, there is an absolute cessation of social activity.

Another contributing cause of the present state of social affairs is the exodus to the South of a number of Plainfield and North Plainfield society people. Perhaps more than ever before, there have been continued departures for the warmer climes.

During the past week, the Monday Afternoon Club has contributed two entertaining and instructive lectures both by Professor Charles Furlong. On Saturday last a society cast presented Mrs. Maxwell Perkins' playlet, "The Queen of Hearts." This affair was given in conjunction with a winter carnival and was well attended by society folk. It was given for the benefit of the Allied cause. On Tuesday evening Josef Hofman, assisted by Miss Dacre, gave his recital in the Plainfield High School Auditorium and this, too, attracted a large number of society people. However, this affair and the events for next week is almost a barren one and includes not one event of more than passing note.

A tea was given on Tuesday afternoon at Trenton by Mrs. Henry Mackenzie Darey in honor of Mrs. E. Burd Grubb, of this city, but formerly of Trenton. Mrs. Breese is president of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage and Mrs. Darey is one of the most earnest workers in the organization.

Interesting Talk by Miss DeLong

Before a large assemblage of members of the Plainfield Pine Mountain Club and their friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, 21 Richview avenue, North Plainfield, last Friday afternoon, Miss Ethel De Long delivered an instructive talk on the work being accomplished by the Settlement School in Kentucky.

Miss De Long told her audience that the ground upon which the school was erected had been donated by "Uncle William" Creech, an unlettered mountaineer, who specified in the deed that he wanted the school to last as long as the Constitution of the United States. For working capital the institution had forty or fifty cents, gathered by a Sunday-school class in another part of the mountains. Miss De Long's interesting narrative included dialect conversation of the natives. At the present time there are eighty pupils in the school and a number of settlers in the vicinity of the institution. The need of a road connecting with the railroad has been apparent for a number of years. At the present time, it is almost impossible for the people to get their produce to market. The construction of a road will require considerable capital, but it is said that the State of Kentucky will loan the money in installments of $1,260 annually. Following the lecture, tea was served and the guests were given an opportunity to discuss with Miss De Long personally.

JOSEF HOFMAN IN FINE FORM TUESDAY.

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on Tuesday evening, Josef Hofman, considered by many to be the greatest pianist in the world, gave a recital for the benefit of the Vassar Endowment Fund. Mr. Hofman was greeted by a large and appreciative audience, the which was numbered a great majority of the society people of this city and North Plainfield.

Mr. Hofman rendered but one recital in New York city last winter and Plainfield was indeed fortunate in getting him to appear here. The super-pianist of the keyboard is in his varied beauty of tone, a delicacy of touch, an ease of execution and a witchery of phrasing, that is altogether delightful. Music lovers of this city were fortunate in having Fritz Kreisler last month and the performance given by Josef Hofman on Tuesday evening was attended by just as large and enthusiastic an audience.

CHARLES WEYH LECTURES IN P. H. S. AUDITORIUM.

In the Plainfield High School Auditorium last evening Charles Weyh, Jr., delivered an interesting lecture on "The Rockies." This lecture was one of a series arranged by the Board of Education for the benefit of the public in Plainfield.

Mr. Weyh's delightful talk was illustrated by views of various sections of the Rocky Mountain system. The lecture was well delivered and was highly instructive. It is the policy of the Board of Education to provide talks of this nature at stated intervals and the public is always invited to attend and there is no admission charged. In this city, as in other places, talks of this sort have become a necessity and are doing much to promote the social welfare of the community. In conspicuous places about the city there have been placed cards indicating when and where each lecture will be held.

Strong, Successful Men of This Country Go to Church. Why Don't You?

THE example that is set when a strong, successful man GOES TO CHURCH is more potent than the most eloquent sermon.

And, to the credit of the strong, successful men in this country, let it be said that the great majority GO TO CHURCH. When you GO TO CHURCH next Sunday take a look about you. You'll find that the pews are occupied by the real worth while men of the community.

STILL, THERE ARE MEN WHO WILL INTIMATE THAT THE CHURCH IS FOR WOMEN AND WEAKLINGS. THOSE WHO STAY AWAY ARE THE WEAKLINGS. THE GREAT LEADERS IN EVERY LINE OF ENDEAVOR INVARIABLY HAVE BEEN MEN OF DEEP RELIGIOUS CONVICTIONS. SOME OF THE MEN WHO ARE DISPOSED TO TREAT LIGHTLY THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT, WHEN ASKED IF THEY BELIEVE IN GOD, BECOME INDIGNANT. OF COURSE THEY BELIEVE IN A SUPREME BEING. THEY WILL NOT DENY THAT THE CHURCH IS THE HOUSE OF GOD. STILL, WITH THEIR PROFESSED BELIEF IN A GOD AND THEIR ACKNOWLEDGMENT THAT THE CHURCH IS THE HOUSE OF GOD, THEY DO NOT GO TO CHURCH.

Going to church does not entail any great inconvenience. It doesn't require any great sacrifice. All that is required is a VERY SMALL PART OF ONE DAY IN SEVEN. The man or woman who professes Christianity and does not GO TO CHURCH Sunday is not practical in his belief. Ask any person who is a regular attendant how he feels when he misses divine worship.

There isn't a hamlet in the United States that has not been reached by the GO TO CHURCH movement. The response to the GO TO CHURCH appeal was spontaneous. Hundreds of thousands who, while they never had lost their religion, but had grown careless and indifferent, were roused. Now that the praiseworthy movement is swinging, keep it so. Be as enthusiastic today as you were on the first day that you enrolled in the GO TO CHURCH movement.

Talk up GO TO CHURCH every chance that offers.

MAKE YOUR PASTOR DO THE REST

Don't fold your hands when you've joined the church,
Nor enter it, at once, to rest;
Your place is out with the service squad,
Not sitting 'round, in the role of guest.

If you'd have the church as it should be,
Get under the burdens and lift;
Have a part with those who stem the tides,
Keep clear of the shirkers who drift.

As you respond to the service calls,
As you tackle each task with zest,
You get results—and you all the while
Help the pastor to do his best.

Be always found at the means of grace,
Once a day, or a week, won't do,
Uphold the hands of the one who serves
Help him to each service be true.

Go into the church to worship God,
Feed your soul, not your intellect;
Learn things of Christ and eternal life,
They are yours if you seek direct.

Do work assigned as "unto the Lord."
Good-fellowship and peace promote,
In training the children do your part,
To things worth while your life devote.

Give of yourself and your earthly wealth
'Till all God's promises you test.
Then watch results and soon you'll see
You make your pastor do his best.

GOIN' PLACES NIGHTS.

A-goin' to the church at night when the moon is in the sky,
It ain't so bad nor scary for there's people passin' by,
An' walkin' right ahead of you with laughin' an' with talk,
An' it don't get a lonesome, not feel he'd like to run,
For there's lights in all the houses, an' almost everyone
Ain't scared if lights are burnin'—an' that's the reason why
I ain't so feared to go to church.—If there's people passin' by.

A-comin' from the church at night, when the moon is in the sky,
A-cast in' creepin' shadows in the corners you pass by,
A-makin' everything look black that ain't out in the light
Is sure to scare a angel,—a-comin' home at night.
The fence post looks just like a man that don't have any hat,
The bushes all looks like bears and things, and then besides all that
You hear the awfullest noises to make your blood run cold,
An' rivers skurry down your back, an' your hair feels gray an' old.

An' you think there's something follerin' you, a-comin' soft an' sly,
An' stomp, tramp, tramp a-trackin' you, till you hear it breathin'—my
But you get scare, I tell you, an' want that you was bold
Enough to turn an' scar it back,—but you dassen't,—an' you hold
Your head so stiff an' march ahead an' never look around
For fear you'll see it comin', a-crawlin' on the ground.
An' you try your best whistle, but you can't think up no toon,
An' you know because your legs won't run, it'll get you pretty soon.

It sure does quite get you, an' that's the funny part,
It always is a place behind, an' when you try to start
To sing a song they sang at church, it mocks you and you jerk
Your head up clear down to your ears and promise how you'll work
A-gettin' in the kindlin' wood an' helpin' out the girl
With the dishes after supper, an' you head gets in a whirl
An' your heart's a-jumpin' nitty-pat, when you get home all right

MISSIONARY SOCIETIES WILL BOOST CONVENTION.

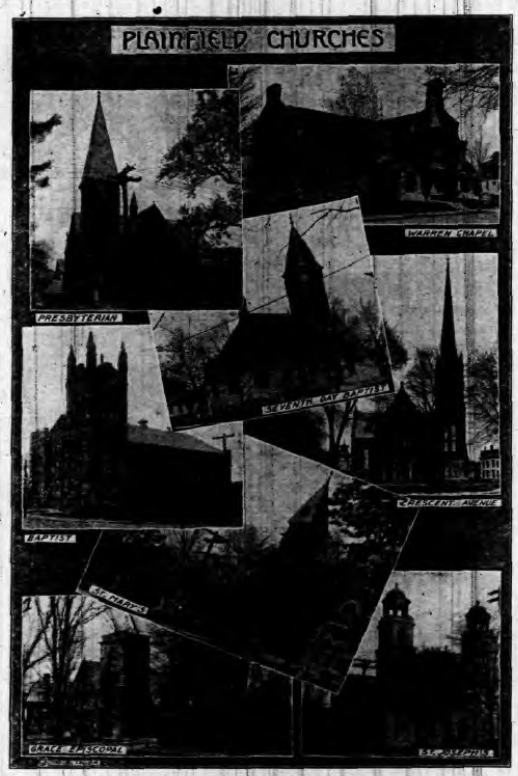
Committees from the Women's Home Missionary Societies of the Second Reformed churches which have charge of arrangements for the coming convention of the societies of Northern New Jersey to be held in this city on February 20 decided during the past week not to have a convention of the World Wide Guilds on the same day. It was at first planned to hold the guild convention on the evening of February 20 following the convention of the older women, but the plans have now been abandoned and every effort will be turned toward making the home missions convention a success.

Replies have been coming in all week to answer to the invitations sent to the various societies throughout the State sometime ago and in another few days a definite idea will be had as to how many will attend.

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR C. E. WEEK ACTIVITIES

Starting Sunday and continuing until February 4 the local Christian Endeavor Societies are planning to observe Christian Endeavor week with special services. Sunday will be known as "Christian Day;" Tuesday a union social will be held in the First Baptist church; Wednesday each society will hold a prayer meeting in its church, and Thursday the members of every society in the city will attend a big mass meeting in the Netherwood Reformed church. At that time Rev. Edward B. Brown, of Dunellen, will make an address and a program now in the course of arrangement will be enjoyed.

The missionary committee representing the Christian Endeavor Union, composed of all the societies in the city, is planning for a campaign to be conducted during February. Each society will be expected to arrange for C. E. night at the Rescue Mission, at which time some special speaker will be present.



Newspaper Tone On the Ascendant

"No American need blush for the moral tone of the newspaper that goes into his home," said the Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Berry, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in Philadelphia, during the course of an address to delegates to the twenty-fifth annual convention of the National League of Commission Merchants of the United States.

"I attach tremendous significance," said Bishop Berry, "to the remarkable change in the tone of the American newspaper. The best of the publications are either expelling altogether harrowing stories of crimes from their publications or are eliminating their sordid, disgusting details. Narcotic, drug and quack medicine ads. are not countenanced by our papers. A sign of the times, too, is the rising editorial tone of the American newspaper.

"No American need blush for the moral tone of the newspaper that enters his home to be read by his wife and children. The tone and character of our publications are on the ascendant. This change is a monument to the onward progress of American ideals."

Dr. Randolph to Leave M. E. Church

After serving for nearly three years, Rev. D. B. F. Randolph has announced his intention of resigning from the pastorate of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church at the Newark conference to be held in the Halsey street church on Wednesday. Mr. Randolph will ask to be assigned to another field and his successor to the Monroe Avenue church will probably be appointed at the same time.

Although the congregation regretted Mr. Randolph's action when he made the announcement at the fourth quarterly conference Monday night, the step was not unexpected as Mr. Randolph has been greatly handicapped and affected by the recent death of his wife.

Mr. Randolph was for some years district superintendent but took up his work at the Monroe Avenue church in March, 1914, and since that time has been an untiring worker in building up the parish.

CHURCHES PETITION.

When the Common Council meets Wednesday night petitions that have been circulated among the local churches will be laid on the table asking that all liquor licenses in the city be refused. The movement is part of the campaign mapped out by the Church Co-operative Association to bring prohibition into away in the city. The association is also planning other features as part of an active campaign to continue until fall.

25th Anniversary of Grace Church

The celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Grace Methodist church, the borough, will be held for one week beginning Sunday, February 11, and continuing until Wednesday, February 14. Services will be held every night at the church under the auspices of the various organizations and each will review the work accomplished since the beginning of the church. Rev. Charles Gillespie, pastor of the church, is arranging an attractive program, including addresses by most of the former pastors.

The church was organized by members of the First M. E. church who felt the need of such a house of worship in the borough. The charter membership comprised sixty persons and the present membership of nearly five hundred indicates a steady growth and progress. All branches of the church have been prosperous and the Sunday-school now has an average attendance of over 100. Over seventy-five members have been admitted to the church during the year.

DR. STRANSFIELD'S SUBJECT.

Rev. J. Attwood Stansfield, well known mission worker, of Denver, Col., who will conduct a week's revival at St. Stephen's church beginning February 4, has announced that the subject of his first sermon will be "What Am I; Where Am I Going?" which will answer his "Concept of God." With the exception of Saturday, February 10, the services will be held daily at the following hours: Holy Communion, 6:30 and 10:30, and evening prayer service at 8:00.

Noted Lecturer Spoke Here Twice

Charles Wellington Furlong, F. R. G. S., of Boston, delivered two lectures on "The South America of Today" in this city during the past week. The first talk was given before the members of the Monday afternoon Club in the parish house of the Congregational church on Monday afternoon, while the second address was made in the Hartridge Auditorium last evening.

The subject of Mr. Furlong's talk on Monday afternoon was "Brazil, the Land of the Southern Cross," while his topic for last evening was "Argentina, Chili and the Fuegian Archipelago." A large and appreciative audience greeted the speaker on both occasions.

Mr. Furlong is an author, traveler and explorer. He came to Plainfield with the highest endorsement and brought a beautiful collection of slides, many of which are colored himself. Living among the people he described has fitted the speaker to be one of the most reliable authorities on South America. On March 1 Mr. Furlong leaves for the French Congo, having been commissioned by the Smithsonian institute to make ethnological studies to and secure specimens of elephants, buffalo and African gorrilla.

Last Pre-Lenten Reception Plans

On Wednesday evening, February 7, a social and reception under the auspices of the St. Joseph's Bible Class will be held in St. Joseph's Hall, North Plainfield. Over one hundred and fifty invitations have been issued for this affair.

It has been the custom with the borough organization to hold socials and receptions monthly, but this plan will not be continued during the Lenten season. Instead, it is planned to have stereopticon lectures, with the talks being delivered by members of the organization. The reception on Wednesday evening will be the last until after Lent and it is expected that there will be a large attendance of those to whom invitations have been issued.

ANNUAL RECEPTION AT PARK AVENUE CHURCH.

The annual reception to Dr. Birney Hudson, Mrs. Hudson and the new members that have been admitted to the Park Avenue Baptist church during the past year will be given in the Bible school rooms of the church tonight. The arrangements for the affair have been made by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, headed by Mrs. Ira C. Van Asdale.

Sixty-five new members have been added to the rolls of the church since the last reception, and it is expected that several hundred members of the congregation will attend the affair. Rev. Dr. Potter, one of Bloomfield's most prominent ministers, will be the chief speaker of the evening and a musical program will also be enjoyed. Refreshments will be served later in the evening.

HOPE CHAPEL.

On Sunday, February 4, the volunteer choir of Hope chapel will render a special musical program at the evening service.

The annual banquet of the Men's Club of Hope chapel was held in the chapel last night, at which about seventy-five were present. An entertaining program of speechmaking and music was enjoyed. The address of the evening was made by Rev. D. W. Skellenger and the various officers of the club made their annual reports.

HEAVENLY REST.

The members of the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held a regular meeting last night. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

MONROE AVENUE.

The members of the Women's Home Missions and Foreign Missionary Aid Societies of the Monroe Avenue Reformed church united for the purpose of holding an entertainment next Tuesday night in the Epworth league house for the raising of funds to help support missionaries. A committee is now busy arranging a program which will include musical selections furnished by talented artists from Westfield and a series of readings and recitations.

FIRST M. E.

An all day meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church was held in the church chapel yesterday. At noon a luncheon was served and the entire day was spent in a profitable manner. The proceeds will go to aid the church fund. The various articles of clothing made will be given to the Children's Home.

The quartet of the First M. E. church is preparing for the presenting on Sunday, February 4, of the cantata, "The Conversion of Saint Paul," by Harry Alexander Mathews.

The fourth quarterly conference will be conducted in the First M. E. church tonight by Rev. F. J. Hubach, at which time all the year's business will be cleared up.

Dr. Anderson made an interesting address this morning before the Parent-Teacher Association of Watchung.

Next Wednesday the mid-week prayer meeting will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Charles Anderson.

TRINITY REFORMED.

The Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church opened a two-day rummage sale in one of the Pittis stores on East Front street yesterday and realized a considerable sum. It will be brought to a close today.

Bright music will be a feature of each service and all are cordially invited to attend and spend a pleasant evening.

Rev. John L. Broek will attend a meeting of the Board of Domestic Missions in New York city Monday afternoon.

PARK AVE. BAPTIST.

An all day meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held in the church parlors yesterday. At noon a luncheon was enjoyed and considerable work was accomplished. The thankoffering boxes and envelopes were handed in and a large sum was realized.

Last July the outstanding notes discounted by the church were $1,309 and at the present time they total $800. The reduction was made possible by subscriptions to the special debt found and an effort is now to be made to cancel the remainder.

Rev. Birney S. Hudson will take part in the Young People's Institute to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening in the First Baptist church, Morristown. A number of the younger people of the church will also attend.

Fads, Fancies and Suggestions for Women Folk Who Practice Economy in the Home.

Fetching Blouse For Southern Wear

CREAMY CRAPE over a net foundation with a hemstitched tail overhanging the skirt belt gives this interesting blouse. Sleeves are tucked at the elbows and wristbanded with narrow creamy taffeta ribbon, which, along with ball buttons, achieves a surplice. The dainty flower baskets are of gay colored beads.

• • •

A fad of the moment is to trim the boudoir cap with ribbon matching in color the trimming of the nightdress, be this a delicate touch of colored embroidery, a binding of colored material at neck and sleeve or the ribbon that draws the gown up about the neck.

• • •

Manufacturers of footwear seem to worry about the long skirt fashions. It must not be forgotten that short dresses have given women a taste for elegance and originality in boots and shoes. Also long dresses need to be held up, so that, after all, ankles will be as much in view as ever when a woman walks or dances. Some tricorns, tams and sailors with barettes ill suit shapes well off the head. They give the whole contour of it an entirely different air, raising the hat brim far away from the hair. So between the long skirts and these raised up hats stout women will have a fair chance to appear lithe and willowy.

• • •

Some of the gauntlet gloves for motorists reach almost to the elbow. They can be had lined with fur for cold weather driving.

• • •

Smart button shoes of regulation height displayed alongside the still popular lace boot of extreme ankle height are in favor.

• • •

A dainty chemise of crepe de chine is devoid of any trimming save a lacing of satin ribbon in self color up the front.

ANNA MAY.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

MAYONNAISE FOR FALL.

BEAT two eggs for ten minutes, or until very light and full of air cells. As the secret of a fine mayonnaise is constant beating to make it light and smooth, one had best have a small churn egg beater or a wire spoon. To the egg should be added very slowly one-half cupful of olive oil, one tablespoonful of melted butter may be added, with the juice of three lemons. All should be well beaten. Next add salt, pepper and a little celery salt, if liked. Some add a spoonful of sugar, mustard and other condiments. This makes an uncooked mayonnaise. If one wishes it cooked it must be placed in a double boiler and stirred until it begins to cream. Then it should be removed from the fire and beaten very light with an egg beater. Pour into a glass jar and keep it in a cold place. A little may be taken out and colored with tomatoes to make a red mayonnaise. Green mayonnaise is secured by mixing a generous quantity of previously boiled chopped parsley with the mayonnaise dressing. Omit yellow of egg or ketchup when this is used.

Butter Mayonnaise.—Take the yolks of six eggs, two teaspoonfuls of salt one teaspoonful of mustard, one table spoonful of sugar, one cupful of milk and one-half cupful of vinegar. Place all except the vinegar in a double boiler. When heated, add the vinegar and stir until it has the consistency of thick cream. Keep in a cool place.

Mayonnaise With Condensed Milk.—A delicious creamy dressing can be made with the following ingredients: One-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard, one heaping teaspoonful of sugar, a pinch of red pepper and mix thoroughly; then add one egg and beat well with an egg beater, adding olive oil slowly until it commences to thicken. Then add the strained juice of one-half a lemon and one-half a teacupful of condensed milk beating all the time. The addition of the milk doubles the quantity of the dressing and adds greatly to its flavor. This will be as firm as whipped cream and will keep indefinitely.

French Dressing.—Have a clean quart fruit jar with a good rubber and lid. Into the jar put two tumblers full of beer salad oil, one-half cupful of white vinegar, a heaping teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of cayenne. Place on the rubber and lid, screw the lid down tight, then shake until the whole is mixed and forms an emulsion. Shake the jar sidewise rather than up and down. It is then ready to pour over the salad. Will keep for weeks in an ice chest.

Boiled Salad Dressing.—A boiled salad dressing without oil is made as follows: Cook together one tablespoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of flour, add one-half cupful of hot vinegar, pour the whole while hot into one well beaten egg. Cook one minute and set aside to cool. Add one-half a teaspoonful each of mustard, salt and sugar. Thin with cream, milk or whipped cream.

Where Eating Is a Trade.

"Maccheroni" eating is a trade with the street beggar of Italy and apparently a satisfying one to men and boys gifted with copper interiors immune to heat. One of the most familiar cries of the beggar is, "Signore, dame cinque soldi, mangia maccheroni!" ("Mister, gimme a nickel for macaroni!") And usually the plea ends with a lugubrious whine, "Oh, mnori di fame!" ("Oh, I am dying of hunger!")—National Geographic Magazine.

Our Query and Reply Department

How many states have furnished presidents of the United States and how many each?

Of the forty-eight states now constituting the Union eleven have furnished presidents, viz: Virginia, five; Ohio, five; New York, five; Tennessee, three; Massachusetts, two; Illinois, two; New Hampshire, one; Pennsylvania, one Indiana, one; Louisiana, one, and New Jersey, one.

Are there any pretenders to the French throne now living?

Yes. Bonapartist, Prince Victor Napoleon; Bourbon.Orleanist, Philip, Duke of Orleans.

Who first called England "a" nation of shopkeepers?"

The expression has often been attributed to Napoleon, as used in a contemptuous sense, but it has not been cited or found in any writing or speech by him. It has also been attributed to Samuel Adams, a fiery orator of the Revolutionary period. In a speech purporting to have been delivered in Philadelphia Aug. 1, 1776, he is said to have stigmatized the English as "a nation of shoppers," but the authenticity of the speech has been disputed. Adam Smith, Scotch political economist, used the exact phrase without distinctly applying it to the English. In his "Inquiry Into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations," published in 1775, he said, "To found a great empire for the sole purpose of raising up a people of customers may, at first sight, appear a project fit only for a nation of shopkeepers." This appears to be the earliest known use of the expression "nation of shopkeepers," and, although Adam Smith did not apply it to England, whoever did so later may have borrowed the expression from him.

Have any women taken part in the actual hostilities in this war?

The Russians reported that several women have fought in the ranks of their army.

Was General Grant in the regular army at the time of our war with Mexico? If so, what rank did he have? Did he personally approve of that war?

At the beginning of the war he was second lieutenant in the Fourth infantry and later was promoted to first lieutenant. There was a good deal of opposition to the war at the time of a semipolitical character, and young Grant seems to have shared in it. In his autobiography, written long after the civil war, he says, referring to the annexation of Texas: "For myself I was bitterly opposed to the measure and to this day regard the war which resulted as one of the most unjust ever waged by a stronger against a weaker nation. It was an instance of a republic following the bad example of European monarchies in not considering justice in their desire to acquire additional territory."

Will you please give me a sketch of the Roumanian army, its strength in men, artillery, etc.?

The Roumanian army may be said to date from 1882, in which year four army corps were created and gradually supplied with all their troops and services. In 1891 a fusion was effected between this new army and a force of some 64,000 territorials. The whole Roumanian army then amounted to thirty-four infantry regiments, with one battalion active and two territorial. Behind these troops there stood the untrained militia and the levy in mass. At this time the nominal training of the territorials amounted to sixty days in the spring and thirty days in the autumn of their first year and thirty days each year thereafter. In 1902 the numbers had risen to 90,700 in the active army and 75,000 territorials. Various reforms were introduced in the years 1908-11 and more liberal grants of money for military purposes made, so that at the beginning of this war the strength of the Roumanian army was 133,000 of all ranks on a peace footing, with 24,000 horses and 630 guns. This army in 1914 was able to mobilize 220 battalions, 83 squadrons, 124 field and howitzer batteries, 16 fortress artillery companies and 13 technical companies. These troops represent a fighting strength of 250,000 rifles, 18,000 sabers, 600 modern and 200 older field guns and howitzers and 300 machine guns. Behind this army of operations was a second line army of trained men amounting to about 150,000 rifles. Behind these again were about 400,000 very defectively trained or untrained men. It therefore seems from the above figures that at the maximum the trained Roumanian army, including reserves, will not run much above 450,000.

Please tell about the extent of the bee industry in this country.

In 1910 the department of agriculture estimated that there were 3,445,000 colonies of bees in this country, valued at $10,373,614. It was also estimated that the annual value of honey and wax produced was in the neighborhood of $35,000,000.

How many national holidays are there in the United States? Is Fourth of July a national holiday?

There is no national holiday, not even the Fourth of July. Congress has at various times appointed special holidays. In the second session of the Fifty-third congress it passed an act making Labor day a public holiday in the District of Columbia, and it has recognized the existence of certain days as holidays for commercial purposes, but with the exception named there is no general statute on the subject. The proclamation of the president designating a day of thanksgiving only makes it a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories. There are over fifty legal holidays observed in the various states and territories.

About how many British combatants engaged in the battles of Mons and Ypres respectively.

At Mons about 85,000, at Ypres about 125,000

Has King Ferdinand of Roumania any children? If so, give their names. Who is his wife?

Carol, born 1893; Elizabeth, 1894; Marie, 1899; Nicholas, 1903; Ileana, 1908; Mircia, 1912. The present queen of Roumania is Marie, formerly princess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

Who is the oldest and who is the youngest sovereign in Europe?

The oldest is Francis Joseph, emperor of Austria, aged eighty-six. The youngest is Marie, grand duchess of Luxemburg, just over twenty-two.

At the time Wilson demanded that Huerta salute the flag was Huerta president of Mexico or had the government been seized by Carranza, and if taken by Carranza had Carranza been "recognized" by this government?

When President Wilson asked Huerta to salute the American flag in the spring of 1914 Huerta was in control of the government. After Madero had been assassinated and Huerta and his followers had seized the government Huerta endeavored to secure the recognition of his government by the United States. This request President Wilson refused to grant. The sailor episode, which brought out the request that the Mexican government salute the American flag, occurred April 9, 1914. Huerta resigned on July 15, and Francisco Carbajal had charge of the government in the interim between Huerta's departure and its surrender to General Obregon, representing Carranza, on Aug. 12.

Why was the White House so called?

The home of the presidents was named in honor of the White House, the Virginia home of Martha Washington, in New Kent county, in which her wedding occurred. Washington had many pleasant memories of that residence, and it was he who suggested the building of a "White House" for the presidents. The house is constructed of freestone, which is excessively porous and consequently would be very damp in the interior were it not for a thick coat of white lead, which is applied about once in ten years at a great expense.

How many pensioners are there now on the United States pension rolls and the total amount paid? How many now living in foreign countries and total amounts paid?

During the year ending June 20, 1915, the number of persons on the pension rolls in the United States was 748,327, and the total amount paid them was $164,587,494. The total number of pensioners living in all foreign countries was 4,020, and the total amount paid them was $945,220.

What are the prerogatives of the king of England?

Many parts of the king's prerogatives have been regulated and modified by statute, and in such cases it is not always clear whether the authority now exercised is derived from statute or from the prerogative. All legislative power, asserted Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, professor of the science of government at Harvard university, is vested in the king and parliament—that is, in the king acting in concert with the two houses. Legally, every act requires the royal assent, and, indeed, the houses can transact business only during the pleasure of the crown, which summons and prorogues them, and can at any moment dissolve the house of commons. But it is important to note that by itself and apart from parliament the crown has today within the United Kingdom no inherent legislative power whatever. This was not always true, for legislation has at times been enacted by the crown alone in the form of ordinances or proclamations, but the practice may be said to have received its death blow from the famous opinion of Lord Coke, "that the king by his proclamation cannot create an offense before, for then he may alter the law of the land." The English crown has therefore no inherent power to make ordinances for completing the laws, such as is possessed by the chief magistrate in France and other continental states.

DEBATE ON LIQUOR QUESTION IN THEATRE.

The next Sunday afternoon service of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the Plainfield Theatre on February 11. At that time a debate on the liquor question will take place between Carlyle and Pierpont. Both men travel over the country debating on the question before large audiences and their appearance in this city should insure an interesting afternoon.

This Sunday the young men of the association will meet in the rooms of the building on East Front street. At 5 o'clock there will be moving pictures of Cooper's works, illustrative of Biblical times. Supper will follow at 6 o'clock. Bible study at 6:30, and at 7:30 those present will attend the services at one of the local churches in a body.

SHUBERT LINSCOTT AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH.

Sunday afternoon at 4:45 there will be a musical service in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, the entire program of which will be made up of selections from Mendelssohn's works. The organ recital by Dr. E. Mettler Davis will occupy the first fifteen minutes of the service. It will consist of "Priest's March," "Spinning Song," "Spring Song" and "Andate," violin concerto.

At 5 o'clock the choir will sing portions of Mendelssohn's "Elijah." The solo parts will be: "Ye People Rend Your Hearts," tenor; "It is Enough; Oh Lord," baritone; "Oh Rest in the Lord," contralto, and "Hear Ye, Os Isreal," soprano. The quartet is composed of Miss Lillian Vernon Watts, soprano; Miss Grace J. Carroll, contralto; Samuel E. Craig, tenor, and Herbert G. Linscott, baritone.

This service will be open to the public and a very cordial invitation is extended to those wishing to attend.

DR. RANDOLPH HAS DECLINED LOCAL CALL.

Word was received by the trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist church within the last few days from Alfred, N. Y., that Rev. Paul E. Titsworth would be unable to accept the call to the pastorate of the local church. He is at present a professor in modern languages at Alfred University and feels that his work there is too important to leave at present. He is a son of the late Wardner Titsworth, of Dunellen, and a nephew of Lewis T. Titsworth, of this city.

A meeting of the congregation will be held in the near future, at which time another clergyman will be named.

BIBLE CLASSES GIVE RECEPTION FOR 200.

Nearly two hundred of the members of the Matlack and Probasco Bible Classes of the First Baptist church enjoyed a social evening in the chapel of the church last night. A program of games, recitations and singing was enjoyed. Vocal selections were contributed by Luther Banks and Carl Wilson and Miss Wooden and Everett Banks rendered several pieces on the violin. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Mrs. Charlton Smith, Miss Alice Terry, Arthur Pearson and Carl Wilson arranged for the affair.

WILL ASSIST KNIGHTS IN COMING BAZAAR.

A special meeting of a committee appointed at the weekly meeting of the St. Joseph's Bible Class to assist the Knights of Columbus with their coming fair was held last Sunday evening, when preliminary plans were discussed.

The North Plainfield parish will probably have a booth at the fair and it is expected that each of the borough church organizations will appoint a special committee to assist with the work attached to the maintenance of such a booth.

CRESCENT AVENUE.

The mid-week prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church next Wednesday evening will take the shape of a missionary service. Miss Frederica R. Mead and Lawrence M. Mead, of this city, will give an illustrated lecture on their work in China, from where they returned recently after a two years' stay.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Dr. Parkes S. Cadman, who has given lectures in this city on several recent occasions, will address the Men's Club of the Congregational church on Tuesday night in the parish house of the church on "Life on the Mexican border." Mr. Cadman is a widely known Brooklyn clergyman.

DUTCH SUPPER.

The annual Dutch supper of the St. Peter's Lutheran church will be held in Debele's auditorium on February 15 under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the church. Arrangements are also being made for a musical program and several speakers are expected to be present.

GRACE M. E.

Rev. Charles S. Gillespe entertained ten young couple at his home last night, they all having been married by Mr. Gillespie since he became pastor of the local church two years ago. An enjoyable evening with music and games was enjoyed and later refreshments were served.

ASSIGNED TO DIOCESE.

Rev. Bryant Harman, of West Eighth street, who was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic church on December 23, left on Tuesday for California, where he has been assigned to a church in the Los Angeles diocese.

100 'Planes a Week and Maybe More

One hundred aeroplanes a week, and if the speed-up of wartime manufacturing efficiency comes, from 200 to 300 machines a week—that's what the aeroplane manufacturers of the United States can do if it's necessary. Nineteen of the twenty-one air-craft manufacturers in the United States have been holding a "two days' executive session at the Hotel Manhattan, New York, and on Wednesday formed a temporary organization with Harry B. Mingle, of the Standard Aero Corporation, of this city, as president. A committee of seven has been appointed to perfect plans for a permanent organization to be known as the Airplane Manufacturers' Association.

At yesterday's meeting the association passed resolutions which will be sent to President Wilson pledging the association's full support in case of war.

Under present conditions the output of the local concern is about one machine a day but if need be facilities could be increased so as to double the output. The concern is now engaged in the manufacturing of nearly fifty machines of different types for the Government and will continue to construct craft for Federal use so long as is needed.

Before the European war the United States led the world in the manufacture of aeroplanes but at present the Government has only about three hundred in service, 125 of which are at Fort Washington, L. I., Newport News, Philadelphia and Hempstead, L. I., and in Florida. The fleet can overlook the Atlantic coast for nearly 300 miles out.

Many Pupils Leaving School

During the year ending September, 1916, the High School had enrolled 746 pupils. Of these 162 left during the school year. The reasons for leaving were as follows: Ill health, 16; left town, 16; went to work, 17; indifference, 25; joined other schools, 28; dissatisfied with their progress, 12; reasons unknown, 10.

Only about 17 per cent. of those leaving did so because of attraction of work. This was only a little more than one-fifth of the total membership of the school.

There were 81 other pupils that did not return when school opened in the fall; 43 of these were pupils who failed to win promotion. The proportion of pupils who left for work is therefore very small.

The total number leaving during the year, two years ago, was 15 less, but the pupils leaving school to go to work in that year were 5 more than last year.

In the grades, the number dropping out of school to go to work is larger. During the last school year, 173 who had not finished the eighth grade left school to go to work. The year previous, it was 125. Three years ago, the number leaving the grades to go to work was 53. The number leaving the gradse to go to work during the five months of the present term is less than in the same period of last year.

State Dental Board Selected by Governor

Governor Edge Tuesday formally named the State Board of Registration and Examination in dentistry. Under the law these names are not submitted to the Senate for confirmation, but the selections are made on the recommendation of the State Dental Society.

Governor Fielder, when in office, protested against this restriction on him. Governor Edge in his campaign said he would obey the law. The members of the board named are Dr. A. B. Wescott, Atlantic City, 4 years; Dr. C. T. A. Hane, Jersey City, 4 years; Dr. Walter H. Barry, Orange, 4 years; Dr. C. M. F. Ezel, Westfield, 3 years; H. S. Hopkins, Newark, 2 years.

Father McDonald Leaves Plainfield

The Rev. Joseph S. McDonald, who has served as curate at St. Mary's church, this city, for the past three years, was today notified of his transfer to a similar pastorate in St. Peter's church, Jersey City.

Father McDonald is a native of Paterson and during his religious work in this city he has made a host of friends who left this afternoon for Jersey City and will take up his new duties immediately.

Local Exhibit Show's Pride

Plainfield's name occupies a prominent position in the first aero show that opened at the Grand Central Palace, New York, yesterday by reason of the Standard Aero Corporation, of North Avenue, being one of the principal exhibitors. President Wilson opened the affair that marks one chapter in the world's history by touching a button which sent a message over the wires to several receiving instruments rigged up in machines on exhibition.

From the advance sale of tickets it is expected that hundreds of thousands will visit the show before it closes; including many Plainfielders. A large number of the employes of the local airplane concern will visit the show in a body, while a number of them are there all the time with the machines exhibited by the concern.

Men's Club Hear A Noted Lecturer

In the parish house of the Grace Protestant Episcopal church last evening, the Men's Club of that church held its annual banquet. Although the advance date set for the event was last November, a postponement was found necessary at that time. There were fifty-one covers laid for last evening's affair and a bountiful repast was served by Caterer Johnson. The festive board was in the shape of a horseshoe and was beautifully decorated. William Tallamy, president of the Men's Club, was toastmaster.

During the evening music was furnished by Fred Vaughan and John Taylor, vocal selections also being rendered by them with the assistance of George Jackson, Albert Somerset and Eddie Ford. Southern melodies were popular. The quintet favored with banjo, mandolin and guitar selections of southern airs. Mr. Tallamy called on several of the members for short speeches, each one responding in a happy and interesting vein. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. C. C. Tinker, of New York city, who selected as his topic, "America's Great City Mission."

Dr. Tinker opened his address in a forceful manner, referring to his first attempt at preaching. However, he quickly adopted a more serious attitude in discussing the work of the City Missions. One particularly striking incident related by the speaker was that of a Syrian immigrant who was holding a conversation with another immigrant. The Syrian was asking the question concerning of the other said that the Holy Land of the Scriptures was not the Holy Land of today. The Syrian ventured the opinion that America was the real Holy Land, because in New York city there is more attention paid to religious matters and to the spiritual welfare of the immigrant than in any other city in he United States.

Dr. Tinker said that the City Mission of the Episcopal Church was established eighty-five years ago as an experiment, and the challenge hurled at the Episcopalians by the newspapers of the day. The dailies claimed that the Episcopal church was not the church of the poor. In response to this charge it decided to establish the City Mission. As a result of that foundation there have sprung up a large number of missions, cared for by 2,000 workers and reaching 1,000 people every day. Under the care of the Episcopal church there has been built the St. Boniface's House for women, who have no place to go. This institution is still doing good work, numerous instances illustrating that fact having been related by the speaker.

The problem of bringing religion to those in public institutions was also encountered. As a result of the fact that the Episcopal church was the first to establish the City Mission, it was given entire charge of the work of all the Protestant denominations in the public institutions.

Concluding his talk, the clergyman told the men that it required a budget of $31,000 to maintain the City Mission and thanked the many local supporters for the assistance given by them in the past.

City Prepared to Meet Any War Demand

Plainfield is prepared in the event of trouble coming from the present crisis, to at any time of national need for that matter, to do its share toward helping defend the United States against a foe. That fact can be stated with positive assurity following a close inspection of the various factories, military units and private citizens of the city.

Of all the concerns in the city or vicinity that do any amount of manufacturing, the Standard Aero Corporation, with two plants on upper North avenue, is the concern whose help would be first and most gladly received. The corporation is one of the largest and most dependable in the country and with the industry in its infancy would be of immense value in supplying the Government's demands for aircraft. The concern at the present time is entirely occupied with filling Federal orders for machines amounting to $1,055,000, and should the advent of the present trouble has been working at top speed to complete the orders, if possible, ahead of time. At the best, the concern would not be able with its present facilities to handle new contracts for delivery before June 1.

For the past week villagers has been redoubled in the allowing of strangers to approach the concern's plants, although it is not expected by anyone would try to harm things. Between 200 and 250 are now employed at the two factories and in case of urgent need the number could be increased.

Word coming from the New York offices of the Ransome Concrete Company this week place at the disposal of the Government the concern's plant at Dunellen. Johnson & Johnson, of New Brunswick, the Royal Baking Powder Comany, at Rahway, and other concerns around this section of the State also appear on the list issued by the War Department as having offered their services.

The remainder of the concerns in the city, not specified above, were not of the opinion that the plants would be needed. In the case of Pond Tool Works, Hall's Printing Press Works and the Lever Construction Company, officials at the plants said that it rested with the New York offices, although they were of the opinion that if it was learned that the factories might be of use they would be offered. An official at Potter's Press Works would say nothing in reply to the question as to whether or not the plant had been placed at the Government's disposal beyond that as yet.

At the Saurer plant an officer of the concern took the optimistic view that the services of the factory did not have to be offered because it the Government wanted to use it they would wh..thers the company wanted it to or not. The concern has, however, submitted a report of its facilities, nature of output and other data to the War Department in the shape of a report, as has several of the other larger local factories.

Local concerns, including the Plainfield-Union Water Company and New York Telephone Company, have employed extra guards and will not admit anyone to the grounds unless they are identified.

That Troop D and Company K are ready to do their share is evidenced by the manner in which the progress of affairs is received at the headquarters of each. Captain Patterson has den at its head still and numbering seventy men. Troop D is ready for service at a moment's notice. Having passed the recent Federal inspection with 100 per cent. efficiency, the troop ranks high in cavalry circles and would receive an early call in case of need. Captain Peterson is also ready to vouch for Company K and says it is ready for any emergency. Both constantly guard their headquarters now.

Plainfield will be well represented in high official circles by several men if need be. Dr. William M. Saunders, of the borough, is a member of the recently formed Naval Division of the State and stands high in Democratic councils. Dr. Moldenke, of Watchung, has offered his services to President Wilson in a recent letter. He is a graduate of Yale and is in the production of steel and iron and on several occasions has been of aid to the Government. Although of German descent, Dr. Moldenke says that he is for America first and last.

James Wotton, a wireless operator, of West Sixth street, has been called to the national service and is now stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He has been on duty since Sunday, as has Stanley Bellows, another local boy, who is doing guard duty with the New York Naval Reserves along the Hudson. Other Plainfielders that are members of New York National Guard regiments are holding themselves in readiness for a call, among them being Fred Vogel, who is a captain in the Seventh.

Keen Interest in Campaign for Big Fund

Episcopal parishes are evidencing considerable interest in connection with the campaign to raise $5,000,000 as a reserve for the Church Pension Fund. This large cash reserve represents the amount estimated by the directors of the corporation as necessary to pay claims of the clergymen who are already approaching the age of retirement. For future generations the system provides an assessment of 7½% as sufficient to liquidate the obligations undertaken by the fund.

The Rev. E. Vears Stevenson, rector of Grace Episcopal church, this city, represents the interests of the Church Pension Fund in the counties of Middlesex, Hunterdon, Union and Somerset. The Rev. R. M. Church takes charge of Grace church in the meantime. Mr. Stevenson has already visited every Episcopal parish in his district, and committees of laymen have been appointed in each parish to receive pledges to the fund. In the city parish, the committees are working energetically, and most promising results are assured. Already many handsome contributions have been made, and on Quinquagesima Sunday—February 25—each offering for the cause will be taken in all Episcopal churches.

Plainfield always stands for progress and when final reports are attained, the local churchmen will have reasonable pride for their invested share in this unprecedented accomplishment. Record from the general office, 14 Wall street, show that over $4,500,000 has been subscribed, and from present indications, it may be anticipated that the receipts will be well over $5,000,000. The cause merits the investment, and the Right Reverend William Lawrence, Bishop of Massachusetts, deserves all praise given him for his unceasing and optimistic endeavors.

Increase for Health Officer

When the Plainfield Board of Health met in monthly session Tuesday evening an increase in the salary of Health Officer Randolph Chandler from $1,400 to $1,500 a year and also acted favorably on the application of Inspector John J. Casey for an increase. The action brings the annual salary figure of the local health department up to $6,210 a year. This is distributed as follows: Health officer, $1,500; assistant health officer, Miss H. O. Mattison, $1,200; inspectors, two, at $720 each; plumbing inspector, $1,000; stenographer, $1,130.

No action was taken on the resignation of Plumbing Inspector William Addis, Sr., but it is expected that a special meeting will be called in the near future to dispose of this question. Mr. Addis will complete twenty years' service in this position next Monday and he is eligible to retire with a pension at that time. The question of a pension has not as yet been determined by the Board.

SERVES STOP NOTICE.

Robert Newton Crane, counsel for Anthony Albert, of South Plainfield, has filed a stop notice with Arthur E. Crone, custodian of school funds and the Board of Education, to restrain further payment of any money to W. H. Dennick, contractor, who built the Emerson avenue school. Albert's claim is for $3,620 and the total amount due Dennick on the contract is only $4,402.56.

Junior Court Will Become Reality Here

Following the example of Elizabeth and other New Jersey cities Plainfield is likely to have in the near future a juvenile court. This will be conducted by City Judge William G. DeMeza on Saturday mornings and in it will be arraigned youthful offenders who are arrested during the week. The plan is to separate the younger prisoners from the older ones and devote one morning to the trial of their cases.

Nothing definite has been done as yet regarding the proposition but Judge De Meza has had it under advisement for sometime past and believes its establishment is essential in the city. He has made a thorough study of juvenile cases and the one morning a week court plan appears to be the most feasible solution to the question of adding the wayward junior. Saturday morning is selected because it is a school holiday and a certain percentage of the younger offenders are kept away from their studies on the mornings they appear.

This is a matter that resest entirely with the city judge and he will probably ask Probation Officer Irwin to co-operate with him in the work. Mr. Irwin has made a practice of visiting court on Saturdays and his aid would in all likelihood prove valuable in the juvenile trials.

In an interview with a Record reporter today Judge DeMeza said: "In my opinion the juvenile court morning, preferably Saturday, is the only satisfactory method of dealing with the young prisoners. I have always regretted to arraign these youngsters with older and hardened criminals and the rush of work during the regular court days often prevents me from not permit me to give these junior offenders the attention and advice they deserve."

Trolley Victim Dies Week After Mishap

After hovering between life and death since he was admitted to the institution a week ago, Alonzo Craft, colored, died in Muhlenberg Hospital last night as the result of injuries received in an accident last Friday morning.

Although his relatives have not been located, Craft is known to have just arrived from Virginia. So much was gained from him before he lapsed into unconsciousness after he had been run over by a Union trolley at Richmond street and North avenue early Friday morning. Witnesses of the accident say that Craft was standing on the curb as the trolley passed and suddenly darted out and flung himself in front of it.

Postpone Action On Machinists' Issue

The machinists of the Pond Tool Works held another mass meeting last night in Building Trade Hall, West Front street, and after discussing for several hours the situation growing out of the demand of the men for a wage increase, the meeting was postponed until Monday night, when the labor officials will make a definite report concerning the steps the officers of the concern are willing to take in meetings the demands.

Assistant District Agent Charles Wright, of Newark, was present and was of the opinion that the concern should be given more time in which to either accept or reject the proposition made with the understanding that if they were not met by Monday the day would be set for a general walkout.

Co. K Appeals for Assistance

Company K has sent out an appeal to the citizens for co-operation in its drive made this week, stating that the object of the annual event is to raise money to help maintain the company as one of the leading militia companies in New Jersey. Every cent realized is to be used for military purposes.

The appeal issued by the Company states that while the money appropriated by Union county and the State of New Jersey is not nearly enough to maintain the National Guardsmen. The militiamen announce that in view of the fact that the city needs appropriation is made and the same methods are still in vogue, as in years past, it is absolutely necessary to conduct this annual fair.

ASKED FOR ESTIMATE.

The engineering firm of Fuller & McClintock, of this city, was retained by the Fanwood Common Council at its meeting Wednesday night to make a survey of the borough in order to estimate the cost of installing a trunk sewer line. A committee has been appointed from the Council to confer with the city with regard to attaching the line to Plainfield's at the boundary line. It is expected to cost $200,000.

Teachers Out For Increase

Claiming that the cost of living has increased over fifty per cent., that the cost of clothing and other commodities has soared to unbelievable heights and that it is fast becoming a question for mathematical calculation if they have to continue long under existing conditions, the teachers of the local public schools have presented a petition to the Board of Education asking that they be "treated as handsomely as in 1911." The matter is now being carefully investigated and if it is found that the teachers really need a raise it is probable that provision will be made when the budget for next year is made up.

The local teachers are not the only ones to ask for relief from present conditions, as those of Westfield, Asbury Park, Jersey City and many other municipalities have done so and in most cases their requests have been received with favor. Many of the instructors are married and have families to support and say that it is fact becoming impossible to make both ends meet.

About 160 teachers are affected by the petition handed to the local Board of Education and while they ask for no stated amount, in hoping to receive the same treatment as in 1911 it is expected that they will get $100 apiece. The petition was divided into two sections, one being signed by all of the teachers in the grammar grades, while the other was presented by Professor Henry C. Hubbard, head of the science department, and assistant principal, on behalf of the teachers of the High School.

There will be a number of good sporting events on tap also. A number of local basketball games will be played in both afternoon and evening.

Will Contest $50,000 Claim for Sea Loss

The Plainfield Charity Organization, together with the State and Jersey City authorities, has instituted a world wide search in an effort to find John Williams, at one time a resident of this city, who is wanted on a charge of abandoning his two children, Edith, aged twelve, and Edward, aged eleven. In the meantime the little girl is waiting patiently in a Jersey City children's home for the time to come when she will have a little sunlight in her life after two years of continual sorrow, while her brother is being taken care of in this city under the direction of the Charity Organization.

Williams, after leaving his son in this city and his daughter in Jersey City, disappeared several months ago and since that time has defied all efforts to locate him. That he may now be in Europe is probable, as the supposition is that he has returned to his calling as steward and is now located on one of the liners plying between this country and England.

Since May, 1915, when the world was startled by the sinking of the Lusitania with hundreds of people on board, Williams has been creating more or less trouble. At the time he was steward on the Cunard liner "Coronia." Being an Englishman by birth, his relatives lived in that country and early in 1915 he sent word to his wife and six children, who lived on West Third street, this city, to go to England to his relatives. Then Williams left Jersey on the ill-fated vessel and when the victims were tallied it was found that his wife and four children were among the victims.

Claiming that he was an American citizen, Williams put in a claim against the Cunard line for $10,000 for each of his children and his wife. All further efforts have now been barred by a court order and it is the hope of the authorities that when the court takes up the question of settlement Williams will appear to press his claim and thus be apprehended. Meanwhile, the two remaining children, separated and left to shift for themselves, are old beyond their years with no one to look out for them.

City Militia Units Ready to Answer Call to Arms at a Moment's Notice

Plainfield's militia units have been kept on "edge" during the past week in anticipation of further orders from the State militia heads. Troop D, First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry, and Company K, Second Infantry, have held several meetings during the past fortnight and the official commissioned personnel is awaiting further developments. Men in both commands have been ordered to keep in readiness for action at short notice and the equipment is in shape for immediate mobilization.

To the end that the National Guard may be recruited to war strength immediately, recruiting departments of all branches of the State militia have opened campaigns to get additional members for the various companies.

The entire National Guard of the State is now under orders that closely approach war orders. Every precaution has been taken by the departmental, division, brigade and regimental commanders to have the troops prepared for a call to arms. The recruiting will continue until each branch of the service has been built up to war strength.

Additional supplies will be forthcoming for the enlarged commands under the $100,000 emergency appropriation for military purposes authorized by the Legislature yesterday.

Preliminary precautions were taken by Governor Edge, as commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of New Jersey, early in the week when he issued the following statement to Captain Albert J. Borden, of Troop D, and Captain Charles Peterson, of Company K:

"Instructions were issued by wire Saturday, February 3, to all organization commanders of the Guard to immediately take measures to insure safety to all materials, ammunition, armories and their contents; also to naval militia officers regarding ships and stores. Provision for meeting any emergency that might arise requiring the State forces to be used was made. These arrangements have been made quietly but thoroughly and without such publicity as would endanger the success of plans. A due regard has been given the fact that hostilities are still a matter for future determination, and in the absence of orders from Washington no action has been taken by the State National Guard which would not be in strict accord with our national attitude in existing circumstances.

"If mobilization should become necessary, arrangements are already complete which would insure the assembling of the troops at proper stations within a few hours."

Adjutant General Charles W. Barber has had the State militia and naval forces in reserve for duty at a few hours' notice during the entire week. There are 4,125 members of the National Guard subject to duty in or out of the country. In accordance with his preliminary plan Governor Edge also telegraphed President Wilson of the State's readiness for a call to duty.

To make further plans for assembling of troops at Sea Girt or any other given point of mobilization, Adjutant General Barber and brigade, regimental and departmental officers met in a general military conference in the offices of the Adjutant General at the State House at 11 o'clock Monday morning. At this conference details of transportation of troops, establishment of provision stores and opening of a mobilization camp were discussed and definite plans for active participation by New Jersey troops in any emergency were fully made. After the conference General Barber announced that no matter how active might be required of New Jersey troops, they would be found fully prepared. He added that:

"Means of meeting any exigency created by receipt of orders to mobilize were discussed and tentative plans to such end formulated."

After the conference the participating officers called upon Governor Edge in a body and informed him of the plans that had been discussed and they were unqualifiedly approved by the Governor.

Those who participated in the general conference were:

Adjutant General Charles W. Barber, Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, Colonel John D. Fraser, of the First Infantry; Colonel Horace M. Reading, of the Second Infantry; Col. Robert T. Vickers, of the Fourth Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel D. T. Mathers, of the Third Infantry; Colonel Henry D. Styer, U. S. A.; Colonel Charles M. Rogers, Major W. S. Price, Lieutenant-Colonel W. G. Schauffler, Lieutenant-Colonel David S. Hill, chief of the Quartermaster's Department; Major H. B. Brown, commanding the First Squadron of Cavalry; Captain C. E. Lauterman, of Battery A, Field Artillery, and Captain S. G. Barnard, Battery B, Field Artillery.

An emergency appropriation of $100,000 for State preparedness in the present international situation was voted by the Senate Tuesday. Governor Edge and Adjutant General Barber conferred on the matter before the Senate met, after which General Barber took the question up with Senator Meehan, the Republican leader, and the bill was immediately drawn. Senator McCran spoke to Senator Florance, of Middlesex, the

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph of Richer Tone That You Can Play

Tonal richness and fidelity distinguish the Vocalion. Deep voices of the orchestra that the talking machine intones but dully, high notes of the human voice that have sounded so thinly from your records—these and all the tonal beauties with which music is enriched, the Aeolian-Vocalion re-voices undimmed in splendor, unchanged in subtlest quality.

AND THE WONDERFUL

GRADUOLA

This remarkable invention, second in importance only to the invention of the phonograph itself, has made the Vocalion truly a musical marvel. Through the delicate tone-control which this ingenious device provides, you literally may sing with the voices of the greatest artists—play with the skill and technique of the greatest instrumentalists.

All Models of the Vocalion Are Sold on Liberal Charge Terms

The Aeolian-Vocalion is on exhibition and sale, in New York, only at Aeolian Hall. Whether or not you are a possible purchaser, you are cordially invited to hear the instrument demonstrated

EDISON

HAS MADE THE PHONOGRAPH

A TRULY ARTISTIC INSTRUMENT

The day of the talking machine is passing. It was important as a stimulator of musical desire—as pointing to the possibilities that might come through the perfection of the instrument that Thomas Edison invented thirty years ago.

Now that Mr. Edison has perfected his favorite invention, the phonograph is no longer a mere mechanical reproducer of sounds.

Today the Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph Actually Re-Creates the Music It Plays.

The voice that sings is so real that you look to see the singer. The music of the violin makes you expect to see the virtuoso. The illusion is perfect. The music is as satisfying as it is delightful.

Wouldn't it be a pity to pay a hundred dollars or more for an instrument that should last a lifetime and then discover that there was

AN INFINITELY BETTER PHONOGRAPH TO BE HAD FOR THE SAME MONEY?

Don't make this important investment before hearing

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

Ben Welch, the Hebrew comedian who pilots his own burlesque show throughout the country when he is not headlining the bill at some of the big time vaudeville houses, will come to the Columbia Theatre the week beginning Monday afternoon, February 12, at the head of his own company. He will be seen in two new one-act burlesques specially written for him called, respectively, "Love Arbor" and "The New Commander," with book by Peter F. Carr and original music by Harry Von Tilzer. The author is said to have provided Mr. Welch with perfect opportunities for the display of his skill as a fun-maker and of his adaptability to other lines of characterization than the Hebrew. Mr. Welch will also give his well known and intensely amusing monologue which has placed him solidly among the leading vaudeville players of more than ordinary popularity including Pat Kearney, Frank P. Murphy, Florence Rother, Billy Wild, Vic Casmore, Hilda Glides, Sid Gold, Leona Earl and May Dolly.

HIPPODROME'S TRIUMPH.

Charles Dillingham has scored another great triumph as the big Hippodrome now boasts of the greatest success of its remarkable career. In approaching the seventh month of its run, the skilful manager has so enriched and elaborated "The Big Show" with the introduction of Annette Kellermann and the numerous other new attractions that it is conceded by everyone to be the most popular and most pretentious pageant ever seen at the huge playhouse. The new aquatic creation, which serves as a vehicle for the justly far-famed diving Venus, is in itself worth the price of admission and while it consumes but twenty minutes of the varied composite program its cost of production is said to have been over $28,000. Nothing to compare with the rare beauty of this Hippodrome scene has ever been realized before; not even at the Hippodrome, where remarkable perspectives and realistic landscapes have often before amazed the patrons. The Enchanted Waterfall however is a real masterpiece of stage production. It gives the impression when first disclosed of the Niagara brought to New York; its fanciful treatment is full of imagination and varied delight, for the children as well as grown-ups, and it provides Miss Kellermann with the finest environment she has ever enjoyed. Furthermore, it furnishes a climax to the fascinating ensemble of "The Big Show," which is making it the most-talked-of theatrical offering in New York. Matinees are given daily.

"CANARY COTTAGE."

The new Morosco Theatre on West Forty-fifth street, in the same block as the Astor Theatre and across the street from the Booth, opened to the public on Monday evening, when Oliver Morosco presented "Canary Cottage," a musical farce which has been cast in the same mould as his recent show at the Shubert Theatre, "So Long Letty." It is the work of the same authors. Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris take responsibility for the book and Earl Carroll composed the music and wrote the lyrics.

The company includes in the more important roles Trixie Friganza, Charles Ruggles, Herbert Corthell, Dorothy Webb, Reine Davis, Leola Lurey, Carl McCullough, Grace Ellsworth, Hazel Purdy, Virginia Travares and Ell Dawson. The two acts are laid in a California bungalow—Canary Cottage—and the characters are guests at a house party.

The theatre is indeed a very pretty one being quietly decorated in soft gray tones and has a seating capacity of 00. The matinees will be on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

"LITTLE LADY IN BLUE."

Frances Starr began her seventh successful week in the refreshingly new and charming comedy, "Little Lady in Blue," in the Belasco Theatre Monday evening. Her performance in this delightful and charming play of manners and customs of Georgian days by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, not only gives full play to Miss Starr's wonderful artistry, but it provides this popular actress with the most charming, sweet and lovable role of her noteworthy career.

"A SUCCESSFUL CALAMITY."

William Gillette was seen at the Booth Theatre on Monday evening in "A Successful Calamity," a comedy by Clare Kummes, the young woman who wrote the popular farce, "Good Gracious Annabelle." The play has been staged by Arthur Hopkins, with scenic designs by Robert Edmund Jones. Among the players are Estelle Winwood, Richard Sterling, Roland Young, Richard Barbee, William Devereaux, Charles Lane, Claus Bogel, Katherine Alexander, Mlle. Marcelle, Manart Kippen and Ruth Findlay.

License Receipts Set Year's Record

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles William L. Dill yesterday turned over a check for $912,522.57 to State Comptroller Edwards for motor vehicle license fees for January of this year. The commissioner has on hand $84,000 yet unaudited. This total of $996,000 is the greatest in the history of the department for one month. For the same period of 1916, the receipts were $591,000.

"This increase in the receipts," the Commissioner remarked, "comes chiefly from license renewals and the disposition of owners to keep their cars in operation during the winter. The open weather of January enabled them to continue the use of their machines. Comparatively few new cars have been registered as yet."

"The total sum," he continued, "justifies the conclusion that if nothing unforeseen transpires the receipts for 1917 will reach $1,800,000. For 1916 the amount taken in was $1,462,000."

Efficiency of the department under Mr. Dill enabled him to achieve the remarkable result for January. In the early part of the month his inspectors worked night and day to distribute the markers to applicants, and Mr. Dill himself made daily trips to the different agencies. Many other States have had to continue their 1916 tags in force because of their inability to get new markers, but contracts entered into early by Mr. Dill and a close watch on the progress at the manufactories made it possible for him to keep up with the unprecedented demand for the licenses.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1917.

JUVENILE COURT IS NEEDED HERE.

Plainfield has its share of misguided youths who frequently find their way into the police court records. Although the average each week is not alarming the number of offenders yet in their 'teens who are brought into the city police court is sufficient to command the attention and interest of those delving in social service. Other cities have attempted the one day a week plan for the trial of juvenile cases and the program would undoubtedly work out wonderfully well in Plainfield. Set a certain morning each week, probably Saturday would be the most satisfactory because it is a school holiday, and arraign all youthful offenders at that time. There is a ruling against confinement in the city jail longer than twenty-four hours without trial but a youthful offense is seldom so severe that it would be unwise to liberate the prisoner until the following Saturday.

There is a tendency in all parts of the country to endorse the plan to separate the "first timer" from the "hardened criminal." The youth who has strayed from the path of righteousness should not be brought into a courtroom filled with curious spectators and arraigned with the ex-jail bird or the murderer. While private or closed trials are things to be discouraged in most cases this is one good exception. Try the youth behind closed doors, admitting only the necessary witnesses. The offenses are often only of the petty variety and the court's methods in many cases start the offender out anew on a better road.

City Judge William G. DeMeza has made a reputation for himself in his dealings with juveniles. He has made a personal study of this particular phase of police court jurisdiction and he is now awaiting the opportunity to adopt a plan similar to the one outlined above. It has always been Judge DeMeza's desire to give the youth a "square shake" and he has oftentimes gone out of his way to do so.

GENERAL RENOVATION LOOKED FOR IN THIS CASE.

Judge J. Henry Crane is now in possession of his commission entitling him to take the bench in the local District Court. Since his appointment went to the Senate he has devoted the major portion of his time to a careful study of the requirements of a District Court head and those interested in bringing cases to this judiciary are looking to him for a general housecleaning when he takes up the gavel.

Now, Judge Crane, we want a thorough renovation. We want no halfway business but your record in the past indicates that you are in the habit of doing things thoroughly and we have no reason to expect that this case will be an exception.

You have practised in the local District Court and you have practised in the one in Elizabeth, which is conducted on a high plane of excellence. There are certain court rules in vogue at the county seat that could be introduced locally and the selection of an adequate list of regulations should be your first step.

Your predecessor, Judge Walter L. Hetfield, has served the city conscientiously and efficiently. He is retiring with a record that is deserving of suitable recognition and the Plainfield Bar Association will probably give it due consideration. When he took office the existing conditions were not the best but he has produced noticeable improvement in many ways.

But new minds should be productive of new methods and you have probably already considered favorable changes. There should be a strict enforcement of the law governing the office hours for the court clerk; there is a chance for improvement in the courtroom rules; and there is an excellent opportunity to place this court in an atmosphere of better respect in the eyes of the general public and the law profession.

The task facing you, Mr. Crane, is a big one but we have sufficient confidence in you to believe that success will crown your efforts.

MILITARY TRAINING IN HIGH SCHOOLS.

After an investigation to study the conditions to be taken into consideration in establishing military training in high schools New Jersey Assemblyman Oliphant's commission has submitted a report which is adverse to the proposition. Aside from the enormous cost involved in a movement of this kind there is one other outstanding objection and this centers around the discrimination between the high school youth and the boy of the same age who has elected to leave his studies for world work.

If we are to have compulsory military training among our young manhood it is reasonable to expect that all of a certain age will be included, whether or not they are connected with an institution of learning. There are thousands of eligibles who do not attend high school but who would probably make better soldiers than the high school youth in the time of war. Then, too, there is that class whose parents are vigorously opposed to militarism in any form and compulsory training would for them serve only as another excuse for discontinuance of study. There are enough avenues at present to detract from a four years' high school course.

In its presentment the commission urges military training for all of the pupils in all of the State schools and it seems wise to follow this plan until such time as Congress sees fit to work out a program for military training and service. In a small way the public schools have always aided indirectly in military training. Class room drills are a part of each day's work and these might be singled out as a minor asset in clearing the path to a suitable military training plan.

* * * * *

GUARD UNIFORM OBJECT FOR RESPECT.

Not many months ago a member of a local militia unit was summoned before the city court for assaulting a youth who had jeered at his khaki. In the eyes of the law he was in the wrong for undertaking to punish the snip who insulted him but the average true American probably admired him for his stand. For reasons unexplained there was a tendency to ridicule the wearer of the National Guard uniform prior to the Mexican mobilization but this regrettable attitude has almost entirely disappeared in recent months.

Since the militia visited the international line, and even more so since the prospect of trouble with Germany has occupied the public eye, the military emblem has been treated with a greater degree of respect.

The uniform of a soldier or sailor of the United States should be regarded as a badge of honor instead of a signal for social discrimination. The lot of the enlisted man is no lotus-eaters' isle. He earns his meagre pay. The crowd that applauds him from the curbstone when he marches past in a procession could bear more useful testimony to the popular appreciation of his services in time of need by securing for him every right the civilian enjoys when he seeks innocent recreation. Not long ago a civilian wiped his hands on a flag in New York and a soldier knocked him down. The soldier was praised for the deed. The respect due to the uniform is comparable with the honor which should at all times and in all places be paid to the Stars and Stripes. No man disparages the insignia of his country without dishonoring himself.

PUT THE COUNTY PRISONERS TO WORK.

Union county must eventually establish a prison farm or quarry and it may as well become a reality now as five or ten years hence. The problem of caring for inmates of the Elizabeth jail has been staring us in the face long enough and it is high time the Board of Freeholders attempted a solution of the question.

Plainfield sends its share of offenders to the county institution and therefore Plainfield is naturally interested in their maintenance and the conditions of confinement. Under present circumstances the prisoner is allowed to while away his sentence in idleness; his mind is allowed to rot; his leisure moments are spent in an exchange of the none too elevating conversation with criminals who are probably more seasoned than himself; days and months of loafing are an incentive to the formation of plans for further evil doing; and in the winter months the jail is a welcome haven for the anti-work disciple.

Put the county prisoners to work tilling the soil, breaking stone or repairing county roads and turn a part of their earnings over to dependent families. In many cases the municipality is forced to care for a prisoner's family while he is serving a sentence of idleness in the county jail. Hard labor will reduce the jail population, which is noticeably increased in the winter months. Most offenders do not object to free lodging in a warm institution and the assurance of three square meals a day.

TEACHERS HAVE RIGHT TO DEMAND INCREASE.

Local teachers are preparing a formal demand on the Board of Education for an increase in salary proportionate to the rise in living costs. Considering the fact that the present wage in Plainfield, as well as in other parts of the State, has been the subject for adverse criticism for several years, the present request is timely and should be met in a manner that will prove satisfactory to those affected. School teachers, as well as other city and State employes, have felt the sudden increase in expenses assigned to personal maintenance and they have a perfect right to expect a moderate increase even in the middle of a school year.

One of the requisites of the Board of Education is that the instructor be neatly dressed and maintain a faultless appearance in the classroom. No matter how economically the teacher buys her clothing she has found it necessary to stretch a point this year in order to be well dressed. The salary she received last winter will not produce the same returns now. School teachers in Plainfield are paid little enough, both male and female, and if the Board of Education sees fit to tack on an increase when the question comes up it will only be satisfying public opinion.

When he completes his twentieth year as plumbing inspector for the city of Plainfield, William Addis, Sr., will next Monday vacate the office without any reasonable assurance that he will be taken care of by the municipality in a manner which his long and efficient service deserves. At least, the Board of Health has failed to act on his request for an adequate pension to date and there is little prospect of action being taken before Monday. Under the law he is entitled to half the salary he is now receiving for the remainder of his life, or $500 a year. But is this amount in accordance with the city's policy of caring for its public servants who have grown old in the service? Is $500 sufficient to buy for him the necessities of life in this age of high living costs? Heretofore Plainfield has recognized faithful performance of duty as it should be recognized and it is only fair to expect that Mr. Addis will draw an annual pension that will provide for him the moderate comforts of life.

Attention has been directed by Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, district representative of the S. P. C. A., to the practice certain local business men are making of hiring incompetent boys to drive delivery horses. This practice should be discouraged both here and elsewhere. The merchant will find it profitable in all cases to pay a few more dollars for an efficient driver for it will mean the preservation of the horse and a more satisfactory service more than commensurate with the extra cost. There is no law to compel owners of horses to hire experienced drivers but an experiment in substituting men for boys will prove valuable to any firm or individual. This is but one of the many ways in which the S. P. C. A. is commanding attention in Plainfield and its work should have the support of the community. Mrs. Van Hoesen is to be commended for her personal interest; particular so because of the fact that she gives both time and energy without remuneration.

Exhibiting the enterprise that has characterized his management of the Plainfield Theatre from the start Michael Shannon has secured at an unusual expense the booking for Sarah Bernhardt. This great woman, known in this and other countries as a leader on the legitimate stage, has made it a rule to play only the larger cities and few places of Plainfield's size have been fortunate enough to entertain her. The cost of the production is out of all proportion to the size of the town and Manager Shannon's playhouse but his determination to give the Plainfield public the best when it was available has prompted him to take a chance in this instance on receiving the support of the community in general. He has sufficient confidence in the local public to feel certain that they will back him in the undertaking, although even a full house will profit him little when dollars and cents alone are taken into consideration.

Plainfield is prepared to bear its share of the nation's burden in the time of war. Assurance of this fact has been given during the past few days by those who would be looked to first in the time of an international conflict. There is every reason to expect that this city would play a prominent part in such a crisis if it should come for we have within our limits some of the most important manufacturing concerns in the output of the necessities of modern warfare. Few other municipalities of the size can boast of similar prominence and there is probably no other dot on the map where patriotism and true Americanism stands out more conspicuously. Interviews gained by the Record during the last forty-eight hours indicate a general attitude on the part of the producer to co-operate with Uncle Sam in the moment of need.

Those of the Episcopal faith in the east end of the city have been keenly interested during the past week in the mission being conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. Atwood Stansfield. A forceful, earnest and an interesting preacher, Dr. Stansfield has held the attention of his listeners from the beginning and Sunday night will bring to a close one of the most successful missions of this denomination ever held in the city. Dr. Stansfield is reverent, though outspoken, and he impresses all with his apparent sincerity and pleasing personality. His message is from the heart with an intellectual appeal and every mission he has held has been counted a success. In every instance large numbers have been brought to the church and confirmation classes following his visit are often quite large.

In Peter Floersch Plainfield will lose a citizen who availed himself of every opportunity to boost the community and who made the welfare of the city his personal interest. During his management of the Queen City Hotel he made hundreds, yes thousands, of acquaintances who respected him for his manly qualities and business ideals. His successful direction of the holstery made the name Queen City known for a radius of many miles and he perhaps did more to advertise Plainfield than any individual. It is with regret that we relinquish him to Perth Amboy but his assurance that he will ever hold a warm spot in his heart for Plainfield is sufficient proof for us that he will continue to be one of our boosters.

Governor Edge has very properly obeyed the law, and appointed to the State Board of Dentistry the men recommended by the New Jersey Dental Society, who were turned down by former Governor Fielder because he was unwilling to have the society dictate his appointments though he gave his approval to a bill containing such a provision. If the law is unsatisfactory, let it be amended or repealed, but no Governor should set such a bad example as to refuse to obey it—especially since the one in question was originally passed more than twenty years ago. There has been abundant time to restore to the executive the appointing power which belongs to him in filling more important offices.

Philip Meyers, a pickpocket, was arrested in Paterson and held under $3,000 to await the action of the grand jury. Victims who had been robbed of $476 identified Meyers as the thief. Meyers' counsel applied to Judge Klenert for a reduction of the bail, and Klenert fixed it at $400. The money was put up by the prisoner's counsel and Meyers was released and has disappeared, probably never to return. As matters now stand, he is free and just $76 in pocket as the result of his visit to Paterson. There have been many examples of trifling with justice in New Jersey, but this seems to be the limit.

Weather permitting, Plainfield will witness one of the most impressive civic spectacles in recent years on Saturday afternoon, February 17, when the cornerstone of the new city hall will be laid. The erection of this structure is now well underway and its completion will mark the accomplishment of a municipal benefit that has been an urgent need for years past. Local military units, civic organizations, fraternal bodies and city officials will unit to make the demonstration one that will be remembered in the community's history and citizens owe it to themselves to be present on the occasion.

Considering the fact that the Ford automobile purchased by the city for the use of the Board of Health cost $500 for maintenance during the past year it is reasonable to expect that it may cost a thousand or more in 1917. Gasoline, it is predicted, will soar to thirty cents a gallon during the coming summer and garage men have made no voluntary promise of a decrease in the cost of repairs.

A "leak" has developed during the past week in the interest over the Washington "leak" investigation.

The editor received a request from a local organization today for the attendance of a reporter at a function to be held in the near future. The fact that the affair would be strictly formal was prominently impressed in the communication.

Now we'd like to know who ever heard of a reporter who possessed a full dress suit.

Tradition has it that Japan and China will enjoy prosperity during 1917.

Probably a few more "Chink" laundries and an increase in the cost of "Jap" butlers in Plainfield.

How about changing the school calendar to include Saturdays? Then the teachers wouldn't have so much time to go shopping and they'd be willing to drop their demand for an increase in pay.

Postmaster Hoagland has announced that he is ready to receive the applications of feminine volunteers who have an idea that they want to take a whack at delivering mail when the men go to the front. Of course this is only a precautionary measure but considering the fact that Mr. Hoagland failed in his efforts to single out the prettiest girl in Plainfield some months ago for a lonesome sailor laddie who wrote him he's apt to be mighty finnicky in his campaign for suitable carrier doves.

"Bostonian Burlesquers" Have a String of Stars in the "Spot"

Charles H. Waldron's "Bostonian Burlesquers" will invade the Plainfield Theatre on Monday, February 12, for a day's engagement, presenting "Up and Down Town," which Frank Finney, the comedian-author, has characterized as "A New Fun Parade." The author has hit on something new and, while he tells an interesting story, he takes his audience on a typical sight-seeing trip through New York city. The story is brefly as follows:

Mrs. Fuller Pryde has come to New York to search for a nephew who was kidnapped years ago. He is heir to a fortune of which she is the guardian. She is also chaperoning a party of girls who are seeing New York city. The story is brefly as follows:

Mrs. Fuller Pryde has come to New York to search for a nephew who was kidnapped years ago. He is heir to a fortune of which she is the guardian. She is also chaperoning a party of girls who are seeing New York. I. Collier Knott, a millionaire glue manufacturer, is visiting New York with his two sons, who are a bit wild. Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed are there on their honeymoon. Theda Vampire is also in New York and is broke. Kenny Live, a messenger boy, serves her with a summons for a $3,000 wardrobe bill. She determines to procure money by any means which present themselves. She meets the Knotts and heard Mrs. Pryde telling them the story about her nephew, saying that the only way he can be identified is by means of an eagle which is tattooed on his hand. Theda hires Kenny to have an eagle tattooed on his hand so that they can get the money. Kenny tells Tim Sweeny, a street sweeper, what he is going to do and Sweeny makes up his mind to beat him to the fortune. He also has an eagle tattooed on his hand. From that point on the action is rapid and very funny with the various claimants to the fortune putting on their bids for it. How the real heir is found furnishes a denouement of unusual interest. The scenes of she show thhow Twenty-third street and Broadway, Chinatown, the Battery by moonlight, the balcony of a road-house, overlooking the Hudson, the stage door of the Winter Garden and a terrace overlooking the city of Rome. Frank Finney plays the part of Tim Sweeny and he has never had a role which fitted him better. Every opportunity is given for the introduction of catchy musical numbers, attractive dances, specialties and other innovations. The show is mounted in an extravagant manner as far as wardrobe and scenery are concerned.

"Wonderful Sarah" Bernhardt Will Appear Here February 17

Sarah Bernhardt, the famous tragedienne, who appears at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday night, February 17, has her "warrior-godson," her "filleul," like every one else. But, also, it now turns out that the object of her generosity has never been to the front, and is, in short, an imposter.

Some months ago Mme. Bernhardt received a letter reading:

"I am persuaded that your great tragedienne's heart will be interested in the lot of a brave little 'pilou-pilou' who, in defending his country near Chalons, in June, 1915, had his two legs crushed by a shell. Be my godmother.

How resist such an appeal? Mme. Bernhardt consented to receive Charles Chatelain, who came stumping before her on his crutches, in his stained old uniform. He wore medals "for gallant conduct" and, he said, had been wounded eleven times. Once, in a tussle with a big German, he had had his jaw broken. He showed the marks. At another time a steel dart from an aeroplane had grazed his head; he showed the scar. Finally a shell fragment from a 420-millimetre gun had so maimed his leg as to render amputation necessary. Mme. Bernhardt loaded him with gifts.

Unfortunately, Chatelain lately conceived the idea of giving his photograph and an interview to a big Paris daily. The interview caught the attention of the military authorities. An investigation was made. It was learned that Chatelain's feet were frozen in an ascent of Mont Blanc which he made in 1913. This accounted for the amputation. Since then he has been five times arrested for various kinds of crookedness. His latest exploit was to procure, by some means, a uniform of the Second Infantry, deck his chest with medals, address himself to Mme. Bernhardt and get himself admitted to a Lyons hospital for the special training of amputated soldiers. Becoming bored by hospital life, he managed to get to Paris, where he gave out the famous and fatal interview. In this he said:

"She is everything to me. She surrounds me with attention and care. She has already presented me with a set of teeth to replace by shattered ones and has promised me a pair of artificial legs. I have no one else in the world, my two brothers having been killed at the Dardanelles, and my father in Alsace."

Some Features for Proctor's

Clara Kimball Young, the screen star supreme, will appear in the second of her own productions, an adaptation of "The Foolish Virgin," at Proctor's local playhouse on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the coming week. The story by Thomas Dixon is expected to prove a worthy successor to Miss Young's first venture at the head of her own producing company, "The Common Law," the story offering even greater opportunities in intense dramatic situations than did Robert W. Chamber's novel. In "The Foolish Virgin" Miss Young will be seen in the role of the girl whose ideas of life are confused with the romantic stories of the days of chivalry which she is fond of reading. Knowing nothing of realities, the heroine is deceived into marrying a man who turns out to be a criminal. The girl exerts her influence toward the redemption of the man she loves and it is during this process of character building that the tense dramatic scenes in which the story abounds, develop.

As in "The Common Law" Miss Young has been aided in making the production a splendid example of motion picture art by the masterly direction of Albert Capellani, her director-general, and the presence of a superlative cast of immensely popular motion picture players. Conway Tearle, who made such a decided hit in the role opposite Miss Young in "The Common Law," will be seen to particular advantage in the leading male part of the new production, and Paul Capellani, who has been seen in a number of Miss Young's greatest pictures, also has a strong role.

Daisy Harcourt Leads the Plainfield Bill

Daisy Harcourt, the dainty musical comedy star, is the attraction of the vaudeville program at the Plainfield Theatre for the last part of this week. Making her second appearance of the season, she has several new song hits in her latest musical revue and has made an even greater hit than before.

Mark Sullivan & Company's production, "The Handicap," is also one of the fine good numbers on the program. Three other numbers round out the bill, they being the Harold Brothers, a comedy bar team; Johnie Stanley and Anie Kent in "Some Vaudeville," and "As In a Looking Glass," a novelty offering.

"Pearl of the Army," the patriotic serial that is stirring the country, is the moving picture offering for today. The aeroplanes used by Miss White in accomplishing her feats of daring are products of the Standard Aero Corporation of this city. Hearst-Pathe News and Mutual comedies are also on the program.

STRAND THEATRE.

A patriotic all American bill will be presented at the Strand Theatre, Manager Edel announces that the performance will commence with "Home Sweet Home As Played the World Over," rendered by the concert orchestra, after which a tableau, "the Spirit of '76," will be shown on the stage. Next an Abraham Lincoln picture entitled "The Seventh Son," will be presented on the screen. Irene Audrey, a beautiful young singer, draped in a silk American flag, will render "My Country 'Tis of Thee," after while the principal photo-dramatic feature, "The American Consul," will be shown. Theodore Roberts, the popular Lasky star, will appear in the title role, supported by Maude Fealy, Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton, Charles West and Earnest Joy. This play was written especially for Mr. Roberts by Paul West. A new L-Ko comedy entitled "The Auto Maniacs" will also be shown. The Topical Review will have a number of news pictures of more than passing interest.

Among the soloists on the musicale-ity program are Grace Hoffman, soprano; Florence Hardmans, violinist, and Arthur Depew, organist. Carl Edouarde will conduct.

AT TUXEDO CLUB.

There were many skating parties at the Tuxedo Club in New York city last Sunday. Among the many who had luncheon at the club were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Delafield, of this city.

Would Centralize Activities of Various Civic Organizations

Centralization and consolidation of the efforts of those who are working for community betterment in Plainfield has been proposed by a number of local citizens and the plan has the approval of many who believe that closer intimacy and concentration of action are essential to success along the lines of civic and social endeavor. Altogether there are about twenty organizations in this city, covering every field of public endeavor—civic, social, philanthropic and commercial. It is now proposed that a new central organization be formed which will cover all these activities. In other words, there should exist a "melting pot." The name "Plainfield Association" has been suggested as quite appropriate.

In Montclair this idea is being considered seriously. James H. Kennedy, who is the president of the Civic Association in that city, believes that a centralization and concentration of energy along the lines mentioned would result in a saving of expense and that a paid executive could be secured to further the work initiated by various committees. In this way, he believes that the social and civic welfare of the community would be materially benefitted.

An analysis of the work which could be accomplished by such an organization indicates that the matters now being handled by the West End Community Centre and the East End Civic Association could be made more central and could be handled from the one source. Of course, along political lines the plan would not work as effectively, inasmuch as there are always community or sectional interests in politics. However, the adoption of a plan of this kind would be of the greatest possible assistance socially. The nearest approach to the idea is the Recreation Centre, although that is in itself a separate organization and not a centralization of a number of organizations.

In Montclair there is considerable talk of erecting a community building, which would serve as a social as well as a civic centre. While the new City Hall will become the civic centre of Plainfield, there will still remain a need of a social centre, democratic in every respect. A central organization would do more for Plainfield than might be imagined and the local people who think favorably of the plan of centralizing and concentrating the civic and social energy of the community believe that they can offer manifold reasons for so doing.

DESERTS SCOTCH PLAINS TO TILL THE TURF.

In its years of a varied career Scotch Plains has on more than one occasion been without certain things, sometimes, but rarely, it was a saloon, more often a "cop" and once in a while a baseball team, but this week it lost something entirely new in the shape of the president of the Township Committee.

Having sold his paper mill after a recent flood demolished it, Ira Clage Walker, who holds the office, decided to go back to the farm and as a part of the plan has purchased a place at Yardley, Pa., where he has taken his family.

Scotch Plains' government is now run by the other two members of the Township Committee and they are paralled over how to get out of their predicament. The Committee is supposed to have a president and treasurer and they are now trying to figure out how they will hold an election among themselves to decide who shall hold the offices and then after that they don't know who is going to form the committee.

TABS PERFECT PLANS FOR EVENT IN MAY.

At the monthly meeting of the Total Abstinence Benevolence Society held on Monday evening, preliminary plans for the celebration of the forty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the organization were discussed.

The following committee was ordered to proceed with the arrangements: John J. Hines, James P. O'Keefe, Alfred E. La Porte, Daniel J. Guinee, Thomas P. Hines, Michael Caffery, Michael D. O'Keeffe, Joseph T. McCue, Jeremiah Callahan, John Walsh and John Barry. In conjunction with the celebration it is planned to conduct a membership campaign.

MR. CRANE HONORED.

The members of the Probasco Bible Class of the First Baptist church tendered a loving cup to J. Henry Crane at the services last Sunday morning to show their esteem for Mr. Crane, who recently was appointed District Judge by Governor Edge. Mr. Crane is associate teacher of the class and received congratulations from every one of the 101 members, responding with a short address.

Governor Edge Not in Favor of "Cobwebbed" Commission Idea

More "cobwebbed" New Jersey commissions, as Governor Edge describes them, are to be wiped out by statutes, the executive has said in comments accompanying the final report of the Economy and Efficiency Commission.

Governor Edge was a member of the Board. As he will now be in a position to carry out consolidations it will cease to exist and its activities will be centred in the executive offices.

"This Commission," he said, "has carried out the purpose for which it was organized. It is winding up its affairs and going out of business, turning over books and other valuable data relating to the consolidations of related departments to the State Library to be maintained as a separate reference library. The Commission is also surrendering its office space and its furniture, so that these may be devoted to the uses of State Departments and Commissions still active.

"I believe," he continued, "it would be a good thing if a lot of other Commissions in this State which have long since outlived their usefulness would go out of business too. They take up space in the Legislative Manual and State reports, confuse the public, but serve no useful purpose. I am contacting a little investigation now to learn how many commissions have become cobwebbed, so that we may simplify our governmental machinery by cutting out the dead wood and clearing the decks for action."

The Commission makes the following suggestions of subjects which should be taken up systematically:

The standardization of wages and salaries of State employees and State officials; The establishment of standard hours of labor; the regulation of mileage, meals and personal expenses of State employes not residents of the district in which they are employed; the establishment of a system of and the State government in those departments calling for visitation by inspectors or boards of inspection, where duplication of effort is a constant and daily practice, involving expense without added protection.

Cabbage Heads at Fifty Cents! Well, We Still Have Ham and ------

The cost of living in Plainfield is just as high as it is elsewhere, although local people will have to admit that New Brunswick holds the record for "high-priced cabbage heads." A story, appearing in one of the daily newspapers of that city, is somewhat astounding.

A grocer named Frank Auten, of New Brunswick, claims that he sold two heads of cabbage, weighing about five pounds each, for one dollar. Eleven cents a pound for the cabbage is the mathematical deduction. And Auten does not take the trouble to assure his patrons that there is not going to be a still higher rise in the price of this, heretofore, plentiful article of food.

Corn beef and cabbage, that staple of the poor man's board, is now to be classed with pate de foie gras and caviar. The swell hotels will soon be serving it in diminutive portions and under a French name. It does look as though Mr. Ultimate Consumer is about to kick the well known bucket.

CITY LEAGUE WILL INCLUDE BORO TEAM.

The recently organized St. Joseph's Club of North Plainfield has a baseball team and will be represented in the City League this year. A member of the borough organization attended the City League meeting at the home of Secretary Daniel Randolph on Monday evening and the application of the club was formally presented and received.

The officers of the St. Joseph's Club, which in addition to being an athletic organization, is also a social body, are: Earl Moran, president; Clarence Smith, vice president; Harold Mead, secretary, and Eddie Conahy, treasurer. The Rev. Father Campbell is the chairman of the athletic board.

MEET AND EAT.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Palmer, of Emerson avenue, gave a dinner party and dance at their home last week in honor of the S. S. C. C. of Netherwood. A short business session was held before the dinner. Mr. Palmer presided at this meeting, while Miss Summers acted as recording secretary. Miss Jene Bremble is president of the organization.

Partisan Discussion is Avoided Locally

There seems to be a general disposition in Plainfield to avoid partisan discussions of the break between the United States and Germany, particularly in the absence of a declaration of war by either country.

Notwithstanding this general attitude, there are many reports of anti-American demonstrations by aliens. Most of these reports, when investigated, are emphatically denied. The Record was told this morning that a man of foreign birth had torn down a United States flag in the business place in the centre of the city, and that he was forced to replace it by American employes of the establishment. Later the proprietor of the establishment denied it; while others made light of it.

POND'S TO BUILD.

Work will be started in the near future on the construction of an office building by the Pond Tool Works near South Second street and Prescott place. Plans for the structure are now being completed and will probably be filed with the building inspector within a short time. Permission has already been granted the concern by the Common Council to tunnel across the street to convey electricity and steam heat from the main building.

COMMITS SUICIDE.

Partially unhinged as the result of injuries sustained in a fall several months ago, William M. Marsh, an uncle of Edward Searing, foreman of the Record composing room, was found a suicide in the cellar of his Elizabeth home Monday by his son, William H. Marsh. He was sixty-three years old and since his disappearance the preceding Wednesday it was not known where he had gone to until his son found him hanging in the coal bin when he went to get coal.

STATE BAR MEETING.

William J. Kraft, secretary of the New Jersey State Bar Association, has sent out notices for its mid-winter meeting at the Hotel Washington, Newark February 10, at 11 a. m. Judge Skinner, of Newark, and former Governor Fort, for the committee appointed to investigate and report a method by which the administration of justice may be improved have filed a report, suggesting important amendments to the criminal law.

Gasoline Will Mount to 30 Cents This Summer; Opinion of Experts

Despite big expansion in the petroleum refining capacity in the last year the gasoline situation threatens to become far more acute than a year ago. Never have such high prices prevailed for gasoline in mid-winter as now, and with the normal increase in demand due to the active automobiling season of the late spring and summer there is bound to be an advance in prices to a much higher basis, comments the Wal Street Journal.

At present in large sections of the country the price of gasoline is close to the 25-cent a gallon level. In practically all of New York State, outside of New York city, there has just been an advance of 2 cents a gallon to 24 cents. In Boston and New England territory the price is 24 cents also, tank wagon basis.

In Oklahoma, the greatest oil State in the country at present, the tank wagon price is 23 cents a gallon. In Chicago the tank wagon price is 19 cents a gallon. The Kansas City price is 18.8 cents, the highest ever known there.

In the big gasoline consuming centers in Pennsylvania, including such cities as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and in Delaware the tank wagon price is 23 cents a gallon. In New Jersey, one of the best gasoline markets in the country, the price is 27 cents. In the vicinity of Plainfield the prevailing price ranges from 22 to 24 cents.

Throughout southern States the price ranges from 17 to 21 cents a gallon. Twenty cents is the market in parts of Alabama, as high as 21 is paid in Georgia, Florida 25½, 23½ to 21 cents in Virginia, and Maryland 22 to 21 cents.

Briefly, the advance in price has covered practically the entire country with the exception of New York city. It is regarded as certain that the price there will be marked up shortly.

Furthermore, the export price has been advanced in the last few weeks. That the price of gasoline to individuals will reach the 30-cent level is believed probable this summer. A year ago prices in many sections were around 12 to 15 cents ¾ gallon and by last summer they had advanced 7 to 8 cents a gallon. An advance of similar size is easily to be expected this coming summer because refiners have had the same experience last winter in that they have been unable to store up supplies for the active season ahead.

Local Airship Will Carry Explorer

Plainfield's name has been advertised pretty much over the entire country and in parts of Europe as well, but it will travel to a place where few others have been when Captain Ronald Amundsen, explorer, relies on an aeroplane manufactured by the Standard Aera Corporation, of this city, to make the last lap of his journey to reach the North Pole in 1918.

The Norwegian explorer received an offer from the local concern not long since to build a machine for his trip and it was immediately accepted. He intends making the last hundred miles of his tour in the air craft, which will be of the latest model and carry magnetic instruments furnished by the Carnegie Observatory.

Dr. Maximilian P. E. Grossmann, of "Watchung Crest," whose recent illness was reported, is at present in Atlantic City, where he is slowly recovering.

PLAYLET A SUCCESS.

The Netherwood Dramatic Club presented the play "Ye Olde Fashioned Skool Days" before a large and appreciative audience in the Baptist church at South Plainfield last week. This is the same play which was presented by the club at the Netherwood Reformed church recently and which was such a decided success at that time. The production will be repeated in this city in the near future.

RUNYON GUEST OF EDGE.

DEMOCRATS TO DANCE.

The third annual dance of the Jefferson Democratic Club will be held in Columbia Hall on Tuesday night, February 20. Music will be furnished by Halbfoerster's tango band, and arrangements are being made for several other features.

National Guard News

In a circular issued last week by the Militia Bureau of the War Department, officers of the National Guard are cautioned that enlistments in the National Guard must under existing law be entirely voluntary and that no coercion or threat of any nature may be employed to induce enlistment.

"It is the duty of all officers," says the Militia Bureau, "in giving information to men who contemplate enlisting, to exercise scrupulous care to avoid statements which might be construed as misrepresentations with respect to the obligations of enlisted men under enlistment contracts. That section plainly requires, except in the recognition of unexpired enlistments under contracts which contain an obligation to defend the Constitution of the United States and obey the orders of the President, an enlistment contract for three years in the service and three years in the reserves. No officer has a right to give assurance of discharge prior to the expiration of six years' service except where credit is given for the period already served under an old enlistment contract."

Captain O. D. Oliphant issued a call Monday for recruits for the Machine Gun Company. Company K already has two members detailed to this corps. Captain Oliphant desires to recruit the full quota of 53 men and four officers for the company as soon as possible, in order that the four machine guns be obtained and the Second Regiment shall be ready for any emergency. There is only one Machine Gun Company in a regiment of infantry, and the equipment consists of four machine guns, which are carried on the backs of mules or in automobiles. The Machine Gun Company is considered one of the most desirable companies for enlistment, and Captain Oliphant expects to fill up the ranks quickly. There will be opportunity in this company for immediate advancement in rank, and seniority of enlistment and general aptitude will count in promotion.

The following officers and men comprise a machine gun company: One captain, mounted; one first lieutenant, mounted; two second lieutenants, mounted; one first sergeant, mounted; one supply sergeant, mounted; one stable sergeant, mounted; one horseshoer, one mess sergeant; five sergeants; six corporals; two cooks; two buglers; one mechanic; eight privates, first class; and twenty-four privates. Total fifty-three enlisted men and four commissioned officers.

The equipment of the company consists of four machine guns which are carried on the backs of mules or in automobiles.

Resolutions adopted by the New Jersey State Military Board upon the death of Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler were formally presented to the Adjutant General's department Monday by Brigadier General Hine. The resolutions attest the value of General Sadler's services to the State and commend his loyalty. They are beautifully engrossed and are enclosed in book form, with a leather cover, which is embellished with the nation flag in colors.

Pending the publication of the regulations for the government of the National Guard the following tentative regulations with regard to the uniform of the troops have been issued by Brigadier General William A. Mann, chief of staff, Militia Bureau: "The uniform of the National Guard not in the service of the United States will be that of the National Guard in the service in the United States as prescribed in the regulations for the uniform of the United States Army. Officers and enlisted men not in the service of the United States are authorized to wear as a part of their uniform such National Guard medals and badges as are authorized by their respective State laws. They will be worn on the left of the medals authorized in the regulations for the uniform of the United States Army."

Because Monday is a holiday Captain Peterson has postponed the customary weekly drill to Wednesday night. At the drill last Monday blankets and tin stencils were distributed.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL'S NEW CLUBHOUSE NEARLY READY

Work is progressing rapidly on the improvements to the property recently acquired by Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., on East Front street, as a clubhouse. When it is completed it will be one of the best occupied by any council of the order in this part of the State. The first floor is occupied by the reception hall, banquet room and kitchen, while the entire second floor is to be taken up by the lodge room. It is expected that the improvements will be completed so that the building may be occupied by the time the council has to vacate its present quarters in April.

LOCAL I. C. S. CHAPTER BANQUET ON MONDAY.

Everything is in readiness for the holding of the third annual banquet of Abraham Chapter, I. C. S., on Monday night, Lincoln's birthday, in the Randy Shops. The principal speaker of the evening will be Jared Sterart, of North Plainfield, who will give an address on the great emancipator. He will show his large collection of letters and other historic articles connected with Lincoln, besides outlining his life.

It is expected that seventy-five members and others will be present for the occasion and the committee in charge is planning for a menu of turkey and an excellent musical program. The master of ceremonies will be Robert A. Meeker, State highway engineer, and the invocation will be made by Rev. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church. Other local men who will be present and make addresses include Dr. Fred Unger, supervising principal of North Plainfield schools, and Samuel S. Swackhamer. Various members of the chapter will contribute toward the program that will follow the dinner.

The committee which has arranged the affair is composed of F. W. Wadsworth, C. H. Betzenberger, Adrian Wood, Walter Wenzel, Walter Murphy, Gwilym Lewis, H. W. Swivel, A. L. Grisely, C. E. Tilley and O. Ivan Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rothberg, who were recently married in Atlanta, Ga., are now sojourning in Havana and other points in Cuba. They expect to be "at home" to their many friends in this city after February 15.

CONTRACTS LET FOR HOTEL IMPROVEMENTS.

George L. Fergerson, a local contractor, will start in March 1 to make alterations to the Queen City Hotel preparatory to it being taken over by John Staats, the owner. Many improvements are contemplated, including the heightening of the structure on the Second street side from one to three stories. A number of new rooms with baths will be added, as well as a pool room and other features of a modern hotel. The dining room will also be changed considerably.

Peter Floersch, who has been operating the hotel for the past eight years, will remove shortly to Perth Amboy, where he will conduct the Packer House, and Mr. Staats expects to take charge when the improvements are made, which will be in a month or six weeks.

OUT TO WAGE WAR ON THE H. C. OF L.

The high cost of living in Plainfield is to be combated and the National Producers' and Consumers' Association is behind this declaration of war. At a meeting held at the home of Frank D. Keel, 927 West Fourth street, on Monday afternoon, details were arranged.

The association has established headquarters at 226 West Second street, between Madison and Park avenues. Membership books have already been thrown open to the public and a general explanation of the subject will be given by Charles J. Heinzer. A cordial invitation has been extended to the people of this city to call and investigate the co-operative system, which forms the basis of work of the new organization.

DEFENDED WILSON.

D. Fred Annett, supervising principal of the North Plainfield schools, made an address before the members of the High School on Wednesday morning in which he touched on the present war crisis. He sided with the President in the stand he has taken and laid stress on the fact that everyone, regardless of their nationality, should show their loyalty to the country at this time.

READY FOR ANNIVERSARY.

A committee from Freedom Castle, K. of G. E., headed by P. G. Allen, is making arrangements for the observance of the sixteenth anniversary of the formation of the local chapter on February 27. The program will include an entertainment for members of the lodges and their families followed by a dance. Grand Chief Oren and other prominent State officers of the order will be present.

COMMISSIONED MAJOR.

Evarts Tracey, of Hillside avenue, has just been commissioned a major in the Engineer Corps. He is to help organize a regiment for that branch of the service in New York and will instruct its officers in map reading and topography.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Duffard, of German Valley, are spending several days in this city as guests of the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Duffard, of West Front street.

Leo F. Poling, of West Fifth street, has taken a position with the S. S. Kresge Company and resigned from the employ of the Public Service Corporation on February 3. Mr. Poling's new duties began at New Haven, Conn., on Wednesday.

Baseball Stars Loyal to Flag

While the baseball magnates of the city are carefully planning for the coming season, there is still a possibility of there being no baseball at all. The latest step toward the restriction of athletic ambition is the "war clause" which has been inserted in the contracts of one or two of the college coaches. Bob Folwell, who has been re-instated as coach of the University of Pennsylvania football team for next season, has a contract subject to war conditions.

The National and the American League owners and managers are carrying on their plans as earnestly as ever although Captain Til Huston and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owners of the Yankees, voicing the sentiments of their fellow owners, have stated that the interests of the nation come first—baseball, afterwards.

There seems to be little likelihood of a suspension of local diamond activities at the present time although it is understood that the local league authorities are willing to lay aside their plans if the status of national affairs so demands.

Delegates Attend National Affair

A national conference of delegates of the National Special Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon at 858 Fifth avenue, New York city. Miss Dorothy Fleming, secretary of the Plainfield Branch, represented the local organization at the conference. Miss Fleming also acted as representative of the Junior Branch of the local society.

One of the measures which will be advocated by the National Society will be a series of classes in food conservation, in the consideration of a shortage of supplies. The local branch of the National Organization has decided to apply itself diligently to the course of action decided upon at the conference. Mrs. William Warner Hoppin, Jr., vice president of the National organization, stated that the members of the society will apply themselves to whatever need that may become apparent in time of necessity. The National Special Aid Society is regarded as one of the largest and most active war relief organizations in the United States. The active session preceded the confer[illegible].

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Conlin and son, Allan Bruce Conlin, of Westfield, are at the Laurel-in-the-Pines, Lakewood, for an extended sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larson, formerly of this city, but now of Bound Brook, are sojourning in South Carolina, where they went on account of Mr. Larson's health.

The Misses Helen Moran and Alice Anton, of this city, were among the many guests at a birthday surprise party given in honor of Miss Helen Green Walder, at her home, 25 Nelson street, Newark, last week. The house was decorated with roses and festoons, the color scheme being pink and white. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. William F. Coe and daughter, Claire, formerly of Madison avenue, left Saturday for Roanoke, Virginia, where they will join Mr. Coe and take up their residence. Mr. Coe is circulation manager of the Roanoke Times and was formerly circulation manager of the Plainfield Daily Press, this city.

Freeholder Henry Krouse, Mrs. Krouse and their daughter, Miss Clara Krouse, of Roselle, left last Saturday for Bradetown, Florida, where they will stay for a month.

John Richards, of East Third street, basso in the Grace Episcopal church choir, has fully recovered after undergoing an operation for throat trouble.

NO MORE JUGGLING IN COLLEGE ENGLISH.

More care in the use of the English grammar will be exercised in the near future if the recent ruling of the Department of English at the University of Kansas becomes generally adopted. At the Western institution, certain changes have been made and it is said that only strict adherence to the rules is to be tolerated.

There will be submitted no more compositions with such "glaring" errors as the following:

A light complected girl.

Won't you leave your name stand on the list?

The women were all dressed up.

The party that wrote was a scholar.

He stopped to price some flowers.

Commenting on the decided change a New York newspaper says that compositions in which the prohibited expressions are used will no longer "get by." It is probably a case of practicing what you do not preach.

APPOINT RECEIVER.

Alleging that the directors of Frededick Harrington, Inc., as trustees in dissolution proceedings made preferential payments to certain creditors, Vice Chancellor Lane in Newark has appointed Cecil H. MacMahon, as received. The company conducted a plant in Dunellen, making sole leather. The dissolution took place in December, 1915.

MILLER IMPROVING.

George Miller, who has been a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital for some time, was reported this morning as resting comfortably and showing signs of improvement.

Day's Session on March 14

A meeting of the Plainfield Council, Child Welfare organization, was held at the home of Mrs. William Sandford, Crescent Court, on Wednesday afternoon, when representatives of every local organization interested in child welfare were present. At the meeting it was announced that an all day session of the Union County Council would be held in the Plainfield High School on March 14.

At the Wednesday meeting it was decided to affiliate with the Union County organization. The Mother's Congress of North Plainfield and Dunellen has also been admitted to the Union County body. Represented at the meeting were the Parent-Teacher Associations of eleven schools of this city and borough, the Mother's Congress, the charity organizations and the Recreation Committees. The St. Joseph's League of Women was admitted to the Council and it is desired that other church organizations follow the lead of the North Plainfield society. A general discussion on the subject of child welfare occupied most of the time of the meeting of the Council. Definite action in regard to moving pictures is being contemplated.

"Wets" Out to Fight "Drys"

Since the prohibition movement began its eastward sweep, and the motion has which now has been started to emulate its moon-vaulting progenitress, Plainfield, not unlike many other places, has cultivated a remarkable thirst for the liquid that a cheerful girl once said was only good to put under bridges. Realizing that fermented beverages are fast becoming an unknown quantity, the State Liquor Dealers' Association is preparing to wage an educational fight in an effort to retrieve the ground lost through the work of the anti-liquor advocates.

Plainfield today uses thousands of gallons of water daily and in a year it mounts up to millions of aqua pura. What one considers the constantly growing class who favor the temperance beverage it may be realized what a task the liquor men will have, but on the other hand the "wet" supporters are also strong. The issue will have to be decided not in the far distance and Plainfielders who stand by and look on will see some regular battles.

Word has been received by the local Liquor Dealers' Association from the State organization that its campaign team will invade Ulainfield in the near future with moving pictures, speakers and other methods in an effort to convince local people that an open town is the only solution to the problem. The pictures will be those taken in the dry States to show the harm done to business by shutting up the saloons.

Although they failed at the recent election ,the local "drys" have not given up the ship and preparations are today afoot for a fresh attack on the "wets" as soon as the campaign starts. A meeting was held last week in Columbus Auditorium and tentative plans were made at that time for a campaign.

HOW EMERGENCY ROD SURGERY MAY HELP THE ANGLER.—It is well to have all your trout rods duplicates, with interchangeable parts. The tip is the most breakable part of the rod.

When the tip you are using is of doubtful integrity it is a good plan to carry an extra tip on your back, where it will be out of your way when you go upon the stream.

By tip is here meant the upper joint of the rod. The small metal tip at the end of the rod is another matter. Always carry two or three of these metal tips in your pocket so that you can easily replace a broken one.

By means of rude surgery you can generally mend a broken rod on the spot. Often the middle joint and not the tip will break.

When this happens apply a lighted match to the metal tip or ferrule that you wish to remove and heat it enough so that the broken piece will come out.

With your knife make a new seating on the broken end and crowd the ferrule or tip securely on.

For the repair you should have with you plenty of matches and a small piece of red cement. Heat this with a match until it melts a little and smear it on the seating before forcing the ferrule or tip back. This will make the joint waterproof.

It is not often that such mendings are of permanent value, although they may serve for a brief period.

A rod so mended has a weak place and will soon come to grief.

For the proper making of these repairs you should also have with you a small pair of pocket pliers and a gimlet.

These may be very useful in getting the wood out of a ferrule, and pliers are the only efficient device for extracting porcupine quills out of a dog's nose.

You can never know when some overzealous dog who may be around camp will need this attention.

In putting a rod together it is a good plan to anoint the ferrules with a little grease. It makes them fit easier and keeps out the water. Mosquito dope will do for this.

If the joints fit too tightly the rod may be strained in taking it apart or putting it together.

CITY MILITIA UNITS READY FOR ACTION.

Democratic leader, and he quickly stated that the minority would unanimously support such a bill. Just before the Senate met the Republican Senators were called in conference on the measure, and it was agreed to pass it forthwith.

The introduction of the bill by Senator McCran was the first act after Chaplain Reed had offered the opening prayer, in which he prayed that this country might be on the side of God and do what was right at this time. The measure provides for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of supplies and equipment for the National Guard and the Naval Reserve and to pay the soldiers who are required to guard the State property. Mr. McCran moved that the rules be suspended and the bill taken up for second reading immediately.

"There is no cause for alarm," said Senator McCran, "but it will be an act of wisdom to take proper precautions. The State has property of a military character worth more than $5,000,000, and while it may not be endangered, it will be a wise step to have it properly guarded."

Senator Florance seconded the motion, which was unanimously passed. The bill was then taken up and was quickly passed through second and third readings by the vote of 17 to 0, there being several absentees.

The bill was passed by the Assembly later Tuesday afternoon.

Adjutant General Barber was in the Senate gallery watching the proceedings when it was passed.

The approval by Governor Edge of the $100,000 bill places at the disposal of the Adjutant-General and Quartermaster-General the funds necessary to complete the full equipment of the State troops.

It was learned today that even before the Governor signed the bill the Quartermaster-General's Department moved to secure the clothing needed for the troops if they should be called out. The appropriation will be devoted mainly to the purchase of underwear, shirts, socks and shoes for the soldiers, as these articles are not provided as part of the regular equipment from the Federal Government. As soon as the bill passed both Houses, options were secured on the needed quantity of the clothing mentioned, so that by the time the bill was approved, arrangements had been made for these supplies.

By securing the options, the State is in position to obtain all the clothing required without actually spending the money unless required to do so. If a declaration of war comes, followed by the mobilization of the New Jersey National Guard and Naval Reserve, the clothing equipment can be supplied instantly.

As to arms, ammunition, uniforms and overcoats, these are already provided in sufficient quantity.

There are about 200 Guardsmen engaged in guarding the State military propery. They are paid $1.50 a day, with seventy-five cents per day for rations, seven days a week, or $15.75 a week. It is, therefore, costing the State more than $3,000 a week to meet this expense.

Adjutant General Barber declared today that everything is ready for instant action if a state of war comes.

Colonel David Hill, of the Quartermaster-General's Department, said that his department had every preparation made.

"We made a record," he continued, "in the mobilization for the Mexican border last summer under the call of President Wilson, beating every other State in getting the troops to Sea Girt, the designated camp ground, and we are ready to repeat the performance."

FURTHER PROOF OF THE NEED OF BETTER SYSTEM.

There was a time not so long ago when Plainfield had as good scavenger service as any other city could boast of but now scavengers are as scarce as song birds on the Somme front and those that still do business are making a better living at it than ever before. At least it would seem so when one enterprising member of the union went his rounds not long ago with an automobile instead of a wagon.

Complaints from residents all over the city who have their cellars full of refuse are coming in stronger each day and the plea for city jurisdiction in the matter has been made by more than one. Other neighboring cities have tried the municipal plan but in most cases the scavenger appeared to be more independent than ever.

Although local residents have to depend on private collectors, a West End resident made the same complaint several days ago that a Newark man, where the municipal system is in vogue, made to the authorities there. He said that after having ashes and other refuse accumulate in his cellar for several weeks he waited in front of his house for a scavenger one morning. On four different occasions he stopped collectors only to have them say that their wagon was already too full or make some other excuse. At last he made a liberal offer to the fifth to do the work and he fell all over himself doing it.

BELGIUM RELIEF WORK HAS NOT FELT EFFECTS.

The work of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, of which the local Belgian Relief Committee is a branch, has not as yet suffered as a result of the break in relations between the United States and Germany.

Chairman Herbert C. Hoover admits that the members of the Commission do not know exactly where they stand in the matter, but they are determined to find a way to feed the Belgians. They are resolved that the Belgian children shall not be allowed to die because of malnutrition or to grow up sub-normal because of lack of food. No definite word regarding the action to be taken in case of a further rupture between the United States and Germany has been received by the local organizations.

Inspiring Talk in Columbus Hall

The Knights of Columbus Auditorium was taxed to its capacity on Wednesday evening, when Dr. James J. Walsh, eminent statesman, physician and scientist, delivered an inspiring lecture on "The Century of Columbus." The affair was arranged under the auspices of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, and was one of a series of lectures fostered by the Supreme Councils.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, who spoke in a highly complimentary way of the literary and scientific ability of Dr. Walsh. The topic, "The Century of Columbus," was the greatest of all centuries. He explained that his estimation of the greatness of the thirteenth century was reckoned from the fact that he believed that people are unhappiest now and that the present conflict in Europe has been directly responsible for this state of unrest. "At the present time," the speaker said, "there are about eighteen of the civilized nations at war and probably before long there will be from twenty to twenty-four involved in the war."

Despite the fact that modern people believe that man is making the most advances in science, art and literature at the present time, Dr. Walsh voiced the statement that in his opinion there were more noteworthy achievements in the world of science, art and literature accomplished in the century of Columbus than at any other time. A defence of his contention in this respect formed the basis of the eminent physician's address. In the century of Columbus, there lived real artists, exponents of the best that has been accomplished in the world of painting and sculpture. Raphael, Michael Angelo and Leonardo de Vinci were men of this time and the very fact that artists and sculptors of the present day regard the works of these men as the standard of perfection coupled with the fact that millionaires are willingly paying fortunes to secure these treasures, were cited by the speaker as proof that the world looks back to the century of Columbus for its real works of art.

The interesting lecture was brought to a conclusion by the speaker's statement that he knew why Columbus discovered America when he did. Men were doing things then and said the speaker "If Columbus did not discover this continent some one else would have done so." The exercises were brought to a close by singing the "Star Spangled Banner" and by a repetition of the Knights of Columbus oath of allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. The oath was administered by H. B. Greenwood and was followed by a salute to the flag.

On the speakers' platform were: Rev. Walter A. Hennessey, Rev. Joseph S. McDonald, Rev. B. M. Bogan, Dr. A. K. Brennan, Andrew A. Kenny, David T. Kenny, Thomas Comerford, George J. Tobin and others. Joseph Carty, William Brown, aGret Keating and Alfred Des Noyes were ushers and Joseph Carty presided at the piano.

Scouts Celebrated 7th Anniversary

The seventh anniversary of the Boy Scout movement was celebrated last night by the Boy Scout Troops in this city, with "father and son suppers" at their various meeting places. Scout fathers, troop committees, local council officers, and special speakers helped to make this annual meeting of the troops one long to be remembered. At 8:15 over 200,000 Scouts in all parts of the country heard the anniversary message of the president of the Boy Scouts of America, and were called to attention, saluting and repeated the Scout Oath.

"On my honor I will do my best—

"1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law;

"2. To help other people at all times;

"3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

Several packed boxes containing useful articles and foodstuffs, were shipped from various headquarters as anniversary week is especially "good turn week."

All the citizens of Plainfield are requested to join with the Boy Scouts in doing their "good turn daily." Plainfield will be a better place to live in if everybody endeavors to live up to this part of the Scout program.

The public is especially invited to attend the lecture at Plainfield High School Auditorium tomorrow evening by Dr. H. Elmer Gilchrist, of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The lecture is to be illustrated by motion pictures that make the subject, "The Conflict With Cruelty" more vivid. On Sunday a large majority of the pastors in this city, as well as throughout the United States, will take for their sermon the Boy Scout oath, and the twelve Scout laws. Scouts attending services in a body.

Miss Mc Kenzie expects to return to the scene of the great conflict in April.

Under the auspices of the Suffrage organization, a card party was held at the Cedarcroft on Tuesday afternoon. The affair was arranged by the ways and means committee of the local organization, Mrs. C. S. Lipscomb being the chairman of that committee. The affair was a social success and was largely attended.

Social Calendar Full for the Coming Week

The social calendar for the coming few weeks, immediately preceding the Lenten season, is not entirely barren. The week's festivities of the Knights of Columbus adds an air of activity to that period of time, while the celebrations of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays are attended by the usual social activity.

The schedule includes a lecture under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club on Lincoln's Birthday, together with the Elks' masquerade dance on Tuesday, that being the eve of Valentine's Day. On Wednesday, Valentine's Day, the program provides for a gala celebration at the Columbus Club and also for a package party under the auspices of the Young Women's Hebrew Association. In the Park Club on Saturday, a card party will be given for the benefit of Mount St. Mary's College. The first annual minstrel show of the Standard Aero Club will also be presented on that day. Dr. Harold Terrill, instructor of science at North Plainfield High School, the newly formed literary club at that institution has an able director. Teh first debate in which the borough organization will participate will be held on Tuesday evening, February 27, and will be with the St. Mary's Literary Club. The second contest of the North Plainfield school will be with Cranford on March 6. Both debates will be held in the borough and both will be on the subject of "Compulsory Arbitration." The contest with the St. Mary's Literary Club will not be open to the general public.

CHORUS AND COMMITTEE WILL BE RECITAL GUESTS.

In the auditorium of the Evergreen Avenue School on Monday evening, a recital for the members of the Plainfield Community Chorus and the Recreation Committee will be given. Admission to the affair will be by ticket only, the event having been arranged exclusively for the members of the two organizations.

Harry S. Burleigh, the noted baritone of St. George's church, of New York city, will offer a program of song. Mr. Burleigh is possessed of a pleasing voice and is a composer of recognized merit. It is expected that each member of both the Community Chorus and the Recreation Committee will avail himself of the opportunity to hear Mr. Burleigh.

The evening was spent with games, singing and dancing, music being furnished by a victrola and a piano. Miss Vincent will be married in the near future to M. B. Benecker, manager of the Sunlight Farm. The shower was arranged by Miss Gardner and Miss Wetzell.

Spectacular Not Popular Here

The National Woman's Party and the Congressional Union, both interested in woman suffrage, are about to amalgamate, according to present indications. The Woman's Party is composed exclusively of women voters; while the Congressional Union is composed of women who are still denied the privilege of franchise.

The Plainfield Woman's Suffrage Association, a branch of the New Jersey State body, is not in any way connected with either the Woman's Party or the Congressional Union and prides itself on carrying on its campaign without the assistance of the spectacular. The poster contest has ended and Edward A. Poucher, of New York city, has been awarded flarst prize. This poster portrays a woman tugging at the Liberty Bell, which is ringing. The "Woman's Hour" is the title of the picture. This poster has been officially adopted as the slogan of the local organization.

The contest will start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the entrance fee will be $3 a team. Each team will be composed of two men and no one member of the team will be allowed to bowl more than sixty per cent. of the contest. Prizes will be awarded to the winners. Articles of clothing collected in the "whirlwind campaign" where on exhibition. The completed articles were on exhibition on Tuesday. The King's Daughters held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. John Uhler, at Netherwood, when over two hundred garments were completed. These are shipped through Mrs. Wallace. It is the intention of those interested in the work to provide at least two thousand garments for the Belgian children.

TWO BENEFIT PLAYS FOR CLEVELAND SCHOOL.

Arrangements are being made by the young women of the First Congregational church for a dramatic entertainment to be held in the parish house of the church on Tuesday evening, February 20, for the benefit of the Schauffer Training School of Cleveland. The institution is intended for the training of young women for missionary work among the people of the United States.

The entertainment will consist of two short plays, they being "The Return of Deborah" and "Her Aunt from California." With the exception of one character in the former, the two casts have been chosen and include Miss Mary Decker, Miss Marion Brothers, Miss Ruth Holmes, Miss Hazel Lockwood and Miss Gretchen Van Zandt in "The Return of Deborah" and Miss Elizabeth Martin, Miss Jessie Hedges, Miss Nettie Stelzer, Miss Hazel Zeek and Miss Elvira Patton in the latter.

Mrs. J. M. Whiton, of Central avenue, is in charge of arrangements for the affair and is directing the rehearsals. Home made candy will be on sale.

HOLY CROSS STARS WILL NOT SHINE.

Although it was the original intention of the management of the Holy Cross Football Club to present a play in the near future, it is said to-day that this plan has been abandoned and that it has been decided to dispose of the surplus in the treasury according to the wishes of the members of the organization.

During the Doyle and Greene regime there was considerable talk of staging a three-act tragedy or comedy and preliminary plans were well underway. It was also reported that talent was to be imported from Cranford, but something went amiss.

Revival Will Close Sunday

Following a week's program of inspiring and illuminating religious instructions by the Rev. Dr. J. Atwood Stansfield, the revival services at the St. Stephen's church will be brought to a close Sunday night at 8 o'clock. The success of the introduction of the new line of Episcopal work represented by Dr. Stansfield has exceeded all previous expectations in the local religious field and the attendance at the various services has been on the increase each evening.

Tonight the sermon subject will be "The Divine Tragedy" and tomorrow morning Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 o'clock. Sunday, the last day of the mission, will be featured by the following program: Holy Communion, 8 and 11 o'clock; sermon at the 11 o'clock service. Closing preaching service at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Dr. Stansfield's phase of religious teaching had its inception at the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, three years ago and last year preaching missions were conducted in all parts of the country. He is the first representative of the new endeavor to visit Plainfield and his reception indicative of the keen interest manifested in the work in all of the places he has visited. He came here from Jamestown, N. Y., and will go next to Olen, N. Y. Although this is his second year in this mission activity Dr. Stansfield qualified as a forceful and thoroughly efficient mission conductor in England and Canada before coming to this country. He made a particular study of the new line and the innovation in Episcopal teaching has been heartily endorsed here since his coming.

The evening services under his direction have been entirely different from the usual Episcopal service and have been featured by new and novel methods of instruction in Christian doctrine. The congregation is invited to select its own hymns and the clergyman is robed only in the black cassock. Preaching is the prime feature and he endeavors to give forceful, though plain, interpretation of the Christian doctrine.

One of the bright novelties of the week has been the maintenance of a question box in the rear of the church. In this may be deposited any queries regarding the Episcopal doctrine and Dr. Stansfield supplies the answers. It has proven a valuable medium in clearing up doubt in the minds of those who attend the mission on various subjects and the clergyman has been able to give a definite and clear answer in each case. Such questions as "Why do innocent children suffer?" and "In what points does the Episcopal church differ from the Protestant church?" are characteristic of the general line of thought conveyed in the box.

Ruby Jubilee Big Affair

The committees from the Home Missionary Societies of the four local Baptist churches will complete this week arrangements for the reception of the five hundred odd delegates from all over northern New Jersey who will attend the convention to be held in this city on February 20. A fitting program to observe the "ruby jubilee" of the societies has been provided for and the local convention will be in every respect as large as any of the hundred others that will be held throughout the United States on the same day.

Next week's issue of the Record will contain the program in detail for the entire day. Acceptances of the invitations sent to the societies in the various parts of the State are coming in rapidly and the list of speakers is nearly completed. The convention, which will be divided into two sessions, will be held in the First Baptist church and the luncheon at noon will be held in the 1First M. E. church.

Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, is somewhat improved after an eight weeks' attack of bronchitis.

Grace Church Will Observe Anniversary

The celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Grace Methodist church will be observed for four days starting Sunday and continuing until Wednesday. With the exception of Monday a program has been arranged by the pastor, Rev. Charles Gillespie, for each night. A review of each society in the church will be made and the annual reports will be given.

The observance of the first quarter century since the formation of the church will begin Sunday morning with the morning service and the interior of the church will be decorated appropriate to the occasion.

On Tuesday evening there will be a reception at the church when the former pastors and officers and members of the congregation, the present members and visitors from neighboring churches will be present. Beside District Superintendent F. J. Hubach and the pastors of the other Methodist church in the city, the former pastors of the church will be present, including Rev. Dr. George Gardiner, Rev. C. C. Cain, Rev. Edward L. Eard, Rev. Dr. Miller, Rev. Dr. Henry Johnson and a number of others, will be present.

On Wednesday night the mid-week prayer meeting will be conducted by Rev. H. H. Carroll and special exercises will be held to mark the closing of the anniversary observance.

Since the church was formed in 1892 by members of the First M. E. church who resided in the borough it has experienced a constant growth. The charter membership was composed of sixty members and now the communicants number over five hundred. During the past year over fifty new members have been admitted to the church and the Sunday-school has also experienced a big growth.

Church Fair a Big Success

The two days' fair being held in the First Presbyterian church will come to a close tonight with a rush and indications are that the largest sum ever made by any similar affair in the church will be realized. Adopting a plan different from other years, all of the societies in the church united together for the occasion and as a result the fair is one of the best ever held by the church. Last night nearly five hundred people attended and over two hundred were served at the dinner. Although many things were purchased, the booths have all been replenished and all preparations have been made for the event tonight and tomorrow.

The prominent feature of the fair is the artistically decorated booths, in which articles appropriate to every season are sold. The booths are named to represent the months of the year and articles used in each month are sold at the proper one. Calendars and valentines and other unique articles are displayed at the January and February booths and the proceeds are to be used to defray the expenses of the Westminister Guild. The March and April booth is filled with surprise packages and other things suggestive of April Fool Day. The proceeds will go to the Sunday-school. May is the Italian Mission booth with laces and cloths on sale and whatever is purchased is a boost for the mission. The June stand is conducted for the benefit of the flower committee, July is decorated in observance of the Fourth and holds candy, cake and other sweetmeats sold by the house committee, and August and September is in charge of the newly-organized Westminster Guild, where ice cream cones can be obtained. The Christian Endeavor Society is conducting the September and October booth and has on sale things appropriate to the season. November is for the Sewing Society and the stand is holding the articles for the annual apron sale of the organization. The last stand is named December and is decorated with Christmas trimmings with a big tree in the center. The members of the Koruimo are the salesmen, having been on duty Wednesday and will furnish lemonade and other soft drinks for the thirsty. Another turkey supper will be served by the women of the church at 6 o'clock tonight.

BORO BIBLE CLASS TENDERS RECEPTION.

The members of St. Joseph's Bible Class tendered a reception in the parish hall on Wednesday evening. About one hundred invitations were issued for the affair and an enjoyable evening was spent by all who attended.

On Sunday evening a meeting of the various committees who will assist at the St. Joseph's Bible Class booth at the Knights of Columbus bazaar was held. Special features have been arranged by the Borough organization under the direction of Edward McCann, who is the chairman of the entertainment committee.

Frivolous Aprons Are Cute as Can Be

FLESH colored georgette crape, which is washable, is shirred into a yoke, edged with pale pink velvet ribbon, easily detached, and topped with a strapping of the ribbon to give this delectable apron. The last touch of fastidiousness resides in the cluster of French flowers on the belt.

• • •

Sport stockings of many sorts are in some shops. They are to be worn for skating, golf and other sports. They are wool in texture and are made in soft shades of gray, brown and green.

• • •

Soft felts and velvets whose brims turn sharply up in the back and down in front follow the summer models of this shape, and a few dress hats of this type are shown in velvet, with plumage plied high at the back. The ostrich feather is to have another season of restored popularity, and breast plumage, coque, imitation heron and grouse and innumerable "fancies" made in feathers are pressed into service by the milliners. But single ornaments of the flat kind are shown in great quantities and will doubtless be used, as they have been used this summer, to trim models whose lines and materials guarantee effect without pretentious trimming, and many of these ornaments are in cut steel, cut gun metal or dull gold combined with furs.

Most attractive and of huge proportions are fans of ostrich, dyed in brilliant colors, mounted on handles that are straight ivory sticks.

The sailor continues to be the most fashionable millinery shape for general wear.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

PLAIN VEGETABLES.

TO BLANCH GREEN BEANS.—Green beans should always be blanched. To do this drain them from the cold water and put them into water that is boiling rapidly, allowing a teaspoonful of salt to two quarts of water. Boil rapidly, with the cover partially off the saucepan, for twenty minutes. Turn into a colander and let cold water run upon them. They are now ready to be finished in any manner you like. The blanching can be done in the morning while the fire is good and the beans be finished for dinner at the proper time.

Green Beans, Plain.—One quart beans, one-half pint water, one generous tablespoonful butter, one level teaspoonful salt. String the beans if necessary and cut them into two inch lengths. Blanch them as directed. Drain and put in the saucepan with the water, salt and butter. Cook for ten minutes, over a hot fire, turning the contents of the saucepan from time to time. Serve very hot. If the beans are not tender it may take fifteen minutes to cook them, but under all circumstances be careful not to overcook as this ruins the flavor. If overcooked green beans become yellow or brown.

Boiled Peas With Butter.—Put one quart of shelled peas in a stewpan, add add enough boiling water to cover them generously. Place over a hot fire and when they begin to boil draw back where the water will bubble gently. Until the peas are done cook with the cover partially off the stewpan. When the peas are tender add one teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of good butter. Cook ten minutes longer. If the peas are not the sweet kind add a teaspoonful of sugar with the salt and butter.

Baked Eggplant.—Peel the plant and boil it whole in salted water until tender enough to pierce with silver fork. Drain and wash, adding butter, salt and pepper and two tablespoonfuls of breadcrumbs and a teaspoonful of scraped onion. When cool beat one egg into the mixture, put in baking pan, cover the top with breadcrumbs and bits of butter and bake about half an hour in an oven hot enough to brown the crumbs. This is delicious, and the recipe is a famous chef's.

Peas With Ham.—Cut the ham into small dice and brown in butter. Add a quart of peas, cover with water and add also an onion. When cooked thicken the sauce slightly with flour.

WHIM OF AN ARTIST.

Turner and His Great Painting, "The Building of Carthage."

When Turner exhibited his great picture, "The Building of Carthage," he was disappointed because it had not been sold at once at the private view and angry with the press for criticising it severely. Sir Robert Peel called upon him.

"Mr. Turner," said he, "I admire your 'Carthage' so much that I want to buy it. I am told you want 500 guineas for it."

"Yes," said Turner; "it was 500 guineas, but today it's 600."

"Well," said Sir Robert, "I did not come prepared to give 600, and I must think it over. At the same time it seems to me that the change is an extraordinary piece of business on your part."

"Do as you please," said Turner. "Do as you please."

After a few days Sir Robert called again upon the great painter. "Mr. Turner," he began, "although I thought it a very extraordinary thing for you to raise your price, I shall be proud to buy that picture, and I am prepared to give you the 600 guineas."

"Ah!" said Turner. "It was 600 guineas, but today it's 700."

Sir Robert grew angry, and Turner laughed. "I was only in fun," he said. "I don't intend to sell the picture at all. It shall be my winding sheet."

For years he kept it in his cellar. Then it was brought up and hung in his gallery, where it remained as long as he lived. When he died he left it to the nation.

Autobiography.

The teacher had instructed the children to write their autobiographies. The following was one of the autobiographies turned in:

"I can remember when you got into the back seat of an auto through a little back door instead of side doors. When I was ten I was knocked down by a seven passenger machine, but it did not get over me. Mother has an automobile, and my dog Teddy and I and the rest of the family like to ride in it. Some of these days I am going to own an auto. That is all I know about autobiography."—Indianapolis News.

The Springs of Wit.

The Browns were at dinner. The second course was brought on, and there was a period of silence broken only by the sound of knife and fork. Then Brown looked up.

"What is this?" he asked, pointing to the joint.

"The butcher said it was spring lamb," replied Mrs. Brown.

"Umph!" grunted Brown. "The butcher was right. I've been chewing one of the springs for the last five minutes."—London Tit-Bits.

Mrs. Bowser's Scheme

And Mr. Bowser Gets Jealous

By M. QUAD

FROM several hints dropped during the last three or four days Mrs. Bowser became satisfied that Mr. Bowser was working up a scheme, and she made up her mind to beat him to it. Therefore, when they had got bottled down the other evening she suddenly said:

Mr. Bowser, I have a great scheme on hand which will be sure to make me fame and fortune."

Mr. Bowser gave a start. He always began his schemes that way, but he never heard Mrs. Bowser do it before.

"You know that in this climate we have long, cold winters," she went on. "From November to May we must keep our furnaces going, and the expense is something terrible. The cold comes from the cold waves from the west. If it wasn't for these cold waves we should have almost summer weather here during the seven months of the winter season. You follow me, don't you, Mr. Bowser?"

"I may in time find out what you are getting at," he growled.

"I will make it very plain to you, Mr. Bowser. All the cold waves are born on the Rocky mountains, and they head for the east at once. Suppose those blizzards were stopped at the foot of the mountains?"

"But who can stop them—and how?" he asked uneasily.

"If I can get up enough heat to warm up the cold waves the question is solved. The cold waves would turn to warm waves," said Mrs. Bowser. "My scheme is very simple and can be put in practice at a trifling cost. We run a line of poles north and south from Maine to Georgia. We will say it takes 1,000,000 poles. They can be cut and set for about 12 apiece. That is only the insignificant sum of $3,000,000."

"What the deuce do you want poles for?" growled Mr. Bowser.

"I want to attach steam pipes to them—six rows of steam pipes. The bottom row will be almost on the ground and the top one eight feet high. These pipes will be attached by hooks, and we will have six rows of them to divide off the east from the west. At each end of the rows we will have a monstrous furnace capable of forcing steam at least 500 miles. I have it all figured out.

"THE CLOTHES WILL DRY IN AN HOUR."

The pipes and the work of putting them up will cost only $15,000,000. The cost of coal per day and the men to tend the furnaces will be about $100,000 a day. These are trifling things."

"By thunder, woman, you must have lost your head!" was growled.

"I figure," said Mrs. Bowser, "that the steam arising from these pipes will heat the air for half a mile high. Therefore if any blizzard attempts to jump over the pipes it will be dissolved in short order."

Mr. Bowser rose up from his chair and walked back and forth.

"I figure," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser, "that it may cost me $100,000,000 to put my scheme in operation and run it the first winter. After the first winter the cost will be reduced one-half. I can also furnish steam to heat all the houses within twenty miles of the pipes. Sit down—sit down, Mr. Bowser, and listen to the rest of it.

"All the people who live within fifteen miles of the pipes can let their hens roost upon them every night all winter, and the charge will be only a cent a hen. The Monday wash can be hung on the pipes during the day, and the clothes will dry in an hour. I am quite convinced that if orange trees are set out within ten or fifteen feet of the pipes that fruit can be raised all winter. In three or four years, after I've got this thing in operation, it will be known that Mr. Bowser is my husband, and you will get your share of the honor. It will be a small share, of course, but still enough to make you proud of having such a wife."

Mr. Bowser got red in the face and grunted, and Mrs. Bowser went on:

"You will say that my line of pipes across the country will interrupt travel. I have figured that out. Where they cross railroads the pipes will be set so high that trains can pass under them. At every country crossroads there will be a large elevator to hoist up wagons and horses and gently land them on the other side, and no charge at all will be made for these conveniences. In summer weather, when steam is not wanted, these pipes can be covered with artificial flowers so as to add to the beauty of the scenery. What's the matter, Mr. Bowser? Did you smutter something?"

"Y-e-s. I am thinking of idiot asylums!" was the reply, and Mr. Bowser walked down the hall and put on his overcoat and hat and left the house without another word, while Mrs. Bowser rocked with quiet laughter.

Mr. Bowser went over to the family drug store, bought a stick of licorice and said to the druggist:

"By George, but women are curious critters, ain't they?"

"Well, what is it?" was asked in reply.

Mr. Bowser outlined Mrs. Bowser's scheme and then said:

"Well, what do you think of that tom fool nonsense?"

The druggist had not cracked a smile while listening to the story, and his face was now very serious as he answered:

"Mr. Bowser, if that was your scheme I would say you were the brother of the biggest jackass in America; but as it is Mrs. Bowser's scheme, you tell her that I will take a thousand dollars' worth of stock the day she is ready to begin operations!"

The Grouch's Mistake

HE had a grouch, a lovely one,
And tenderly he nursed it.
He couldn't let the great world run,
But sat up nights and cursed it.
His curses as they're apt to do,
Came back unto the giver,
Set his digestion all askew
And quite upset his liver.

NOW, had he only known his bis
He would have tried to hold it
Inside his vest, that grouch of his,
Or writ it up and sold it
Like certain writers of today
Who scold the world forever,
While people roll their eyes and say,
"My goodness, ain't he clever!"

The Bench and the Barber

JUDGE RICHARD C. FLANNIGAN, who presides over one of the upper peninsula circuits, confesses that he has the shave habit. He must be shaved every day, cannot shave himself, and if on occasion he gets into a small town on a Sunday he will go to any length to get hold of a barber.

The judge is a little finicky about his barbering too. One day he was caught in a small town and came in contact with an unskillful artist. As he came out of the shop, annoyed at the rasping his face had undergone, he met an acquaintance who knew of the judge's peculiarity.

"Did you ever try that barber further down the street?" asked the acquaintance.

"No; I never did," said the judge. "But I'll try this one if I ever get a chance."—Detroit Saturday Night.

Paralysis Victims Will Be Treated

Following the example of New York and other cities throughout the country, Plainfield, too, has started a campaign to try and bring back to health the children that were victims last summer of infantile paralysis. Under the joint direction of the Visiting Nurses' Association, National Special Aid Society and Muhlenberg Hospital a clinic has been opened at the hospital where the children are treated.

The clinic is under the direct supervision of Dr. Harold Corbusier and is open on Thursday for the treatment of the fifteen or sixteen youngsters now recovering. With the use of the latest electrical appliances most of the victims of the plague have begun to show marked improvement.

The children are taken to and from their homes in automobiles furnished by members of the local branch of the National Special Aid Society. The society is also raising funds to carry on the work during the coming summer and money sent to Mrs. William B. Tyler, 1332 Evergreen avenue, will be used to help swell the fund.

Loyal Daughters Plan Exhibition

The Loyal Daughters' Circle of the Plainfield Union of King's Daughters will hold an exhibit at the home of Mrs. G. A. Bowman, of Evergreen avenue, on Wednesday afternoon of next week. The garments made during the past year will be on exhibition at that time. Previous to the exhibition, there will be a meeting of the Circle when the election of officers for the coming year will be held. Mrs. John Peterkin is the president of the Circle at the present time.

It is also planned to have a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. P. Thomas, Belvidere avenue, on Wednesday, February 28, when a review of the year's work will be made. Mrs. A. M. Most, who is secretary of the Union, will give a short talk on the financial condition of the organization. Mrs. W. C. Hubbard will also speak and Miss Helen Harman will talk on the co-operation of the King's Daughters in the campaign against infantile paralysis. Miss Harman will also tell of the work being accomplished in regards to the treatment of the victims of that plague.

Tabs Lay Claim to County Title

"Jimmy" Monahan is wearing the smile that won't come off. It will be remembered that upon the frail shoulders of "Jimmy" rests the baseball and basketball future of the T. A. B. S. At the present time he is busily engaged informing the local sport world of the fact that his charges have an indisputable right to the basketball championship of Union and Somerset counties. And what's more, James says that the Middlesex crown will drop from the heads of the St. Peter's basketeers this evening, when the local Manlaners take on the visitors from the banks of the old Raritan.

Nor does basketball alone occupy the mind of the little T. A. B. leader. He is also at the helm of the baseball organization and succeeds Jim Scott as manager of the team. At least, that's the prediction. Scott has declared that it will be impossible for him to handle the diamond affairs of the organization this year, and although Monahan is manager of the basketball team, it is said on good authority that he will also be in charge of the baseball outfit. And it is the prevalent opinion that the T. A. B. S. will represent Plainfield in the proposed Central New Jersey League.

Local Democrats at Inauguration

The Plainfield Democratic Club will send representatives to Washington to attend the inauguration of President Wilson on March 4, according to present indications. The local delegates will probably avail themselves of the opportunity to go under the auspices of the Essex County Democratic Commitee, which is to be led by "Jim" Nugent, formerly a bitter foe of the President.

Washington M. Cross, secretary of the Essex County Committee, has issued final details for the trip. The start will be made from Newark on Saturday, March 3, returning on March 6. Mr. Cross has figured that the cost of the trip will be approximately $40 for each man, this including a black overcoat, gloves, light fedora hat, a flag and a badge, as well as hotel accommodations. Including meals and a few side trips.

LOCAL GRADUATE.

Miss Ethel Schuck, of this city, a graduate of the Plainfield High School and of St. Mary's Parochial School, was among the graduates of the Newark State Normal School, the commencement exercises being held last Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The program included demonstrations of various phases of the school work. An address was delivered by United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

PLAINFIELD RECORD

New City Hall Special Edition

Volume I—No. 17. 12 Pages—84 Columns. PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1917 12 Pages—84 Columns. Subscription—Single Copies, 5 Cents; $2.00 a Year.

Quarters for All Officials

Although the new City Hall will be formally dedicated tomorrow afternoon it is not likely that it will be ready for occupancy before next fall at the earliest. In it will be located all city offices and departments except the fire and police departments, these being retained in their present quarters because of the amount of space each requires. The Board of Health, tax collector, city clerk, mayor, street commissioner, Charity Organization, G. A. R., Common Council, City Research and Planning Commission and District Court have been provided for.

The completion of the building will offer the city its first opportunity to house its most important municipal departments under one roof. There are certain branches of city government that have been designed purposely to co-operate with other departments and it is desirable that they have the close connections that will be available under the new plan. The City Hall is located within easy reach of the central or business portion of the city and it will be more convenient for the public as well as the officials.

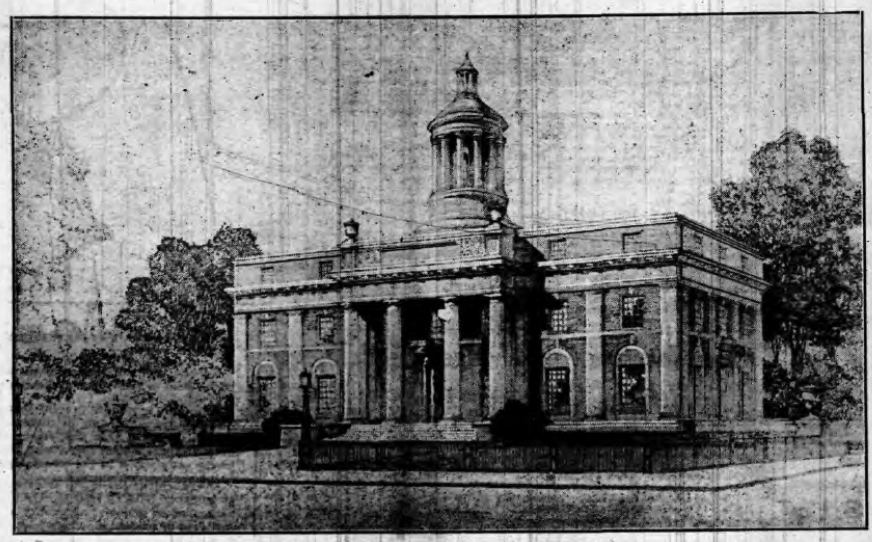
There will be available for officers four floors, including a sub-basement and a first, second and third floor above the ground. These will house the following departments and offices: Sub-basement, rooms and vaults for the tax assessor, drawing rooms and offices for the street department, overseer-of-the-poor's office, store rooms, janitor's quarters, boiler rooms and vaults for the use of various departments; first floor, city clerk's office, tax collector's office, mayor's office, library and reading room and vaults; second floor, Common Council chamber and committee rooms, cost room, public committee rooms, District Court chamber and clerk's office, and filing room; third floor, Board of Health offices, City Research and Planning Commission's office, Charity Organization office, store rooms, G. A. R. headquarters and one room that has not yet been assigned.

The plans are designed to bring the various departments that work together as close to each other as possible. The heads of departments having the most business dealings with the public are located on the ground floor and those departments have regularly appointed times for meetings and requiring greater privacy are placed on the second and third floors.

A number of minor changes have been suggested by those who will use the different offices, and these will probably be attended to at once so that no alterations will be necessary when the building is turned over to the city.

The city has occupied the Kenney building on North avenue for about seventeen years. When the new City Hall is completed it will be possible to vacate the entire portion of the structure the municipality now leases.

Plainfield's New Municipal Building



Mayor Will Set the Stone

All is in readiness for the ceremonies marking the cornerstone laying of Plainfield's new City Hall tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. An elaborate program has been drawn up by the committee in charge and it is expected that both Plainfield and North Plainfield will have a representative crowd of citizens on hand. A platform has been erected for those who take part in the program and for the invited guests, over three hundred invitations having been sent out to prominent official and civic workers.

The dedication ceremonies will be started promptly at 3 o'clock and the program is short, interesting and snappy. Music and short speech-making will be the features. In order that he might be qualified to handle the trowel on the occasion to set the cornerstone Mayor Leighton Calkins has been made a member of the local council of the Bricklayers' Union. It was desirable to have all of the work on the structure done by union labor and for this reason the Mayor was made an honorary member of the union, it being considered that his part in the program was a portion of the actual construction work.

All trolleys running from Plainfield or North Plainfield go within two blocks of the new City Hall and the Union and Netherwood cars carry passengers within a block of it, the getting off point being the intersection of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street. The building is located at East Sixth street and Watchung avenue.

Ample room has been set aside for the throng that will probably attend and it will be possible for all to get a good view of the cornerstone laying.

The document box is made of copper and was presented to the city by David S. Dunavan. It bears the inscription: "Document box laid in the cornerstone of the Municipal Building, Plainfield, N. J., February 17, 1917." The following contents will be placed in the box in the presence of the Mayor and Common Council: City charter and ordinances, minutes of the meetings of the building committee and resolutions of the Common Council relating to the municipal building project, annual reports of Education for 1914-15, program for the selection of the architects, copy of construction contracts, photographs of exterior and interior plans, Richmond's directory of Plainfield, souvenir booklet of the city of Plainfield published for the State Letter Carriers' Convention here in May 30, 1916, Plainfield Record and Courier-News, issues of February 16, 1917, also New York Times of same date, coins, fifty, twenty-five, ten, five and one cent (latest), roster, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and a copy of the dedication program.

Formation of Civic Parade and Route it Will Go Over

According to a statement issued by Mayor Calkins this morning people who arrive at the new city hall site before 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon will be shown positions on the platform erected primarily for officials and invited guests. This platform will occupy all of the first floor of the building but no one will be admitted to it after the ceremonies are started.

The escort will assemble at 2:30 o'clock, Troop D forming on Fifth street, between Watchung avenue and Sycamore street; and Company K on Fifth street, between Park avenue and Sycamore street. The G. A. R. veterans will form directly behind Company K on Fifth street; and the Spanish War Veterans will form directly behind the G. A. R. The Boy Scouts will form on Sycamore street, between Fifth and Sixth streets. All of the above formations will face toward the intersection of Sycamore and Fifth streets.

The platoons of police and the band will form in front of police headquarters and this formation will be under the direction of Chief of Police Kiely. About 300 will be in line and the parade will start promptly at 2:45 o'clock in the following order: Platoons of Police; Troop D; Company K; G. A. R.; Spanish War Veterans; Boy Scouts.

The line of march will be from police headquarters on Fourth street to Park avenue; thence to Front street; thence east to Watchung avenue; thence down Watchung avenue past the site of the new municipal building where the parade will be viewed by the Mayor; thence around the triangle in front of the Crescent Avenue church and back to the site.

Upon arrival at the site, Company K; G. A. R.; Spanish War Veterans; Boy Scouts and the platoons of police will take positions on the platform; Troop D will form in front of the building.

The ceremonies will start promptly at 3 o'clock and will be made very short, without any long addresses. The invocation will be pronounced by Dr. Zelie. There will be a chorus of fifty public school children led by Charles L. Lewis. After the invocation everybody will unite in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." The words of welcome will be delivered by Francis J. Blatz, president of the Common Council. Laurence F. Peck, of Peck & Bottomley, the architects, will turn over the document box and trowel to Mayor Calkins, who will immediately proceed to lay the stone and will make a very short address on behalf of the city to the people of Plainfield. Ex-Senator Ackerman will reply with a short address on behalf of the people of the city to the mayor. All will join in singing "America" and then the benediction will be pronounced by Father Bogan.

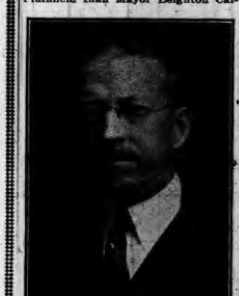
Credit Due Mayor Calkins; Ackerman Represents City

There is probably no individual deserving of more credit for the erection of a new municipal building in Plainfield than Mayor Leighton Calkins. He has been an advocate of the scheme to house all city departments under one roof for a number of years and was a prime mover in the preparatory plans during his service in the Common Council and during his first term as mayor.



Mayor Leighton Calkins.

While the formation of plans for the building rested primarily with the Common Council the mayor took an individual personal interest that did more to provide for the erection of a thoroughly modern and ideally adapted structure than anyone else.

Since the possibility of a city hall neared the reality stage he has visited various other cities where such an asset is in use and has consulted with municipal officials conversant on the subject.

Former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will be the main speaker of the day. It will be his duty to represent the city in a reply to the mayor after the cornerstone is laid. Plainfield citizens are acquainted with Senator Ackerman and know that he is vitally interested in all that concerns the municipality. Probably no other man is better qualified to take this part of the program than he.

During the time the program is in progress all traffic on Watchung avenue, between Fifth and Seventh streets, and on Sixth street, between Sycamore and Washington streets, will be discontinued. Automobiles arriving before 3 o'clock may be parked on both sides of Sixth street and Watchung avenue except in front of the reviewing stand on Watchung avenue.

National Guard News

ALL TROOPS PREPARING.

The First Squadron Cavalry, Major Hobart B. Brown commanding, is making preparation to respond to a call for service. Since returning from border service this organization has lost some men, but it is expected the vacancies in the ranks will be filled by new men if the organization is called out. Troops A and C, of Newark, are pretty well recruited, but many men will be needed to bring Troops B and D up to full strength. Troop D is located in Plainfield and Troop B at Red Bank.

Dr. William C. Fisher, of Newark, attached to the sanitary detachment of the squadron, recently resigned, but in view of the fact that his resignation has not yet been accepted, it is probable he will remain in the service until the present crisis has passed.

NATIONAL GUARD READY.

Momentarily expecting a call to arms in the event of war against Germany, the National Guard of New Jersey stands ready to respond. At the armories of the several arms of the service great activity is being shown. Practically everything is now in readiness if the call comes. Since the breaking off of diplomatic relations by the United States and Germany a week ago, officers and enlisted men of the Guard have attended to their private affairs at home and are now prepared to jump into their uniform and give up their time, ability, strength, yea, their lives, for the honor of the Stars and Stripes.

Strict guard is being kept over all the armories and their administration buildings. Only members of the respective organizations are admitted. Visitors who seek admission must be identified, and unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the officer of the guard that their visit is of an official nature they are not admitted.

Governor Walter E. Edge, as commander-in-chief of the Jersey forces, and Adjutant General Barber have taken every precaution that the State troops are fully equipped for service, if needed. Requisition has been made for equipment that any of the organizations have not in their home armories at the present time. They expect that the State may be called on at any time by the Federal government to supply troops or that emergencies may arise for the State calling out the Guard as a protection for railroads, bridges, water works and munition plants.

Open Meeting Held by Club

The Monday Afternoon Club held an open meeting in the parish house of the Congregational church on Monday afternoon, when the conservation and development of New Jersey resources was discussed.

Henry Croft White, of North Plainfield, spoke on "Development." Mr. White pointed out that this State was important enough to have been discovered at five different times. One party of discoverers was made up of Swedes who settled at Elizabeth and built a fort there. However, they were driven out by mosquitoes. Mr. White went on to tell of the numerous attributes of the State and of its natural resources. There were many in the audience who willingly admitted that the talk was a revelation to them. Dr. J. T. Headlee, State entomologist, described the work that is being done towards the extermination of the mosquito and showed that of the 296,000 acres of salt marshes in the State, 95,000 acres have been drained at a cost of $3.70 per acre. Professor Alba Azee, of the State Agricultural Station, and State Fire Warden Wilbur were also among the speakers.

Information gleaned from these talks establishes the following facts: New Jersey is first in copper smelting, silk weaving, sewing machine making and in the manufacture of talking machines. Its mines produce $20,000,000 a year in products; it has 1,217,000 miles of trolley tracking, 350 miles of canals, and 15,000 miles of roads.

Green Brook Will Be Cleaned---Maybe

The Greenbrook Commission recently appointed by Mayor William L. Smalley to represent North Plainfield in any step taken to clean up Green brook will hold a first meeting in the near future with the City Planning Commission appointed by Mayor Calkins at which time a definite plan of action will be mapped out. The problem of keeping Green brook clean has been one that has long faced the municipal governments of both places but as yet nothing has been done jointly to abate the nuisance. Now, however, both the city and borough have bodies that can meet and decide on the steps to be taken.

Although he has not yet announced what location he has in view for fear that the property, like on other similar occasions, will suddenly take a substantial raise in value, Mayor Smalley is seriously considering the plan of laying out a public park in North Plainfield. Several sites are under consideration and as soon as some definite plans have been made the Mayor will have more to say about his idea.

William L. Saunders Reserve Board Member

Washington, Feb. 16.—The resignation as a government director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York of Charles Starek, recently removed as chief national bank examiner of the New York district, was announced by the Federal Reserve Board. William L. Saunders, of Plainfield, N. J., has been elected as a director to succeed him.

STATE BAR FAVORS CRIMINAL LAW CHANGE.

To make participation in murder plots more dangerous for those who plan them but do not actually take part in the killing the State Bar Association at its mid-winter meeting in Newark Saturday favored an amendment to the criminal laws so that an accessory may be tried irrespective of whether or not the principal in the case has been tried. The change was suggested to the association by Judge William P. Martin last June.

The association also took action looking to preventing trust companies and persons not members of the Bar from performing the duties of a lawyer, such as drawing wills. Another suggestion offered by Judge Martin, providing that judges be allowed to refuse bail to persons who have appealed from convictions, was disapproved.

INTEREST INCREASES.

Interest seems to be growing in the pool and billiard tournaments now in progress at the Elks' clubhouse on Watchung avenue and the race is growing closer with each match played. Tonight Boos will play in the billiard tourney and Monday Force will tackle Boos. The next round in the pool tournament will be played Tuesday when Ardern and Geiger get together.

MRS. JULIA RYAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Julia Ryan, who died Friday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Frank Conger, of Madison avenue, was held Monday morning at St. Mary's church, and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

A resident of this vicinity since coming from Ireland nearly forty years ago, Mrs. Ryan enjoyed a wide acquaintance. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church. Besides a son, Andrew Ryan, of this city, she leaves a daughter, Miss Margaret Ryan, of New York, and several nieces and nephews.

Boro Fire Laddies Active All the Time

Acting upon the theory that man must have recreation, the members of the North Plainfield Fire Department have established a gymnasium at headquarters and can be seen daily going through various physical culture exercises as prescribed by borough gymnastic experts. It is said that the physical prowess of the North Plainfield fire laddies is now unexcelled.

The new gymnasium has been fitted up in what used to be the hay loft. Lieutenant "Al" Fritz and his men retreat to the loft during the mornings and evenings and indulge in a little light work. They claim that it is unusually beneficial to them. But, the gymnasium is not the only source of recreation at the disposal of the Candian firefighters. The Domino Club is conveniently situated directly across the street from the borough headquarters and the members of that club are conducting various tournaments—euchre, domino and pinochle contests. In these contests, the firemen are more or less successful and even the barber-shop boys have a hard time keeping pace with them.

Altogether all is "cozy" at the borough headquarters. One gets an opportunity to work and play, sleep and eat. Lieutenant Al Fritz and his able tillerman, Reynolds, comprise the active staff. Chief William McCullough lives around the corner and can be reached at a moment's notice. There is a large corps of call men and volunteers and these, in addition to the regulars, comprise the North Plainfield Fire Department—and School of Physical Culture.

K. of C. Council Offers Service

Patriotism to the fore, once more. J. J. Varley, grand knight of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, in behalf of the organization of which he is the head, sent the following telegram to President Wilson during the past week: "Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus: Resolved, That the action of the President of the United States in severing diplomatic relations with Germany is hereby endorsed and we herewith tender you our services in any manner you see fit for the defense of our country."

The reply received from Joseph Tumulty, secretary to the President, was as follows: "The President appreciates your very generous and patriotic proffer of your services and he wishes in this informal way to express his grateful thanks." Mr. Varley, to whom this message was sent, read it to those who attended the Knights of Columbus bazaar on Tuesday evening.

U. S. Army Officer Taking Auto Census

Should the United States be forced into war with Germany, Plainfield will be able to do its share toward supplying the necessary motor trucks for the transportation of men and supplies. While it is an admitted fact that almost every community of the size of this has within its confines a number of motor vehicles that would be available for military purposes, it is also a fact that the United States Government realizes that Plainfield is a little better equipped in this respect than most cities of its size.

A few days ago it was reported on good authority that a member of the United States army visited various places in this city and obtained data regarding motor vehicles. His trip was not fruitless as he undoubtedly found many heavy trucks in this city available in time of need. The fact that the factory of the International Motor Company is situated here and that the output of that company has been considerably increased since the declaration of hostilities in Europe probably played a prominent part in the visit of the official. According to those who were in touch with the government's representative, he said he was a member of the Signal Corps and was not in uniform. At the office of the auto licensing agent, he was referred to the State department at Trenton.

Former Teacher Enters Realty Field

Harold F. Biddle, of East Ninth street, has opened real estate offices in the new building of the State Trust Company, at Park and North avenues, and is prepared to conduct the most modern business of its kind in the city. He is a resident and taxpayer of Plainfield and is familiar with realty conditions.

Mr. Biddle is prepared to act in transactions all over the country, owning himself property in five different States. He has traveled through all sections of the country and is familiar with tax laws and other necessary subjects to be able to give his clients the best of service.

The rental of the offices in the new bank building has been placed exclusively in his hands and he is sole representative for a number of ventures. Included among the companies whose local work he handles are the London Assurance, Phoenix Fire Insurance Company, North American Guarantee and Accident Company, Fidelity and Casualty Company, Equitable Life Insurance and others.

"THE HOODOO."

The young women of the Chi Gamma Chi Club of North Plainfield will hold a special meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the cast for their coming three-act production, "The Hoodoo," will be chosen. Miss Mary O'Connor has consented to act as coach and the cast will be chosen from the following: The Misses Anna McGuinnis, Elsie Moulton, Anna Daley, Catherine Newell, Frances Newman, Teresa McCullough, Florence Daley, Esther Reeve, Etta Peaton and Nora Bergen; Edwin L. Sullivan, Fred Greene, Joe Gallagher, Harold Mead, William Mead, Andrew McDonough and Lester Daley.

QUESTION BOX.

The meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Irving-Jefferson schools held on Tuesday was of a social nature. Vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by a number of the pupils of the two schools. Refreshments were afterwards served by Mrs. Hazeltine and Mrs. Charles Moore. The next meeting will be held in the Irving School on March 13. At this session a question box will be used.

LECTURE ON LINCOLN.

The February evening entertainment of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the assembly room of the High School on Monday, February 19, at which time Judd Stewart, of the borough, will lecture on Abraham Lincoln. The entertainment will start at 8 o'clock and a small admission will be charged to cover expenses.

Committee Named for Elks' Affair

Whether they will present a minstrel show or operetta is the question which five prominent members of the Elks will be confronted with tomorrow night, when they hold a committee meeting with Harold Skillings, who directed the successful operetta put on by the Elks last year.

Those who will decide the course to be followed are: William C. Mulvey, W. R. Causbrook Leroy Woodhull, Edgar Starker and Albert F. La Rock. Mr. Skillings has a new opera which he would like to produce here, with the Elks of the city portraying the various characters. Previous to last season, the "Hello Bills" annually presented a minstrel offering. Nevertheless their new departure was quite successful. The mere matter of deciding upon a minstrel show or an operetta rests with the five members of the committee. Public announcement of the decision reached will probably be made after the next meeting of the organization.

Will Form Society for Aid in Fanwood

At the home of Mrs. A. I. Nichol, of Fanwood, this afternoon, a meeting will be held for the purpose of organizing a special aid society in that vicinity. Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, Mrs. A. I. Nichols and Mrs. Ten Eycke Beardsley, who are Fanwood members of the National Special Aid Society of this city, are interested in the movement.

Any young women over fifteen years of age may attend this meeting and it is expected that the appeal will meet with a generous response. The new organization will devote its attention toward helping the nation if the situation becomes more serious or, in the event that the present crisis is passed without further complication, will work for the relief of the stricken in Europe.

LENTEN SCHEDULE FOR HOLY CROSS.

Beginning with Wednesday and continuing through the entire forty days of Lent special services will be held at the Church of the Holy Cross on four days each week, with the exception of Ash Wednesday and the Wednesday in Holy Week.

Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the church, will conduct a service every Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the church, and on Wednesdays an evening service will be held at 7:45. At each one of these services a special preacher will be present and make an address. Miss Margaret Harwkins, a pupil of Organist Davis, will give an organ recital before each service starting at 7:30. On Thursday mornings at 8:30 Holy Communion will be celebrated, and on Friday afternoons at 5 o'clock a special children's program will be held.

On Ash Wednesday the Pentential Office and Litany will be at 7:00; Holy Communion at 9:30, and evening service with short address at 7:45.

ALL KETED UP FOR SECOND COURT CONTEST.

The second section of the annual inter-scholastic basketball title series between the court experts of Plainfield High School and of North Plainfield High School will be staged at the Ninth street institution on Thursday of next week. That day has also another claim to fame, being Washington's Birthday.

The first contest between the city team and that of the borough was not exciting and was one-sided despite the fact that it was previously supposed that the conquered Canadians were superior to the local basketeers. The Plainfield High School team expects to win next Thursday and claim that they have everything in their favor. Playing on their opponents' court, the Red and Blue warriors displayed remarkable ability and decided accuracy in shooting baskets. The North Plainfield team's chief claim to fame is "Bill" Akers and it is said that he will bear watching on Thursday. The boroughites voice the opinion that the game will not be as one-sided as Plainfield supporters imagine.

CHARLES STIMPSON.

The funeral of Charles Stimpson, who died Friday at his home on West Sixth street, was held Monday afternoon from his late residence and was in charge of Rev. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Interment was made in the Methodist cemetery.

Mr. Stimpson was in his eighty-sixth year and well known all over the city. He was a native of England but had lived in America since his third year, having been a resident of Plainfield since 1780. He was for many years a local builder, constructing among other things Truell Inn on Park avenue. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fred Moffett, of this city, and Mrs. Greenwood, of Laredo, Texas.

WALTER HARRISON.

Funeral services for Walter Harrison, forty-five, of East Fourth street, were held Wednesday afternoon from the undertaking parlors on Park avenue, Rev. Edwin Shaw officiating. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery. Mr. Harrison had lived in this city for many years and at one time was a member of the fire department.

STRIKE SETTLED.

Nothing came of the threatened machinists' strike at the plant of the Pond Tool Works because at a meeting of the men held Monday night the labor officials announced that a part of the wage increase sought had been given by the concern. A five per cent. increase will be given the men immediately and more later on.

RETURNS TO SCHOOL.

Miss Teresa McCullough, of Steiner place, has resumed her studies at North Plainfield High School and has given the girls' basketball five cause for rejoicing. Miss McCullough was one of the basketball stars of the borough team last year, playing centre on that combination.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1917.

OVERZEALOUS ALLIED PRESS PROVING NATION'S BRUTUS.

The United States will refuse to be stampeded into war. The overzealous allied press, with its apparent jingoism to pull America into the hole it has helped to dig, must realize this now. President Wilson has made it apparent to the world that the United States will enter the war when it is absolutely necessary to right a great American wrong. He is preparing the nation for any emergency that may arise and should war come, and may a kind Providence forbid, America will be ready. The proally press of the country, unconsciously is proving a Brutus to the nation. Its propaganda is both unwise and unpatriotic. The hatred it is attempting to instill in American hearts toward the Teuton nations is a violation of the sacred American principles that have long helped a suffering European humanity to our shores. Any one can employ the foulest of billingsgate. It takes a man with honor, with courage and steadfast principles to hold aloof. And these are supposed to be embodied in the hearts of Americans. Any attempt to destroy or put out this glowing and world wide fame, will start the crumbling and decay of American institutions. We don't want any hymn of hate. If we ever go to war it's the "Star-Spangled Banner," that will re-echo around the nation. If we ever go to war, it will be the Stars and Bars that will float at the head of our army, not some dirty linen. It will be a war for justice and humanity, not trade and expansion. It will be an American war, declared by an American people for an American cause, not a conflict where the flower of American youth is pushed into the cataclysm's flames to pull out the chestnuts for a few other nations. We don't want war, but blessed peace. And a higher power than that gifted to man, can alone give the verdict and with peace rains from the heavens, put out the watch fires of war, that already seem to glow on the highlands of America.

War between Germany and the United States would spell peace for the world. America's entry into the arena would hasten the end. The kaiser knows it. And because he knows it, and because he desperately needs peace to save his face and to save his throne, war between the two nations seems more than a possibility. "Ninety days after the United States and Germany declare war, it will all be over, and the war in Europe will be over, too." That is the declaration of Charles Edward Russell. No man in America is better entitled to opinions concerning the war than Russell. He has seen the fighting, and he has talked to the common people of Europe about the war. It is his idea that the moral support of America is alone sufficient to show the German masses the hopelessness of the cause into which the kaiser and the Prussian militarists have led them. The German common people may still believe the promise of the emperor to defeat the allies, but few will believe in the war lord's ability to lick the entire world. With America in, it would be the men and money of practically the whole world against Germany. We are proud of America, but even in our pride we do not realize how wonderfully strong this nation is—what a gigantic weight of money-power and man-power America would place in the scales against a foe. In wealth we have: Nearly double the wealth of Great Britain; five times the wealth of France; six times the wealth of Russia; twelve times the wealth of Italy; sixteen times the wealth of Japan. Our resources are nearly a match for the resources of all the allies, big and little, put together. Our resources are two and a half times those of Germany, Austria and Turkey combined. Add Uncle Sam to the forces fighting Germany, and the balance of resources against that unhappy nation would be about 5 to 1.

CITIZENS' TICKET HERE NEXT FALL?

Developments during the past month have been strongly indicative of a Citizens' Ticket for next fall's elections. Plainfield has a lion's share of this county's voters who are at odds with the administration for wrongs they allege have been done them in the selection of office-holders and more trouble is feared when several attractive appointments are made in the first part of 1918 if the present incumbents are returned. The Citizens' Ticket element has particular designs on the nomination of a new State senator and a bitter campaign against the present officeholder is certain to develop. Mr. Carlton B. Pierce has ruffled the feathers of the county Republican leaders and there is every reason to believe that he will suffer the consequences next fall. Between now and next September he can do sufficient damage to the popularity crown to win certain defeat for himself.

He has indicated that Plainfield has been eliminated from his calling list. Plainfield Republicans expect no further favors from him and admit that he has worn the welcome from the mat. Where necessity demands he will of course do the recommending for a local office but henceforth the Republican workers who fought for his re-election and Governor Edge's election last fall will not be disappointed if he fails to reciprocate.

Next year will mark the retirement from office of several county officials holding remunerative jobs. The Republican senator will be expected to recommend successors but unless the Citizens' Ticket is successful in retiring Mr. Pierce, Plainfield may rest assured that none of the juicy fruit will fall within its boundaries when the plum tree is shaken.

COMMENDABLE WORK OF NATIONAL SPECIAL AID.

Women active in the interests of the National Special Aid Society have risen nobly to the call of the hour. The last few days have been productive of gratifying results in the well organized campaign to enlist women of Plainfield and surrounding suburbs in various callings for emergency duty in war time. When the opportunity for service presented itself at the first intimation of possible conflict with Germany Plainfield women sacrificed time and energy in preparation for a systematic program of enlistment.

Recruiting offices located in the business section have been placed in charge of well informed workers; the patronage to date has been large; and the attitude assumed toward the movement by womankind in general has been exceedingly encouraging. The prescribed lines of duty for volunteers are many and varied; it is an easy matter for the applicant to single out a branch in which she is proficient; and the careful attention being devoted to the cause by the prime movers is enabling the volunteers to sign for work in which they are capable of producing the greatest degree of efficiency.

In short, the movement is one that should have the support of the community. War is inevitable but until it actually comes upon us, we have no way of accurately measuring the value or number of the women who are willing to do a man's work. It takes a crisis of this nature to determine who the woman patriots of a municipality are and the activity of the National Special Aid Society members is sufficient indication of the commendable spirit that prevails in Plainfield.

MEGALOCEPHALIC MICROBE ATTACKS GERMAN NATION.

If a man grows rich very rapidly he is apt to be attacked by the "megalocephalic microbe" and suffer from what is popularly known as "big-head." The symptoms are a rise in egotism and arrogance, and a disposition to assume as personal merit a result due to luck and to the institutions of the country which make business safe and profitable. It is not infrequently accompanied by jealousy of the old families who have been wealthy for generations, and look down on the newly rich. The entire German nation (at least the ruling class) are suffering from this malady. In 1870 they got a lot of money from France. They went into business in a systematic and thorough way, like the Japanese. They were troubled by no inherited prejudices. They hired Scotch engineers to show them how to build a steel ship and they learned thoroughly. They made everything that would pay, so that ten years ago the profits from their outside trade were conservatively estimated at half a billion dollars yearly, exclusive of the profit from carrying freight and passengers over sea. They invested these profits prudently for the most part, with the exception of some outlying real estate in Africa and China which did not pay much at first but might come in usefully as the children grow up. The inventive age increased the wealth of the world many fold and the Germans availed themselves of every new discovery. In consequence, they grew rich with wonderful rapidity and came to the conclusion that they were a favored nation, a chosen people. They then made their great mistake, for every nation is a favored nation to its own people. In fact the big head or megalocephalic mania led them into one mistake after another, mistakes of a kind that men are too proud to repent, and never acknowledge till the big head has subsided.

It takes a very well balanced, level headed man to stand a sudden influx of prosperity of any sort, and a nation is never entirely made up of such men. There are found feather-weights and balloon minds even among so sensible a people as us Plainfielders.

CLEAN ADVERTISING! WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Advertising of a questionable or objectionable nature is neither solicited nor accepted by the Plainfield Record. This statement has previously been made but like all other weekly newspapers the Record gets its share of applications for white space from firms whose sole object is to fool the public. Weekly publications for some unexplained reason are particularly desirable as prey for these fakirs. Twentieth century weeklies are waking up to the necessity of establishing a "dead-line" for the protection of their readers but there still remain hundreds of "weeklies" that will take anything at any price.

The Plainfield Record has maintained a policy designed to encourage home trade and boost the enterprises of the home city. The few dollars sacrificed in turning down advertisements that carry a tinge of suspicion are dollars well spent. By adhering strictly to clean-cut principles the paper has earned a right to compete in a field that has an old established daily. Few weekly publications are bucking the class of competition that the Record has been facing since it was started five months ago and still fewer have existed that length of time under such conditions.

When the Record was first issued certain interested competitors gave it a month's life, others were charitable enough to extend the period to two months. In the face of this opinion it has struggled along until now it is established on a rock bottom basis and is here to stay. A large part of its success may be attributed to its stand for clean advertising.

CITIZENS SHOULD BE ON HAND TOMORROW.

Citizens of Plainfield will have an opportunity to demonstrate their civic pride tomorrow afternoon when the new municipal building is dedicated. Elaborate and impressive ceremonies have been arranged by a committee of city officials and the event is certain to be one of the bright spots in the municipality's history. Mayor Leighton Calkins, members of the Common Council, and various other city officials have worked hard and untiringly to make the city hall a reality and tomorrow's dedication is considered the first actual step toward occupancy. It will probably be a year before our municipal departments are housed under one roof but when that time arrives it is certain to produce an atmosphere of co-operation that will prove highly beneficial to the city.

Mayor Calkins and his co-workers are to be congratulated. It is the duty of every Plainfield taxpayer to be on hand tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and participate in the dedication. A representative gathering will act as an expression of citizen approval of the efforts of those responsible for this creditable city improvement.

• • • • •

COUNCILMEN SHOULD BE PAID ANNUAL SALARY.

Suggestion made by the Business Men's Association that the members of the local Common Council be paid an annual salary is worthy of serious thought. Considering the fact that our City Fathers devote twenty-five per cent. of their evenings during the year, and in some cases fifty per cent., to their work, their services are well worth any remuneration the municipality may feel able to appropriate. There has been no tendency on the part of the councilmen to solicite pay and it is possible that they would refuse it if offered.

Councilmanic work consists of more than the routine so many taxpayers imagine it to be. It requires a conscientious sacrifice of time and energy and those elected to the office oftentimes are subjected to undeserved criticism.

Other cities of Plainfield's size have established a plan for the payment of councilmen and city government officials. There is every reason to believe that Plainfield could adopt a similarly satisfactory system. In Elizabeth the question was brought up about a year ago and the subject was left to the councilmen themselves to decide. The result was a refusal of pay.

However, this is not a matter that should be placed before those who are to be affected. In voting on a salary issue the councilman finds himself confronted with an embarrassing situation and in a class of men such as compose our governing body salary is almost certain to be turned down.

During the past week the Record had occasion to pass upon the advisability of publishing a signed communication brought to this office by a citizen who has proven himself to be a crank of the first order. The columns of the Record are open to its readers for the publication of signed articles, but it is necessary at times to distinguish between the right and wrong kind of publicity.

Newspapers must not be used as a medium through which private grievances may be aired by vindictive individuals. No matter what the standing or moral reputation of the writer may be in the community the newspaper has no right to publish slander for which he guarantees responsibility. The publisher is responsible for what appears in print and if he is foolhardy enough to sympathize with a crank to the extent of wasting white paper in assisting him to seek revenge he must take the consequences.

The article referred to was written by a property owner and an apparently responsible individual. He admits he has an ax to grind but presents only flimsy proof to back him in his attack on prominent city officials. He may be well informed, this we do not deny, but at the same time the newspaper must first be convinced before it attempts to convince its readers.

It is rported in New York that it is so hard to find domestic servants that many private houses will be closed, and their occupants will be found in hotels, or outside the city. The explanation offered is that during the summer and fall, while these people enjoyed themselves in the country or at the seaside, a multitude of women servants were tempted into the munitions factories and other shops where they obtained better pay and a more independent life. Employment agencies declare that they have never before known such a shortage of domestic service as exists now. Speaking particularly of the nurse and governesses, one paper declares that "men have recently been employed to wheel baby carriages," taking the place of nurses who have left to work in the factories. But what sort of men take the leavings of the women is not explained.

A bill is pending in Congress to give control of every wireless telegraph company in America to the Navy Department. In time of war control of land telegraph lines is a comparatively simple matter. The army simply seizes the telegraph lines and mans them. But the message that may be flashed through the trackless air—perhaps to an enemy—are more difficult to control. The wireless may be such a source of peril in war time that it should be controlled and operated by the Government in peace time. A very good thing for Congress to do would be to make an emergency measure of the pending bill, and pass it quickly.

• • • • •

"I realize what money is. I know. I have earned every dollar I have by struggle and hard knocks. I have no desire to fritter away public money; but we sit here and vote, almost flippantly, millions of dollars on projects the benefit of which is so remote as to be almost intangible."

The "Farmer Orator" has but a few more weeks to serve but his principles are worthy of emulation by his successor.

Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson has introduced to the Legislature a bill which, if passed, will make it a punishable offense to drive a horse drawn vehicle at night without displaying a tail light. Jerseyites will no doubt be surprised in most cases to find that such a law has not been enacted before this time. It is just as important that lights be displayed on the back of wagons as it is to have them on the rear of autos.

Russian papers point out that the entrance of the small neutral nations in the war against Germany would handicap rather than aid the Entente Allies, as they already have enough troops and it would only mean the feeding and equipping of more men without material gain.

THE WEEK'S REVUE

Sarah Bernhardt has requested that a Simplex, Pierce-Arrow or Packard automobile be at the station to meet her when she arrives tomorrow morning. Considering the fact that the "Divine Sarah" is of French extraction it was real charitable of her to select three of America's highest priced motor vehicles in preference to Dennis O'Brien's deep sea going hack.

• • • • •

It's just about a year ago since they laid the corner-stone of Plainfield's new postoffice and it is still impossible to predict when it will be ready for occupancy. At this rate the city officials now in office should have no cause to worry about the interior decorations of the new city hall for they'll all be on the pension list when this structure is turned over to the public.

• • • • •

It was too cold to stand on the street corners and argue war in Plainfield during the past week but this is the only nice thing we can find to say about the weather-man.

• • • • •

Criticism to the effect that the new city hall is too far from the heart of the city is sufficient proof to make the average citizen believe that the location is ideal. The party who balks at a three blocks' walk is just the type of a loafer we don't want hanging around the city hall.

• • • • •

As the possibility of compulsory military service dawns brighter there are a lot of young fellows, who evidentally don't relish the idea of working for the government eight hours a day for six months at the rate of five dollars a month, trying to cultivate a twenty-eight year old appearance.

"Can you fill a man's place?" is the slogan of the recruiting officers in charge of the National Special Aid Society's activities here. Local "Suffs" as Patriots

The members of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage Association will be loyal to their country and will lay aside for the present all thought of personal or party gain. The object of the association has been to assist in a campaign for votes for women. From now until the international situation becomes less serious, the local women will devote their time and energy toward assisting the United States. For the purpose of offering their services to their country, the New Jersey State Suffrage Association yesterday sent a committee to Governor Walter E. Edge at Trenton. This committee, of which Mrs. Edward Feickert and Mrs. Henry Crofut White, of this city, were members, reported the willingness of the women of the State to render all possible assistance to their country.

The plan of action adopted by the Plainfield Equal Suffrage Association, as a part of the State body, was not unexpected as it followed similar action on the part of the women of New York State who last week undertook a like expedition to the Capitol at Albany. Mrs. Henry C. White, who is president of the local organization, in speaking of the trip, said that the men and women of this city are patriotic and that the members of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage Association have always been willing to do their share in all worthy enterprises, such as well as national. Mrs. White also intimated that the work of the association, as regards the fight for the ballot, would be discontinued for the present.

America First; Society Later

Throughout the country of late there has been a noticeable falling off in social activity. In many places the attention of society has been turned to national affairs and the spirit of patriotism—with a capital "P"—has been most prominent. Those who are active in the social world of Plainfield have not found it difficult to set aside social affairs and adopt the more serious side of life.

In this city, as elsewhere, those organizations which heretofore have been devoted entirely to social functions, have turned their attention to the needs of the nation and have formed various auxiliary corps. The work of the Belgian Relief organization has earned for itself commendation throughout the entire world and society has played an important part in the work. Many of those who have the interests of this organization at heart have cancelled a large number of their social engagements in order that they might attend a monthly meeting of the Relief branch. The National Special Aid Society numbers among its members many of those who form the elite of local society. Despite the fact that they are the socially elect of Plainfield, the members of these organizations find time for the movements which mean so much. They do not let society claim their attention, but are devoting its energy towards helping the needy and along patriotic lines.

Of late, Plainfield has witnessed many patriotic deeds on the part of her citizens, but the establishment of a recruiting station by a band of local society women is probably regarded as the most advanced patriotic step yet taken. The trend of local society is toward the patriotic and the formation of these recruiting stations is truly indicative of the fact.

The Plainfield Equal Suffrage Association is composed in a large measure of society women and they have sacrificed the furthering of their cause in order to be of assistance to their country in this time of need. The members of this and other suffrage organizations generally realize that at this time drastic action on their part would probably help along their cause temporarily. But their patriotism prompts them to rise above any acceptance of this remotely possible chance. The Stars and Stripes come first in Plainfield: individual, social and party interests will be attended to later.

At this time, patriotism does not consist only in preparing for national emergency. It consists in taking care of the needy at home. At the sacrifice of social distinction, local women, formed into such organizations as the King's Daughters and the like, have been actively engaged in work which is decidedly more advanced than the mere "uplifting" idea. Many are the sacrifices that the patriotic women of Plainfield are making in this, the Queen City is and ought to be proud of the class of society found within its confines.

Bluebird Shower for Bride-elect

A Bluebird shower was given last week by Mrs. Elmer Sickley, of Springfield, in honor of her niece, Miss Edith McCollum, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. W. Mrs. Sickley was assisted in receiving by Miss McCollum, Mrs. Norman H. McCollum and Miss Lila Kneen, of Springfield, and Miss Louise Earner, of Wyomissa.

Among the local guests were Mrs. D. Webster Littell, Sr., Mrs. Albert Littell and Miss Anna Littell. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many useful gifts. Games were conducted in the well, being drawn out as "The Old Oaken Bucket" was played on the phonograph.

Final Touches Being Put on Club Minstrel

The first annual minstrel show of the Standard Aero Club, composed of employes of the Standard Aeroplane Corporation, will be held in the Plainfield High School auditorium on Saturday, February 24. It was the original intention to stage this show tomorrow evening, but a change in the plans was necessitated.

Under the able direction of J. H. Steenson, the cast of this show has been coached and it is said that one of the most pretentious minstrel offerings ever presented in this vicinity will be staged by the Aero Club members. The end men have been selected and are: Tom Ricketts, Andy Crozier, Bert Bush and Harold Lunger. These will be dressed as waiters and will be the chief funmakers in the opening scene, serving at a lawn party. The closing part is expected to be one of the most novel bits of minstrelsism and is booked as an aeroplane sketch. Miniature aeroplanes and models of the various types manufactured by the Standard Aeroplane Corporation at its factories in this city will be in evidence. A chorus of twenty-five will render the latest song hits and Ralph H. Crosby, president of the Standard Aero Club, will be the interlocutor. Dancing will follow the show and music will be furnished by the Union orchestra.

Two Playlets Well Produced

The one act comedy, "A Proposal Under Difficulties," by John Kendrick Bangs, and the pantomime playlet, "Narcissus and Echo," were presented under the auspices of the Thespian Society in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School last Friday evening. The affair was well attended.

The characters of Robert Yardsley and Jack Barlow in the comedy were well portrayed by Horace Bunker and Paul Westergard, while that of "Miss Andrews" was capably rendered by Miss Josephine Giglio. The part of "Jenny," a maid, was admirably handled by Miss Marguerite Penny. The rendition of "Narcissus and Echo" was given by Miss Marjorie Henwood, as "Narcissus;" Miss Elsie Vail as "Echo" and Miss Evelyn Foster, who interpreted the "Spirit of Reflection" in the pantomime was presented in a particularly pleasing fashion.

The patronesses for the affair were:

Call Halt in Belgian Work

The American Commission for Relief in Belgium has officially notified the German authorities that the Americans will withdraw from participation in the relief work in Belgium and Northern France. This action was not entirely unexpected and, according to Hoover, in charge of the work, does not necessarily mean that the various relief organizations throughout the country will have to cease operations. The Belgian Relief organization in this city was very most active and it would be with much regret that its work would be discontinued.

According to William L. Hennold, in charge of the Belgian relief work in this country, there is every indication that the work of lending a helping hand to the stricken Belgians will go on under the direction of either Dutch or Spanish authorities. According to Mr. Hennold, the Spanish Ambassador at London and the Spanish Minister in Switzerland have been patrons of the movement. Meanwhile, the commission will still receive the offerings of kind-hearted Americans and will dispose of these offerings. Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the commission, has intimated that the work will be just as actively in the hands of another neutral as it has been in American hands.

Avoirdupois Plus Humor, Billy Watson's Offering

A surprise is awaiting the local theatre-goers who are ever on the alert for novel entertainments, in the form of Billy Watson and his Beef Trust, which comes to the Plainfield

Theatre next Monday afternoon and evening.

The original Beef Trust Billy Watson is this season at his best and his principal comedy assistant, Frank Hasbard, also shows to better advantage than ever. By special request Beef Trust Billy Watson is this season presenting a new version of his famous character "Philip" in the famous Krausmeyer's Alley and the Christenings. Everybody remembers how can they forget the rat fight with his neighbor Grogan. The audience is kept in an uproar from the rise of the curtain until the final fall and the only intermission for laughter is to allow that wonderfully handsome chorus that Watson has assembled to display the gorgeous gowns he has provided for them. Besides Watson and Hasbard, the supporting cast is one of the best ever seen with an entertainment of this character and numbers the following well known and selected players. Billy McGarry and Eleanor Revere in their great talking, singing and dancing act, Jean Lichton, a high class vocalist and musician, Margaret Newell, a volcanic soubrette in the order of Eva Tanguay, Jules Jacobs, May Deemer, Lulu Leslie, Gravie Sachs, Kitty Dayton and C. W. Braddock. The musical and dancing ensembles have been put on by one of America's best producers and are without doubt the most intricate ever seen with a burlesque attraction. The scenery has been designed and painted by one of the best scenic artists in this line, the electrical effects are marvellous of splendor. Taken in its entirety Billy Watson and his Beef Trust should prove the best entertainment of the season in this city.

"THE MUSIC MASTER."

David Warfield begins the last week of his notable extended engagement in David Belasco's revival of "The Music Master" at the Knickerbocker Theatre Monday night. Originally limited to eight weeks only, Mr. Warfield's present engagement in his revival of Charles Klein's celebrated comedy triumph was extended for another twelve weeks, owing to the insistent demand for seats to see him in this most human of plays. For a revival, especially, Mr. Warfield's reappearance in "The Music Master" has been phenomenally successful, during his nineteen weeks' run to date in this revival Mr. Warfield has broken all records for attendance of any dramatic offering in New York this year, and when he goes on tour after this week Mr. Warfield is bound to break even his own record in his revival of "The Auctioneer" three years ago, when he taxed the capacity of the largest playhouses throughout the country at the very highest prices. Theatre-goers everywhere are eager to see Mr. Warfield again—and many for the first time, too—in his greatest triumph, "The Music Master," which play more than any other possesses an even balance between humor and pathos.

Mr. Warfield's supporting company, including several members of the original cast, comprises Charles Abbott, Tony Bevan, Louis Hendricks, Augusta Aramini, Francis Gailiard, Edward Mortimer, William Boag, Griffith Lusk, H. H. Carlton, Pickering Brown, Thomas Gilbert, Jane Cooper, Helen Weer, Eleanor Barry, Gertrude Valentine, Rose Saltonstall and Marie Bates.

Last matinees Wednesday, Thursday (Washington's Birthday) and Saturday, at 2:15 p. m. sharp. Evenings at 8:15 sharp.

"LITTLE LADY IN BLUE."

Frances Starr, now in her third successful month in the refreshingly new and delightful comedy, "Little Lady In Blue," in the Belasco Theatre, continues to delight audiences with her clever performance. This appealing comedy of manners and customs of Georgian days by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, one of the finest contributions to the stage, has become one of the biggest dramatic hits of the year, and Miss Starr will continue playing at the Belasco Theatre throughout the season. "Little Lady in Blue" is one of the greatest successes Miss Starr has had, and the Belasco Theatre continues to house the crowds that have been going there for so long a time.

David Belasco's highly artistic and deft production of the "Little Lady In Blue," remarkable alike for its simplicity, innate charm and truthful picture, and for its delicacy, is about the last word in stage production. Indeed, the charm of the play is perfectly reflected in the remarkable simplicity of its staging.

Matinee Thursday (Washington's Birthday) and Saturday, at 2:20. Evenings at 8:20.

STRAND THEATRE.

An interesting and varied program will be presented at the Strand Theatre. Max Linder, the famous French comedian, will make his debut in an American made film comedy entitled "Max Comes Across." Unusual and interesting pictures taken in Alaska will also be presented, showing a seal ion rookery and the capture of whales in the Northern Pacific Ocean. The principal photo-dramatic feature is "The Winning of Sally Temple," in which Fannie Ward played the principal role before the camera. The story is based on Rupert Sargent Holland's celebrated novel, "The Heart of Sally Temple." The title role is said to be better suited to Miss Ward's histrionic abilities than any photo-play in which she has ever appeared, and as the pretty actress she is given unusual opportunities to display her talents. Jesse L. Lasky, the producers, has given the play elaborate settings and surrounded the star with an excellent cast including Jack Dean, Walter Long, Horace B. Carpenter, Belle Bennet, Dan Weskel, H. Woodward, Harry J. Smith, Eugene Pallette, Florence Smythe, John McKinnen and Vola Vale.

"LOVE O' MIKE."

The first capacity week of "Love O' Mike" began on Monday night at the Shubert Theatre, under the direction of Elliott, Nash, Marbury and Lee Shubert. Like its successful predecessor, "Nobody Home" and "Very Good Eddie," it has a dainty and youthful appeal, and its music is written in an exceptionally charming and melodious vein.

The play is by Thomas Sydney, with lyrics by Harry B. Smith and music by Jerome Kern, and concerns the efforts of a group of young men at a fashionable house party to cure their feminine friends of their infatuation for a British nobleman. The scenes are laid in the boudoir and the drawing room of a country house in Bronxville, N. Y.

Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

Bernhardt as Young as Ever

Time has worked a miracle. It has kept Sarah Bernhardt young. At seventy-one, the great actress is intellectually as youthful as she ever was, and almost as active. She plays three or four parts nightly, without seeming strain. And, after acting for three hours, or more on end, she goes back to her hotel or private railroad car, and entertains. She will appear at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night.

Her afternoons, except when she gives a matinee, are spent rehearsing her amazing repertoire. She has brought with her about ten one-act plays, in which we shall see her, with some of the most popular acts of her old stand-bys.

"My hands are pretty full already," said Mme. Bernhardt. "At the beginning of my season, I was handicapped by having to act with several artists who were not perfect familiar with their parts. By hard rehearsals, day and night, within the past two weeks, I have overcome the difficulty I speak of."

"You see, I found it impossible to engage some of the male actors on whom I had counted. Most of our men are in the trenches, or the forts. Even my leading man, Mr. Angelo (whose father, by the bye, was one of the members of my earlier companies), was at the front till lately. He is here for a short time on furlough. Soon—in a month or so—he will go back to the war."

"Where do I rehearse? Why, sometimes on the stage of the particular theatre in which I am to appear. But more often, on my private car. Though I feel marvelously well and strong, of course, I do all I can to avoid superfluous movement."

"There is much, so much to do. These new plays of ours. What are they? Well, to begin with there is a short dramatic episode written by 'A French Officer at the Front' and entitled 'The Field of Honor.' As I have quite resolved to respect neutrality while I enjoy the hospitality of this neutral people, I shall omit a stirring passage in that play—known as 'The Prayer for Our Enemies' and replace it by Victor Hugo's beautiful 'Patria.' In England and in France and Canada, of course, I used the 'Prayer.' It made a sensation. And there are other plays."

SECOND EDITION OF "SHOW OF WONDERS."

The second edition of the "Show of Wonders" will be shown at the Winter Garden beginning with a matinee Monday, Lincoln's Birthday. This second edition of the "Show of Wonders" will mark the one hundred and fiftieth performance of the most successful Winter Garden show of the twenty which have been presented at that home of extravaganza. While many new songs and dances will be introduced in the second edition, the chief feature will be a novel and startling spectacular effect, such as has always been a part of all Winter Garden productions, entitled "Submarine F-7." This spectacular feature, "Submarine F-7," is the invention of Henri de Vries, with all its inner-workings and mechanical details, has been accurately presented on the stage. While Mr. de Vries secured all the details of submarine warfare on the Continent, the Winter Garden management announces that the incidents related take place in American waters and bear no relation to the present European war. The model of "Submarine F-7," and all its mechanical features, is an exact replica of one which was caught in a net by a fishing boat in England. In order to familiarize himself with life on a submarine during war time, Mr. de Vries was able to make frequent trips in undersea boats. The cast of the second edition of the "Show of Wonders" includes George W. Monroe, Howard and Howard, Walter C. Kelly, Tom Lewis, Marilynn Miller, John Murray, Grace Fisher, Alexis Kosloff, White & Clayton, Sidney Phillips, Dan Quinlan, Edmund Mulcahy, Eleanor Brown, James Grant, Ernest Hare, Virginia Smith and others. The matinees this week will be on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. There will be the usual concert on Sunday.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

Apparently, burlesque and vaudeville will contend for supremacy in the program that is announced for the week beginning Monday afternoon, February 19, at the Columbia Theatre. Jean Bedini, erstwhile popular vaudeville headliner, will present his Pass Pass organization in a bill consisting of a one act travesty based on the motion picture craze and in which the process of making a film is said to be humorously shown. Following this, seven carefully selected vaudeville specialties will alternate with an equal number of musical features. Mr. Bedini will appear as a movie star in the travesty and will have the assistance of Minnie (Budd) Harrison, Pam Lawrence, Marguerite Ross, George Brooks, Charlie Mack, Harry Jackson, Al. Ricardo and Davis and Stafford. The vaudeville program includes the Empire Comedy Quartet, a short travesty on "Very Good Eddie" with Charlie Mack in the principal part, Toots Davis and Ed. Stafford, singers and dancers, Al. Ricardo, comedy ventriloquist, "Marguerite," Buddie Harrison, character songstress and the Ignatz Pluto Troupe, in a burlesque acrobatic act. All of the features as well as the one-act skit have been provided with special scenery, and the costumes and other details are described as fully in keeping with the admirable standards maintained at the Columbia.

WHO'LL BE HIT NEXT?

The housewives aren't the only ones to be hit by the high cost of living. Daley Brothers, who have been in the grocery business in this city for many years, closed their store on North avenue this week and announced they had left the business. Grocers all over the city are complaining of the increasing cost of commodities and say that they have to cut their profit to the lowest margin possible in order to have the people pay the prices.

Big Washington Week at Proctor's

An extraordinary program of photoplay attractions has been booked for presentation at Proctor's local playhouse during the coming week starting Monday. On Monday night two big stars will be presented on the same program, Robert Warwick being featured in "The Man Who Forgot," his latest William A. Brady production, and Mrs. Vernon Castle starring in the sixth episode of "Patria."

On Tuesday and Wednesday a special big treat will be offered the Proctor patrons at no advance in prices. It is a special photoplay production with an all star cast of prominent players, including James Morrison, Louise Vale, Frankie Mann, Mrs. Alexander, Donald Hall, George Henry and others of equal prominence. The scenes are truly artistic and equal if not surpass anything yet shown upon the screen in a dramatic photoplay. This six part super-production tells how James Morrison as the boy has never come into contact with a woman. When he at first is led by her it is only to the end that he may expose the fiend-woman who has lured his father away from his mother. In this plan he is successful in reuniting his parents. How he succeeds makes a stirring tale, and one that all film fans should see. In addition on Tuesday, Mrs. Vernon Castle will appear in the sixth episode of "Patria," while on Wednesday added features will round out the program.

Thursday's program has been compiled very carefully to provide a special Washington's Birthday list of attractions. William Desmond appears in "The Iced Bullet," a mystery five-part Triangle play. Pearl White is seen in the eleventh episode of "Pearl of the Army," and a special Triangle comedy is also shown.

The program for the remainder of the week is equally as pretentious and rounds out a big week of glad surprises.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

Having passed its seventy-fifth consecutive New York performance, "Her Soldier Boy," the military operetta at the Astor Theatre, enters its twelfth capacity week with every promise of capturing all of New York's music and fun lovers before its engagement is terminated in the summer. Aided by such a quartet of stars as Clifton Crawford, John Charles Thomas, Adele Rowland and Beth Lydy, and a number of capable singers and comedians, "Her Soldier Boy" has been established as one of the great musical hits of recent years.

The operetta, in a prologue and two acts, is by Rida Johnson Young, based upon the German original of Victor Leon, and the music has been composed by Emerich Kalman. Additional numbers have been supplied by Clifton Crawford and Sigmund Roberg. The story concerns the adventures of an American war correspondent back of the lines in Belgium and a romance between a soldier and a maid.

The cast includes, in addition to the above names, Cyril Chadwick, Harold Vizard, George A. Schiller, Eliz Gergely, Frank Ridge, Mildred Richardson, Ward De Wolfe, Ethel Brandon, Clarice Snyder and fifty others. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Pythian Knights Plan Anniversary

Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., has completed all arrangements for observing next Friday night as its fifty-third birthday. The occasion will also be "Ladies' Night" and preparations are being made for accommodating a big crowd. The week of February 19 will be generally observed by Knights of Pythias lodges all over the country but the local lodge is saving nearly all its energy for the one big event.

There will be an entertainment by professional talent, including the Musical Stewarts, of this city, and Bill Kennedy, the humorist. Refreshments that will be served during a social hour will be an added feature.

At the business meeting, several candidates will be received, and the third degree will be worked on a class of new members.

Goes to New Field as District Manager

Charles M. Grannatt, of East Front street, will remove to Buffalo, N. Y., on March 1 to become representative in that district for one of the largest American leather concerns. For several years Mr. Grannatt has been traveling representative for the concern and the change is the result of a credible promotion.

He is one of the experts of the concern and is an authority on the subject relating to the saving of power by the use of proper leather belting. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Grannatt, of West Fourth street, and is well known in the city.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION.

The North Plainfield Board of Education has settled upon Tuesday, March 20, as the date for the holding of the annual school election of the district. At that time the school budget for the year will be voted upon, as well as three men to fill the vacancies of those whose terms on the Board of Education will have expired. Those who will be up for reelection are Judd Stewart, Richard C. Campbell and Thomas J. Currin.

MUST NUMBER HOUSES.

Mayor Calkins has asked the street department to take steps to see that all houses in the city are rightly numbered. Commissioner Gavett is preparing to notify all property owners just what their number should be and if they do not display it on their houses within a reasonable length of time the police will be called upon to bring them into court.

All Wound Up For Borean Blasts

Design by Franklin Simon & Co., New York.

IMMENSELY voluminous—14 by 98 inches, in fact—is this stole of dyed muskrat lined with brown silk crape. The new muff, partly flat, is also of Hudson seal and lined to match its stole. A touch of spring is in the straw crown of the turban strapped with two long cogue feathers.

* * *

Raincoats are no longer hideous, since the most fashionable are now made of white rubberized silk, and the "rainy daisy" is sew clad in white from her white rubbers on her white buckskin shoes to her white oilskin tam-o'-shanter.

* * *

New separate coats are made with a wide ripple effect starting from shoulder or waist line. The fitted tendency is not readily accepted.

* * *

The nipped in waist line has been adopted by all designers.

* * *

Fur trimmed jersey frocks are shown for winter wear.

The Artist and His Work.

The great artists, like the great heroes, have always done whatever came to hand.

Michelangelo grumbled and said he was a sculptor when Julius II. set him to paint, but he painted the roof of the Sistine chapel. Shakespeare chafed at the popularity of the fool in the drama of his time and then produced the fool in "Lear."

If either of them had waited for perfect conditions and an inspiration untrammeled by circumstances he would have done nothing. They produced masterpieces because they made the best of things as they were. And this is the business of the artist in life.—London Times.

Pie Time.

MARLBOROUGH PIE.—Make apple sauce enough to measure a pint when strained and add to it yolks of two tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add a cupful of sugar, half the rind of a grated lemon and the juice of a whole lemon, half a cupful of fine cracker crumbs and a pinch of salt. Mix thoroughly and bake in a pie plate lined with crust. When firm add a meringue made from the whites of three or four eggs sweetened with a tablespoonful of sugar for each white and beaten thoroughly. Brown and cool. A little lemon juice may be added to the meringue.

Nut Mince Pie.—A cupful of hickory or walnut meats, two cupfuls of apples chopped fine, a cupful and a half of granulated sugar, a cupful of seeded raisins, half a cupful of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Mix the spices dry with the sugar, then thoroughly mix all the ingredients together. This makes two large pies.

Apple Pie.—Make a rich crust with lots of lard and a little cream of tartar and pinch of soda sifted in flour. Slice apples thin, place around plate till nearly full, then sprinkle a little salt over all the apple, cover with sugar and grate nutmeg or sprinkle cinnamon over the sugar, cover and rub top crust over with milk. Never fill an apple pie too full, then it won't run over. That is what causes so many sorry pies.

Squash Pie.—This is a rival to pumpkin pie in some estimations. Boil the squash slowly, drain thoroughly and mash through a strainer. To a quart of the pulp add a quart of milk, four well beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of ground ginger, a little mace, a saltspoonful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Line pie plates with a good paste and pour in the filling. This is enough for two pies.

Muggish Rivers.

In the course of a reading lesson a teacher received a smart answer from one of his pupils, though possibly the wit was unconscious. In the piece being read occurred the passage, "The majority of the rivers in Russia are sluggish in their course."

Pointing to the boy who had read, the teacher said:

"What is meant by a river being sluggish?"

"Why, sir," replied the lad, "it means that it likes to stick to its bed."

She Circumnavigated the Idea.

It was the first day of her first term of school, and the new teacher called up the class and asked a large girl to tell of Columbus' voyage.

"Well," said the girl, "Columbus started out and sailed around a dot."

"What?" said the astonished teacher.

"He sailed around a dot," repeated the girl. Pressed for her authority, she pointed triumphantly to the page in the book, and the teacher read, "About this period Columbus sailed."—Christian Herald.

To Pop Corn.

Here is the proper way to pop corn: Put the proper quantity—that is, a very small quantity—into the popper and hold it under the cold water faucet long enough to thoroughly saturate the kernels. Shake the popper and place it on the back of the range to allow the corn to dry, then pop. The kernels will be very large and there will be no hard center.

The Difference.

He—Of course there's a big difference between a botanist and a florist.

She—Is there, really?

He—Yes; a botanist is one who knows all about flowers, and a florist is one who knows all about the price people will pay for them.—Boston Transcript.

He Traveled

The clock struck 12.

"I wish I had enough money to travel," remarked the young man.

"Here's a car ticket," announced her father, making his appearance at that point.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Old Pap Pinkham

He Hears From a Volunteer

THE following letter was written some time last summer, but as the hind axletree of the stagecoach broke down the letter did not reach me till the other day. I published it in the papers without loss of time and also read it aloud to a large audience in Liberty hall:

Dear Old Pap—When I left Jericho to go to the war with Mexico sixty of the Jericho rangers calculated to take the train with me. When they got to the depot, however, they were all, except me, taken with pains in their stomach and went back home.

I was determined to go if I had to go alone. I arrived in Mexico in due season, and, hunting out General Funston, I told him I wanted a position as captain. He said he was sorry he could not even take me as a volunteer, but if I would buy my own horse and gun and ammunition he would see what could be done for me later on. I was all outfitted in two days, and then I was ready to go on a scout.

I had proceeded about three miles when I was surrounded by twenty-six Mexican soldiers. They called upon me to surrender and I should be treated well, but I leaped from my horse, took shelter behind a tree and opened fire. When I got through with them the twenty-six greasers lay dead in a row. I had not missed a shot. I was sure that the boys back at camp would not believe my story without good proof. I therefore cut off the ears from twenty-six heads and slipped them into my pocket as evidence. The boys had begun to grin and josh me when I pulled out the ears, and you never saw such a crestfallen lot in your life.

Lay Dead In a Row.

General Funston sent for me and wanted to know how I did it. He said that killing one was a brave act, but killing twenty-six at the same time was more than heroic. He said he would keep his eye on me after that, and he would be greatly disappointed if I didn't become a general within a month.

My next adventure took place at night. I was peacefully sleeping and dreaming when a noise like a rat in a trap awoke me. When I looked out of the tent I caught sight of fifteen bandits advancing upon me. I might have called for aid, but I did not. I felt confident that I could swing the job myself, and I swung it. My shooting alarmed the camp, but I was as cool as ice. General Funston himself came running in his pajamas and called out:

"Lanky Longbody, what the mischief are you doing? Don't you know you've got the whole army aroused?"

"But I had to shoot these bandits, general!" I protested. And thereupon hundreds of soldiers and officers grasped my hands and patted me on the back.

Shortly after that General Funston heard that the Mexican army was trying to come in on our flank and gobble us all up. He wanted somebody to go out about ten miles and bring a report back. No one but me volunteered. They were all mending holes in their stockings or sewing buttons on their trousers. I at once told the general that I would be most happy to go, and away I sped. It was a false rumor, but I had my adventure just the same. I was creeping carefully across a ravine when I came across twenty-two Mexicans who had a camp there and were taking an afternoon nap.

My first thought was to kill them as they slept, but I didn't happen to feel mad at anybody that day, and so I put another plan into force. I got a quantity of buckskin thongs and tied all their hands behind them. Then I woke them up and gave them the boot to help start them on their way. Never was a lot of greasers more surprised. They loudly claimed that I must have had at least fifteen men with me. When I marched them into camp there was cheer after cheer, and General Funston came down and laid his fatherly hand on my shoulder and said:

"Lanky Longbody, you can't keep the workingmen down. By thunder, I have been a soldier for fifty years and you haven't been quite a month yet, and yet you have killed four times as many greasers as I have. I don't know what I am going to do with you unless I make you commander in chief."

I have had other adventures, Old Pap, and I want you to let the people at home know all about them. I was considered a sort of fishworm around our town, but I will show them when I get home what sort of a young man I am. I shall end the war just as soon as possible, as eggs and butter are going higher and higher every day. Love to all.

LANKY LONGBODY, Jericho's Brave Soldier.

HARD TIMES AHEAD

THE adored daughter was sad.

"Father," she said, "what has come over you? Since I can remember I never had a wish you were not anxious to gratify, and you even anticipated my wants and handed me money for all sorts of things that I hadn't even thought of. But now I have to ask you for every cent I need, and you growl and grunt and ask if I think you are made of money, and you rail at a woman's extravagance and invariably ask me what on earth I did with that last check or dollar or half dollar you gave me. It is very strange. Don't you love me any more, father?"

"My dear Ethel," her father answered, "I love you as much as ever. But you are soon to be married, and I am trying gradually to prepare you for the change."—New York Times.

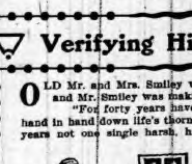
Verifying His Statement

OLD Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"



"Isn't that true, mother?"

Mother had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly and said sharply:

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, you old fool!" hissed Samual into her ear.—London Tit-Bits.

Delegates from all the Women's Home Missionary Societies of northern New Jersey will come to this city next Tuesday for an all day convention to be held in the First Baptist church in observance of the ruby jubilee of the societies, it being just forty years since the first one was formed. Two such conventions are being held in every State in the Union and the one which is to be held in Plainfield will be one of the largest. The missionary societies of all the local Baptist churches have united in making preparations for the biggest church convention ever held in this city and during the past week have completed even the minutest details of the affair.

The convention will be divided into two sessions, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. The round table will start at 10:30, followed by a reception of delegates at 11:30. At 12:30 the convention will be adjourned to the First M. E. church directly across the street from the First Baptist, where a luncheon will be served. The anniversary program will start at 2 o'clock and is expected to last until 4 o'clock.

A musical program has been announced that will be rendered at the morning session. Mrs. Robert Gildes, of this city, will sing several Indian selections, and the offertory, "The Good Shepherd," will be sung by Mrs. William Coddington. The service will close with the singing of an anniversary song written especially for the occasion by Mrs. Fannie B. Lester, of Chicago.

In the afternoon a number of women prominent in missionary work all over the country will make addresses. Mrs. Charles Sumner Brown, of Cincinnati, vice president of the National Association, will make the principal address of the afternoon and while she is giving a history of the societies during the years they have been formed the "ruby coronation" will take place. Others who will speak during the afternoon include Mrs. Reuben Mapleston, secretary for the Middle Atlantic States; Miss Mamie Burroughs, who is in charge of a missionary training school in Washington, D. C.; Miss Blanche Parkes, who is a home missionary in Newark, and Miss Amy Conant, of this city. Miss Conant, who is secretary of the New Jersey Young People's Work, is now engaged in missionary work in New York city.

Every arrangement has been made by the various committees and sub-committees for the success of the hundreds of delegates who will attend. They will be met at the railroad station by automobiles that will take them to the Baptist church. A number of those from the farthest portions of the State are expected to arrive the night before but the majority will come early Tuesday morning.

General supervision over arrangements have been placed in the hands of Reuben Knox, who is assisted by many members of the societies at the Park Avenue Temple Baptist and Edward Barker, Jr., publicity. Mrs. John Abbott; program, Mrs. Frank Anderson, and entertainment, Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, Mrs. J. Herbert Case and Mrs. Raymond Smith.

Routine business occupied most of the session, although an impromptu debate was also a part of the program. The topic for debate was based on the lecture delivered recently in this city by Dr. James J. Walsh.

REPEAT SUCCESS.

The Netherwood Dramatic Club, at the request of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Netherwood Reformed church, repeated its play, "An Old Fashioned Skool Days," last Saturday night. The play was given at South Plainfield some time ago and was a decided success at that time.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. William J. Baker, Jr., 23 Duer street, and was witnessed by only near relatives of the couple.

Miss Winn wore a traveling gown of blue, with hat to match, and carried white roses. The attendants were Miss Margaret Jimerson, of Westfield, and David Harvey, of Boston. Frederick Zwalfel played the wedding march. A reception followed the ceremony. After a honeymoon trip, Mrs. Dunning will reside in Brooklyn. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Emily R. Winn and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Dunning, of Mountain avenue.

Go to Church. What Would the Country Be Without Its Churches?

If you are an unbeliever and don't GO TO CHURCH, don't be a scoffer at religion.

While the GO TO CHURCH movement has been sweeping the country like a prairie fire, there are found in every community men who seek to belittle it. To these men a special appeal here is made. What would the country be without its churches? What would it be without religion? Just ponder for a minute. There would be an era of lawlessness and crime that would be awful to contemplate.

Even unbelievers will admit that the churches benefit a community. Of course there may be some people who GO TO CHURCH just for the appearance of things. But happily there are thousands who are sincere in their religious belief and their worship of God. These people help to make this glorious country what it is. Statistics show that there is a MINIMUM OF CRIME in communities where there are plenty of churches. The most hardened criminal has been reached only by appeal to his BETTER NATURE, by an appeal to his belief in a Supreme Being.

BASICALLY, EVERYBODY IS ALL RIGHT. TO USE AN APT SAYING, "THERE'S A LOT OF BAD IN THE BEST OF US, A LOT OF GOOD IN THE WORST OF US." GOING TO CHURCH SURELY BRINGS OUT THE BEST IN US. PROPINQUITY IS A GREAT THING. A MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH REGULARLY, EVEN AS A MATTER OF FORM, EVENTUALLY IS SURE TO IMBIBE THE TEACHINGS OF GOD. THE ENVIRONMENT WILL MAKE HIM RIGHTEOUS. IT WILL MAKE HIM A BETTER CITIZEN.

It is not enough that you GO TO CHURCH. Be prepared to answer the scoffer. Don't give him any peace. Try to show him where he is wrong. Everybody can do a little for the GO TO CHURCH movement. Are you doing it?

It is not enough that you GO TO CHURCH.

GET OTHERS TO GO.

Working Hard for Big Fund

With two weeks of February still left in which to gather the remainder of the money needed to raise the Episcopal pension fund to $5,000,000, thousands of workers all over the United States are working in an effort to bring the campaign to a successful close. Prominent among them is Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, who has dropped his work as rector of Grace Episcopal church for the time being and is in charge of the campaign in this district, embracing Middlesex, Hunterdon, Union and Somerset counties.

Quinquagesima Sunday, February 18, has been set aside as the occasion for the making of special donations and Dr. Stevenson expects his district to respond handsomely and so do its share in completing the fund. Committees from the local Episcopal churches, Grace, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's and Holy Cross, are working hard and already have been able to report to Mr. Stevenson a large number of contributions.

While Mr. Stevenson is temporarily engaged in his other work, his place at Grace church is being filled by Rev. R. M. Church, who will continue for several weeks.

National Aid Society Seeks War Recruits

The National Special Aid Society has opened four recruiting stations in this city where women may enroll for service in the event of a national emergency. These stations were opened yesterday morning at the Boy Scout Headquarters, Dudley Miller's drug store, J. A. Smith & Brothers' store and at Tepper's. The recruiting will continue for five days and will be in charge of various volunteer committees of the National Special Aid Society. Following this five-day campaign permanent headquarters will be established in the store adjoining the Boy Scout headquarters on East Front street.

Stationed at each one of the recruiting stations is a member of the society and a Boy Scout. The Stars and Stripes wave in the breeze. While the enrollment of the first day was not unusually gratifying, those who are behind the movement believe that by Wednesday of next week the membership of the National Special Aid Society will have doubled. At the present time there are 160 members in the organization.

Mrs. Walter Righter is chairman of the committee and the various captains are Mrs. Paul Wellss, Mrs. William B. Nash, Mrs. R. W. Everest and Mrs. Edwin Brown. Mrs. William Pelser and Mrs. Rhodes assisted during the first day of the campaign. The members of the National Special Aid Society are listed under different activities and each has registered for some form of work in which she has had experience. This same method is adopted in regards to the recruits. The varieties of work include sewing, nursing, farm work, care of children, telegraphy, cooking, laundry, reading to convalescents. If a woman believes that she is capable of filling a man's place she may register as conductor, ticket agent, maker of ammunition, painter, driver or clerk. Up to the present time the women have been modest in declaring themselves. Few have apparently stated that they consider themselves capable of filling the positions of men.

Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard, who is president of the local branch of the National Special Aid Society, stated that she believed the membership of the organization would be greatly increased in a few days. There are four thousand members of the society and there is also a large enrollment in East Orange. The pageboys, women of Plainfield, in the opinion of those who are in charge of the recruiting movement, will respond in large numbers to the call of their country. The junior branch of the society is under the direction of Mrs. Frank Osborn and Mrs. Arthur Ottenson. Recruits for this branch of the older society are also being enrolled at one of the stations. It was said that those of those who had registered would enter the class in hygiene and first aid. Mrs. W. W. Cordell is committee chairman of the First Aid, and Mrs. Walter Righter, head of the volunteer emergency corps.

The members of the organization are particularly interested in the efforts of the National League of Woman's Service to secure volunteers who will hold themselves in readiness to do work of all sorts during time of need. The motor division has charge of the whole question of transportation and this branch of the work is being taken care of locally by Mrs. Austin Andrews, who is the chairman of the motor service division of the local branch of the National Special Aid.

Members of this organization are: Mrs. Frederick Worth Goddard, president; Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, vice president; Mrs. William B. Tyler, treasurer; Miss Dorothy Plemley, recording secretary, and Mrs. C. G. Munro, corresponding secretary. The national president of the organization is Mrs. William Alexander. The local directors are: Mrs. C. F. Bahn, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. Edith Fraser, Mrs. Charles Frost, Miss Evelyn Partridge, Mrs. Frederick J. Hughes, Mrs. C. G. Munro, Mrs. Arthur Ottenson and Mrs. Frederick Wallace.

MOSQUITO TALK.

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on Thursday evening, March 1, an illustrated lecture on "The Extermination of the Mosquito" will be given. The work of the Mosquito Commission in exterminating the pests will be explained in detail and it is expected that a large number of people will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this interesting as well as instructive talk.

P. H. S. Boy on Gerard Train

Although there are probably many Plainfielders who have been following the daily dispatches from Berlin published in the New York World comparatively few are aware of the fact that they come from the pen of a Plainfield boy. Cyril Brown, staff correspondent for the World, was educated in the Plainfield High School and lived for many years on Central avenue, this city. Upon his graduation from the local institution he was awarded one of the most remarkable collection of prizes for scholarship efficiency ever taken by a high school student. His ability as a student was little short of phenomenal and he attracted wide attention.

After receiving the local diploma Mr. Brown entered Yale University and following his graduation from college went to work for the New York Times as a reporter, covering special matter mostly of a national character.

When the war in Europe broke out he was sent to the other side by the Times and later became affiliated with the World staff. He was stationed at Berlin and handled the entire German end for that publication. Mr. Brown is now on his way back to America in the entourage of Ambassador Gerard.

Foodstuff Shortage Getting Serious Here

There's no going back to the simple life now to reduce the cost of living. That is the word heard everywhere to complain as prices continue to mount higher and higher. Canned goods and most all other staple articles, with the exception of eggs, which remained the same, soared several points higher during the past week and coal reached the lowest mark yet in the number of tons in the city.

Farmers in the country surrounding Plainfield can be seen daily on Front street buying products they usually have themselves, even to corn, and they seem to be of the opinion that matters are to continue getting worse instead of better. One grocer said that potatoes were at present $4.25 a bushel and would probably get as high as $5, while canned stuffs, he had been told by the packers, would be 33 1-3 higher this spring.

The proposition of supplying coal to even the necessary consumers, such as Public Service electric and gas plants, is a serious one to many of us and if the dealers are not able to get consignments within a short time Plainfield people may have to sleep with their overcoats on. The dealers have reached an agreement to try and help each other out and will not supply more than two tons to any one individual at a time.

Called to Canada by Son's Illness

Adolphus Liebau, of West Third street, left yesterday afternoon for Montreal, Canada, where he has been called by the serious illness of his son, William, who left this city about ten years ago. The son is suffering from pneumonia in an acute stage and the message to the father advised all possible speed in getting to his bedside. Mr. Liebau had contemplated a trip to his old home at Serrella, Can., but had not intended to leave until next month. His stay there will probably be indefinite.

Mr. Liebau is well known in Plainfield, he having learned his trade as a machinist in the shop of the Niles-Bennett-Bond Company. He received an attractive offer for the position of chief engineer with the St. Lawrence Navigation Company, with boats plying between Montreal and Quebec, but has been in that company employ since leaving here. Mr. Liebau, the father, is a carpenter and has worked for many years for John Abbott. He is well known in the West End of the city and is an officer in the Reminisnect Club.

Crane to be Sworn In On March First

Martin at the Elizabeth courthouse Thursday afternoon, March 1, to take the oath of office. Judge Crane will assume the local bench immediately after being sworn in.

Seek Advice From Blatz

Francis J. Blatz, of this city, acting county attorney, announced today that he would meet with the Union County Board of Freeholders early next week to confer on the proposed changes in rules.

The recent investigation of the financial affairs of the county brought out that the Board is still working under rules and regulations formulated many years ago, when the county business had not reached the point it is at now, and when it was not so necessary to have much of the business done in committee. Because of this Freeholder Thomas Haviland moved at the first meeting of the year that a committee be appointed to overhaul the rules.

As one instance of the need of this overhauling, it was pointed out that the rule which stipulates that no member or members shall contract bills for more than $50 without the authorization of the Board was not clear and had been variously interpreted. Other rules were also found the meaning of which was not fully understood.

The lack of clarity of the $50 rule, or, rather, the interpretation placed therein by the committees of the board, was brought forth at the investigation as one reason why the Road Committee felt it had the right to determine the basis on which County Engineer Bauer should be paid.

The committee, which will try to find a method of paying the county engineer, also met recently, although no report of its discussion was given out. In his recent communication to the board, the county engineer asked that unpaid expenses and salary from September 1 be paid him, and that the board decide on some future plan of payment. The committee's work in regard to the first matter was outlined when it was instructed by the board to refuse payment in the meantime. The second will be settled by the courts, but it must still outline a course of future payment of the county engineer.

Recreation Work Booming This Winter

The work of the Recreation Centre, which is under the direction of Miss Lillian Lamson, has been progressing rapidly of late and the various schools in the city have been busy each evening. The scope of the work has been so enlarged that it now covers every section of the city. At the gymnasium of the High School last evening the West End Boys' Club held a session. The Public Recreation Committee held its meeting in the library at the same time. The schedule of events for this evening includes meetings of the Theapian Society, Dr. Hobson's Choral Club, the P. E. G. S. and the Night School Man's Gym Class. Under the auspices of the Recreation Committee a Guild of Play will be presented in the Stillman School this afternoon. Athletic games will be conducted in the Irving School today.

U. S. Army Getting Recruits From Here

For a town of its size Plainfield is doing fully as much to keep the army and navy supplied with men as any other town in the country. Since the first indications of an eventful into the European conflict appeared there have been eight recruits that successfully passed the examinations and joined the army.

Private Laing, a U. S. army regular, is on duty daily in front of the Babcock building waiting for would-be soldiers to come up to him. Many local young men have left to join the army, but when it came to passing the physical test bad teeth or eyes or some similar trouble barred them, and even though Laing and Corporal Private Laing regarding life in the army and he says that if trouble really looms up ahead many Plainfielders will join the colors.

Laing himself is an inspiration to anyone wanting to see how army life agrees with a fellow. Of medium height and attired in a perfectly fitting uniform he has a crowd of admiring youngsters eyeing him from a distance most of the time. He has been in the army six years. Part of the time was spent in a cavalry man on the Mexican border and the rest of the time on recruiting service.

Local recruits are sent to Fort Slocum as soon as they pass the tests and are then assigned for a month or more to get the rough edges worn off. Then they are assigned to regiments and report for regular army duty.

SITED FOR BRAVERY.

Among those members of the American Field Ambulance, Section 3, who have been cited for devotion and courage in dangerous services around Monastir" is Coleman T. Clark, of Westfield. Young Clark has now been with the French expeditionary force in the Balkans for more than a year and has several times been mentioned in dispatches for excellent work. Westfield has just raised funds for the purchasing of a Red Cross ambulance to be sent to the French and it is probable that Clark will be chosen to drive it.

Inauguration Militia Garb is Designated

Although no official orders have come through to local channels and although there is a bare possibility that the inauguration ceremonies this year will be minus the pomp and splendor of previous years, it is practically certain that Company K, of this city, as a part of the Second Infantry, will go to Washington on March 4. Colonel Horace Reading, of the Second regiment, is in possession of tentative orders but has passed no information on to the company commanders, indicating that he is awaiting developments in the present crisis.

However, if Company K is designated as an escort and does go to Washington it will be garbed in the olive drab uniform, a change that was not clear and had been variously interpreted. Other rules were also found the meaning of which was not fully understood.

The lack of clarity of the $50 rule, or, rather, the interpretation placed therein by the committees of the board, was brought forth at the investigation as one reason why the Road Committee felt it had the right to determine the basis on which County Engineer Bauer should be paid.

The committee, which will try to find a method of paying the county engineer, also met recently, although no report of its discussion was given out. In his recent communication to the board, the county engineer asked that unpaid expenses and salary from September 1 be paid him, and that the board decide on some future plan of payment. The committee's work in regard to the first matter was outlined when it was instructed by the board to refuse payment in the meantime. The second will be settled by the courts, but it must still outline a course of future payment of the county engineer.

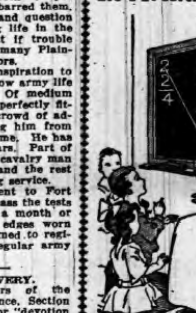
Testing Candidates for the Police Force

City Physician Dr. Norman W. Currie is conducting an examination today in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. in order to find candidates for the Plainfield police force. A number have announced their intention of taking the tests and those who pass with the best records will receive the appointments.

The tests will be both physical and mental in nature and will be the same as those required under civil service rules. There are several vacancies on the force and they will be filled by the new men, who will first have to serve as special before being appointed regulars.

FIREMAN QUITS.

Walter Wilson, one of the recent appointees to the Plainfield fire department, has resigned during the week and severed connections with the department Wednesday morning. He was one of the four put on for probation service two months ago.



Aero Exhibit Makes A Hit

The first annual Pan-American Aero show came to a close in the Grand Central Palace, New York, last night. One of the biggest exhibits and one that attracted a great deal of attention was the booth of the Standard Aero Corporation of this city. Several unique features served to draw the crowd to the section of the huge show place where Standard products were housed.

Attired for air flight, Miss Eleanor Masters, an aviatrice, was the prettiest exhibit at the first aeronautic exposition, posing in her aviation costume against a beautiful background of refreshing cedar trees. In a hall filled with the latest triumphs of mechanical ingenuity in the rapidly developing science of flying, the young woman, who was at the Standard booth, attracted her full share of attention.

Lieut. Millman, acknowledged one of the best all around pilots in the United States and a well known instruction at the Mineola Government training school, was also a part of the Standard exhibit. It was he who made the best time on the test flight from New York to Philadelphia in the United States Government Standard H-3 aeroplane and his record in aeronautic circles is a truly enviable one.

The Standard H-3 type of machine was one of those on display at the show and aroused considerable attention. It has a birdlike grace and is twenty-seven feet over all. The cockpit is upholstered in leather. The motors are mounted just forward of the pilot's seat and shot out to the large propellers. The fuselage has given a 150 hours of continued service, has traveled nine thousand miles and made eight hundred ascensions.

Troop D Mess In Readiness

Mess Sergeant Ernest Hobbins, of Troop D, First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry, has just finished compiling the request for rations for five days' emergency rations, this precaution being taken in anticipation of any quick mobilization.

Sergeant Hobbins is required to list the food requirements according to the number of men, a certain number of ounces of each article being a unit at each meal. He now has everything in readiness to prepare the food at a moment's notice and it is estimated that the mess department would be ready for a move into the field within three hours after the call was sounded.

Supply Sergeant Jack Sickler and First Sergeant Robert H. Cox have been taking similar precautions in their departments. It falls on Sergeant Sickler's shoulders to see that the men are equipped with the proper clothing, ammunition, firearms and sleeping equipment and Sergeant Cox has general supervision of the entire troop and would be in charge of the direct notification work in case of war being declared.

Joffre's Nephew Now Living Here

Nowadays we hear on more than one occasion of a student, or banker or just an every day man of leisure going to work in a war factory to help do his "bit" for the cause. That is a common occurrence in Europe now, where even women think nothing of donning overalls and pitching in, but in the United States it happens less frequently. While Plainfield has not exactly had that occur it has been honored by Andrew Reid, a nephew of Professor Henry Van Dyke, minister to Holland, and whose mother is a sister-in-law of General Joffre, the French military idol, by his taking up his residence in this city and going to work in the plant of the Standard Aero Corporations to learn the mysteries of aeroplane making.

Mr. Reid has a less considerable flying but now wishes to become acquainted with the construction of the machine in which he goes sky piloting in and after he does he may offer his services to the United States Government if they are not needed here.

Mrs. Andrew Mehiele Blind Reid, his mother, is a French woman and at present is at the head of the French and Belgian relief work in France. Mr. Reid's sympathies are also with his Fatherland, but he hesitates to join the Allies' flying corps because of doing he would cease to become a citizen of the United States.

When a child Mr. Reid visited often at the home of his uncle here and has traveled over all of France for that matter. His description of Joffre tallies in large part with that of others that have met him, as he has a strictly military bearing. He spends little time in idle talk but when he does engage in conservation it invariably turns to what he thinks concerning war.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY.

The annual play of the senior class at Plainfield High School will be presented in the near future. A meeting of the committees in charge of the arrangements was held yesterday when preliminary plans were discussed. Vice Principal Henry R. Hubbard will be in charge of the production.

Is Your Flag Hung Right?

Since the trouble with Germany reached the boiling point a number of Plainfielders have signified that they are in accord with President Wilson's policy by displaying the Stars and Stripes in front of their homes or places of business, but those individuals familiar with the correct way to hang the American flag have found considerable grounds for criticism for the benefit of any who may be in doubt the following instructions from a well qualified authority should suffice:

"If a run up on a flagpole, it should be put up clear to the top, not six inches or a foot below, as is often the case. The only exception being when it is half-masted, when it should be half way up.

"If run on a rope in front of a house or building, it should go with the stars out.

"If hung in front of a house or building in hanging it, it should be hung with the stars to your right, so that in standing on the street and looking at the flag the stars will be on the left-hand corner."

Prison Farm Plan Gaining Supporters

These old standbys from Plainfield and other parts of the county who annually sojourn at the famous Elizabeth Winter Resort", otherwise known as the county jail, are in danger of losing their happy home by the time another winter rolls around if the Union County Board of Freeholders follows the advice of the main county officials and establishe a prison farm and stone quarry. Some local oldtimers who have spent many a happy day watching the wintry blasts on the outside while they were on the inside already have visions of whiling away the hours playing with the rocks.

Sheriff tOtto and Miss Harriet Townsend, executive secretary of the Charity Organization, are foremost among the Elizabeth advocates of the change. Judge DeMeza and other Plainfield men have long been in favor of such a move.

One of the best arguments advanced is that it will partially pay for the upkeep of the prisoners, who are now a direct charge to the county from the time they enter to the time they leave. Then, too, it might stop the regular customers from committing some offense to get sentenced to the jail for the winter.

The Board of Freeholders has the proposition under consideration at the present time and it will not be selected any site for such a place as yet it would probably be in the close proximity of the jail.

Masonic Affair In P. H. S. Hall

The annual "ladies' night" and entertainment of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., will be held in the Plainfield High School tonight. The event has come to be one of the most important social events in the year for the lodge and it is expected that several hundred members and their families will be present.

Under agreement with the T. Arthur Baker booking Offices, of New York, an excellent entertainment has been secured. Professional talent will provide twelve acts of variety vaudeville and a high class orchestra furnished by the booking office will provide music for dancing. The evening's program will start at promptly 8:15.

NEW CLUBROOMS.

The Standard Aero Club, composed of members of the Standard Aeroplane Corporation, has established permanent headquarters in the Seeing building. Under the auspices of this newly formed organization a number of interesting lectures relative to the manufacture of aeroplanes and motors will be delivered in the Plainfield High School auditorium from time to time.

Sugar Scarce; May Soar to Twenty Cents

An alarming shortage of sugar has been reported by the grocers of this city. According to the manager of one of the largest grocery concerns the supply has never before been as low as it is now. One grocer stated that it was a case of supplying regular customers only and only in small amounts.

Inquiry at one of the largest grocery stores on West Front street revealed the information to the effect that they had no sugar at all. Supplying regular customers was out of the question with them. Where they would get enough to tide them over the day, they could not say. In the face of this sugar famine, most of the grocers have established the rule that regular customers shall be served, while the meagre supply lasts. Absolutely no transient trade will be considered at one of the largest stores, where the manager characterised the supply as "mighty low" with little or no hope for the better. That the present shortage is unprecedented hereabouts was the opinion expressed by many. At the wholesale houses it was reported that the supply was alarmingly low and it was said that their lot of sugar was being received in quantities sufficient only to carry them from day to day. "We have no surplus," was the report at one of the local wholesale houses.

While inquiry was mainly made at the large stores, it was said at one or two of the smaller houses that the supply was extremely low with little or no chance of immediate replenishing.

In Philadelphia the product is commanding twenty cents a pound and in other parts of Pennsylvania it is selling for as high as forty cents.

Reformers Rap County Officials

In the annual report of the New Jersey State Charities Aid and Prison Reform Association, issued today, the following is contained:

"The cleanest and best disciplined jail in the State is located in Union county in the rear of the county court house in Elizabeth, and some sixty prisoners rest at their ease in this delightful retreat with nothing to do but keep the jail tolerably clean. In no county has there been such a need of some plan for the employment of jail prisoners as in Union county, and while local grobys of citizens have urged that something be done, the county officials do not move.

"The difficulty has been that the county has not expended its funds in the development of the important county tuberculosis institution at Scotch Plains. It ought to be the basis for a county colony and if there awaits a group of men from the jail, if suitable and inexpensive housing facilities were afforded. The county should adopt the county almshouse at Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway abandoned. There is need of a county infirmary for contagious and communicable disease, and that could properly go upon the same county tract with the tuberculosis hospital and where the aged and infirm might be located, and where the jail prisoners should work for all these interests."

MERCHANTS CARELESS.

Plainfield merchants are growing extremely careless, if a glance at the blotter at police headquarters may be taken for authority. Every morning patrolmen report numerous cases where they find unlocked doors, not only of stores but offices. Chief Kiely is warning all such careless persons to take time before they go home for supper nights to see that they have fastened their doors or some morning they may arrive to find they have had a visitor during the night.

Big New Building Contracts Not Keeping Up To Schedule

Three out-of-town contractors engaged in building important buildings in the city of Plainfield have struck snarls during the past month, two of which are strongly indicative of low competition figures sacrificing normal profit in an effort to outdo the other fellow when the bids were let. Trouble is being experienced at the new Federal building and the City Hall and the grumblings of others on the new State Trust Company's structure indicate that all is not going smoothly.

Work on the City Hall has been at a standstill for three weeks, there being no stone available with which to continue the construction. Two weeks ago last Monday a corps of masons were imported to set the stones which were expected to arrive from Ohio but the material failed to land here and consequently the men were dismissed. Every effort is now being made to purchase suitable stone in this vicinity for an embargo has been placed on the western product and there is no telling when it will arrive in Plainfield.

Charles Gilpin, the contractor handling the Federal building work, is having his trouble with the labor faction and it is next to impossible for him to hire electricians to complete this part of the contract. A New Yorker was hired a few days ago but Business Agent William Lunger, of the local trades' Council, advised him regarding labor conditions on the structure and he packed up his equipment and left. No union electrician will work on the building it is said for on the unfair list and there is no chance of the contractor getting back into the good graces of the labor organization, according to Mr. Lunger.

The State Trust Company building should have been completed by last November and since that time two stop notices have been placed on the contract. The work is still in progress, however, and the contractor may be able to finish it within another month. The contractor explains the delay by saying that no provision was made in the original contract for leaving an opening in the ground floor wall of the building for the admission of the vault. He claims that he made no preparation for this delay in view of the fact that the size of the entrance necessary was not explained to him." This solution is a perfectly plausible one and if it is so the contractor has a perfectly good excuse for the delay.

Tabs Assume Lead Tonight

At the Knights of Columbus banquet this evening, the members of the Total Abstinence Benevolence Society will be in charge. A number of unique features have been arranged by the Tabs. The Ancient Order of Hibernians were in command last evening.

President Joseph T. McCue has appointed the following committee to assist this evening: John Force, John J. Hines, Rufus La Rue, Elmer Hines, Michael D. O'Keeffe, Thomas P. Hines, Peter Sheridan, Charles Schuck, Timothy Lyons, Hugh McDonnell, Frank Donnelly, James Fitzgerald, Daniel J. Guinee, Peter McDonough, Albert E. La Porte, Joseph Carroll, Charles Hallowell, Jerry Welsh and Daniel Cregar. This committee was assisted by a number of the young women of the Social Club.

East End School Still Unfinished

The date for the formal inspection of the Emerson Avenue School in the East End of the city has not as yet been set. Had the work of construction gone on uninterrupted, the formal inspection would now be a thing of the past. However, the Manhattan Engineering Company declared itself out of funds and thereby hangs the tale.

While the classrooms are now occupied by the pupils for whom they were intended, the school is not by found open evenings, when the various civic functions of the residents of that end of the city could be held. That of the electrical contract, suddenly ended by the New York concern, has been completed by Ryder & Graves, of this city. Until the Board of Education and the bonding company are given definite word as to the course to be followed as a result of the state of bankruptcy in which the electrical company exists, there will be no further orders issued to Ryder & Graves or to any other electrical firm in the city, unless the city authorities decide to stand the additional expense. The Manhattan Engineering Company is the same concern whose contract to supply electrical fixtures for the new City Hall is being completed by the firm of Ryder & Graves.

Plainfielder Held for Injuring Man

When Robert Johnson, a chauffeur of this city, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Noah Woodruff in the Roselle Park police court last night he was held under bail by the magistrate to appear before the next term of the Grand Jury and answer a charge of reckless driving. Johnson was housed in the borough lockup for several hours but later in the night secured a local man as his bondsman.

Johnson was arraigned before Judge William C. DeMeza in the local police court yesterday morning at the request of the Roselle Park authorities and held under $300 bail to appear for trial there last night. It is charged that he was driving an automobile through East Roselle Park Sunday night and struck John Mulvaney, of New York, but did not stop. Mulvaney is now confined at the home of his nephew, William C. Nelson, of 19 Union avenue, that place, with serious injuries.

RECORD HOUSE WILL WELCOME NOTED ACTRESS.

Sarah Bernhardt and her entourage will arrive in Plainfield tomorrow forenoon for the performance to be given in the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night. She has made a special request of Manager Shannon to have at her disposal while here either one of three well known makes of automobiles. This will be used to meet her at the train, take her to and from the theatre, and back to her hotel at night.

One of the largest seat sales of the season is reported by Manager Shannon and Treasurer David Rogers for this production, but there are still a few desirable seats left. Application for these should be made at once for by tomorrow noon the supply will probably be exhausted. Society is well represented in the seat sale and the audience will be one of the wealthiest as well as the largest.

There is much curiosity, of course, to discover just how much the recent affliction, the amputation of her leg —the right to be exact—might affect the distinguished star's movements upon the stage. To answer with truth, no one, seeing her act, would ever imagine that she had been thus physically distressed: in the adroitness of her art she succeeds completely in disguising the fact that so material a misfortune had befallen her. She plays each of her roles seated, with heavy draperies or the folds of loose-fitting gowns—appropriate to the characters—so disposed as to render it impossible to discover the absence of a limb. Occasionally she rises from her chair, moves slightly, but almost immediately resumes her sitting position.

NEW APARTMENTS.

One of the most important building deals in the business section of the city came to light this week when it became known that Edson J. Martin is having plans prepared for a big apartment house to be constructed at Church and Front streets. Bids on the work have not as yet been asked, but it is said that the structure will cost in the vicinity of $150,000. It will be the largest of its kind in the city, of fireproof construction and have all modern improvements. There will be six entrances, three on Church street and three on Front street. It is planned to build a four story structure with accommodations for several hundred.

Another Cop Goes to N. Y.

John Hinderschott, for five years a members of the Plainfield police force, has tendered his resignation and has accepted a position with the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York. Hinderschott makes the fifth member of the police force who has resigned in the past few years to go with the New York concern and several others are now on the verge of resigning to do so.

It keeps the police board busy filling vacancies that occur in the force continually on account of the men leaving to accept the better paid positions in New York. A man has to be a member of the local force five years before he gets $100 a month. At the start he gets $74 a month and has to buy his uniforms.

Borough Church Making Bazaar Plans

Immediately following the close of the Lenten season, a bazaar for the benefit of St. Joseph's church in North Plainfield will be inaugurated. Preliminary arrangements for this stroke several months ago caused the it expected that the bazaar will be an unusually successful one.

Patrick McDonough has been appointed chairman of the chief committee in charge of the bazaar and it is expected that he will announce the names of those who will comprise his staff of assistants in the near future. The various church societies will unite to make the bazaar a financial as well as a social success.

BUSINESS BODY IN LIVELY SESSION.

Enthusiasm was the predominating feature of the special meeting of the Business Men's Association held Wednesday night, a number of important topics being presented for disposition. Herman Schwed, former president of the association although not in attendance, forwarded a resolution for consideration. This document advocated the appropriation by the city of an annual salary for Common Councilmen. It met with the unanimous approval of the business organization and it was voted to submit a copy to the Council for consideration.

The resolution in full follows:

"Whereas, The Common Council of our city is giving much of its valuable time and energy to matters of our municipal government without any compensation; and

"Whereas, Very generally governing bodies of cities are paid nominal sums, only as public recognition of their ability and experience as public servants;

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield that the members of our Common Council receive a salary, governed in amount as found to prevail in other municipalities in this State;

"Resolved, That our secretary be directed to address a copy of these resolutions to our Common Council."

It was pointed out during the discussion that followed the introduction of the proposition that councilmen devote between twenty-five and fifty per cent. of their nights each year to the transaction of city business and are just as much entitled to compensation as other city officials.

The establishment of a public comfort station in the central portion of the city also came in for its share of attention. This issue originated with the business association and every effort has been made to arouse interest among the members of the Common Council Public Affairs Committee. Another attempt to secure an appropriation for the erection of such a convenience will be made soon. A committee having been appointed to see that the resolution moves rapidly through the proper channels. J. Varley has been the prime mover in this agitation since it was started and he assured the organization that he would lend every effort to see that it becomes a reality in the not far distant future.

President Morris C. Van Arsdale presided at the session and announced the results of the essay contest on the topic "Why Shopping in Plainfield Is Advantageous." The various compositions were read by Secretary J. H. DeMott.

As the result of an address delivered before the association by De Witt Rapalje a resolution was authorized petitioning the Common Council to inquire into conditions existing in the sanitary equipment of the east bound Central Railroad depot. Mr. Rapalje pointed out a number of evils now in existence and urged that they be brought to the attention of the Central Railroad with a demand for proper improvement.

During the next two months the constitution and by-laws of the association will undergo a complete change to meet certain conditions that have been brought to the surface of late. These will have to do principally with the recruiting of donation work by the merchants and the systematizing of the credit department of the organization. Over a year ago the Plainfield Credit Association became affiliated with the Business Men's Association with the understanding that the distinct work of the former body would be carried on in the latter association by its official personnel and committee heads. However, since the amalgamation the credit department has become a dead issue and there is every need of reviving interest in it.

A. O. H. BALL.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians will hold a ball and dance on St. Patrick's night. Preliminary arrangements for this annual affair are now being made. Music for Irish dancing will be furnished by out-of-town talent.

Housewives Will Study Economics

The women of Plainfield are to take action part in the conservation of food campaign which is to be put into operation in New Jersey in a short time. Under the direction of the National Special Aid Society, local women will study the methods of such conservation and will put in practice immediately the lessons learned.

It is said that the local conservation campaign will be under the guidance of food experts and will be open to any housewife who desires to become acquainted with the secret nutritive values of stale bread. In other cities the plan has been operated with the assistance and co-operation of the Board of Health of the community and it is believed that the aid of the local board will be enlisted in the campaign here.

Appeals to Press for Co-operation

Captain W. R. Rush, U. S. N., commandant of the First naval district, which comprises almost the whole coast of New England, today issued an appeal to newspapers for co-operation in keeping the defence of the North Atlantic coast line from "the enemy." The expression, "the enemy," is used in the naval technical sense as representing the indefinite eventualities against which war defences are made.

The commandant recognizes the unusual resources of American newspapers for gathering the news and the public repugnance to anything that savors of an attempt to limit the freedom of the press. Accordingly, he suggests a "censorship from within" to avoid exaggeration or thoughtless publicity contrary to the common good.

"Lacking the intelligent co-operation of the press, real preparedness from the aspect of security and information is impossible," says the commandant. He adds:

"The public's right to news from its newspapers is clearly recognized by every one, but the public cannot properly insist on having news through the public press that might jeopardize its own interests by furnishing information to the enemy. Criticism of government officials for not giving out news is to be expected, but those officials act under express orders from the highest authority, or do so in the single-minded desire of keeping information from the enemy. To this end—and since their interests are identical—the press and public and the government officials should move together in serious, intelligent co-operation."

JUNIOR S. P. C. A.

Work has been started on the formation of a junior branch of the Plainfield S. P. C. A. among the Boy Scouts of the city. A meeting of those interested will be held at Hope chapel Monday night, when a squad of boys interested in the work will be formed. Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, local S. P. C. A. agent, will speak.

The Career of a Rug

By Walt Gregg

THE April sunshine streamed in across the sitting room rug with such revealing brightness that Hannah Little almost started as she glanced down at it. Her crochet needle paused significantly. "Harriet, we've got to have a new one. Do you see?"

Harriet laid down her book. She was reading aloud while Hannah crocheted, and the story was "on the Heights." Johnson brought a flower to her quiet, plain home. With a quick movement she pulled off her reading glasses and stared at the rug. "Dreary me!" she exclaimed. "I had no idea it was as bad as that."

"There!" said Hannah. "That's just what I thought. There's nothing to Mader us having a new one. We can put the upstairs. But—" She sighed. Harriet echoed the sigh. They sat very still for a moment. "We'll have to go to the city," Harriet said. "And I despise that."

"Don't mention it," replied Hannah. "The very thought fills me with horror. Still if we have a new rug we must go to the city to get it. I like to see what I'm buying. Jordan Dave doesn't carry any stock, and if we ordered it 'twould be buying a cat in the bag. I'd like a thick cardinal Persian. Seems to me I'm dreamfully tired of brown."

"We'd find just what we wanted at Matthewson's," said Harriet. "What shall we do?"

"The sooner the better," sighed Hannah. "If tomorrow's pleasant—"

"Yes," cried Harriet eagerly. "Let's go tomorrow and get it over with."

"Then we'd better be getting our things ready," Hannah said, resolutely rolling up her crochet work.

Whereupon they both rose and went upstairs to their room.

Until bedtime they were busy laying out cloth as suitable for traveling. By that time they were too nervous to eat. There were still several important things remaining to be done. They must phone to the station and find out when their train left and they must order a cab to take them to it.

"It's going to get us up dreadfully early," said Hannah; "7:45 is a ridiculous time for a train to leave."

Neither could sleep. Their minds were full of anxieties for the morrow. After living in quiet Westmore all their lives a visit to the city seemed a tremendous undertaking. It is true they had frequently been to the city on shopping expeditions, but this fact did not warrant their safety on this one.

Suppose the train got off the track or the cab ran into something or an automobile should run them down! There were no end to the automobiles in the city. Just see how they burned even here in Westmore! Hannah turned miserably in her bed. She heard Harriet turning in hers. Then a belated autoist went tooting by, and with a moan Hannah sat upright.

"Harriet! You been to sleep?"

"Mercy, no! I'm as wide awake as a bug. What time do you suppose it is?"

"I'll get up and look."

It was 10:30. They settled down again. Presently they fell asleep.

Some noise aroused Hannah. She started up and realized that Harriet was also wide-awake in the other twin bed.

"What was that? It can't be time for the alarm clock!" said Hannah.

"It's fearfully dark yet," Harriet said. "Listen!"

Through the open window came a series of distinct notes—Mrs. Hunt's clock was striking the hour.

"Twelve!" ejaculated Hannah. "Well, forevermore!"

They snuggled down again. A long time passed. "Harriet!" whispered Hannah. "We may as well give it up. I cannot go to the city and shop all day on three or four hours' sleep. I should be down sick abed."

"That's just what I think. Let's give it up," replied Harriet.

With their minds thus relieved of all anxiety they slept the sleep of the just until 7 o'clock next morning.

"Why, I thought you were going to the city today!" said Mrs. Hunt, running across to see what kept them at home.

"We changed our mind about today," said Hannah quietly.

"We're going tomorrow without fail," added Harriet.

They were very uneasy all day. And by night they had got into such a state of nerves that sleep seemed absolutely impossible. At one o'clock Hannah sighed from her pillow:

"I can't go, Harriet; I'm worn out."

"So am I," groaned Harriet. "No city for me today."

That morning it was 8 o'clock before they awoke.

"I'm so ashamed," Hannah said at breakfast next morning. "I didn't know I was as nervous as all this."

"Neither did I," returned Harriet. "Why, the instant I shut my eyes I see locomotives." She shuddered.

"You look ill," said Hannah. "I suppose I do, too. I don't believe all the new rugs in the world would pay me for what I've been through already, to say nothing of actually going. Do you?"

"No, I don't," answered Harriet. "I'm willing to stay at home if you are, sister."

Thus they gave up all thought of going to the city. That afternoon they went to the Ladies Aid and had a jolly social time. They ate a famous supper, read in their usual way, played a new record on the phonograph, and went to bed at 9 o'clock. Weary and content, with minds at ease, sleep came speedily and they were only awakened by a great thumping at the back door.

Hannah put her head out of the window. "Who's there?" she called.

Then she saw Mrs. Hunt's serious, rosy face smiling up at her. "It's 6 o'clock Hannah," said Mrs. Hunt. "I'm going to the city this morning. I thought maybe you would like to go too."

Harriet was crowding over Hannah's shoulder. "There's nothing to Mader," she whispered.

"No," whispered back Hannah. "We'll go," she called down to Mrs. Hunt.

At 8.30 that night the sisters re-entered their home. They were very tired, but full of triumph. They had bought a perfectly beautiful rug and a hundred other things. They had lunched at a great hotel and seen a famous theatrical performance. And they had not had a single nervous quirk. Mrs. Hunt had piloted them safely through all.

"Do you suppose she suspected how we felt about going?" asked Harriet.

Hannah shook her head. "Goodness knows! But she's a wonderful woman, sister."

"Wonderful," breathed Hannah.

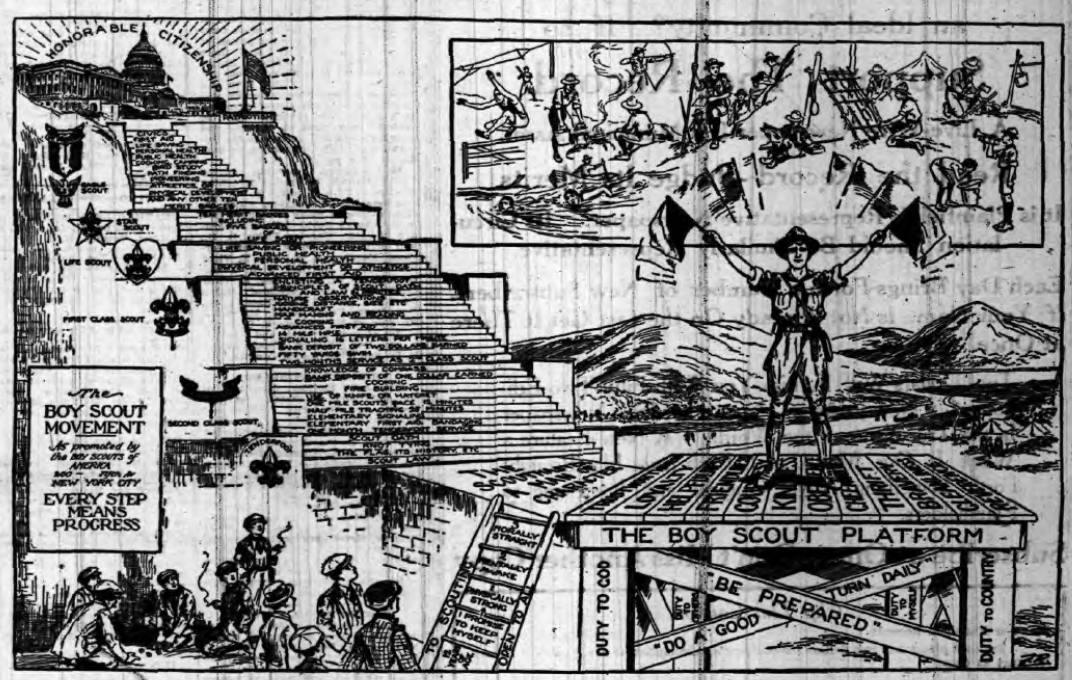
What Is Doing In Boy Scout Circles



"THEY ARE IRRESISTIBLE"

Their charm and cleverness are fully equal to anything I have yet seen in New York." These are the words of one woman who has looked over our advance showing of Spring models, and as most of her things were bought in New York before she became a KRAUTHAMER convert, surely there is something in her words.

A good many of the styles in this collection derive their inspiration from the GREAT WAR—touches reminiscent of a soldier's greatcoat are visible here and there. The fullness of them all is obvious—nothing scant about any of them—generous in sweep and line.

Sport styles and high shades, of course. Prices as always ONE-THIRD LOWER THAN ELSEWHERE.

Winter garments are still obtainable, and at the time this is written it is quite cold enough to make the purchase of a plush or other heavy coat an excellent investment. We have REDUCED them ALL. Coats, skirts, dresses and suits are on sale at prices which you will find a welcome relief from those asked in the shops.

OUR GUARANTEE: Make you selection. Pay for it and take it away. One week later, if your purchase has not proven entirely satisfactory, bring it back. We will cheerfully refund the full price, and your carefare as well!

Several new troops are being organized in communities not yet reached by Scout programs. Harry R. Bouton, of Berckman street, has been commissioned as scoutmaster, and will hold his first meeting in the Lincoln School on Thursday evening next. Henry E. Peck, of Chatham street, will receive commission and hold his first meeting at the Stillman School on Monday evening. Another troop is in the process of organization at the Swedish church on West Sixth and New streets. Richard Clausen will be commissioned as scoutmaster in charge of this troop. A troop is being formed at the North Plainfield High School where, it is hoped, Principal Albert Early will be in charge. Applications for any of these troops may be filed at Scout headquarters. A new Scoutmasters' School is about to be organized where instruction in Scoutcraft will be given to men free of charge. The number of men in this class will be limited. Dates for lectures have not yet been announced, but applications and further information may be had at Scout headquarters.

Last night closed the celebration of the anniversary of the Boy Scout movement in the United States in which 250,000 boys participated in this annual event throughout the country. In Plainfield every troop carried out some "community good turn," many of them packing boxes of foodstuffs, etc., for the various homes and orphan asylums in this section of the State. Father and son suppers were held, at which time the parents received a better insight into the work of the Scout movement and closer co-operation between the father and the scoutmaster is looked for. On Saturday evening Dr. H. Elmer Gilchrist, director of humane education and extension bureau of the A. S. P. C. A., lectured to the Scouts and their friends at the High School auditorium, taking for his subject, "The Conflict With Cruelty." On Monday afternoon two hundred Plainfield Scouts, with their officers, traveled to Newark to compete in the rally conducted by the Newark Council. Although competing against 5,000 Scouts of this State, the Plainfield boys are to be highly complimented on the splendid showing they made in this rally. Every troop but one was represented, and the "Paul Collier Pennant" for the championship in Scoutcraft in this city will be awarded to the troop making the best showing. Prizes were awarded to the winners in each event, and although Plainfield, through lack of numbers, did not come out on top, they made a splendid showing, the winner having but eleven points, second eight points, while Plainfield totaled five points. Troop 14, of the First Baptist church, Scoutmaster W. L. Fowlison, secured second place in tower building, while Troop 7, of this city, of the Shiloh Baptist church, Scoutmaster Joseph A. Parner, third prize in the same event. Troop 14, also, held the third prize in the dressing contest. Many other troops made a splendid showing in their heats, all of which will be taken into consideration when the championship pennant is awarded, the finals results to be announced very shortly. With Scouts Thomas Fitch, of Troop 12, and Caryl Dunavan, of Troop 9, well in the lead in the final bandaging contest, there was little doubt but what Plainfield should hold first and second prizes, but unfortunately, Scout Albert Hansen, of Troop 12, met with an accident, interrupting the work of both Plainfield boys, causing them to be disqualified. Scout Hansen slipped on a short flight of steps in the armory, fracturing his arm. The injury was attended to by a Newark doctor, who was present, and the patient was taken home immediately by Assistant Scoutmaster Harold Spicer. Scout Hansen's arm has been broken several times in the same place, and had just been healed about one month when this accident occurred breaking it again.

A class is about to be organized at Scout headquarters under the direction of Miss S. P. P. A. for instruction in "First Aid to Animals." A final examination will be given by which all first class Scouts may obtain merit badges in this subject. Dates are being set for the semi-annual inspection of each troop with its equipment, etc., by the Scout executive and the Scout commissioner, and deputies, as well as representative members of the Plainfield Council. Troops 8, 9 and 14 will be inspected early in March.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Council will be held Monday evening next at Scout headquarters, 175 East Front street. Nations Field Scout Commissioner H. M. Butler, who so successfully conducted the financial campaign in this city, will be present to conduct the meeting, and award service ribbons to Scouts William Palmer, of Troop 8; Harold Allen, of Troop 14; David Carmichael, of Troop 14; Donald Warren, of Troop 14; Albert Baker, of Troop 14; John Rimmer, of Troop 12; Caryl Dunavan, of Troop 9; Howard Willett, of Troop 9; Clifton Wiggins, of Troop 9, for services rendered during the recent financial campaign. President Theodore C. Davis will preside, and a full attendance is hoped for.

The following merit badges are also to be awarded at this meeting: Scout Harold Bourne, of Troop 9, scholarship; Scout Harold Hall, of Troop 9, gardening; Scout Harold Zeek, former member of Troop 8, of this city, and recently commissioned as assistant scoutmaster to Troop 19, will receive merit badges in first-aid to animals, craftsmanship, civics and gardening.

READY FOR SEWER.

As soon as engineers now working on the plans have completed a survey of Fanwood borough a meeting of the committee appointed by the Common Council of that place and one delegated from the local Sewer Commission will be held at this city, at which time the first steps toward connecting the neighboring town with Plainfield's sewer will be taken. The plans are to be so arranged that the end of the main sewer laid in the East End of the city will be at Terrill road and Second street, where the Fanwood trunkline will join it.

CONFERENCE MARCH 30.

Word has been received here that the annual Methodist conference of the Newark district will be held on March 30. At that time at least one change will be made in a local pastorate. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph has resigned as pastor of the Monroe Avenue church and his successor will be appointed at that time. The congregation of the First M. E. church has asked that Dr. Anderson be returned for another year and it is probable that he will not be changed.

MORE DEBATES.

The young women of St. Mary's Social Club are seriously considering entering the debating field and are contemplating the issuing of a challenge to the young women of the Chi Gamma Chi of North Plainfield. It is expected that the North Plainfield young women will accept the defy as the idea of a debate, the contestants all being young women, is said to appeal strongly to them.

STILL ANOTHER.

On Washington's Birthday in the Plainfield High School auditorium a minstrel show for the benefit of a proposed colored Y. M. C. A. will be presented. A number of rehearsals have been held and everything points to a successful production. Music by the Vesable orchestra is promised.

P.H.S. Alumni Accounts for Some Notables

Among the thirteen hundred and fifty-five alumni of the Plainfield High School are to be found many men and women who have made their mark in the world. Others who have graduated from the Ninth street institution may be glad to renew their acquaintance with the more illustrious "grads" of earlier years.

The Plainfield High School Alumni Association points with pride to the fact that George R. Vincent, '80, formerly president of the University of Minnesota and recently appointed the head of the Rockefellow Foundation is a graduate of the local High school. Others to which the class of '75 is particularly proud are: Rev. S. B. Rush Rhees, D. D., L. L. D., president of Rochester University; Hattie Smith Comstock, who has attained an enviable reputation as an author; George L. Chamberlain, who for a number of years was private secretary to President Harper of Chicago University; Howard L. Runyon, president of the New York Mercantile Exchange; Mary L. Patterson, a prominent deaconess in the Episcopal church, and Harriet H. Winslow, who is a popular lecturer.

A number of the alumni have attained prominence in colleges professors and among these are: Arthur F. Kimball, Ph. D., professor of physics in Amherst College; William R. Cunningham, Ph. D., professor of history in Columbia University; George Stuart Collins, Ph. D., professor of French and German in the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; Edwin H. Lewis, Ph. D., professor of English, Lewis Institute, Chicago; Ernest O. Chamberlain, who died abroad and who was Pekin representative of the New York Sun at the time of the Boxer Rebellion, and Arthur F. Kimball were prominent members of the class of

Moose Night At The Bazaar

At the Company K fal rtonight, "Buddy" Pacifico, the local juvenile vaudeville artist who has just returned from a successful tour of the East, will appear. "Master Buddy," as he is known in the vernacular of the stage, will give his entire offering, including the popular clog dance. The young artist will come to the fair at the head of a delegation of the Loyal Order of Moose and tonight will be known as "Moose Night."

Things were livened up at the fair last evening by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, which appeared in full strength. Company K depends on their annual fair for a large share of its annual expenses and the appeal issued recently seems to have met with a generous response.

Dobbins Heads League; Four Teams Entered

Walter C. Dobbins has been re-elected president of the City League of baseball teams. This action was taken at a meeting of the league moguls at the home of Daniel J. Randolph, on Monday evening. Mr. Dobbins has been at the helm of the organization since it was first established and those interested in the 1917 edition of the circuit would consider no one else for the presidency.

There will be but four teams in the league this season, the Second Baptist, St. Joseph's and Hope chapel will be represented, but the Dunellen and Tab combination will take a step higher. The Tabs will represent Plainfield in the Central New Jersey League and Tommy Apgar's team will carry the colors of Dunellen. The St. Joseph's team is new to the city league and is under the direction of Earle Moran, numbering among its players, Eddie Conway, Earle Moran, Harold Mead, the McDonough brothers and a number of others.

Schedule For Debating Team

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on next Friday evening, a debate between representatives of the local institution and the Rutgers College freshmen will be held. On March 23, the Plainfield High School debaters will meet the winner of the Bayonne-Passaic contest.

The Plainfield High School team has again entered the Rutgers League and has been credited with one victory, although no actual debating has been done. The Westfield High School team, with whic the locals were supposed to contest, failed to enter the league and the victory came to the Red and Blue by default. The Ninth street institution will be entered in the Triangle League organized last year. In this league are the Battin and Trenton High Schools. The prize to be awarded the winner in this league is a silver loving cup, which must be defended three years before it becomes the property of any one of the contesting teams.

The Plainfield High School students picked to represent the local institution in the debates are: Horace Bunker, leader; Caryl Dunsvan, Charles Todd and Miss Fanny Mann, who will be the alternate. Miss Mann is a newcomer at the local school but one who is thoroughly acquainted with the art of debating, has been chosen as the leader of the Triangle Debating Team. Harold F. Biddle, head of the history department, is coaching the teams.

Tubers Nearly as Valuable as Diamonds

Potatoes, which usually cost the Plainfield housekeepers less than 3 cents a pound at this season, were selling yesterday at 7 cents and may go on rising.

The wholesale price of potatoes in New York City yesterday was $5 for a sack of 165 pounds—about $3.33 a bushel. Retail they ranged from $2.40 to $3.60 a bushel. A week ago the wholesale price was $7 a sack, three weeks ago it was $6 and a year ago it was $3.25 to $3.50, which is normal.

In the last four days of last week the wholesale price jumped 50 cents a day. A dealer with more than forty years' experience said that prices were higher than at any time in his recollection.

Four reasons have been assigned for the soaring market—short crops, heavy demand, speculation and railway congestion.

Speculation in a great degree was scouted by the commission merchant.

"There may be some," he said, "but I do not believe there is a single instance of potatoes now in New York. If there were the owners would be fools not to sell at the prices they can get now. The truth is there are not enough potatoes to supply the demand. Most of the supply is in the hands of the farmers and the small dealers in the potato towns.

"We are going to have to offer $10 and then still more," he continued. "But don't think we are getting the money. The potatoes we bought yesterday at $9 cost us $8.75 when they get here. That means we'll have to sell them to the grocers at more than $10."

Dead cats without railway congestion has little effect on the market.

The Florida crop, which ordinarily relieves the situation about April 1, will be small and entirely failing.

Onions yesterday were selling at $15.50 for 100 pounds wholesale. A week ago they were $11 wholesale. On December 1 the price was $3.

SISTER MARY RYAN.

Sister Mary Ryan, who had been stationed in Philipsburg until a few weeks ago and more lately at Mt. St. Mary's College, died Saturday after a long period of gradually failing health. Father Aloysius, a member of the Franciscan order, and a cousin of Sister Ryan, was the celebrant of the Requiem mass at 10 o'clock Monday morning in the chapel of the college. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Sister Ryan had been engaged in educational work for the past seventeen years and was one of a large family that devoted itself to religious work. She is survived by Brother Stanislaus, a brother, who is a member of the teaching staff of St. Francis College, and Sister Mary Aquin, a sister, of the Sisters of St. Francis, Greene, Iowa.

MRS. CLARINDA WALROD.

The funeral of Mrs. Clarinda P. Walrod, who died Thursday, after a short illness at the home of her brother at Kenneday, N. Y., was held Sunday afternoon at Jamestown, N. Y. Interment was also made in that city.

Mrs. Walrod was one of the first superintendents of Muhlenberg Hospital, holding the position until about 1890. She was a graduate nurse of the New York City Hospital and had been a practising nurse before becoming head of the hospital. For a number of years she had resided on Westervelt avenue, but left the New York State several months ago for her health. She was a member of the Grace M. E. church and W. C. T. U. Four brothers living in New York State survive.

Site Selected by State for Co. K Armory

Adjutant General C. W. Barber notified Union County Collector Nathan Leavitt during the past week that the State Military Board had selected the tract of land at 225 to 233 East Front street as the site for the new Plainfield National Guard Armory. The site takes in the land from Bank Place to the Presbyterian church property.

This location was selected as the most favorable by Captain Charles Peterson and his local staff last fall after the legislature had appropriated $25,000 for a new armory but it was necessary to place the matter before the State Military Board before closing the deal. Captain Peterson has been in consultation with the State authorities at Trenton several times recently and representatives of the State Board have visited Plainfield to inspect the property.

Collector Leavitt was notified in view of the fact that the state law makes it mandatory for the Union County Board of Freeholders to appropriate $20,000 for the purchase of the property. This will probably be done by issuing bonds in a sufficient amount and title must be taken over by the state.

The tract comprises approximately 160,000 square feet and the location is considered to be ideal for the purpose. This county appropriation makes a total of $45,000 at hand for the armory erection and every effort is now being made to induce the Common Council to appropriate $15,000 additional. It is expected that bids will be advertised for at once and work started in the near future. Captain Peterson has offered to appropriate the gravel necessary in the construction work and his offer has been accepted by the state.

Local Boys Prepare To Quit Border Patrol

Douglas, Ariz., Feb. 23—Battery C, Field Artillery, the only New Jersey troops on the border, is preparing to leave for its home station at East Orange. Privates Alfred Seals and Raymond Manley of Plainfield and William Scheeler, formerly of Plainfield, are in this outfit. It was announced last night that the date of departure depends altogether upon the mobilizing of transportation. The journey East will probably take about six days.

There was a riot of rejoicing in the Troop when the news was received. Monday completed the eighth month of continuous service that the battery has put in. The outfit, organized in the spring, responded to the President's call of June 19, spent the summer in the federal service at Tobyhanna, Pa., and was then sent for a tour of duty on the border.

Orders from the Southern Department are that no mounts or draft animals are to be taken by the battery, and the battery will therefore consequently be much more rapid than if the outfit had to handle its horses and proceed at the prescribed stock train speed. Some horses were brought home by Jersey troops returning in the fall, but the total was only a small percentage of those issued to the brigade.

Arrangements are being made to draw the travel ration at the post commisary. Not only is the quarter master corps at a loss to know when transportation will be available, but the route by which the command will return has not been definitely decided.

Big Week For City Firemen

Starting with the Zeek fire Sunday afternoon, the local fire department has had one of its busiest weeks in months. At 3:15 Sunday afternoon box 61 was pulled by Whitney Frazee, who had discovered flames in the two story building on South avenue, near Berckman street, used by the Zeek Baking Company. The apparatus from headquarters and Netherwood responded and after putting three lines of hose on the blaze succeeded in confining it to the second story with a $5,000 loss.

At 4:57 and before the apparatus had returned from the Zeek fire a blaze was discovered in the rear of 114 East Front street, which is occupied by Applegate's meat market and Zeckendorf's toy store. The apparatus from No. 1 and No. 4 houses answered the alarm and Chief Jennings and Assistant Chief Townley from the Zeek fire. The loss will probably reach several thousand dollars.

Monday night at 6:30 box 43 was pulled for a blaze in the barn at 1101 West Front street. It had gained headway before the firemen arrived and was destroyed with its contents, including a horse. The structure was owned by Mrs. M. V. Fairfax, but was rented by Roy Smalley.

Shortly before noon on Wednesday Tier's old ice house on Bank place, just off Front street, was discovered in flames. The flames had gained great headway and the firemen were able to save only adjoining buildings. Sparks carried by the wind caused roof fires at the home of W. A. Godfrey, of West Second street, at Clark's restaurant on Watchung avenue, at the Butler property at East Front street and Bank place, and at 229 East Front street, which is owned by H. H. Coward and occupied by tenants.

Proctor's Movie Bill Attractive

Mary Pickford's appearance is always one of charm. No matter whether she is in rags, the silk kimono of Butterfly, the riot of colors of far away India, the worn out garments of Tess and the Foundling or the clattering wooden shoes of Hulda there is always the same charm, the same sweetness and the winsomeness that makes her so appealing to every one. In the second of her own productions "The Pride of the Clan" which will begin a three day engagement at Proctor's starting Monday, she portrays a Scotch Lassie and often clad in kilts and the wee gold on hat thrown about her gracefully poised head she is more beautiful than ever. It is a character too that holds out every opportunity to the star for making it one of the most popular parts she has ever created. In other words, it is a Mary Pickford part and that is just what all the many Mary Pickford admirers most want. In addition to this attractive seven part production the latest Pathe Weekly is shown and on Monday and Tuesday Mrs. Vernon Castle will appear in the seventh episode of "Patria". Although this production has cost the management of Proctors an enormous rental they have fixed upon a popular scale of prices. Afternoons the orchestra seats will be 15 cents and seats in the balcony 10 cents, while during the evening the orchestra seats will be sold at 25 cents and the balcony seats 15 cents. In connection with this attraction two Scotch pipers in kilts will appear in front of the theatre and render bagpipe selections at frequent intervals and during the presentation of the picture the Scotch dancers will be accompanied in realistic fashion by one of the pipers.

Perseverance Will Mark Anniversary

Everything is in readiness for the celebration of Perseverance Lodge, No. 77, in honor of the fifty-third anniversary of the order. A request came from the national headquarters several weeks ago to hold some event to mark the date and the committee on arrangements has done its best to make it a fitting celebration.

It is expected that several hundred members of the lodge, together with their friends will be present tonight at the entertainment, which will be followed later in the evening by a banquet. Through an agency maintained by the lodge members of the order a program of variety vaudeville has been secured, which will include J. C. Evans, of the Plainfield Rich Boys, who will render several readings, and Kenneth Stewart, also of this city, who will team up with a young woman in a musical feature.

After the entertainment the celebration will be adjourned to the banquet room, where a banquet will be served. Several of the members have been busy for several days arranging the details and with no speakers to interrupt everyone will have plenty of time to sample the entire menu.

PATRIOTIC PLAY.

In the basement of the Netherwood Reformed church last evening, the Inner-Triangle Club gave a Washington's Birthday social and presented the playlet, "The Valley Forge of 1917" with the members of the club in the cast. Ice cream, cake and cocoa were on sale during the intermission.

Baker Thanks Cavalry Unit

Secretary of War Newton Baker has sent the following letter to Captain Albert G. Borden, of Troop D, First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry, thanking him and his men for the work they did on the Mexican border during the past summer:

"I wish to thank you and the officers and men of your organization for the loyal service which you have rendered to the country.

"When the National Guard was called into the service of the Federal government the lives of men, women and children along the frontier were in grave danger owing to the Mexican side of the border. It is not too much to say that had these raids continued there was danger of international war.

"From the time of the arrival of the units of the National Guard on the border the raids ceased, and the tension between the two countries began to relax.

"It is the hope and belief of the government that the presence of the units of the National Guard, together with the units of the regular army on the border and in Mexico, and the presence in mobilization camps in other parts of the national country in readiness for such service, has made possible a peaceful solution of a difficult and threatening problem."

Extensive Sewer Construction Work Is Nearing Completion

After six month's work on the construction of Plainfield's sewer system, with the approach of winter it can be said that the contractors engaged are nearing the finish of their task. The work is divided into two parts, the sanitary and the storm sewers calling for entirely different methods of construction and being under the supervision of different contractors. It is practically impossible to obtain information as to just when the work will be entirely completed, because the time may be extended past that agreed.

The most important part of the entire improvement is the drainage, or sewage system, the construction of which is costing $125,000. Because of the nature of the work and difficulties under which the work is done, Lange, Haslan Co., or Ridgefield, N. J., who have the contract, are experiencing quite a bit at every point and will find it impossible to complete the work without an extension, which already been granted.

The storm sewer in the East End of the city, where the gravity system has been utilized, has been practically finished and individuals may now commence connecting their houses with the trunk lines. These streets which are piped include Sumner, Emerson, St. Mary's, Stelle and Hobart avenues, Ravine Road and Willette and Valley Place. Grant avenue is nearly done and residents will be able to connect in a short time.

Much of the expense and hardship of construction was eliminated by the using of the gravity system which was in use before. That section of the sanitary work has been approved and is in working order.

The entire West End will have the pumped or force system and the finishing of that part of their contract work that is now occupying the attention of the contractors. Starting at the pumping station the line will run through Rock avenue, Bradford avenue, Myrtle avenue, Bellevue Place and DeKalb avenue. Sections of it have been completed, as has that part on Jefferson avenue, where brick and large quantities of the water proved drawbacks. One hindrance that held back the work a considerable time was the gaining of the consent of the property owners to run the pipe line from the pumping station near Rock avenue and Grove street along Greenbrook to Jefferson avenue, a section running entirely through private property.

Two bits of engineering construction have come up in the laying of the pumping system, one of which has been solved and the other still confronting the contractors. The building of the pumping station at Rock avenue near Greenbrook proved to be a task with unlooked for difficulties. Quick sand and water caused infinite trouble in the proper laying of the foundation and proved a source of trouble at all times. The building has been finished and the machinery is now being installed with expectations of being completed by March 1.

Before Lange, Haslan & Co., have their work entirely completed they will have to tunnel under the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at View avenue and South Second street. Because of the nature of the work and possibility of damaging the tracks if it is not done right the railroad will assist in the task. The total distance to be tunneled is 160 feet. It will be done by the railroad and the actual laying of the pipe will be done b the contractors. That part of the system can be started on at any time as two gangs of men are now working toward the tracks from either way.

When the sanitary system is in complete working order it will drain a territory of nine miles, that being the distance to be piped. Slightly over one-third of it has now been finished.

The storm sewer is being constructed by two different contractors and is more nearly completed than the other. That of the west side by John M. Kelly Construction Company of Camden, is engaged in doing the larger portion of the construction work. The contract calling for about $58,000. He has had a number of such contracts previous to the present one and as a result has the machinery and the men with which to work. It is expected that his portion of the contract for the entire storm sewer will be completed nearly two months ahead of time.

During the month of January West Seventh street was piped from Grant avenue to Division street, while Grant avenue has been finished from West Eighth to West Seventh street, a gang of men is now engaged digging on Grove street from Greenbrook to Central avenue and another gang is working on Watchung avenue from East Fourth to East Sixth street. West Front street has been piped from Washington avenue to Liberty street, while from South Sixth street between Arlington and Park avenues has been finished but will not be completed until warmer weather. The street from West Sixth to West Seventh streets and West Seventh street from New street to Central avenue have yet to be done. West Fifth street will be one of the streets through which the sewer will be run later, from Arlington avenue to Park avenue. Workmen will start soon on West Front street from Grant avenue to Lafayette Place and on East Seventh street from Park avenue to Sycamore street.

Charles A. Peterson, the only Plainfield man who is doing any work on the new sewer, has the contract for the second part of the storm drainage system. Weather has delayed him much to a considerable extent but work is now progressing fairly well. Starting on Watchung avenue at Greenbrook he now has men engaged completing the curve from Front street, that thoroughfare for the time being closed to traffic. He will continue piping Front street to Washington street, down Washington street to East Fourth street and up East Fourth to Watchung avenue. The work is supposed to be completed on that section by April 1, but it will probably be another month at least after that time.

All three contractors engaged have filling, but that employed by Captain Peterson is the most novel and pleasing of any. Instead of having to stop and throw each shovel full of dirt out of the trench the men fill buckets which are caught by the motor train and transferred back to where the pipe has been laid and fills it in. Where the trench is as much as sixteen or eighteen feet in depth the method is a great time saver.

In order to complete a job the size of the one in progress the question of securing labor is an important one. Much of it has to be imported from other sections, this being especially true in the case of Lange, Haslan & Co. Slavs, Spaniards, Germans, Russians and other nationalities are represented in the small sized colony that makes its headquarters at the building the concern

Former Governor Fort Appointed Federal Commissioner by President Wilson

Further evidence of the bonds of friendship existing between Governor Woodrow Wilson and Governor J. Franklin Fort and President Woodrow Wilson were brought to the surface during the past week in the appointment of the former to the Federal Trade Commission. While Governor Fort has been in close touch with the President during the latter's entire stay at the White House the appointment as commissioner came as a complete surprise.

Commissioner Fort was the president of the Plainfield Daily Press Company which his son, Leslie R. Fort, of Cedarbrook road, was managing editor. The paper was consolidated with the Courier-News on October 7 last.

The former New Jersey governor, who now lives in South Orange and practises law in Newark, first gained political prominence in 1872, when the Greeley-Grant campaign was in progress and he entered the campaign for General Grant. During the three months it lasted he delivered twenty-seven speeches in South Jersey and in the winter of 1873 he was made assistant journal clerk of the senate, holding the same position the following year.

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort.

He was graduated from the Albany Law School and upon the advice of John W. Taylor, then president of the Senate, he took up he practise of this profession in Newark. He became interested in politics almost immediately after his settlement in the latter city and in 1874 he took the stump for George A. Halsey, the Republican candidate for Governor. In 1878 Governor McClellan appointed Mr. Fort a judge of the First District Court in Newark and he was renamed by Governor Ludlow, but resigned the office to engage solely in the practise of law in 1884.

In 1884 he was elected a delegate at large by the Republican State Convention held in Chicago and in 1889 he was chairman of the convention which nominated General Benjamin Harrison for President. Governor Burd Grubb for Governor and toastmaster of the State with him he was also chairman of the Grigg convention in 1895 and took a prominent part in each succeeding campaign that followed and which resulted in the election of the first Republican governor in thirty years.

In 1896 Mr. Fort was a delegate to the National Convention at St. Louis and he was also a delegate to the European tour he made under a commission from the United States and reported on them for the government.

He was elected governor of New Jersey on November 5, 1907, by a plurality of 8,013 over Frank Katzenbach, Jr.

Vaudeville Bill Headed By Trio

After having but little chance during the past week to gain favor in the hearts of local theatregoers, vaudeville is at the Plainfield Theatre for the last three days of the week. The program included by Manager Shannon is one of a variety of numbers and is headed off by the Stroud Trio," introducing Baby Violet.

Four other excellent acts are also on the bill, and include Martin & Stemple in a clever dancing act; the Rigoletto Trio, otherwise known as the harmony boys; a dramatic comedy playlet, entitled "When the Woman Turns," and Bond Morse, comedian, in chief of the army of fun and a man coming from nowhere going to nowhere.

Two attractive features have been added to tonight's bill by the management, making the show last the entire evening. Nine "tryout" acts will bring the vaudeville bill up to fourteen numbers, while "Peggy," the heroine of the most popular of current serials, will be added to the regular moving picture bill.

MRS. JOANNA VAN HERWERDEN.

Rev. Dr. John Sherman Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, conducted funeral services for Mrs. Joanna Van Herwerden, who died at her home on South avenue Sunday, at the late residence Tuesday afternoon. The interment was private.

Mrs. Van Herwerden was in her sixty-fifth year and until the beginning of her fatal illness ten days ago had enjoyed good health. She was a native of New York and had resided in the city for the past twenty-five years. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue church and an earnest worker in its various departments. Mrs. Van Herwerden is survived by her husband, Cornelius Van Herwerden, and a son, James Van Herwerden, both former members of the New York City Council, and a daughter Mrs. B. H. Legare, of California. A brother, Christopher Hansen, lives in Minneapolis.

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Society Well Represented at Bernhardt Appearance

Madame Sarah Bernhardt played at the Plainfield Theatre last evening, cancelling an engagement at Springfield, Mass., in order to do so. Madame Bernhardt was booked originally to appear last Saturday evening and she and her entire company were on hand. However, the scenery was delayed in transit on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and it was found necessary to inform the large audience that the production would not be given until Wednesday evening. Those in the audience were given the privilege of retaining their reservations or securing the money paid for the seats.

The theatre was appropriately decorated with American and French flags, the work of decorating having been carried on under the direction of a number of local society women. There were a number of small theatre parties at the appearance of Mme. Bernhardt, but perhaps the most unique and the largest among those was that of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Ryan, of Cranford, who were host and hostess to a party of seventeen friends. Prominent among those holding box seats and orchestra reservations were among others, the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Gillman, Miss L. C. Long, Miss Isabel S. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Marsh, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rockwell, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Greenleaf, Mr. and Mrs. Evarts Tracey, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Atkinson, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Debusco, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wisch, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hardie, Mr. and Mrs. C. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. P. V. L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs F. C. Ard, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jesperson, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Petsch, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Parents' Day a New Feature

Yesterday, Washington's Birthday, was parents' day at all of the public schools in this city. The plan of having the parents of the pupils visit the various schools and witness the work that is being accomplished was prompted by the success of "Parents' Day" at the Evergreen Avenue School on Lincoln's Birthday. Over two hundred parents of children attending the Evergreen Avenue School visited that institution on Lincoln's Birthday and fully as many availed themselves of the opportunity again afforded them yesterday.

Owing to the epidemic of paralysis the schools are in session on holidays in order that time lost may be made up. The High School was open yesterday from 8:30 a. m. until 2 p. m., and during that time a large number of parents of the students visited the school. Many of the parents attended the special exercises at the High School in honor of George Washington. The Grammar School classes held their special exercises in the morning.

In the Irving, the Washington, the Franklin and the Bryant Schools there was assembly of the whole school with appropriate exercises, including special singing. Belgian Relief Work Will Be Continued

The work of the Plainfield Branch of the Belgian Relief Association will not be retarded by the present state of relations between this country and Germany. Until recently it was feared that the work would have to be discontinued entirely but Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace, who is at the head of the local branch, has received advices that the work will go on as usual.

A telegram received last week by Mrs. Wallace has confirmed press dispatches announcing that the orders to the Belgian Relief workers had been rescinded and that these men will remain at their posts under exactly the same conditions as before. This will insure the delivery of food stocks in Belgium to allay all fear of famine, pending the arrival of the food ships which are now being dispatched.

The telegram urged Mrs. Wallace to give the matter as wide publicity as possible as it was feared that the premature report that the Relief men had left Belgium may in some way affect on the people. The Commission desires that those who have been actively engaged in working for the Belgian sufferers continue to do so. The latter will be given impetus by metropolitan dailies, that the work had been discontinued or was about to be discontinued has gained considerable ground and it is to offset this impression that communications, of the nature of the one received by Mrs. Wallace, have been sent out.

"Dollar Day" Next Tuesday

The merchants of the city have completed plans for "Dollar Day" on Tuesday, February 27, and expect to conduct one of the most attractive reduction sales ever held in this vicinity. The plan has been well advertised locally and in nearby towns and it is expected that the housewives will take advantage of the opportunity afforded them to secure goods of quality at a reduced price.

For the convenience of the housewives who through force of circumstance have to bring children along with them while on their shopping tour, a rest room will be opened in the Dreier Building, on West Front street at the corner of Madison avenue. A matron will be in charge at this station. The Dollar Day plan originated two years ago and has been successful from the start. It is the custom to hold two sales a year, one in February and the other in September. The plan, as operated in this city, excels that in use in any other city in the State in the way of affording exceptional values to the housewife and in the manner of handling the rush that is generally encountered.

Squabbles Taken to the Legislature

Two bills now before the Legislature are of vital interest to Fanwood and Scotch Plains. One provides for the creation of a police district to be composed of Fanwood borough, while the other relates to an "act to change the township of Fanwood, in the county of Union, to the township of Scotch Plains."

If the State Senate and Assembly approve of the two changes it will mean the breaking of two more of the remaining ties that have caused endless trouble since Fanwood borough was formed out of part of Fanwood township thirty odd years ago. Residents of Scotch Plains do not want any connection with Fanwood by name or any other way and the only way they can get around it is to change the name of the township to Scotch Plains.

Fanwood borough's fight for a separate school district has been taken to the State authorities before. Both the borough and the township in the same district, although all three of the schools are located in the township. The borough sends less than a hundred pupils to the three schools to the township's three hundred odd, yet pays one-third of the maintenance of the schools. The fight came to a head about a year ago when the residents of the borough tried to prevent the appropriating of $50,000 for a new school unless it was to be erected in Fanwood. The matter even got as far as the consideration of the Supreme Court, but finally was decided in favor of the township.

COLLEGE STUDENTS WILL CONDUCT CARD PARTY.

The students and the alumnae of Mount St. Mary's College gave a card party and reception in the Park Club on Saturday afternoon. Bridge whist, euchre and five hundred were played. The proceeds will be used for the erection of a new physics and chemistry laboratory. The attendance at this affair was unusually large, society of this city having a creditable representation.

Miss Rose Birkle was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair and Miss Julia Blake was the secretary. The reception committee was composed of the following: Mrs. Mary Sullivan, of this city; Mrs. Charles Higgins, Elizabeth; Mrs. George Reynolds, Perth Amboy; Mrs. E. A. Meacham and Miss Margaret Scully, South Amboy, and Miss Irene Smith, New York city.

The patronesses of the affair were many and included the following local people: Mrs. David J. Kenney, Mrs. S. S. Carvalho, Mrs. Timothy F. Harrington, Mrs. Charles Higgins, Mrs. Frederick J. Hughes, Mrs. Elizabeth Blatz, Mrs. A. K. Brenran, Mrs. Edward Duchesne, Mrs. Andrea Mead, Mrs. A. E. Kenney, Mrs. Francis J. Blatz, Mrs. Anna Keller, Mrs. Cormack McDonough, Mrs. Hilaire Blatz, Mrs. Theodore O. Budenbach, Mrs. George J. Tobin, Mrs. C. E. Lipscomb, Mrs. Thomas H. Sullivan, Mrs. Chauncey F. Stout, Miss M. R. Sullivan, Mrs. John Rafferty, Miss Katherine A. Redican and Mrs. George Saccardi.

State Police Now Probable

Indicating the intention of the organization to support a measure establishing a State police force in New Jersey, the Bureau of Research of the State Chamber of Commerce has just issued a comprehensive volume covering the State police problem throughout the country, and treating especially of the arguments for and against such a force in this State. It is understood that the findings of the Bureau of Research have been set forth at this time in anticipation of the introduction of a State police bill in the Legislature some time this week.

The State Chamber's book deals with the operations of State police forces, such as the Pennsylvania State Constabulary and the Texas Rangers, that are maintained in various States. The Pennsylvania organization, after which the Ramsay State police bill was introduced in 1914, and 1915, were modeled, is the subject of considerable comment. It is shown that about 90 per cent. of the people of the county officials of Pennsylvania commend the State forces and that many of those who do not commend favorably say they have had no experience with the State policemen.

With reference to New Jersey it is pointed out that the only emergency police force that can be called upon by the Governor is the National Guard, and it is stated that such work is distasteful to the guardsmen and that it has seriously affected the recruiting. It is also pointed out that the protection of rural territory through patrolling by the State policemen is recorded as an important function that could be performed by such a force, and it is declared that many seasonable crimes, such as harvest thefts, and violations of the laws during hunting seasons could be prevented by a State police force. Also, it is contended that State policemen could protect thousands of acres from forest fires, and could aid in the enforcement of tech and game and automobile laws. With reference to the situation in some sections of the State as regards police protection, the report contains the following:

"The vast rural and suburban acres containing 65 per cent. (or 1,479,786) of the total population and embracing 38 per cent. or ($363,756,862) of all devastable property in the State is quite without patrol protection. Aggrieved parties have had always to hunt up a constable or send to the county seat for the sheriff for protection. But past sheriffs and constables have been so notoriously incompetent in the matter of arresting criminals that crimes are comparatively seldom reported to the sheriffs or contsables.

"It is an astounding fact that sixteen of the sheriffs of New Jersey admit that they do not take seriously the duty of apprehending criminals. More than a majority of the sheriffs confine their attention to the care of the jail and the serving of civil papers. Many of the sheriffs manifest surprise that they should be expected to apprehend criminals."

The figures quoted are based on the Federal census of 1910.

The Research Bureau's book contains many statements by owners and managers of plants in the industrial counties of the State, who are a unit in favor of a State police force. Their intest is based on the need for such a body to preserve order and violence in the event of labor troubles.

It is probable that the proposed State police bill will provide for a force of 100 men with an appropriation of about $118,000 for salaries and maintenance.

Sewell, the local camp, is the New Jersey member of the staff of Commander-in-chief Chisholm to whom the reception was tendered.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1917.

EFFICIENT WORK UNDER NEW CHIEFS.

Plainfield was given its first big opportunity Sunday afternoon to measure the results of the carefully planned and radical changes its new fire chief is making in his department. Although the city has been particularly fortunate in escaping disastrous fires since Chief Andrew Jennings and Assistant Chief William Townley took office the two that broke out almost simultaneously Sunday afternoon gave the firemen a chance to demonstrate the effects of the revised system. At the same time the occasion pointed out graphically the need of another improvement in the form of switch-board telephone communication between the four fire stations.

One minor, though important, feature in Chief Jennings' reorganization campaign has been the stationing of a man permanently at headquarters to remain there while the apparatus is out on a call. On this occasion Firemen Jens Claassen was in charge and to him must be attributed a large share of the credit for the efficient handling of the city's forces in Sunday's emergency. While the equipment from the central and east end section of the town was fighting a blaze in the Zeek baking factory on South avenue a call sounded for a fire in the business section. Realizing the seriousness of the situation because of the location of the second blaze Fireman Claassen immediately dispatched two reserve men at headquarters to the Front street scene with a piece of apparatus and followed this step by ordering the No. 1 and the west end departments out. Although his communication with the latter stations had to be done through the local central of the telephone company he took care of it in short order and used his good judgment a third time by commandeering an automobile and racing for the first fire where Chief Jennings and Assistant Chief Townley were both working. He brought the latter back to direct the second fire.

Seldom has the Plainfield department been called upon to fight two serious blazes at almost the same time and the smoothness and quickness with which the new system was operated by Claassen was remarkable. There was but one instance in which he could have saved minutes, and even minutes are valuable in a situation such as Sunday's. Had the switch-board system been in use he could have called the No. 1 and West End departments directly and saved the connection with the main central.

Aside from the capable handling and dispatching of forces from headquarters the work of the department at both fires was commendable. In each place the flames had assumed threatening proportions when the fire fighters arrived and it was due largely to the generalship of Jennings and Townley and the willingness of the firemen to carry out orders that immense conflagrations were averted and the damage kept down to a minimum.

POLICE SALARIES NOT WHAT THEY SHOULD BE.

Dissatisfaction among the members of the local police department over the salaries being received is almost unanimous and the present wage scale is serving to hinder the development of efficiency methods as well as decrease the force. The grumbling is particularly noticeable in the patrolman class. Men passing the prescribed examinations for this rank are entitled to a starter's salary of $74 a month and at the same time are compelled to purchase an equipment the minimum price of which is $100. This initial expense eats up the better part of two months' pay and a majority of the men taken on the force are compelled to provide support for a family at the same time.

Of course, the worn out argument to the effect that a man shouldn't take the police examinations unless he feels that $74 is sufficient to maintain himself and family is ever before us but a little broader view of the situation should be taken by the Councilmanic Police Board. It has been proven that capable men are hard to get and harder to keep. The police department is not at present recruited up to a sufficient strength and if the existing salary scale is allowed to prevail there is little possibility of it ever acquiring this standard. Only during the past week we have witnessed the passing of one of the most efficient patrolmen. He has been gobbled up by a New York banking house that is willing to pay $100 a month for just such men as we are hiring at $74. He has gone the way of a number of others and his predecessors have all been advanced in salary and position as their service demands.

The life of a patrolman is probably one of the hardest among city employes. His hours are long, his work is monotonous, and the wide-awake and arabition specimen of human fitness is not content to plod away at a small salary with only the remotest chance of advancement. The Plainfield department is small, advancement in rank is not made frequently, and there is little or no reward for merit. This should be taken into consideration by the city body having in control the adjustment of police salaries and some effort should be made to keep the worthy individuals who are forced to accept employment elsewhere in order to make both living ends meet in these days of rapid increase in the cost of life's necessities.

N. S. A. S. ACCOMPLISHING NOTEWORTHY OBJECTS.

In the Plainfield branch of the National Special Aid Society this city has an organization which has proven that it is capable of notable accomplishment. Never before in the history of the municipality has a movement been inaugurated which has savored so strongly of the democratic spirit. The leaders of the project brought their ambitions to the attention of the public in a well organized and convincing manner and the results of the first fortnight of a whirlwind campaign have been manifold. *The National Special Aid Society is steadily as*suming the aspect of a permanent working body for the accomplishment of national endeavor that is deserving of the support of the city as a whole.

The membership crusade has been productive of a cosmopolitan roster; the society is now representative of all denominations, colors and nationalities. In short its radius of influence is unbounded and its scope for well-doing is unlimited. The prime movers designed the campaign to interest all womankind and to dissolve the lines of social, religious and political factions.

When the membership campaign is brought to a close the society will number among its workers individuals particularly fitted to participate in and direct each branch of its activity. The organizers have aimed at a state of permanency and indications point to a continued exertion of influence even after the present national crisis is passed. The society is ready for any emergency and may be depended upon to come to the fore in the time of the greatest stress.

Senator Martine, in an address before Congress last Thursday following the introduction of a Prohibition measure, said: "There are States that prohibit the use of cigarettes. Why should not the Senator incorporate cigarettes in this amendment and provide that any man sending an advertisement of a package of cigarettes to another man in such a community should be sent to jail for a year and be subject to a fine of $1,000? I abominate the habits that are indulge in by almost every Senator around me; and yet I would be the last man to arrogate to myself all of the wisdom and judgment and knowledge and try to dictate to them their habits.

"I say this is prohibition, rank, run mad, and wild. No though of personal liberty, no though of human rights seems to enter the mind of the average prohibitionist. When he once starts out on the realm and path of prohibition, everything else must stand aside in order that this propaganda of theirs may be advocated.

"I ask, Mr. President, suppose a man's wife, if you choose, knowing that their was a liquor advertisement in a paper, should choose to send to her husband a paper containing it, not knowing the penalty. Of course, ignorance of the law is no excuse, so the lawyers say, but I think there ought to be something to cover a condition of that kind. Suppose she sends an advertisement to her husband. Must she, because this advertisement in the paper, or this letter upon the letterhead, advertises liquors, wines, and the like, be subject to imprisonment and a fine of a thousand dollars?

"Why, I cannot imagine men in human form, men blessed as you have been with liberal surroundings, exercising since your boyhood your desires and your wants and your inclinations and your privileges under a free Government—I can not understand you now, having arrived at a state of manhood, arrogating to yourslves so much of wisdom and depriving your fellow men and fellow citizens of their privileges and their rights.

"As I have said before, the wonderful and marvelous progress that has been made in these United States has never been made, nor could it ever have been made, on the narrow, miserable, sumptuary, flimsy platform of your prohibitory ideaas. Great accomplishments, beyond compare in the world, have been the result in America, owing to liberal laws and the right and privilege for every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. Now, here on this late day a handful of men in fanatical communities propose to regulate the appetites, the habits, and soon, I suppose, the clothing and dress of each m an, woman, and child in America!"

Considerable uncalled for critism has been directed at Mayor Leighton Calkins and members of the Common Council who served on the city hall program committee for their part in engaging a non-union band for the parade which preceded the corner-stone laying. Plainfield has no strictly union band, despite the claims of some rabid organized labor boosters, and if the mayor and Council adherred strictly to the union clause they would have been compelled to look elsewhere for suitable parade music. "Shopping" in foreign territory would have brought another shower of adverse criticism.

The committee selected the Dutch Arms Band for the sole reason that it was the only available outfit with a strictly local personnel qualified to serve. When certain unionists learned that this organization, which makes no claim to being a union band, had been hired they immediately informed Mayor Calkins that Plainfield was blessed with a labor music furnishing combine with local talent to the number of 100. This happened to be the first introduction the mayor and councilmen had been favored with. The program committee was perfectly justified in taking the course it did and the critics have absolutely no grounds for adverse comment.

An opportunity such as was presented last Saturday afternoon for a civic inspection of Plainfield's cavalry and infantdy units has never before been afforded locally. Seasoned veterans of Federal maneuvers on the Mexican border, trained to a finishing touch in horsemanship and soldiery commands, and still possessed of the vigor and snap acquired during the summer campaign, Troop D showed up wonderfully well under the command of Acting Captain Daniel Runkle. Their appearance astride an assortment of government cavalry mounts drew favorable comment along the entire line of march and Plainfielders singled them out as a body of men of whom they might well feel proud. Headed by Captain Charles Peterson, Company K, of the Second Infantry, exhibited the soldiery conduct it has acquired under his able leadership. Although deprived of the smoothing off process available only under the guidance of Federal officials the "doughboys" demonstrated that they have taken full advantage of the attention given them under adverse conditions and in limited quarters. Both units were in crue form and proved that in time of trouble they would be in trim to respond at a moment's notice.

A few days ago a subscriber, who is a well known citizen, came to our office and stopped his paper for the reason, he said, that it did not just suit his fancy. We have since met him on the street and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on his face that we are in existence, despite the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day, and it won't be long either, that gentleman will be no more. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay him to rest among silent flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was—which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake—and in a short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold graveyard, wrapped in the silent slumber of death, he will never know the last kind word spoken of him was by the editor of the paper which he so spitefully "stopped." Did you ever pause for a moment and think that your editor, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day?

Local theatre lovers owe Messrs. Counihan and Shannon, managers of the Plainfield Theatre, a debt of gratitude for their successful efforts to secure a postponed engagement of Sarah Bernhardt, following the regretable incident of Saturday night. Extending the time limit to the last minute in order not to disappoint a full house the management was finally forced to announce that the noted actress' scenery and other equipment had not arrived and negotiations were immediately started to insure a return booking. Mme. Bernhardt's schedule is a full one and theatregoers in other cities were clamoring for her appearance just as much as they were in Plainfield. Every obstacle was placed in the path of Messrs. Shannon and Counihan in arriving at an agreement and they finally induced her manager to cancel a booking for Springfield, Mass., to return here Wednesday night. Such enterprise is commendable and the manner in which the Plainfield public accepted the Saturday disappointment and responded Wednesday night is ample proof that the theatre managers' efforts were fully appreciated.

Investigation has shown to members of the Business Men's Association that the lavartories in the east bound depot of the Central Railroad are in an unsanitary condition. The association has as its main object the direction of Plainfield's commercial interests but this civic problem should receive its immediate and careful attention. People coming into Plainfield, whether for shopping purposes or other reasons, oftentimes have occasion to frequent the lavatories and find them about as unpresentable as could be imagined.

The dinky little space provided for the male sex in the station mentioned is a lavatory in name only. It is marked "For Patrons of This Railroad Only," but those Plainfielders who come within the class eligible to visit it have never been given cause to believe that the railroad made this distinction because of its qualities as an advertising feature for the company's service. It is something that should be looked into at once by the city and immediate improvement should be demanded.

Adjutant General Barber's announcement to the effect that the State Military Board has decided on the East Front street site for Plainfield's new armory will no doubt prove a source of gratification to the local committee and friends of Company K who have been working for this end. The tract of land is ideally situated for a drill shed and all that remains to assure the city of a creditable structure is the appropriation of at least $15,000 by the Common Council. The state and county have already set aside $45,000 for the Plainfield building and it is only right to expect that the municipality will do its share. Ten years ago $45,000 would have been sufficient to defray the cost of a fitting structure but since building materials took a jump at least twenty-five per cent additional is required.

The appointment of Judge J. Franklin Fort to the Federal Reserve Board by President Woodrow Wilson is ample proof that political tendencies of the individual have not served to strain the friendly relations of the two former New Jersey Governors. The post is an important and responsible one but there is probably no one better qualified to judge Mr. Fort's fitness for such an honor than Mr. Wilson. The appointment came as a surprise to the favored party but his fellow Jerseyites have always been aware of the regard in which he has been held by the Nation's head and they look upon it as a selection well made and well deserved.

With foodstuffs of every variety commanding record prices and articles that where once looked upon as common-place now being billed as luxuries it is impossible to predict what the spring months have in store for us. The effects of a sugar famine have been felt most forcibly in Plainfield during the past week but local grocers are also having trouble in buying potatoes, onions and other vegetables. Present conditions are without a precedent; there appears to be no limit for soaring prices. No relief is in sight and wholesale and retail merchants predict that conditions will be even more strained during the next fortnight.

A bill now before the legislature is designed to deprive counties of the State Motor Vehicle Fund and to pay this money directly to the State Highway Commision. Union County's annual share amounts to about $50,000 which is used to build and maintain county roads. To take this amount away would force a hardship on the county, and that the move is due to meet with vigorous protest is certain.

Pierce Has Bursted G. O. P. Harness; Wires Being Laid by Machine to Effect His Downfall Next Fall

If State Senator Carlton B. Pierce was ever bound to the Republican organization of Union county by ties political or otherwise, and it appears very doubtful if he ever was, those ties have been broken. In Union county Senator Pierce today stands alone. He has drawn the line between himself and organization affiliation. He has cut clean of any and all alliances which might have marked him as an organization Republican.

Every vestige of doubt as to where Senator Pierce stood was removed recently when he went over the head of the Republican organization leaders in Union county to recommend J. Henry Crane for the district court judgeship in this city.

There had been some evidence of a parting of the ways prior to the Crane recommendation. This came when, to the surprise of the organization men the Senator made G. Bartram Woodruff, president of the Elizabeth Board of Excise, assistant secretary of the Senate. The job for several years had been held by John W. Cliff, a Summit newspaper man, and he was indorsed by the executive committee of the Union County Republican Committee for reappointment. Pierce ignored the wishes of the executive committee and made Woodruff his personal choice. But positive proof of just how little dictation he proposed to take from the party leaders did not come until he selected Crane and succeeded in winning the approval of Governor Edge over the personal and vigorous protest of William N. Newcorn, chairman of the Republican County Committee.

The story of how Pierce came to select Crane shows how the Senator thinks and acts. He suggested and Governor Edge approved that as he, Pierce, was not very familiar with the Plainfield members of the Union County Bar Association, a committee of three Plainfield men be selected to agree upon two names. The committee selected Senator Pierce believed, there would be little difficulty in getting the right man, but three days afterward three of the members asked to be released. This was done. Subsequently the second member asked to be released. His request was granted and two other prominent Plainfield men were invited to fill the vacancies on the committee. Both accepted; but within two days these two men also asked to be released. This left responsibility solely upon to Senator Pierce. After making the personal investigation he picked Crane out of the field of candidates, explained the circumstances to Governor Edge and gained the latter's approval.

Now the real bona-fide organization candidate for the judgeship was Francis J. Blatz. In nearly every instance the men who asked to be released from serving on the committee asked to be "let out" when they saw that it looked rather gloomy in so far as Senator Pierce handling the game in so far as Governor was concerned. The organization wanted Blatz or nobody. There was, on the other hand, as it seems, considerable opposition to Blatz from without the G. O. P. county machine because of the part he took in the recent wet and dry battle in Plainfield. The political records show Blatz lined up on the side of the wets.

While never an organization man in the recognized political sense of the word, Senator Pierce, through the Woodruff appointment and the Crane recommendation, brought home forcibly to the minds of the country machine leaders that he certainly was doing his own thinking, and proposed to keep on doing his own thinking. Up to within the last few weeks the Senator, while generally accepted as an independent when it came to a showdown, was looked upon by those who understand the interior mechanism of the Union county G. O. P. as one who could be depended upon to meet the organization half way on any reasonable proposition. He never stood out in the role of a simon pure obstructionist and he never stood out as the party-at-any-price type of public official.

For years past, in fact ever since he aspired to represent the county in the Senate it has been an open secret that the Republican leaders would rather have some one other than Senator Pierce in the upper house—some one who would fall in line. That fact was emphasized a few years ago when former Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, tried conclusions with the Senator in a primary battle at that point. On that occasion Senator Pierce had the organization forces fighting him. Popular legislation which he had introduced and which, for at Trenton had entrenched him with the rank and file of the voting populace and although he was without any kind of organized support he was chosen over Thompson and in spite of the machine. The fight did not embitter the Senator against those whom he knew wanted to defeat him—the recognized leaders in Republican county affairs. He was willing, and later acts proved this, to meet the organization men half way on any reasonable proposition. Of course he never has stood for dictation.

The question may be asked and with good reason—why has the break between the Senator and the organization forces developed into such a clean-cut, complete parting of the ways? Had the Senator any particular motive at this particular time in going absolutely contrary to the will of the majority of the party leaders in his own country? Here is another story. Senator Pierce was generally believed to be in line for some sort of recognition at the hands of Governor Edge (and he is highly probably that he may still be in line), and had aspirations for a judgeship. The particular appointment for which he was understood to be aspiring was to come through the retirement of one whose term expired a short time ago. Contrary to expectations the judge in question did not retire, and he was renamed by Governor Edge. Naturally the first thing Senator Pierce, then believing that there was to be a vacancy, set out to do was to get the indorsement of the Union county Assemblymen and others close to the Assemblymen and high up in the councils of the party. This indorsement, it was believed, would come as a matter of courtesy even though it was understood that the organization did not especially like the Pierce methods of dealing with politics and legislation. There was no indorsement forthcoming. There was a frigidity all along the line for the Senator. The county leaders gave him the coldest kind of a reception. In due time it became quite clear that with the G. O. P. organization forces in the county the Senator was persona non grata.

Of course, one might regard the subsequent actions of the Senator, the appointment of Woodruff and the recommendation of Crane's name to the Governor, as reprisals. But knowing Senator Pierce as Union county knows him, this is hardly a fair conclusion. He might have seen fit to at least lend an ear to the pleadings of the machine wing of his party if he had received some little encouragement from those higher up in the matter of the judgeship appointment. His friends—and they are, after all, the voters in the Democratic, the Republican and the Bull Moose parties who have the happy faculty of casting an independent vote on election day—hold that his record alone as a member of the senate, his fight for railroad grade crossings elimination, his bank stock tax bill, his battle for fair and equitable franchise tax law and, in short, his entire public work in the interest of popular legislation, should have earned him the support and co-operation of the party leaders, irrespective of whether they agreed with him in some of the things he has done and in some of the things he has tried to do as a member of the Legislature. On the same friendly hold that instead of standing aloof when there was a chance for recognizing the Senator, the party leaders should have seized the opportunity to co-operate with him in every way possible, for they—the great mass of independent voters in the county who have twice and thrice defeated candidates for the senate—consider Pierce to be one of the highest type of public officials ever sent to Trenton from Union county.

Pierce is going to have a real fight on his hands next fall. There is no getting away from the fact that if he seeks re-election the G. O. P. machine will fight him tooth and nail. At this very moment, perhaps, wires are being laid to force the Senator out of public life. He has given the party offense. He has balked. He has thwarted plans of planners. Of late he has been fraternizing with Everett Colby and others equally as progressive who want to see a new deal in Republican politics—county, State and nation. The Senator is riding his own trail, and instead of losing prestige, as some of his opponents might expect, he appears to be developing quite strength.

If he is a candidate for re-election next fall, and if he succeeds in winning despite the organization opposition which it now seems he is destined to encounter, he will be an important factor in the 1918 State Legislature. He will be an important factor because there are some very lucrative appointments to be made—judge of the Court of Common Pleas, County Prosecutor, judge of the Elizabeth District Court and one or two others. The question is already being asked, "What will he do?" Will he stand then as he does now and refuse to support any candidate he personally does not consider qualified for the office? Will he pit his judgment against the organization judgment, as he has done in the Woodruff and in the Crane cases? And if he does, then what?

In a short time there will be given Senator Pierce another opportunity to show whether or not he proposes to stand with or against the machine. The term of Former Judge William A. Coddington, of Plainfield, a member of the Union County Tax Board, will expire. Coddington is a Republican, but the law under which the board was created provides that the board be composed of not more than two members of any political party as the Democrats now have a majority it will be up to the Senator to recommend a Republican and change the political complexion of the commission. The machine wants a Plainfield man for the berth. In fact the machine insists that the berth go to a *Plainfield Re*publican. Senator Pierce, it is understood, thinks otherwise. If reports are true he will name a Summit Republican and furthermore he will do his own selecting.

Summed up, briefly, Senator Pierce is the biggest obstacle in the Republican organization in Union county has encountered in years, and if his friends are not overestimating his hold on the people he will prove that he is bigger than his party if there is to be an acid test at the polls next November.

Railroad Congestion Has Been Felt Here

The railroad congestion that is now causing trouble all over the country, and particularly in the East, is making itself felt in this city but not to an extent where matters are becoming serious. The greatest difficulty is really caused from the fact that laden cars consigned to Plainfield are held up for indefinite periods by the congestion in some other section.

In talking with a Record reporter yesterday, Peter Koehler, district agent for the C. R. R. of N. J., said that things were about normal as far as local conditions were concerned. Some difficulty is experienced in obtaining cars for outgoing products, but in most cases provisions are made in two or three days.

'77. Miss Kimball, who was secretary of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Society, died recently.

In the public life of the State and city there are many prominent members of the Plainfield High School Alumnae. Some of these are: Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, '80; the late Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, '72; Ex-city Judge William N. Runyon, who is now a member of the State Legislature; State Supervisor of Roads, Robert A. Meeker, '70; County Engineer Frank J. Hubbard, '87, a member of the Board of Education; R. Henry Depew, '95, president of the Citizen's Reform Movement, and Charles M. Dolliver, '96, formerly recorder of North Plainfield. The librarian at the Plainfield Public Library is Miss Florence M. Bowman, a graduate of Plainfield High School. Miss Emma L. Adams, her predecessor, is also a member of the alumnae and is engaged in philanthropic work in New York city. Miss Flora R. Petrie has charge of the library at the 57th street branch of the Y. M. C. A. in New York city.

Perhaps the most widely known of the graduates of the Plainfield High School is Franklin B. Wiley, '79, editor of the Ladies', Home Journal. Van Wyck Brooks, '04, is the author of the "Wine of the Puritans." Ethel Boardman, '88, is the person who contributes the fascinating designs in the Harper Bazaar, dotar so under the name of "Ethel Rose, Paris." Three of the most skillful physicians have diplomas from the high school: Norman H. Probasco, '94; Thomas D. Blair, '95, and Frank Wilbur Cornwell, '96. George L. Babcock and Andrew McLean Parker, of the classes of 1904 and 1874 respectively, have rendered financial assistance, the former donating the laboratory to the High School, and the latter presenting Parker Field to the city. Lieutenant-Colonel Tiermann N. Horn, '86, is stationed at Honolulu, and Lieutenant Frederick Tabor Van Anken, '03, of the navy, is in Cuba. The only colored college graduate among the alumni has made a mark for herself. Miss Anna Broadnax, '94, Oberlin '98, was valedictorian of her class and is now teaching in a college at Wilmington, Delaware.

Miss Adele Hope Kirby, '98, assistant treasurer of the Plainfield Trust Company, enjoys the unique distinction of being one of the few women of the United States to hold such a responsible position in a banking institution. Cyril Brown, '03, is one of the many correspondents at the German front. Ferdinand Titsworth, a graduate of Plainfield High School and of Alfred University, is now circulation manager of Scribner's Magazine.

Perhaps, one of the best known graduates of the Plainfield High School is William D. Murray, '75. Mr. Murray is an author, a lawyer, a Sunday-school superintendent and president of the local branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. He is probably more widely known by the present generation of High School students than any other member of the alumnae association; as he very often occupies the lecture platform during chapel exercises.

EAST AND WEST.

The debate which was arranged some time ago between the representatives of the West End Community Centre and the East End Civic Association and which was postponed at the time, has been scheduled to take place on Monday evening of next week. Unless some announcement is made to the contrary between now and Monday, local citizens will have an opportunity of hearing the merits of the West End contrasted with those of the East End. The West End representatives will be City-Clerk John J. Carroll, W. J. Boyd and Thomas Vail, while the East End defense will be made up of Robert Newton Crane, Councilman Charles S. Sminck and the Rev. Edward S. Ralston.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

The disastrous fire in the rear of my store Sunday afternoon did not affect the business part. Neither fire nor water reached the front section of the store.

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the efficient work of the police and fire departments. The blaze was handled in a faultless manner and the excellent work of the firemen probably checked its spread to greater proportions.

Close Night School for Present Term

Night school sessions at the Plainfield High School were ended on Thursday evening of last week and will not be resumed until next September or October. Throughout the State, the night sessions have been discontinued for the present year, the action taken being due in a great measure to sickness and falling off in attendance.

According to those in charge of the night school work, the present conflict in Europe has had considerable effect on the attendance. A careful scrutiny of the roll-book during the past few months reveals the fact that Southern Europe has had a larger representation than Northern Europe. Most of the men and women who heretofore availed themselves of the opportunity of attending the night school classes have grasped the chance to work overtime in the shops and have allowed their study to become neglected. However, there was at one time an attendance of one hundred and fifty pupils at the evening school. Mrs. Sarah Wardner, the principal, has been compiling her report for the year and is of the opinion that much good has been accomplished by the sessions.

The teaching staff numbered seven, including Mrs. Wardner. There were two classes for men, the instructors being A. C. Hawkins, principal of the Watchung School, and Mr. O'Neill, of Dunellen. It is planned to resume the night school in the fall and it is hoped that conditions at that time will be such as will enable the work to go on without hindrance. The closing exercises last week were simple and a large percentage of those attending the school intimated that they fully intended availing themselves of the opportunity to resume study when the evening school is reopened.

Chandler Elected to Executive Board

Declaring its opposition to any plan to admit children or teachers to the public schools of the State who have not been vaccinated the New Jersey Association of Health Officers at its meeting in Trenton Saturday afternoon adopted a resolution placing the organization on record against House Bill No. 65, which embodies the idea. The measure has been introduced by Assemblyman Harry D. Johnson, of Newark. President Edsall, of the association, declared the bill to be "pernicious."

A spirited contest for president for the ensuing year of the organization enlivened the closing session of the health officers' convention. W. F. Willsey, of Perth Amboy, defeating Dr. Charles V. Craster, of Newark; James E. Brook, of Glen Ridge, was chosen vice president unanimously, and C. H. Wells, of Montclair, secretary-treasurer. The new executive board will be composed of L. J. Richards, Elizabeth; John Hall, East Orange; T. J. Dufficld, Summit; John W. Ryan, Passaic; Dr. Charles V. Craster, Newark; N. J. Randolph Chandler, Plainfield, and T. Dudley Ballinger, Orange.

A number of bills recommended by the legislative committee to be introduced at the present session were approved, including one authorizing local boards of health to license midwives. At the present time this is done by the State Board of Medical Examiners. Considerable discussion was provoked by this recommendation, Dr. Frank H. Edsall, of Jersey City, retiring president of the association, stating the measure is needed. He said midwives in Jersey City have been found to be engaging in very reprehensible practices. The bill will apply to all municipalities. A bill to permit the sale of colored oleomargerine was indorsed, as was another to broaden the powers of local boards of health.

A pronounced law providing for a medical examination for food handlers of all kinds, including soda fountain clerks, and another providing that the Commissioner of Labor must not license a bakery or ice cream factory until the local board of health gives its approval, were both approved by the health officers. Another bill calling for the making of ice cream out of cream that has been pasteurized was also indorsed.

PETER FLOERSCH REMOVES TO NEW AMBOY HOSTELRY.

Peter Floersch, who so successfully conducted the Queen City Hotel during the past eight years, has removed with his family to the New Packer House, which he will conduct in Perth Amboy.

The New Packer House will be formally opened next Thursday, when the Chamber of Commerce of Perth Amboy will hold its annual banquet. Mr. Floersch will hold a banquet for his many friends in this city and in Perth Amboy on March 6 and elaborate preparations are now being made for the affair. While the bar at the Queen City will be kept open until next Thursday, the closing night for the hotel was Saturday. All during the evening, the dining room was crowded with friends of the Floersch family who had called to say farewell, and to wish Mr. Floersch continued success.

COLE PASSES TEST.

Clifford E. Cole, of the undertaking firm of High & Cole, of this city, was one of the nine successful candidates who took the undertakers' and embalmers' examinations held in Newark on January 21. There were twenty-two candidates but only nine successfully passed the test. For the twelfth consecutive time, John F. Martin, of Elizabeth, was elected secretary of the State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers at their annual meeting held in Atlantic City during the past week.

WILL BE AT HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Perdiland Lewis Titsworth, who were recently married here, will be "at home" to their many friends after Thursday of the coming week. Mr. and Mrs. Titsworth have taken up their residence at 1934 University avenue, New York city. Mrs. Titsworth is circulation manager of Scribner's Magazine.

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph of Richer Tone That You Can Play

Tonal richness and fidelity distinguish the Vocalion. Deep voices of the orchestra that the talking machine intones but dully, high notes of the human voice that have sounded so thinly from your records—these and all the tonal beauties with which music is enriched, the Aeolian-Vocalion re-voices undimmed in splendor, unchanged in subtlest quality.

AND THE WONDERFUL

GRADUOLA

This remarkable invention, second in importance only to the invention of the phonograph itself, has made the Vocalion truly a musical marvel. Through the delicate tone-control which this ingenious device provides, you literally may sing with the voices of the greatest artists—play with the skill and technique of the greatest instrumentalists.

All Models of the Vocalion Are Sold on Liberal Charge Terms

The Aeolian-Vocalion is on exhibition and sale, in New York, only at Aeolian Hall. Whether or not you are a possible purchaser, you are cordially invited to hear the instrument demonstrated.

Besler Pledges Aic of Jersey Railroad

In the event of this country getting into war with a foreign power a great deal of the successful defense of strategic points would depend in large part on the proper co-operation between the military authorities and the railroads. William G. Besler, of this city, as president of the road, represented the Central Railroad of New Jersey at a meeting in New York several days ago when the railroads of the entire country pledged themselves to the support of the Government in the event of a break with Germany, and assured the administration at Washington that the roads would give earnest co-operation with the National Council of Defense appointed by President Wilson.

This action, taken at a special meeting of the executive committee of the American Railway Association, was unanimous, and was attended by patriotic speeches from several prominent heads of systems, including Mr. Besler.

Fourteen members were added to the special committee to work with the military authorities so as to constitute a committee of eighteen members to represent the work which the National Council for Defense has in hand and which will be known as the Special Committee on National Defense of the American Railway Association. The committee was made up to be representative of the four army districts. As a member of the committee and representing the Department of the East, Mr. Besler, in case of war, would become an important figure in this section of the country. The committee will have complete charge of all mobilization arrangements under the supervision of the military authorities. The committee will direct also the movements of food, coal and other supplies in national emergencies arising out of the break with Germany.

Democrats Plan to Stage 'Come-Back'

For the first time since November, the Democratic party poked its head above the ground and showed signs of life this past week. It announces to the "faithful" that it is not dead, but slumbering; that it is regaining consciousness—recovering from the effects of the tremendous wallop received at the last general election, and as proof it talks of the possibilities of Ten Eyck R. Beardsley for State Senator and William W. Schalitz for sheriff.

Beardsley, whose home is in Fanwood, was a candidate for Assembly in 1914. He is a New York lawyer and has been active in the interest of the party in his home town and in Plainfield. Schalitz is engaged in the butcher business in Elizabeth. He is one of the most popular members of the Elizabeth Lodge of Elks, and while never recognized as an out-and-out party man, is believed by his friends to have sufficient Democratic tendencies to make him an acceptable candidates.

The Democrats seen an opportunity this fall of coming back. They, judging from the gossip surrounding the possible candidacies of Beardsley and Schalitz, believe capital can be made of the upsets which they declare have resulted from the free-holder probe and the break between the Republican organization and State Senator Carlton B. Pierce. They would like to concentrate upon an up-county Democrat for State Senator and an Elizabeth man for sheriff. How far the concentration will succeed, if concentration is tried, is a question which will not be answered until the late summer or early fall. In the past, under the name of a ticket geographically balanced, mobilization plans have failed, and failed miserably. The party has always had enough aspirants for county offices in Elizabeth to knock out of kilter the entire topography of what might have been considered a well-balanced ticket.

That night," said one of the biggest undertakers in a western New Jersey town, "I knew that the wooden box was already half full of water. At that time I didn't know about the Norwalk Vault. PLAINFIELD RECORD

Volume I—No. 19. PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1917. Subscription—Single Copies, 5 Cents; $2.00 a Year.

Major Selects Troopers For Federal Duty

Lieutenant Edwin C. Feigenspan, of the Essex Troop, acting on behalf of Major Hobart B. Brown, of the First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry, this morning furnished the Plainfield Record with the list of Troop D guardsmen picked to make up this city's portion of the provisional troop to participate in the inaugural demonstration at Washington Monday. Lieut. Feigenspan, who has been assigned to duty on Governor Edge's staff, gave out the following list:

Acting Captain..Daniel Runkle
Lieutenant.....J. M. Charles
Sergeants.....John F. Sickler, Joseph Van Deventer, James Fleming, Louis Alberts
Corporals.....Donald Fullerton, Fred Cady, Ferdinand Collins, Hugh Cook
Cooks.....Cornelius Murray and John Logan
Saddler.....Frank Updike
Privates.....Joseph Gallagher, John T. Caulfield, George Hummel, Charles McCauley, Joseph Nelson, Leo Logan, James Welsh, Wayne Brown, Frederick Stevenson

Attendance is optional with several others.

The Plainfield soldiers have been ordered to report at the Newark armory, together with the other members of the provisional troop, promptly at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Wagons and equipment will be packed at that time and the departure for Washington will be made *as soon as the provisions can be got*ten into shape.

It is expected that the Jersey militiamen will arrive in Washington early Monday morning and their train will be run onto a siding in the New York avenue yards. Space will be allotted them nearby for the picket line and horses will be detrained immediately. First Lieutenant Daniel Runkle and Second Lieutenant J. M. Charles will be the only two members of the local outfit's personnel in the troop and they will assume command of their division.

The service uniform of olive drab will be worn and the service performed by the men on this occasion will be without pay. The movement of the troops to and from Washington will be utilized as an opportunity for further training and gaining experience in troop movement.

Adjutant General Barber announced this morning that the Jersey train would be made up completely, accommodating all the elements of the organizations. Tourist sleeping cars will be provided, thus insuring a comfortable night's rest for the distance to be traveled. The military cooks will provide regularly cooked meal en route, which will be served hot without regard to the location of trains and entirely independent of restaurants and eating houses.

Both the box lunch and the day coach sleeping arrangement have been discussed with for the trip as pre-judicial to efficiency on duty of this character.

The guardsmen will take part in the inaugural parade in the morning and will have the afternoon to themselves for sight-seeing. It is expected that the return trip will start at about midnight Monday, the trip culminating at the Newark armory about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Governor Edge and his staff will participate and the executive will ride at the head of the State troops. Major Hobart B. Brown, of the First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry, who will command the Jersey units, will probably be the youngest officer occupying an official station of this character.

P.H.S. Cadet Corps to Be Reorganized?

Patriotism has taken a big grip on Plainfielders, as was evidenced by the thousands that attended the mass meeting Tuesday night, and men, women and children have signified their intention of doing anything and everything possible to help in case of a national emergency. One of the most recent moves of this sort is the attempt on the part of a number of students at the Plainfield High School to have the cadet corps that flourished around 900 reorganized.

While up to the present time the idea has not arrived beyond the point of enthusiastic discussion it will not be a surprise to find that Principal Lindsey Rest is approached on the subject in the near future, and if that comes about the Board of Education will also be asked to lend assistance.

Shortly before 1900 every boy in the school joined together and formed a corps numbering about 120 under the direction of A. B. Meredith, now assistant commissioner of schools but then a member of the local High School staff. The boys were formed into three companies, each with their own officers, and held daily drills. Branched Fosgate, Linden Bridgeman and Hervey Doane were prominent officers at various times. The late James D. McNab was one of the instructors prominently identified with the work.

Springfield rifles were obtained from the Government and each member of the corps purchased his own uniform. At various times militia and regular army officers made inspections, these events being held at the corner of Stelle and Central avenues.

After Mr. Meredith resigned as active head and adviser he was succeeded by Mr. McNab. During 1902-3 the corps was disbanded and while the members kept their uniforms the rifles were placed in the attic of the High School, where they now are.

In talking with a Record reporter Mr. Best expressed himself as not being over-enthusiastic about the idea of reorganizing the corps, although he said he was not directly opposed to it. As yet he has not been approached on the subject and he did not say whether or not he would sanction such a move.

"The value of an organization is not urgent with the present system we have," Mr. Best said when asked if he thought it did any real good to have daily drills.

"The amount of military knowledge, such as the manual of arms and drills, may be learned easily by the average boy himself."

The present system Mr. Best referred to is a period of gymnastic exercise two days each week under the direction of a physical director.

First Session for Juveniles in City Court

As was suggested editorially by the Record two weeks ago a juvenile court session was inaugurated last Saturday morning by City Judge William G. DeMeza and will hereafter be a permanent feature of city court routine. Judge DeMeza readily indorsed the suggestion when approached by a Record representative and accepted it as the best solution to a problem he has been studying during the five years he has occupied the bench.

Saturday morning has been selected as the most appropriate time for holding juvenile sessions principally because of the fact that a majority of the offenders are schoolboys and to arraign them on other mornings would necessitate their remaining away from their classes. Following the disposition of the numerous cases on the blotter last Saturday Judge DeMeza cleared the courtroom of the usual quota of curious spectators and called the youthful offenders to the courtroom individually. He had previously arranged to have Probation Officer Irwin on hand and in the future he will be present each Saturday morning to co-operate with the city judge in the disposition of such cases.

Another feature established last Saturday morning is the practise of having both the fathers and mothers of young prisoners in court when they are arraigned. Heretofore it has been customary to notify the parents only in extreme cases but in the future no juvenile will be arraigned until his parents are in court. Judge DeMeza notified the police department from the bench of his intention to bring the cases to the personal attention of the parents and gave instructions to have mothers and fathers notified as soon as arrests are made in the future and to order the parents to court the mornings of trial.

Owing to the large number of cases brought to the city court recently the segregation of juveniles will also serve to facilitate the disposition of other cases. Frequently of late it has required the attention of the city judge during the greater portion of the morning to clear the docket and sometimes the better part of a day is consumed in trial work.

Judge DeMeza has always made a practise of devoting considerable time to young offenders and his co-operation with the probation officer and the parents has been the means of bringing many a wayword youth back to the straight and narrow path. Probation Officer Irwin has also spent much time in the investigation of local juvenile cases of late and the special juvenile court Saturday mornings affords him an opportunity to acquaint himself with the facts surrounding arrests as brought out during trials.

Pension Fund Acquired; New System Starts

Having surpassed their $5,000,000 goal those interested in raising this sum for the Episcopal Church clerical pension fund closed their year's work Wednesday. It is understood that the total may reach $6,000,000. The Rev. Dr. E. Vicars Stevenson, of the Grace Episcopal church, this city, has had charge of the final gathering in the Central New Jersey *District and to him must be accord*ed a large share of the credit for the generous response in this territory.

Some of the money pledged will be payable in five annual installments. This means a loss in interest of about $325,000, and on Friday last it was announced that the Carnegie Corporation will make good this deficiency.

The Presbyterian Church in the United States has a little more than $3,000,000 placed toward a pension fund of $10,000,000, and the Methodist Church is engaged in raising a like fund of $15,000,000. All of these churches have had pension or relief funds, but they have been regarded as inadequate. The Presbyterian Ministers' Fund is the oldest life insurance institution or association in America, and it has the honor of having loaned all of its funds during the Revolution for the support of the patriotic cause.

It is a mistake to suppose that the $5,000,000 which the Episcopal Church will now have in to be kept at interest for all time and the interest be used as pension money. Beginning yesterday every parish is to pay each year to the corporation known as the Church Pension Fund 7½ per cent. of its rector's annual salary. For instance, if this salary is $2,000 the sum which it will give each year will be $150. Actuaries have ascertained that if this is done every year in behalf of a clergyman ordained in early life a sufficient pension will thus be provided for him when he is 68 years old, or earlier in case of his disability. This pension is to be at least $600 a year. Widows will receive half as much.

But these payments by the parishes have not been made heretofore, consequently no provision has been made for the money wherewith to meet this accrued liability the $5,000,000 has been raised. This large sum will all be paid out in the course of fifteen or twenty years to the rectors now serving the church. In other words it has been raised as a sinking fund, so-called; it will gradually disappear, and then the only source of income for the Church Pension Fund will be the annual payments by are parishes. A clergyman's salary is a local charge against a church and can be collected by legal proceedings, as a matter of fact it is always paid, sooner or later. When a clergyman hereafter is called to a church perhaps the contract will be that so much salary shall be paid to him: also 7½ per cent. of the salary shall be contributed each year to the Church Pension Fund for his benefit. Thus the payment of this pension money will rest upon the parish as a legal obligation.

Crane Takes Oath; Orders Many Changes

J. Henry Crane appeared before County Clerk William B. Martin at Elizabeth yesterday and took the oath of office as judge of the Plainfield district court. Assemblyman William N. Runyon accompanied him to the county seat. He will sit for the first time next Thursday for the trial of any jury cases that may be on the docket. Although no definite program has been mapped out as yet the Plainfield Bar Association will probably take charge of some fitting observance for the morning when Judge Walter L. Hetfield turns over the gavel to his successor. Judge Hetfield will in the future devote his entire attention to his private practise.

Judge Crane's entrance into office will be marked by the general housecleaning which has been advocated by the Record for two months past. He has drawn up a set of court regulations designed primarily to remedy present conditions and he has pledged his efforts to effect a general reorganization. Other members of the Plainfield Bar who practise in this court are anxiously awaiting results and all eyes are turned to the new incumbent.

One of the most radical changes ordered by Judge Crane is a definite set of office hours for District Court Clerk Horace Adams. These rules require the clerk's office to be kept open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 12 noon and from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 4 o'clock, except on Saturdays, when the hours will be from 9 o'clock until 12 o'clock in the morning.

The new judge is determined to see that the clerk lives up to this schedule and that the public is given these hours for the transaction of whatever business it may have with the clerk. One of the clauses in the new set of rules referring to the clerk reads as follows: "The clerk shall take from 12 to 1 o'clock at noon for lunch, and no longer, and must not leave his office during hours without permission of the court."

The regulations adopted by Judge Crane are patterned to some extent after the well conducted district court of Judge Abe David in Elizabeth and a complete resumé of the rules follows:

1. The Clerk will attend to the issuing of process and to the dispatch of business daily, except Saturdays, from 9 o'clock in the morning to 12 o'clock m., and from 1 o'clock p. m. to 4 o'clock p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 o'clock a. m. to 12 o'clock m.

2. The Court will sit for the trial of causes on Wednesday and Thursday of each week, at 10 a. m. Jury cases only will be tried on Thursdays.

3. Petitions and orders, whether for discovery or any other purpose, shall be filed with the clerk of the Court in one day after the signing of the order, and certified copies only may be served upon the defendant or other party named therein. Orders

Planning War Against "Drys"

Determined to get a strangle hold on the situation before it passes out of reach the liquor license holders of Plainfield have effected a tentative program for an organized fight against the "dry" faction, which has asserted its strength locally. With prohibition coming to the fore with more emphasis each day the saloonmen and wholesale distributors of liquor have awakened to a realization of their peril and steps have already been taken to conduct periodic motion picture entertainments and lectures in behalf of their cause.

A number of noted speakers have been banded together by the "wet" forces of the nation and the Plainfield "anti prox" will be allotted the service of one occasionally. One of the proposed moves is to run films in local theatres depicting the conditions in "dry" States. An attempt will be made to show how liquor is smuggled into States where it is officially barred and statistics will be presented to show the effect prohibition has had on humanity.

Up to the present time the preliminary details of the city campaign has been done under cover, the first gun of the campaign having been fired several weeks ago when a meeting was held in the auditorium of Columbus Club. The program will be arranged in conjunction with the national forces and it will be as practical as possible.

The wholesale and retail license holders of Plainfield are: Michael F. Watson, Godfrey J. Weinman, Ellsworth C. Westcott, John J. Sullivan, Henry F. Windham, John A. Staats, Eastern Bottling Company, Frank Linke and George R. Westcott.

Troop D Boy Now in France

Lyman Hibbard, of 144 East Seventh street, is now "somewhere in France." Since he left his home in this city late in November for Europe the confusion attendant upon the herculean struggle has caused but one letter to easily reach his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, and that contained but a meagre description of his activities since leaving here.

Mr. Hibbard wrote the letter just after he had completed a period of training and was about to depart for the Argon region with an ambulance unit. That section of the French front taken in by the Argon district has been and still is the scene of some of the most desperate fighting of the entire conflict, and it is quite probable that Mr. Hibbard has seen it at its height.

A member of Troop D during its trip to the border last summer, Mr. Hibbard returned home too late to resume his studies at Yale and decided to sail for Europe with a corps of college men as volunteer ambulance drivers. He has not given up his rights as an American citizen.

NATIONAL SPECIAL AID IN NEED OF EQUIPMENT.

The National Special Aid Society, which is represented at the present time in making supplies for the base hospital on the Mexican border, is in need of chairs, tables and machines with which to continue its work at the new headquarters on East Front street.

Anyone wishing to lend these much needed articles to the National Special Aid Society is asked to inform Mrs. R. S. Rowland, who may be reached by telephone, 981.

LECTURED HERE.

Douglas Wardrope, of the editorial staff of the "Aero Age," a magazine devoted to the art of aeroplaning, delivered an interesting lecture on "Modern Aeroplanes" in the auditorium of the Washington School last evening. The talk was illustrated and was enjoyed by a large and interested audience.

First Call for Elks' Big Show

The first rehearsal for the new opera, "The Land of Mystery," which will be presented by Plainfield Lodge, 885, B. P. O. E., in the Plainfield Theatre on April 10, 11 and 12, will be held on Monday evening in the Elks' clubhouse on Watchung avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Skilling, who so successfully conducted last year's operetta, "The Mystic Rose," will direct the new opera and have already taken up their residence in this city, having arrived yesterday.

"The Land of Mystery" is a delightful production in three acts and requires a cast of sixteen principals and a chorus of two hundred. As was the cast last year, there will be a children's part and this will come in between the second and third acts and not at the conclusion of the performance as was done last year. The "Ballet of the Fairies" will be the title of the children's part and it is desired that the students of the Plainfield and North Plainfield schools, between the ages of seven *and fifteen years, will report for re*hearsal at a date to be announced later.

Invitations to assist in the production have been extended to those who took part last year, to the members of the Elks and their families and friends, and it is the desire of those in charge of the affair to cordially invite, through this medium, all those who will assist in the production. All those desiring to assist are requested to be on hand on Monday evening. The patronesses for the affair are: Mrs. C. A. Crist, Mrs. E. J. Harding, Jr., Mrs. W. R. Causbrook, Mrs. A. E. Force, Mrs. William Mulvey, Mrs. Edward Ferguson, Mrs. P. Sandford, Mrs. W. Apgar, Mrs. G. R. Westcott, Mrs. Robert Gow, Mrs. C. P. Stout, Mrs. W. H. Pope, Mrs. A. F. La Rock and Mrs. C. W. Runyon. The committee in charge of the affair is as follows: William C. Mulvey, chairman; William R. Causbrook, secretary-treasurer; Leroy Woodhull, Edward Starker, Albert F. La Rock.

Authorize Bond Issue for Armory

As was predicted exclusively in the Record last week the Union County Board of Freeholders met yesterday afternoon and authorized the issuance of $20,000 worth of bonds to raise the $20,000 needed for the purchase of land in Plainfield for a new National Guard armory. In his communication to the Board, County Collector Leavitt suggested the issuance of $20,000 worth of bonds at four per cent. for this purpose. It was the duty of the county collector to see that money was provided for the purchase of this land.

Captain Charles Peterson, of Company K, accepts the county appropriation as an indication that the State Military Board has approved the local committee's action in the selection of the Boise property at from 225 to 233 East Front street as the site for the new armory. While he has not been officially notified of such action Adjutant General Barber would not have authorized the county clerk to ask for the appropriation unless he was reasonably sure that the site was the one favored by the State Military Board. The amount, $20,000, is what has been asked by the owners of this tract of land and it is believed that the State will take over the title immediately.

Every effort is now being bent to induce the Common Council to appropriate $5,000. At the present time the State appropriation of $25,000 and the county's $20,000 are available but the total is not sufficient to guarantee a creditable structure.

City Pays Big Income Taxes

Income tax reports for 1916 under *the law had to be filed before mid*night last night and the internal revenue office of the Fifth New Jersey District at Newark was nearly swamped with mail during the last few days. There is no way in which even an approximate figure may be placed on the amount contributed by Plainfield individuals or corporations, but as estimate of $100,000 would not be wrong.

Last year the collections from the fifth District were something over $20,000,000 and a big boost in that figure is certain this year owing to the war prosperity. Last year there were about 20,000 individuals who paid income taxes and this number, it is expected, will be fifty per cent. more this year.

Plainfield is represented in large part by individuals who pay taxes, because there are few corporations in the city capitalized for over $75,000. Although everyone having charter duties to report only those capitalized for over that amount have to pay taxes.

B.P.O.E. Nominates Officers for 1917

At the Wednesday night meeting of Plainfield Lodge, 885, B. P. O. E., the following nominations for officers for the coming year were made: Exalted Ruler, Francis J. Blatz; esteemed leading knight, Chalmers L. Crist; esteemed loyal knight, Edward J. Harding; treasurer, Frederick R. Haynes; tiler, Edward C. Searing; trustees for three years, Samuel P. T. Wilbur. At the next session it will be necessary to hold an election at which time nominations must be made for the offices of secretary, lecturing knight and delegates to the Grand Lodge and State Association. Owing to pressure of other duties, William B. Townsend will be unable to assume the work of secretary again and it is with much regret that his request that he be released from the office is to be complied with.

The local lodge will pay a fraternal visit to the Newark lodge on Tuesday, March 20, when the local officers will perform the initiatory work for the Essex county Elks. Exalted Ruler Walter S. Marder has appointed the following committee to assist with the arrangements for this visit: John Cose, Marcus Hoyt, James Coleman, Harry Bilhim, R. J. Harrigan, H. Van Emburgh and Charles Ainsworth. The local Elks plan to give Newark a surprise and it is the intention to have a representation of at least five hundred on the special train which will run over the New Jersey Central on March 20.

"School Visit" Week March 12

Urging closer co-operation between parents and the schools, Commissioner Calvin N. Kendall has recommended that the period from Monday, March 12, to Friday, March 16, be observed throughout the State as "Visit-the-Schools Week."

"Co-operation between homes and schools is necessary," said Mr. Kendall. "It is well for parents to know the teachers of their children and the teachers to know the parents of their pupils, so far as the latter may be practicable. If parents visit schools and become acquainted even casually with teachers more cordial relations are likely to exist.

"Moreover, it is a good thing for the public to know what the schools are doing. One of the best means of gaining this information is to visit schools and seek the children at work with the teacher. A concerted effort throughout the State to make "Visit-the-Schools Week" a success will cause many persons to visit schools who otherwise would not do so. There will be, in consequence, a better understanding of the schools and a greater interest in public education, the most important enterprise in which the State is engaged."

Saurer Employes to Give Minstrel

A minstrel show for the benefit of the International Motor Company Band will be presented in the Plainfield High School auditorium on Tuesday evening and from present indications this show will eclipse anything ever before attempted in local minstreldom. Jimmy Hallard has been managing the production.

Solos will be rendered by Jimmy Jamieson the Scotch tenor; Patrick J. Powers, J. Hitchin and C. G. Hunt. There will be eight ruskers, including Bernard Colvin, L. Barrett, T. Ricketts, H. Lunger, A. Schoig and others. Musical sketches and comic playlets are promised to add to the evening's enjoyment. Fancy dancing will be a feature of the presentation. "Strong-man" feats and tumbling will be demonstrated by Hawaiian, a local athlete.

A bit of humor will be offered by that inimitable pair, "Bessie Bones" and "Tessie Tambo." "Starch" and "Starch" will do a little dancing, demonstrating the latest steps and inventing one or two new ones as they go along.

ELKS VS. PARKS.

The annual bowling series between the Park Club and the Elks is still on the boards. The first three games were rolled at the Elks' Club in January and the "Bills" captured two games. On Tuesday evening, the second section of the series will be run off at the Park Club.

OLDEST VELIE CAR IS STILL RUNNING

First Motor Car Made By Big Factory Now In Service In Illinois.

According to a letter received from the factory by the McDonald-Green Co., local distributors for the Velie automobile, the first Velie car made has been located and was found to be in good condition and still in use.

The discovery came in the following fashion. A few months ago W. L. Velie, president of the Velie Motors Corporation, decided that it would be a good thing for the factory to find out what had become of the first automobile built by them, so the orders went out to find the car.

After a long search it was finally located in the service of H. G. Ructer, a commission merchant at Peoria, Ill. It was still fitted with its original open, five-passenger body and covered with its original coat of bright red paint and answered to the name of Maude.

Although badly out of style as to body and lines, it is rather interesting to note that this first Velie car contains a high speed, four cylinder motor, three quarter elliptic rear springs, genuine honeycomb radiator and other specifications which have since been recognized as necessary to modern motor car construction.

Mr. Ructer stated that he came into possession of the car in 1909 and did not know how far it had been driven before that time. Since his purchase of it he has driven it constantly with the exception of three months when he was away. He declared that the machine was in good running condition and giving thorough satisfaction.

for discovery shall be served two days before the day of examination named therein, and such service shall be personal.

4. Applications for new trials, or for rules to show cause, shall be made on two days' notice to the opposing parties, stating the grounds of the application, and if affidavits are to be used, copies thereof must be served with notice, and counter affidavits may be used at the hearing if served on the appellant before the hearing.

5. The Court may upon the return day of the rule hear witnesses on oral examination.

6. In all cases where surety is required on any bond or recognizance, the surety shall be a freeholder and resident of the county of Union, unless such surety be a corporation.

7. Payment of money into Court, under the one hundred and fifty-fifth section of the District Court act, may be made at any time, prior to the trial.

8. The plaintiff shall first open his case to the Court or jury, and the defendant shall then state, in a general way, the nature of the defence to be made in the cause.

Judge Crane has issued the following instructions to Clerk Adams:

Hours.

The Clerk's office shall be kept open from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. daily, except on Saturdays. On Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 12 m.

The Clerk shall take from 12 m. to 1 p. m. for lunch and no longer, and must not leave his office during hours, without the permission of the Court.

Accounts.

The Clerk shall keep true and accurate accounts in the books provided and designated by the Court.

All accounts with the City must be settled on or before the tenth day of the succeeding month.

The Clerk shall take monthly from the sergeant at arms or the constable acting for the Court, a full statement of all papers served by him, giving the names of each case and the fees for each service, and shall check the same up from his records; and if found correct, shall pay the sergeant at arms or the constable the amount due him, taking from him, the statement duly receipted as his voucher for said payment.

Accounts with the sergeant at arms or constable acting for the Court, must be settled on or about the tenth day of the succeeding month.

Attorneys.

The Clerk may allow attorneys to run monthly accounts if he so desires, but must insist that all accounts be settled on the first day of each month and upon failure so to do, no further credit shall be extended.

The Clerk shall not leave his office to collect any accounts from attorneys or others.

In any case, in which the Court shall reserve decision, the Clerk shall, upon the Court filing its decision in the case, immediately notify the attorneys for the plaintiff and defendant, that a decision has been filed.

Calling the List.

The Clerk shall start calling the list promptly at 10 a. m. on court days, and shall occupy the desk in front of the Judge's bench, and while calling the list, the door between the Clerk's office and the Court Room shall be closed.

POLITICS IN BOROUGH.

Judd Stewart and Richard C. Campbell resigned as members of the North Plainfield Board of Education at its meeting held on Monday night. In brief communications to the Board both men asked that their resignations be immediately acted upon and after expressing regret at having them leave, their resignations were accepted. Mr. Campbell gave his cause for resigning as "good and sufficient reasons" but Mr. Stewart in an explanatory letter, stated that petty politics caused him to retire. Opposition to the payment of a salary to the Tax Collector for acting as custodian of school funds had caused, he said, a move to prevent him from being re-elected and he rather leave the board than continue the controversy.

LIQUOR DEBATE.

A debate will be held tonight by Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., in its lodge rooms on the liquor question. There will be arguments presented both pro and con and a lively discussion is sure to ensue. Beginning with the meeting on April 6 the lodge will hold its meetings in K. of P. hall on Front street.

TICKETS ON SALE.

Tickets have been placed on sale for the comic entertainment, "The Hoodoo," which will be presented by the young women of the Chi Gamma Chi organization in the borough on March 19. A rehearsal of the cast was held last evening.

"TICKLING" COSTS GIRLS' FIVE GAME.

"Won by a tickle" is a new basketball phrase. New Brunswick High School girls declare that they were beaten by the North Plainfield High School girls' team at New Brunswick yesterday by a score of 18 to 9 only because, whenever they were about to shoot a basket the Plainfield girls tickled them and made them drop the ball.

Nothing could be found in the rules about tickling. Anyway, it's a new alibi.—N. Y. American.

Dr. Carroll's Records Show Big Increase

The year book of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, just issued by Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this city, gives the war, which has prompted people to think, credit for the big increase in church memberships last year. The net increase for the year in church members was 717,000. This was a gain of 204,000 over the increase for 1915, according to figures made public by Dr. Carroll, one of the secretaries of the Federal Council.

The year book of the council, which is edited by Dr. Carroll, will show that the great Christian bodies, Roman Catholic, Protestant and Eastern Orthodox, in 1916 had an aggregate of more than forty million communicants or members.

In 1880 the total religious strength in the United States was 20,618,000. In the twenty-six years following the net increase has been 19,399,000, or ninety-four per cent, while the gain in the population of the country has been about 39,000,000, or sixty-one per cent.

Of the gains last year about 216,000 according to Dr. Carroll, were Roman Catholic and about 500,000 of the Protestant bodies. To "Billy" Sunday is given credit for a big per cent of the increased membership of Protestant churches. Of these new members 136,000 are credited to the Methodists, 132,000 to the Baptists and upward of 79,000 to the Presbyterian and Reformed group. The Episcopal Church is credited with a gain of 27,000 and the Luthern bodies with 20,000.

The thirty constituted bodies of the Federal Council included a total of 17,996,000 communicants, which is a gain for 1916 of about 254,000.

According to Dr. Carroll, there was a gain of 117 church buildings in 1916. In the previous year there was a net loss.

The year shows a gain in clergymen of 2,643, which is nearly double the gain in 1915. The largest gain is reported by the Roman Catholic Church, this being 478 priests. The Baptists added 365 and the Lutherans 159.

The churches of this country, Dr. Carroll says, have not suffered financially from the European war or from the increased cost of living. The churches have given freely to the war afflicted populations of Europe and Asia, and yet maintained their own regular evangelistic, missionary, benevolent and educational work with undiminished force.

In his book Dr. Carroll presents a chapter, indicating the distribution of communicants and population of the chief communions of Protestantism of the world. The Anglican communion has an estimated population of 26,758,000, the Baptist of 21,000,000, the Congregationalists of 4,355,000, the Lutherans of 10,500,000 the Methodists of 32,418,000, and the Presbyterian and Reformed of 30,800,000.

300TH PERFORMANCE OF THE HIP "BIG SHOW."

Charles Dillingham's gorgeous pageant, "The Big Show," will celebrated its 300th presentation at the Hippodrome on Tuesday evening of this week. In reaching the third century in its record-making run, this three-stage spectacle which now offers Annette Kellermann and a sensational aquatic feature in addition to all its other wonders, outlives all the other musical productions in town and establishes the longest engagement of the year. And with this enviable record to its credit, the big Hippodrome entertainment with its variety of amusement seems to be at the very height of its prosperity. While Miss Kellermann has introduced a charming new divertissement, all the previous features, including the famous ice skaters in "The Merry Dell," the 400 minstrels, the song revues, the circus novelties and the, varieties retain their great popularity. Matinees are given daily.

THE "13TH CHAIR."

It is not so much the dagger you see before you when a stage light hits the ceiling at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, New York, as the piercing interest of the play as a whole that makes "The Thirteenth Chair" gripping from the first curtain to the last. Bayard Veiller's melodrama, made from Will Irwin's stories concerning "spiritualistic manifestations," is by far the most interesting play of the season.

First of all, novelty is found in a "medium" who formed a "circle" in the home of an apparently wealthy man whose son had just been promised the hand of a girl disposed to apologize for her mother. It is easy enough to guess that old Rosalie La Grange would turn out to be the mother of the girl about to marry the rich man's son. That didn't matter in the beginning. But it did matter when the old woman found it necessary to clear her child of the charge of murder. After expending the more or less simple tricks of her trade, she goes into a trance and the lights go out. When the lights come on again it is discovered that the man who had occupied the thirteenth chair in the "circle" had been stabbed to death. Now, this man had been intent upon learning the identity of the murderer who had slain his friend in the same way. In fact, he had called upon the "medium" to give the name of the slayer just as the end came. As a matter of course, a police inspector was called in, and he proceeded with an inquisition that lasted for two more acts.

It would be unfair to other audiences to reveal the outcome of the inquiry. You may be satisfied to know that the police inspector, with all his assumption of professional knowledge, is finally obliged to bow to "Madame" La Grange—and as she happens to be Irish you may be sure she's a clever woman. I leave the knife in the ceiling to your imagination.

8th HIP MONTH.

This week Charles Dillingham's triumphant spectacle "The Big Show," which now includes Annette Kellermann and her sensational aquatic feature "The Queen of the Mermaids" besides the countless other colossal novelties, will enter upon the eight successful month of its unparalleled run. This past week witnessed the passing of its 300th performance, and in the progress of the first three centuries at this unique institution the exact number of patrons who attended the Hippodrome reached the surprising total of 1,355,400 since the season began. This patronage is greater than that of all the other musical productions in New York combined and establishes a new record even at the world's greatest and most wonderful playhouse. New features are introduced weekly, and those who have already seen "The Big Show" will find renewed pleasures and new surprises when they go again, while any who have not attended this pageant of wonders are assured that here, at the lowest scale of prices, is to be found the biggest amusement attraction in town. Matinees are given daily.

PRIZE AT HIP.

Annette Kellermann has started a contest for the best design in a bathing suit for girls. She will give one hundred dollars in gold to the designer who submits the most attractive sketch. It need not necessarily be a one-piece suit, the diving Venus announces, and she will take three things into consideration in making her selection, comfort, color and good looks. The contest is open to all and sketches which should not be larger than 8x10 may be mailed to Miss Kellermann at the Hippodrome.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Robert Goldsack, Jr., of 225 Prescott place, was given a surprise party by his classmates of the Irving School last week. Those present were: The Misses Hazel Voyt, Elsie Hunter, Helen Brown, Gladys Adelman, Santa Li Volsi, Margaret Scavuzzo, Regina Ellis, Mary Doyle, Jeannette Gardner, Edna Pound, Stella Tallman, Marion Tallman, Edith Tallman, Adeline Goldsack, Florence and Mary Iversen, Belle Fells and Grace Goldsack, and Messrs. David Carmichael, William Carmichael, Karl Dencklau, Walter Dencklau, James Brown, Floyd Mowen, Daniel Weber, Thomas Brown, James Brown, Robert Ellis, Rowland Davenport, William Davenport, Ernest Jeffrey, Joseph Li Volsi, Carl Peterson, Lawrence Peterson, Herbert Marsh, Wilbur Goldsack, Theodore Luersen and Robert Goldsack.

WEDDING.

Miss Florence M. Cary, daughter of Mrs. Byrd S. Cary, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, and James G. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, of Westfield, were married in the Collegiate Reformed church, New York city, last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. C. Austen Dall, of this city, is at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where she is spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs Cornelius R. Agnew, of New York.

Plainfield Man Engineers Rockaway Point Defense

To Captain Frank K. Herkness, of East Seventh street, this city, has been entrusted a large part of the responsibility for the construction of the latest defense of the United States. New York has learned its preparedness lesson, a fact that can be easily seen in the lightning like rapidity with which the erecting of the massive new fort at Rockaway Point is being pushed forward by the Army engineers. Three weeks ago the Point was a dreary waste of beach and sand hills. Then came the rumors of trouble and in the intervening few weeks a great change in the deserted spot has taken place.

Captain Herkness, assisted by Captain J. T. Ardley, both of the U. S. Engineer Corps, is superintending the work and directing the army of men toiling in night and day shifts alongside pile drivers, concrete mixers, steam excavators, sand pumpers, army engineers, artillery experts and military strategists so that if an alien enemy should appear off our shores it would be met on an even footing. Gun emplacements have sprung into existance, followed by batteries of six inch guns. These batteries, when fully equipped, will have 16-inch guns outranging the armament of any battleship afloat.

The fortifications are situated at the extreme southern end of Long Island, and work was first started on February 8. Within one week the emplacements for four six-inch guns of the siege type were completed and the guns mounted, and before the month is ended at least two 16-inch guns, each having the remarkable range of twenty-one miles, will have been placed in position.

The works extend 6,000 feet along the ocean front and 2,000 feet back. The site of the new fort is ideal geographically, but the earth formation makes it necessary to excavate to a depth of ten feet before solid bottom is reached below the sand. The task of successfully completing the fort for the defense of New York City is one replete with engineering feats, but up to the present time Captain Herkness and Captain Ardley have been able to surmount them all.

Little Variation In Food Prices In Plainfield and New York

During the past week little has been done to help lower food and fuel prices throughout the country, and New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other places are still bothered by riots. Although Plainfield people have been feeling the increasing cost of living for months past, still it has not reached that point yet where mothers are banding together to demand relief and it is not likely, in the opinion of the Charity Organization officials, that conditions will approach that stage.

A comparison of food prices in New York and Plainfield shows but slight variation. Sometimes certain articles are higher here than in the city and again they are lower. Better peace conditions than those enjoyed several years ago, before commodities began to soar, has partly offset the higher food prices, and in talking to a Record reporter yesterday one of the officers of the Charity Organization said that up to the present time the number of cases under the supervision of the organization were less than several years ago.

With all the local factories working full blast there is really little cause for anyone being out of work, and the majority of the cases that have come to the attention of the organization have been due to desertion or sickness.

The fact still remains, however, that a dollar is spent just as soon in Plainfield as anywhere else. Here is a sample of some of the prices quoted by a local grocer: Potatoes, $2.85 a bushel; onions, $6.00 a crate; sugar, 7.7/8c, for 25c, and eggs, 60c a dozen. Meats have gone up proportionately, while coal is both high and scarce.

Cuban Disorders Charged With Causing Rise in Cost of Sugar

Reports indicating that a sugar famine is approaching have led Plainfielders during the past week to store up hundreds of pounds as a reserve stock. The forepart of the week it was rumored that the price of sugar would soar to twenty cents and this instantaneously caused a mad rush of buyers.

As the stock became exhausted storekeepers wisely cut down on the allowance to each customer and one Front street merchant had the forethought to insist that all customers purchase at least three dollars worth of other articles in his place before being allowed any sugar. Shoppers visited one store after another, buying a little from each and thus laying in a big supply.

The shortage and the increased price of the commodity have been due chiefly to the insurrection in Cuba. Practically all the sugar used in this part of the country comes from the island republic, where recent disorders have interfered with the shipment of products of all sorts.

Plainfield has fared rather better than places farther from the seaboard and the main points of distribution, as the traffic congestion has operated as a factor in holding back the normal supply from the more remote points. The difficulty has been further accentuated by the recent strike at the American sugar refineries.

Some of the local stores ran entirely out of sugar during the week, but were able to get enough to tide them over from stores which had on hand more than enough to meet their own demands. The situation now appears to have improved somewhat, although prices are still at the top notch.

For some three months up to last Wednesday the price of refined sugar by carload lots at the refineries remained stationary at $6.75 per hundred pounds. On that day two of the five refineries of the East suddenly notified their customers that the price had been advanced to $7, and later in the day the other three boosted it to $7.25. Two of these refineries are now on a $7.50 basis.

While the strike at the American refinery caused delay in shipments, the increase in price was directly due to the revolution in Cuba and the consequent curtailment of shipments from there. The freight congestion has doubtless added to the difficulty of getting a supply in the districts more remote from the central points of distribution.

Beet sugar has not been a factor in the situation, as practically none is used in this part of the country.

We have had unauthenticated reports that in Brooklyn, Philadelphia and other points the shortage is such that prices for the granulated in bulk have gone as high as fifteen cents a pound. The embargo on freight transportation may make it difficult for remote sections to take advantage of more favorable conditions for shipment from Cuba.

In Plainfield to some extent, and in certain other places to a much greater extent, the situation has been accentuated by a "scare" on the part of consumers, who have bought larger quantities than usual, if they could be had, in order that they might have a supply on hand if the store supply should become exhausted.

Freight congestion due to various causes that have been developing for a long time, but more immediately to the weather and the U-boat activity, has been responsible for a big increase in the prices of many kinds of food commodities, especially perishable goods. Potatoes, for instance, are selling at $3 a 180-pound sack, and onions at $14 to $15 per bag of 100 pounds. Cabbage, turnips, carrots and certain other vegetables are away up, and in many cases dealers say they are unable to replenish their stocks at any price. And there is no relief in sight. On the contrary, there is every indication that the situation will grow worse.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

There is no indication of surrender on the part of "Her Soldier Boy," which next Monday night will begin the fifteenth week of its substantial intrenchment at the Astor Theatre. Judging from its continued popularity it will defy even the summer heat and the retreat of the theatregoers to the country.

"Her Soldier Boy" is a combination of good things—a freshly-hatched book, sprightly and appropriately romantic music and a cast of exceptional brilliance. The book and lyrics are by Rida Johnson Young, based upon the German original of Victor Leon, while the score is the work of Emmerich Kalman. Additional number have been supplied by Clifton Crawford and Sigmund Romberg. The story concerns the love of a maid for a man behind the lines in Belgium. An American war correspondent is the deus ex machina in this romance and in this character Clifton Crawford is at his happiest.

In addition to Mr. Crawford, and his associate stars, Adele Rowland and Beth Lydy, the cast includes Cyril Chadwick, Mildred Richardson, Ella Gergely, Frank Ridge, Harold Vizard, George A. Schiller, Ethel Brandon, Wards De Wolfe and fifty others. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

"POOR BUTTERFLY" FOR LONDON.

Yesterday Phillis Klein, representing Alfred Butt, the London Impresario, arranged for the exclusive producing rights in England of "Poor Butterfly" and "Hello I've Been Looking For You," two popular song hits of the current Hippodrome spectacle, "The Big Show." Mr. Butt intends to use these songs in his new revue at the Empire Theatre, London. In making this arrangement Messrs. John L. Golden, Raymond Hubbell and R. H. Burnside retained the rights to all the other songs now used at the Hippodroms as the exclusive privilege to use these songs has been given to Charles Cochrane, of the Ambassador's Theatre, London. This latter contract includes "We'll Stand By Our Country," "My Skate Girl," "Queen of the Snow and Ice," "Come On Down to Ragtime Town," and "The Honeymoon."

SULLIVAN COMES BACK.

Jack Sullivan, formerly of this city, but more recently of Dover, has returned to the city and taken a position with "Al" Staats, proprietor of the Queen City Hotel. Patrick Guinee and David White have also joined Mr. Staats' forces.

Ted Ryder, a Sophomore at Brown University, has been visiting his parents on Central avenue.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1917.

A UNITED PLAINFIELD IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

Those responsible for the mass meeting held in the Plainfield High School Tuesday evening were rewarded with an almost unanimous expression of community appreciation by the attendance figures. American patriotism was never brought to the fore more prominently and the affair will go down in Plainfield annals as one of the most remarkable demonstrations of interest in a national issue ever conducted locally. The one big feature of the meeting was the appearance of former President William Howard Taft and the fact that this busy worker consented to spend an evening in Plainfield is indicative of the regard in which the municipality and those who fostered the undertaking are held in his estimation.

In his speech President Taft predicted that the call to arms, if it does come, will find a united country ready to fight to the bitter end for the principles of true Americanism. The vociferous minority doubting the probability of such a condition has in all likelihood a few constituents in Plainfield but they were certainly not among the representative gathering in the high school Tuesday night. The meeting was one in which all partisan ties were forgotten and where the momentous question of the times was the chief thought in the mind of every individual present. It was demonstrative of the attitude our city has assumed toward President Wilson's policy and it was a forecast of what may be expected if war is declared.

While pledging himself to the support of the President in this crisis Mr. Taft made it plain that he was not thoroughly in accord with all of the Wilson views. His statement to the effect that all temporary inconveniences, particularly those necessary in calling an extra session of Congress, should be disregarded is one that will have its share of endorsers. President Wilson should receive the specific authority to take such steps as are necessary to protect our citizens upon the seas but who among us is certain that war will not be the ultimate necessity and war cannot be carried on by the President alone. The moral weight given to measures by Congressional sanction is essential and the Representatives should be kept in session until the decisive step is taken and carried to a finish.

Just such a meeting as this is necessary in every community to kindle the spark of patriotism and leave a flame burning for the crucial test. Plainfield rallied nobly to the call and gave former President Taft, as the representative of the nation, to understand that it is ready to contribute its share to the support of the government when the keynote is sounded.

MILITARY TRAINING IN THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Principal Lindsey Best, of the Plainfield High School, has stated that the local public educational system has a suitable substitute for military training in the daily gymnasium classes. The average mind might be able to stretch a point in the consideration of gymnastic drilling as an asset to the rounding out of good soldiers but those in charge of the system of physical training will explode this theory in substantiating their contention that militarism is to be discouraged rather than encouraged. The major portion of scholastic physical directors are opposed to conducting a program of work that is even suggestive of military training. Theirs is a mission to develop the body and mind to a degree of efficiency which enables the student to master his academic work.

The plan for compulsory military training has probably met its Waterloo if it is to be kept in its present form but there are few who will deny that we will soon have to design a suitable substitute. America will have to train its younger generation in the use of modern warfare accessories and the cadet corps in the public and private school and in the college and university appears to be the logical remedy. The high school youth is old enough to realize the part he is expected to play in the America of today and he should be fitted for his responsibility. Two or three hours of each day in our high schools could be spent to no better advahtage than in military training.

Several communications have come to the Record office during the past week advocating a board of censors to view the burlesque productions being shown each week at the Plainfield Theatre. In each instance the letters were unsigned and the flimsy arguments set forth seem to indicate that even the writers were not very proud of their work. The management of the Plainfield Theatre has co-operated with the Mayor and other city officials in routing out screen and stage productions of an objectionable nature and it would be difficult to single out anything grossly immoral in the character of productions complained of. In the best regulated of theatrical houses happenings of a regretable nature are bound to occur but when everything possible is being done to weed out the objectionable element we should be charitable enough to overlook an occasional slip. Burlesque productions are not rated as the most classical of stage features but they form an interesting diversion for the average pleasure-seeker and only shows of the highest type are booked for presentation here.

NO HYPOCRISY IN MARTINE'S SOUL

"It has been said in published statements that I was a sheer accident—a joke, a mountebank, a buffoon and a disgrace to this body," shouted Senator James E. Martine in his valedictory address to Congress Wednesday. "But no man ever said I was a moral coward, a pretender. That is my answer to these villainous and cowardly attacks," added the Farmer Orator.

When the Senator steps from the public limelight Monday after six years' service in Washington he will wind up a record that savors of honest throught and honest deed. He has played the game at Washington straight and because he was man enough to fight for his own convictions he has been attacked and mauled by the press and political enemies. When Senator Kenyon declared that "hypocrisy never entered entered Martine's soul" he expressed the opinion of a majority of his colleagues in the Senate and those who elected the Plainfielder six years ago have even greater confidence in his ability and integrity than they did when they knew him only as a private citizen.

Those who took Martine to be a slouch or a tool for some aspiring political boss of New Jersey were sadly fooled. During his entire term independence has been his leading characteristic and sincerity his watchword.

LOCAL CAVALRYMEN AT WILSON INAUGURATION.

Sixteen members of Plainfield's cavalry unit have been selected as a portion of the provisional troop to march in the inaugural parade at Washington Monday. The fact that the local soldiers were considered in the appointments by Major Hobart B. Brown, of the First Squadron of New Jersey Cavalry, is sufficient indication of the status they have attained in State military circles. In singling out a representative group from the squadron Major Brown took into consideration every angle of efficiency and if the eligibles from the other three troops are of the same calibre as those from Plainfield it is needless to say that the showing at Washington will be a creditable one.

Those interested locally have but one regret in this announcement and that centers around the fact that Company K and the Second Infantry were not included in the escort of New Jersey guardsmen named to participate in the demonstration. Up to the last moment it was thought that this regiment would perform the duty it so admirably took care of at President Wilson's first inauguration but military authorities elected to give new units a chance at representation.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FUND A WORTHY STEP.

Through the Rev. Dr. E. Vicars Stevenson, Plainfield has played a big part in Central New Jersey's share of the work connected with the acquisition of a $5,000,000 clerical pension fund by the Episcopal church. In one year's time those active in the movement have secured pledges exceeding the sum set as a goal and the offer of the Carnegie Corporation to make good the $325,000 interest deficiency, which will be caused by the collection of the money in five yearly installments, places a crown of success on the entire plan.

Considering the fact that the annual pay of Episcopal clergymen averages not more than $1,200 they may be listed among the educated workers most worthy of a pension. The fund raising should be looked upon as a business-like step in religious endeavor and as the best method to provide for old age or the disability of the ministerial workers, and for their families.

The type of citizen who wastes time finding fault with the city government for penalizing him because he failed to clear the snow from his sidewalks is just the kind who is deserving of a fine much heavier than the one dollar City Judge DeMeza is now imposing. The round-up in the police court after each snowfall is evidence of the light regard in which the snow shoveling ordinance has been heretofore held and continued vigilance on the part of the street commissioner and police department is the only certain method of bringing the delinquents to their senses. No distinction has been made in serving summons to guilty parties; rich and poor have been treated alike. There is included in these round ups the class of citizen who has in the past found it more economical to let the snow remain on his walks until the city clears it off and to have it charged on his annual tax bill. Some among them have even ventured to state that they thought this custom was not only permissable but that it had been encouraged by the city. A good stiff fine of five or ten times the dollar now being charged will bring second offenders to their senses and impress upon them the fact that city ordinances are not just made for interesting reading and to fill books.

Cats may be useful as mice destroyers and, then again, they may have some value as pets, but the feline fence vagabond who plays rings around the alarm clock is nothing more nor less than a nuisance. Hence, the bill now before the New Jersey Legislature to license this type of animal is not quite so much of a joke as some people have singled it out to be. There is no reason why cats should be allowed to stray about the streets any more than dogs but even if the measure is adopted as law there is some doubt evident as to what extent the freedom of the feline will be curbed. Municipalities like Plainfield will find plenty of trouble ahead of them in taking a cat census and the city clerk has a big task ahead of him in seeing that the cat license law is enforced. There is no doubt but what cats should not be allowed to wander about the streets but to the average mind it would seem that the surest way to eliminate the evil would be to engage a man and wagon during the summer months to patrol the thoroughfares day and night and scoop the offenders up. The trouble makers are of the class that have no value and it would aid in the preservation of birds as well as a protection for rest-seekers to exterminate all of the homeless variety.

Mayor Smalley's attitude toward a public park for the citizens of North Plainfield should be emulated on this side of the brook. Now that the chief executive of the borough has placed himself in the list of those favoring such an improvement it would be well for the civic organizations of Plainfield to map out a plan of co-operation that would eventually result in the establishment of a park accessible to residents of both municipalities.

This city has its civic organizations but they have shown no evidence of real life during the past two years. The public park issue furnishes excellent grounds for a revival of interest and a combination of the civic bodies with a view to concentrating their efforts toward locating a suitable site would in all probability prove the most effective way of making it a reality. There is no reason why the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield should not unite in working for the project and the relations would in all likelihood tend to facilitate matters.

Plainfield's public school system has been invited by Commissioner Calvin N. Kendall to participate in "Visit-the-Schools-Week" which will be observed throughout the State beginning March 12 and concluding March 16. The primary object of the feature is to bring parents and teachers closer together and the results of such meetings will certainly prove beneficial. Co-operation between the home and the classroom elements is essential to the attainment of the highest degree of efficiency by the student. It is necessary that the instructors should be acquainted with the peculiarities that are different in each individual in order to prescribe the best teaching methods in exceptional instances. The relationship between the parent and teacher should be an intimate one, especially where children of early years are concerned. Frequent discussions of the shortcomings and possible remedies for backwardness in studies are invaluable.

The Record's fight against conditions that have existed in the Plainfield district court for months past has at last borne fruit. When he took the oath of office before County Clerk William B. Martin yesterday Judge J. Henry Crane also volunteered the information that he had carefully planned a thorough housecleaning in the local court. Since receiving the appointment the new judge has expressed himself as being very much in accord with the Record's views and will pick up the renovation work where this paper has left off. In turning the issue over to the new incumbent we do so with implicit confidence in his ability and earnestness to check up the noticeable laxity. Radical changes will be made at once but it is only to be expected that a certain amount of time will be required to clean house thoroughly.

City Judge DeMeza is to be congratulated on the establishment of a special court for the trial of juvenile offenders. In it Plainfield has found an avenue of city court work long needed and it will undoubtedly be the means of saving many of the waywards of the younger generation. The step was advocated by the Record following an investigation of similar courts in other cities and Judge DeMeza accepted the suggestion as the only satisfactory solution to a problem that has been under his consideration during the five years he has graced the bench. No longer will it be necessary to mingle the first-timer with the hardened criminal and every attempt will be made in the juvenile court to right wrongdoing without unnecessary publicity and without blemishing the guilty party's character by a term in jail.

When the Common Council meets Monday night it will probably be asked to consider an increase in pay for both the policemen and firemen of the city. No two groups of city employes are better entitled to consideration in the solution of the high cost of living problem than the "coppers" and the "smoke-eaters." The salaries paid under the present scale are not comparable with the standard of other second class city departments. The men found the struggle to make both ends meet difficult enough even when living costs were normal but now when prices have doubled and tripled they look to the city council for consideration. They have a right to expect it and the councilmen will find public favor in an act granting the firemen and policemen a substantial increase.

• • • • •

The National Special Aid Society is in need of chairs, tables and machines for the East Front street headquarters and anyone having such articles to lend could put them to no better use. The objects of this organization savor of twentieth century Americanism and those Plainfielders who have found it impossible to devote their time to any particular line of endeavor fostered by the society are given an excellent opportunity to share in the good work by contributing the necessary furnishings. The names of those active in the movement are sufficient guarantee that the articles loaned will be well taken care of.

• • • • •

Whether or not Plainfield will have an armory that will prove a credit to the city or whether it will be presented with a drill shed designed to "just fill the need" rests with the Common Council. The $15,000 appropriation requested by Captain Charles Peterson will come up for consideration Monday night and it is to be hoped that the Council will see its way clear to pass favorably upon it. This money, added to the $45,000 now available from the county and State, will bring the total figure to a mark that will build a structure of modern type and which will compare favorably with other armories of the State.

• • • • •

That Plainfield is soon to have the advantages of another modernly equipped and strictly up-to-the-minute hostelry is indicated by the alterations being made by "Al" Staats to the Queen City structure. There is probably no hotel man in the business better known to Plainfielders than Mr. Staats and every confidence is placed in his ability to give the city an institution of the highest type. The extensive improvements underway point to a hotel the equal of which Plainfield has never before been blessed with.

It has been said that the Ford company is seriously considering making its car six inches smaller so that owners might wash them in household sinks but the Common Council might have won popular favor by being charitable enough to wait until the new model came out before taking advantage of the slight decrease in the cost of maintaining such machines by slicing the Ford taxi owner's profits.

Metropolitan newspapers have been poking a lot of fun at Judge DeMeza for sentencing a youthful offender of Plainfield to report to him every morning for five years but the Gotham punsters have apparently overlooked the detention of an innocent little girl in a New York jail cell over night just because a crank pointed her out as the person he thought picked his pocket.

Things Not to Worry About.

The efforts of the Cubans to divert Uncle Sam's attention from the German question and the high cost of living issue are amusing, to say the least. CARPENTERS and builders of experience always prefer to use WHITE PINE.

It's so easy to work with. The smooth, yielding grain saves time and effort and doesn't dull tools.

WHITE PINE

is the most economical wood even at a slightly higher first cost because of this easy-working, time-saving quality, and still more because of long service.

It does not warp, swell, shrink, twist, sag or rot even under most trying conditions. It stays put for years in closest mitres and delicate mouldings. And it takes paint perfectly.

No other wood stands exposure so well. None wears so dependably.

Scouts Offer Help to City

At a meeting of the executive council of the Plainfield Boy Scouts held in New York on Wednesday it was decided to offer the services of the local Boy Scouts to the city in case of need, and this morning one of the Scouts in full uniform presented to Mayor Leighton Calkins the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America has deemed it wise at this critical period in the Nation's history to recommend the placing at the disposal of municipal executives throughout the country of the resources of the troops of the Boy Scouts in America, be it

Resolved, that the executive committee of the Boy Scouts of America, Plainfield Council, in meeting extraordinary on this twenty-sixth day of February, 1917, do pledge to the Mayor of Plainfield, New Jersey, the services of all the Boy Scouts of Plainfield for public service in any capacity that in his judgment they may best render to the community.

This was signed by Theodore G. Davis, president; Edward Harding, Louis Hosmer, DeWitt F. Barlow, Frederick M. Genung and Allen E. Beals.

If the call is ever issued about four hundred boys and seventy-five men will respond ready to do anything called upon to. That every Scout in the city could be brought together within an hour after the call came was demonstrated this week when they were all gathered together in fourty minutes from every section of the city.

Under the leadership of their scout masters the boys are ready to patrol the city, guard buildings, carry messages or in fact do anything else that would be of help.

ALBERT C. STEBBINS.

The funeral of Albert C. Stebbins, who died at his home on West Seventh street Wednesday morning, will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 220 and will be in charge of Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Stebbins was in his seventy-third year and until stricken with pneumonia two weeks ago enjoyed excellent health and had been actively engaged in business. He was one of the city's best known business men, being vice president of the Niles-Bement-Pond Tool Company and of the Dime Savings Bank.

Previous to the locating of the concern in this city in 1887, Mr. Stebbins was in their employ in Worcester, Mass. Entering the concern as an office boy, he had been with the Pond Tool Company for over fifty years and had risen step by step until he occupied one of the most important positions.

He took a keen interest in the civic affairs of the city and in 1897 was elected a member of the Common Council, filling the position in an efficient manner.

MRS. MARIA R. MAC DONALD.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Maria Rockwell MacDonald, who passed away at her home on East Front street Sunday, and were in charge of Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, assisted by Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector of the church of the Heavenly Rest. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. MacDonald's death was rather sudden, as she was in the best of health earlier in the day. Shortly before noontime she was seized with an attack of heart failure and died a few minutes later. She was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Derveer, of New York, and had been a resident of this city for over thirty years. Besides her husband, Fred MacDonald, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Forman, of Freehold.

CHARLES STRYKER.

Following a lingering illness of over a year, Charles Stryker, of East Fifth street, passed away at his home Saturday night. The funeral was held Tuesday from the home of his brother, Edward Stryker, of New Brunswick, and interment was made in that city.

Mr. Stryker was in his forty-seventh year and had lived here for a number of years. At one time he was inspector on the New York L, but for the past twenty-five years had held the position of telegraph operator with the C. R. R. of N. J. at Cranford Junction, Westfield, Jersey City and Plainfield. He was well known as a musician and had been a member of different New York orchestras at various times.

MISS REGINA FISCHBACH.

After a long illness, Miss Regina Fischbach died at the home of her sister, Mrs. David Angerbauer, of Webster place, Sunday night. Funeral services were held Tuesday night and interment was made in Trenton.

Miss Fischbach had been a resident of Plainfield for the past seven years and previous to then had resided in Trenton. Besides her parents, she leaves a sister, Mrs. Angerbauer, and two brothers, John, of Plainfield, and Frederick, of Guttenberg.

COMIC PLAYLET.

The North Plainfield High School students will present the comedy, "All Of a Sudden Peggy," in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School on the evening of April 13. Miss Irene Duchesne will coach the cast for this production.

Sailor Writes From "Somewhere at Sea"

Ever since August, 1914, magazines and newspapers have been speaking of "somewhere in France" or "somewhere on the Somme," but war came closer to home this week when a member of the Record staff received a letter from "somewhere at sea." That is a phrase intended to cover up the movements of Uncle Sam's fleet and will do for a letter written off the coast of Florida or in New York harbor.

While the men are allowed to write home as often as they wish, they are not supposed to mention any of their movements or activities in which they are engaged. "Depleted by censor" appears in the place of postmarks that in the opinion of the authorities give too much information.

"The excitement of not knowing what is to happen the next minute keeps us all on edge," says one part of the letter.

That unusual activities are being made among the ships of the Atlantic fleet is certain as the letter came from a sailor on a minelayer and its being "at sea" would indicate preparations for defense are under way.

MRS. LAURA SOUTHARD.

Shortly after she had suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday morning, Mrs. Laura Southard, of 70 Elm street, and a lifelong resident of this city, passed away at her home. Rev. D. W. Skellenger, of Hope chapel, conducted funeral services at the late home Wednesday, and interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Southard was in her sixty-seventh year and had lived in this city all her life. She was a regular attendant at Hope chapel and had a wide circle of friends. Four daughters, two sons and a sister survive her.

Firm Has Monopoly on Political Jobs

The Fanwood Lumber & Supply Co enjoys a rather unique distinction in the political field by having practically all of its officials holding at least one public office. The latest addition came last week when John Hetfield was chosen to fill out the unexpired term of Burton P. Hall as Freeholder from Fanwood, and Scotch Plains.

When Mr. Hetfield takes his place at the next meeting of the Freeholders he will make the second member of the concern holding such office, the other one being Charles Smith, who represents Westfield. Mr. Hetfield is also township collector and a member of the Board of Education. Dr. F. W. Wescott, another officer of the company, is County Physician, a member of the Republican County Committee and a member of the Boards of Health of Fanwood Township and Borough and the Fanwood Township Board of Education. Edward L. Hand is Township Clerk and a member of the Board of Education.

Commissioners Meet to Discuss Sewer Work

Several meetings of the Plainfield and Fanwood commission have been held during the past week in regard to the installing of a sewer in the latter place which will connect with the one now nearly completed in this city. Plainfield has agreed to allow the neighboring borough to connect with the trunk line at Terrill road any time it gets ready to and to pay a toll according to the number of gallons of waste.

Fuller & McClintock, of this city, are working on a survey of Fanwood at the present time and as soon as it is completed estimates of the cost will be obtained. In the opinion of the local engineers this city would be benefited by having Fanwood included in the system as it would help them in giving better service to the residents of the East End.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH PLANNING FOR BAZAAR.

The parishioners of St. Joseph's church of North Plainfield have completed preliminary arrangements for the bazaar which they intend to hold during Easter week. The bazaar will open on Monday night, April 9, and will continue during the week.

Patrick J. McDonough has been made chairman of the committee in charge of the affair and a number of sub-committees have been appointed to assist him. The following parish societies will assist with the work: Holy Name Society, St. Joseph's Boys Club, St. Joseph's Bible Class, Woman's League, Rosary Society, Children of Mary, Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H. League of the Sacred Heart and Chi Gamma Chi.

LECTURE ON WAR.

At the home of Mrs. S. S. Carvalho, West Eighth street, next Friday afternoon, Miss Jeane McKenzie, a young Scotch woman who spent some time on the European war front, will tell of her experiences. The address will be made under the auspices of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage Association. Miss McKenzie expects to return to Europe early next month.

Fanwood Bills Will Affect Whole State

The bill to be presented to the Legislature at its present session in regard to the making of a separate school district of Fanwood borough will, if passed, affect the entire State in sections where more than one municipality forms a school district. The measure is being fostered by Henry C. Lockwood, and Assemblyman Arthur E. Pierson, both of Westfield, and will be introduced by the latter.

While Fanwood borough is the direct object of having the act put through, it will mean the creating of a number of new school districts in various sections of the State, providing the voters are willing. The bill would make it legal but not mandatory.

Mr. Lockwood is the largest realty owner in Fanwood and has offered the ground, besides helping erect the building, if the voters agree to have a new district.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION WILL MEET MARCH 14.

At the morning session reports will be made and a discussion of the various phases of the work will take place and will be illustrated with moving pictures. Mathews, formerly pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, will make an address on "Recreational Books for Boys."

"Civilization" Booked For Proctor's Theatre Next Week

Repeated requests have been steadily pouring into the office of the management of Proctor's local theatre for a return presentation of Thomas H. Ince's "Civilization," and the Proctor management, always alert to the theatregoers' wishes and wins, have made arrangements to have this mighty production fill a farewell engagement in Plainfield. They have booked it for three days starting tuesday of next week, March 6, and continuing to and including Thursday evening. This is one of the most popular of the present day cinema productions and is not merely a preparedness picture. Thomas Ince, the producer of "Civilization," has passed beyond this embryonic stage of his work. He gives you in "Civilization" a dramatic poem full of beauty and pathos and the beauty of artistry. "Civilization" is the Bible modernized and shown on the screen sumptuously, even magnificently, mounted; convincingly acted and perfectly photographed, a delight to the eye, a feast to the mind. Did you ever go to a church and sit for an hour spellbound under the turning periods of a great preacher? Have you ever heard an eloquent orator like Judge Isaac Franklin Russen? This famous speaker recently held a distinguished audience in the Hotel Biltmore, New York, for one hour and three quarters by the clock, without moving, with scarcely a cough or an ahem being heard. His hearers were physically transfixed and mentally fascinated by the remarkable address which he gave them. Now that's just how Ince's screen epic treats you when you see it. It holds you. There's a human interest in the spectacle, a love story, kings, queens, princes and princesses, pastoral beauty, scenic grandeur, every conceivable form of screen vastness—all that pleases, interests or appalls as the case may be?

"Golden Crook" Burlesque Show On the Monday Bill

Messrs. Jacobs and Jermon take pleasure in offering the latest edition of their new famous "Golden Crook Extravaganza Company" as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, matinee and night, March 5. It is no exaggeration to assert that this is one of the really elaborate productions of the season and as this engagement will be the only one allowed in this city during the current season it behooves lovers of high class entertainment to be stirring and secure seats in advance for there is always a rush when this company comes to our city. Having long ago discovered that the followers of light and entrancing amusements eagerly seek something new and out of the ordinary the management has had scouts in European centres securing novelties that have an exclusive atmosphere of such high quality that the patron is unstinted in his or her favorable comments. It is a show that is equally attractive to both men and women, there being a delightful absence of anything offensive in the entire performance. The prime elements which go to make up the program are comedy of an appetizing quality, music that sets the ears a-tingle and a terpsichorean evolution that charms. The latter are contributed by a galaxy of accomplished ballet dancers who introduce several of the latest Parisian conceits which have never before been seen here and which are full of esthetic grace and magnetism. A special dancing number is that of Hite and Redlow, a pair of nimble steppers who combine the old with the new in pleasing fashion.

Billy Arlington, with the "Golden Crook," at Plainfield Theatre, Monday, Matinee and Night.

Everybody knows Billy Arlington, the classic interpretation of tramp character who heads the able cast. Arlington has many imitators but no peers in his particular line and his work is refreshingly spontaneous. He is surrounded by a roster of principals which includes Frank Dobson, Eleanor Cockran, Dolly Meeder, the Pall Mall Trio, composed of Edward Hennessy, Walter Lafey and Carl Taylor, and a chorus of thirty, mostly girls, and talented at that.

Chauncey Olcott Scheduled to Appear Here March 6

Chauncey Olcott, a star whose popularity is so established that neither years nor rival competitors seem to have the slightest effect on it, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday evening, March 6. Mr. Olcott will bring back the play he presented two years ago, "The Heart of Paddy Whack," a delightful romance of Rachael Crothers, the scenes of which are laid in Ireland about the year 1830. The period and locality chosen by the author afford many opportunities for very handsome stage settings and costuming, all of which have been taken due advantage of by the producers, Messrs. Cohan and Harris.

In "The Heart of Paddy Whack," Mr. Olcott plays the role of a well-to-do Irish gentleman in a rural town, a bachelor known as "Paddy-Whack" because his small ward has given him this cheerful title. But the ward has been away to college and has grown into a winsome and saucy young maid who upsets her guardian's heart and puts strange notions of love into his head, whereupon Dennis O'Malley, the guardian, straightway sets about arranging a marriage for his charge and plans to put duty before self-interest and marry her to another man. But pretty "Mona" and fate take a hand and out of this comes a romance full of sentiment and brimming over with humor.

Mr. Olcott's songs, as may be expected, will be one of the important features of the performance, and among the numbers he will introduce are, "A Little Bit of Heaven," "Irish Eyes of Love," "A Broth of a Boy," and "Who Knows."

In the supporting company will be Ruth Sinclair, Viola Fortescue, Adelaide Cumming, Josephine Williams, Marthel Seymour, Charles Erin Verner, Fleming Ward, Richard Quilter, George Brennan and James Gillen.

LITTLE LADY IN BLUE.

Frances Starr, now in her third successful month in the refreshingly new and delightful comedy, "Little Lady in Blue," in the Belasco Theatre continues to delight large audiences with her charming performance. This appealing comedy of manners and customs of Georgian days by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, one of the biggest dramatic hits of the year, is likewise one of the greatest successes Miss Starr has had. It marks this popular favorite's first appearances in comedy under Mr. Belasco's direction.

David Belasco's highly artistic and deft production of "Little Lady in Blue", remarkable alike for its simplicity, innate charm and truthful picture, as well as for its delicacy, is about the last word in stage production. Indeed, the charm of the play is perfectly reflected in the remarkable simplicity of its staging.

Matinees Thursday and Saturday, at 2:20 p. m. Evenings at 8:20 p. m.

STRAND THEATRE

A triple feature program will be presented at the Strand Theatre. Mary Pickford will be seen in a photo-dramatic adaptation of Eleanor Gate's charming play "A Poor Little Rich Girl." Captivating "Little Mary" plays the title role, of course, and she has been given more opportunities to display her charming personality and artistic abilities than in any other production in which she has ever appeared. It is said, in fact, that "A Poor Little Rich Girl" is the very best Mary Pickford picture ever shown on the screen. The unusual literary material of the original play is exceptionally well suited for picturization and offers rare opportunities for elaborate and fantastic settings, of which due advantage has been taken. The second instalment of the wonderful Prizma pictures in natural colors will also be shown. The subject this week is "Uncle Sam's Troops On The Mexican Border." It is said that the colors in these scenes are so realistic that they do not seem like pictures at all. Victor Moore, the popular American Comedian, will be seen in a new farce-comedy entitled "Fliverino." Another picture of special interest is an educational study showing intimate views of a Sea Lion Rookery in the Northern Pacific. The Strand Topical Review contains the latest American and European news pictures.

The musical program is an exceptionally attractive one. Among the soloists are: Nadine Legot, soprano; Tolcom Heaslin, baritone; Arthur Depew and Ralph Brigham, organists. The concert Orchestra, under the direction of Carl Edouarde, will render an operatic overture and play a program of classical and popular selections incidental to the subjects shown on the screen.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

"Stolen Sweets," a burlesque in two acts, will be presented by the Midnight Maidens Company at the Columbia Theatre the week beginning Monday afternoon, March 5. It is announced that incorporated in the story there is the short skit called "A Night In An English Music Hall," in which Charlie Chaplin made his first American success before motion pictures were known. This little playlet is presented in a scene that represents the stage of a theatre showing the boxes with their occupants and the improvised footlights behind which the performance is given. The character of the inebriated swell, formerly played by Mr. Chaplin, will be performed by Harry Hearn, an English comedian, who was chosen for the fidelity of his appearance and mannerisms to the famous film star. In addition to this striking feature, the performance includes specialties by Grace King, who sings and accompanies herself on the 'cello; a dancing specialty by Bobby Williams and Irene Blaney; an act called High Balls and Chaplin Bumps by Fern, Bitelow and Meehan; a singing and dancing turn by Hanscom and Vernon and an elaborately arranged feature called Surprise a la Minute in which the members of the chorus led by Laura May appear. Pant, a Japanese midget, thirty-eight inches high, is announced among the show's attractions. In the cast besides the specialists are Helen Byron, Billy Barry, Charles Cardon, William J. Hurt, Clara Gibson and Isabella Robson. An exceptionally elaborate equipment of scenery and costumes is said to have been provided, including many special sets for the presentation of the various vaudeville novelties.

THE "SHOW OF WONDERS."

The second edition of the "Show of Wonders" at the Winter Garden, begins its twenty-third week Monday. The second edition, which was *not on two weeks ago, has introduce*d to New York one of the most timely and thrilling spectacular features ever presented at the Winter Garden, or, very lively, on the American stage. "Submarine F-7." All former stage efforts which have made the Winter Garden famous, sink into insignificance compared to this up-to-the-minute thriller. "Last season's Cavalry Charge," says the New York Sun, "in the same theatre was thought to be the last word in stage marvels, but Submarine F-7 has the cavalry charge of last year turning tail and screaming for help." Louis de Foe, of the New York World, said: "Enough new features were introduced in the 'Show of Wonders' to make profitable another visit to the Winter Garden." "Submarine F-7," said the Herald critic, "carries a real war time thrill. It is a real stirring novelty." The Times calls it "a realistic and thrilling drama." The American critic refers to this feature as "a marvelously clever and gripping piece of work." All one needs to experience all the thrills of a submarine crew when in the act of attacking a man o' war at sea, is to witness a performance of this extraordinary spectacular hair-raiser. The cast of the "Show of Wonders" includes, besides the special company appearing in "Submarine F-7," George W. Monroe, Eugene Howard and Willie Howard, Walter C. Kelly, Tom Lewis, Marilynn Miller, John T. Murray, Grace Fisher, Alexis Kosloff, White & Clayton, Sidney Phillips, Dan Quinlan, Edmund Mulcahy, Eleanor Brown, Jack Grant, Ernest Hare, Virginia Smith and others. There will be the usual big Sunday night concert on Sunday.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Y.W.C.A. Had Banner Year

Under the caption "What the Young Women's Christian Association Is Doing in Plainfield," the annual report of the local association for the year ending January 31 has just been finished and beside showing this organization to be in excellent financial condition gives a minute report of the greatly enlarged field of work.

The financial report shows that $1,400.89 was on hand January 3, 1918. Receipts during the year were $5,937.89, making a total of $7,338.78. The sum of $7,266.10 was spent in carrying on the work of the year, leaving $90.38 on hand January 8. The total membership of the association is now 938, a considerable increase during the year, and an effort is to be made to reach 1,000 by the end of the coming year.

During the year 807 were accommodated at the association and 9,295 visitors were received. Bible class suppers on Monday night, Saturday suppers and suppers for working girls on Wednesday have become very popular, as have the Business Women's League, High School Girls' group, association orchestra and Camp and Conference Club, all started during the year.

A club for the girl employes at the John-Mansville factory was also started and is used by between 100 and 150 girls daily. A large club-room has been erected and furnished and each Friday the Extension Committee provides an entertainment for the girls. Work among the girls employed in local factories has also been taken up with excellent results and will be enlarged upon during the ensuing year.

MARTIN SIGNS.

Jack Martin has signed up for one year with the Milwaukee American Association baseball team and will report in a week or so. Jack, who is a prominent member of the Phi Psi fraternity, was reported as a "hold-out," but, in compliance with the order recently issued by Dave Fultz, president of the organization, has cast his anchor for the present season, at least.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys M. Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Marsh, of Maple avenue, North Plainfield, to Joseph T. Chilton, of this city, was made at a five hundred party recently given at the Marsh home. No date has been set for the wedding.

West End Affords Best Advantages

That the West End of this city has better advantages than the East End was the verdict reached as a result of the public debate between the members of the West End Community Centre and the East End Civic Association held in the Washington School on Monday evening. Judge William G. DeMeza handed down the verdict.

The West End had for its successful supporters Frederick W. Cook, principal of the Washington School, and Thomas C. Vail, while the vanquished "champions" of the East End cause were Councilman Charles S. Smineck and the Rev. Edward S. Ralston. City Clerk John J. Carroll presided. The West End received the vote of the judge because it was pointed out that it is a section of the city already built and still building, while the East End is yet in its infancy.

MINSTREL SHOW.

The first annual minstrel show of the Standard Aero Corporation was given in the Plainfield High School auditorium last Saturday evening and was a decided success. Those who took part in the production were: J. H. Steenson, interlocutor; Andrew Crozier, Harold Lunger, Tom Ricketts, Burt Ison, end men; Parker Cramer, Bernard Colvin, William Colvin, Robert S. Young, Harold Leadbitter, James Hitchens, George Pearson, Sidney Nesbitt, Andrew Reid, Ralph Barnaby, William Schaefer, Arthur Perrine, Sherman Chandler, Walter Brooks, Albert Barrett, George Swinerton, Rolla Apgar, Tom Hogue, Dan C. Watterson, Frank Brennan, James McCarty, Harold Leach, Walter Lawson, Jack Hallard, Clauson Kaas, George Soupos, Paul Daniels and John Hamblin.

TO ELECT PRESIDENT.

At tonight's meeting of the Fanwood Township Committee a township president will be elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ira Gage Walker. Hegry G. Meyer, a prominent Scotch Plains merchant and former member of that body, was chosen this week by the Township Committee to be a member for the remainder of the unexpired term.

GAVE A DANCE

Walter Debels and Le Roy Stewart of North Plainfield, gave an invitation dance in Debels' Hall, the borough, last Friday night. A large crowd attended and music was furnished by a local orchestra.

N.S.A.S. Opens New Quarters

The new headquarters of the National Special Aid Society in the Pittis building on East Front street have been opened and the meetings of that society and of the Junior Branch will be held in these rooms instead of at the Cedarcroft, as has been the case heretofore.

In addition to the work of the National Special Aid Society a branch of the American Red Cross has been established in the Pittis building and the work of that organization will be carried on here. While it is not planned to have one person in complete charge of the new headquarters, it is said that volunteers for this work have been asked for and the response has been gratifying.

Although the active campaign for new members for the National Special Aid Society is no longer in operation, the object of the establishment of the headquarters is identical with that of the campaign and the applications of new members will be received at any time. A complete listing of the various branches of work for which the members have declared themselves fitted is being prepared.

REPAIRING DAMAGE.

Work has been nearly completed on the rebuilding of the interior of the Zeek building on South avenue, which was destroyed by fire two weeks ago. The first floor was only slightly damaged and the baking has been done there but as soon as the new roof and the second floor improvements are finished the entire building will be in use again.

LOYAL DAUGHTERS MEET.

At the home of Mrs. E. P. Thomas, 749 Belvidere avenue, on Wednesday afternoon, a meeting of the Loyal Daughters' Circle of the King's Daughters was held. The work of the organization during the past year was discussed and Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard spoke in behalf of the National Special Aid Society.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

At Tuesday's meeting of Court Plainfield, I. O. F., delegates were picked to represent the local lodge at the next meeting of the High Court of New Jersey to be held on April 5 at Somerville. The local lodge has also decided to change its meeting rooms and a committee has been appointed to secure new offices.

No Increase For Teachers Until 1918

The petition of the teachers in the local schools for an increase in salary to offset the increased cost of living have been favorably received by the Board of Education and there is every indication at the present time that that a sufficient sum will be set aside when the budget for the coming year is made up to allow for the increase. No definite action can be taken, however, until a meeting of the Joint Commission, composed of several members of the Board of Education and several councilmen, has been held to discuss the matter. The additional salaries will not be given until the beginning of the next school year.

MOSQUITO LECTURE.

In the auditorium of the Plainfield High School last evening, a lecture on "The War Against the New Jersey Mosquito" was given under the auspices of the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission and was largely attended.

The lecture outlined the plans for the coming year and showed what has been accomplished throughout Union county in the effort to rid this State of its worst enemy. The meeting last evening was a public one and the talk was profusely illustrated by lantern slides.

HOME FROM CUBA.

County Register and Mrs. Frank H. Smith, of this city, have returned from a short pleasure trip to Porto Rico, spending most of the time in the vicinity of San Juan. The local people were for a time the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, formerly of this city, and report existing conditions as being decidedly prosperous.

PARTY AND DANCE.

On Tuesday evening in Abrams' auditorium, a card party and dance will be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society. The date was decided upon at a meeting held last week at the home of Mrs. Morris Abrams, the vice president. Tickets may be secured from Mrs. Harry Dreier, Mrs. J. Abrams and Mrs. M. Feidler.

FRESHIES HERE.

The Rutgers Freshmen will visit the Plainfield High School this evening, to debate with the Red and Blue debaters. While this contest is not one regularly scheduled in the Rutgers League, it is expected that there will be a large representation on hand to cheer the local lads to victory.

Belgian Work Will Continue

The work of the Belgian Relief Committee in this city is going on as usual, although it was feared for a time that the international crisis would cause a cessation of the work. With the announcement that the representatives of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium had been ordered to leave Belgium and Northern France by the German authorities, came the fear that the work of assistance would have to come to an abrupt end.

However, a later announcement stated that if it were necessary, the work could be effectively carried on by the Spanish or Dutch authorities. Up to the present time, however, there has been no necessity of this move and the local people interested in the work have received assurances that the rumors of a forced cessation of the operations were unfounded. The fact that the work is going on as usual those interested in the movement locally have commenced with renewed vigor to aid the worthy cause.

Should the present strained situation between the United States and Germany become still more serious, it is considered probable that all relief work for the stricken Europeans would be supplanted by the needs of this country. A number of those interested in the Belgian Relief work are also active members of the National Special Aid Society and other leagues of women's service.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

James W. Irwin, of San Francisco, will give an illustrated lecture in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Society on Tuesday evening, March 6. Through the kindness of a Plainfield gentleman, Mr. Erwin's appearance has been made possible.

The lecturer will bring with him beautiful motion pictures of California, said to rival in beauty those of Mr. Elmendorf. No tickets will be sold for this affair, but contributions dropped in the basket at the door will be used to buy condensed milk for the refugee Belgian children.

ARGUE ON LABOR.

The North Plainfield High School was defeated in a debate with the St. Mary's Literary Club in the auditorium of the borough institution on Tuesday evening. The labor question formed the basis for argument.

It is the present plan to exhibit sporting goods chiefly.

The club is also preparing for the coming of the baseball season and expect to have a strong representative team on the diamond. Candidates were given their initial tryouts last week and as there are several trying for each berth there is sure to be a close fight for regular positions. As soon as weather conditions will permit outdoor work will be indulged in.

Following the lead of many other towns in various parts of the State, the teachers of North Plainfield have presented a petition to the Board of Education asking that they receive a substantial increase in salary. Biederwolf Opens at Lawrence, Mass

Dr. Biederwolf opened the sawdust trail at Lawrence, Mass., Monday in a men's meeting that broke all records, more than 600 men streaming down the aisles to grasp the evangelist's hand.

On the night previous, with flags flying and voices upraised in hymns, some five thousand people marched to the music of a brass band along the main street of the city from the tabernacle to Postoffice Square, where a brief open air meeting was held. The revival leader preached on "Filling Souls" and the audience was marshalled into columns for the big demonstration, the purpose being to invite people to the tabernacle services.

When Dr. Biederwolf delivered his address to men only on "The White Life," he was listened to with breathless attention for an hour and a quarter. Just before closing he told of a dying stage-driver who said deliriously that he was going downhill and couldn't find the brake. "Men of Lawrence," explained the evangelist, holding aloft a Bible, "you find the brake before it is too late. All of you who will try to live as God would have you to live, I wish you'd come right down here and take my hand." The meeting broke, and hundreds of men crowded the aisles from all parts of the building, for 22 minutes the evangelist was engaged in shaking hands with the men who had taken the stand for Jesus Christ, after which he said, "This was a great meeting. In all my experience of 22 years I have never had at a men's meeting such a response as I have had this afternoon."

READ THE PLAINFIELD RECORD

City Rallies to the Call Behind Taft

The Plainfield High School auditorium was filled to overflowing on Tuesday evening, when former President William Howard Taft addressed a monster patriotic meeting. It is estimated that fully a thousand people were forced to remain outside the building owing to lack of room.

The purpose of the meeting, identical with that of the letter to be sent to President Wilson, was to endorse the actions of the chief executive of the nation in severing diplomatic relations with Germany, and to inform him that the people of Plainfield were a a unit in whatever means he may deem fit to use in order to put an end to the crime and lawlessness of the European power. Mr. Taft who came at the personal invitation of former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, arrived about 8 o'clock and was entertained at dinner by Mr. Ackerman. The trip from New York City was made in the private car, "The Atlas."

At Mr. Taft's own request, he made a five minute address to those who were unable to get into the High School auditorium. In this talk, he gave a brief resume of what he had to say in the main speech of the evening. Following this Mr. Taft entered the auditorium and was greeted with prolonged applause. Small American flags were waved by the audience and Charles Suhr's Military Band dispensed patriotic airs. The demonstration accorded the former President was one the like of which has never before been witnessed here Patriotic songs printed on leaflets were distributed to the audience and with music furnished by the band, these were sung at various intervals during the evening.

Mayor Calkin's said in part: "I will not read the invitation to this meeting. It has been signed since Saturday by between 500 and 1,000 of our best known people, most of whom are in this audience.

"In a word it says that we are satisfied of the high purpose of the President to keep us out of war if it can be done; but that we place right and honor above peace and shall loyally suport the President to whatever extent as a last resort it may be necessary to employ force to resist crime and lawlessness, to defend the liberties of a free people and to protect American citizens in their peaceful and lawful pursuits. If war comes from doing that, let it come. We shall not side-step it.

"Our country faces a grave crises. Our President faces grave responsibilities. In this hour, when many powerful and un-American influences seek to create the impression that the country is divided on the basic question whether it is the duty of the Government to safeguard our known rights and American lives, and when some other well-meaning persons are loudly and constantly urging the President to avoid war at any price, it is time for all Americans who believe that a nation is dishonored which is unwilling to defend itself, to stand up and be seen, to speak out and say that there is a price which a free people will not pay, not even for peace.

"On such an occassion as this, at a meeting called to voice openly our support of the President, it is fitting that we should have with us one who himself has held that high office, the greatest in the gift of the people, and who filled it with conspicuous credit to himself and to the honor of his countrymen; one who, since he left it, has shown by his every act and utterance his profound love for peace, even though he believes that it is not self-executing and must sometimes be forced, and shown also his generous and keen desire to support those who are in authority He has served his country in more ways than most men, as Judge, Administrator, War-Secretary, as President of the United States. There is no man today in the public eye more respected, more loved, more trusted."

Mr. Taft was greeted by prolonged applause and said in part:

"Citizens are entitled to protection wherever they are. When they go on the high seas in American ships, flying the American flag, and are struck down, it is just as though the enemy had come into our own territory and, to preserve themselves kill our people. We cannot stand that.

"Germany has drowned, without warning, 200 of our American citizens. We withheld our hand on her pledge that she would change her policy, and kept out of war with her. Now she withdraws that pledge and has begun since the first of February a policy, to which she proposes to make no exceptions, which, if we pursue our rights, will lead to the drowning of many other Americans. This announcement of Germany has led the President to sever our diplomatic relations with her. In doing so, he struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the people. Now we are in the position of waiting to see whether Germany intends to carry out her declared intentions against us with the same ruthlessness that she is manifesting against other nations, both neutral and belligerant.

"The President has asked Congress for specific authority to arm our merchantmen and to take such other steps as he may deem wise to protect our citizens upon the seas. He says that he probably has the authority without the action of Congress, but he wishes to be strengthened by special Congressional action in the immediate case. Of course he should be given the authority and the money with which to exercise that authority. His purpose, as he frankly states it, is to avoid the necessity of summoning an extra session of Congress.

"With deference to the President, it seems to me that this is unwise. It may seem to minimize the issue. War, if it comes, can not be declared or carried on by the President alone. Constructive measures far more comprehensive than the one proposed will be needed and should be under consideration now. Action taken by the President without Congress in session will not have the same moral weight, and will not seem as fully expressive of the will of the people as when their representatives are sitting under the dome of the capitol, summoned in a great emergency to back our chief magistrate in the assertions and defense of our sacred national rights.

"It goes without saying that the President in his proposal to use force to maintain American rights has behind him the whole American people The time which has elapsed since the severance of our relations and the strong probability of war presented itself, has enabled to a small minority, but one very vociferous, to give the impression here and abroad that when the call comes from the President it will find a divided country behind him. Were this true, it would be more deplorable, but it is not true, and the President's call will prove its falsity."

SHACKAMAXSON ACTIVITIES.

Winter activities at the Shackamaxson Country Club are now in full swing, with skating the favorite form of diversion. A skating shed has been erected alongside the pond and anyone wanting to enjoy the fun first has to secure a permit from the officials of the club. Plans have already been started for the opening of the golfing season and improvements at "Lambert's Pond" for swimming are to be made as soon as the weather permits.

Small Board of Freeholders Again Becomes County Issue

Those persons in Union county who still favor the Small Board of Freeholder plan—a smaller board through which a districting policy would provide adequate representation for all municipalities—are turning their attention to a bill introduced into the State Legislature by Assemblyman Emmor Roberts, of Bellmawr. The measure has already passed the House on first and second readings. In the Senate it is expected that the measure will have the support of Senator Carlton B. Pierce. The fact that the bill has no mandatory provisions is expected to work in its favor when it comes up in the Senate for third reading.

Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson, speaking for the Union county Assemblymen, declared that Runyon, Morgan and he were backing the Roberts bill and proposed to do everything possible to have it enacted into law. "We believe it is a good bill. It overcomes what I believe has been the chief obstacle in the way of the adoption of a small board of freeholders in Union county—the lack of a districting plan. This bill has a districting clause. It provides adequate representation for all the municipalities of the county. I believe the people of Union should be given an opportunity to vote for a smaller board as provided for in the Roberts bill."

Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, has approved the measure. When it was pointed out that provision was made *for the district*ing of the county by a commission made up of the judge of the Court of Common Pleas, the sheriff and county clerk, Runyon said he could not see where that plan would meet with opposition. "Union county has asked for a small board act with a districting clause," said Runyon, "and that is provided for."

The Roberts bill provides:

That the county clerk of each county in which the act shall be adopted shall certify the same to the judge of the Court of Common Pleas and sheriff of the county, and that all three shall act as commissioners to divide the county into seven (the number of freeholders Union county will have under the act) districts, such districts to be of contiguous territory and so constituted as to comprise as nearly as practicable the same population according to the last preceding Federal or State census. In making such division no village, township, borough or ward of any town or city shall be divided.

That the said commissioners shall file a written report of their work with the justice of the Supreme Court holding the circuit within the county within sixty days after adoption of the act by the county, this report to set forth the population, according to the last Federal or State census, of the county and the several districts, and of the various parts of the district. This report shall be sufficient, if signed by a majority of the commissioners.

That the said justice may, on the coming in of the report, appoint a time and place for hearing objections to the filing of the report, or he may approve the report and order it to be filed with the county clerk without any hearing or notice. If a hearing is given, the commissioners shall attend, and if the justice considers that a fair division of the county has not been made, he may direct the commissioners to revise their report, after which he shall approve it and order it filed with the county clerk.

That after the filing of the report no changes shall be made until after the next Federal or State census shall have been promulgated, and thereafter not more than once in ten years, and that redistricting shall be made in the same way as the original districting and upon application by the board. The commissioners shall be paid by the Board of Chosen Freeholders such reasonable compensation as shall be fixed, and the Board of Chosen Freeholders shall also pay other expenses congected with the making of the division.

That there shall be seven members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders in counties having between 136,000 and 300,000 inhabitants (such as Union county). Such freeholders shall be elected by the votes of their respective districts at the general election of each year, commencing with the next general election after the adoption of the act, and they shall hold office for three years from the first Monday of January next after their election and until their successors are elected and qualified, provided that at the first election in each county that adopts this act, the members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders shall be elected as follows: (For Union county) two for the term of one year, two for the term of two years, and three for the term of three years.

That the commissioners in any county adopting this act shall indicate in their report to the Supreme Court justice the length of the term candidates shall be elected for in each district at the first election, which designation shall be a part of their report (this settles such county).

That the salaries of members of the board in counties having between 135,000 and 300,000 inhabitants shall be $1,800, such salaries to be payable in equal monthly installments, and to be in lieu of all fees or other compensation and expenses except actual disbursements for traveling expenses to an amount not exceeding $200 a year. This amount may be allowed and paid when a fully itemized statement thereof, duly sworn to, is presented to the board. And it shall be unlawful for any member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders to receive any compensation, fee or reward for his service other than his annual salary.

That any vacancy occurring in any of the boards shall be filled by the remaining members of the board until the first Monday in January, following the first election after the adoption of this act, except those protected by the tenure of office and civil service acts. And in making appointments of their successors the Boards of Chosen Freeholders may designate, by resolution or ordinance, the terms for which they are appointed, not to exceed in any law.

That all acts or parts of acts, both general and special, inconsistent with this act be and the same are repealed hereby, provided that none of the aforegoing provisions of this act shall take effect in any county until the act has been adopted by a vote of the legal voters of such county. The act may be submitted to the voters at any election for members of the General Assembly in either one of the following ways: (1) any Board of Chosen Freeholders may, by resolution of the board, determine to submit the question of the adoption of this act; or (2) when a petition for submission of the act, signed by at least five per cent. of the qualified voters of a county, as evidenced by the total number of votes cast at the then next preceding election for member of General Assembly, shall have been filed with the clerk of the county.

That notice of the submission of the question shall be given as is required to be given of the general election, and the legal voters of the county may, at such election, decide upon the acceptance or rejection of this act by voting on the official ballot either "Yes" or "No" to the proposition, "Shall the Small Board of Freeholders" Act by the district plan approved in 1917 be adopted?"

That if there should be a majority of votes cast in favor of the adoption of this act, but not otherwise, this act shall take effect in such county immediately.

That this act shall take effect im*mediately as regards the submission* thereof to popular vote as aforesaid.

WANT TO BE CITIZENS.

Tuesday night was the first time since the present war crisis that Plainfield's Greek colony have had a chance to show their loyalty to the United States and they did it by flocking to Elizabeth in such numbers that the county clerk's office handled applications at the rate of one every two minutes for two hours. Sixty-three were on hand at 7 o'clock and 9 o'clock, and the record room had to be thrown open to take care of the crowd.

*Most of this city's foreign popula*tion has been brought here by the big boom in all the factories. It is estimated that in the last few years several thousand have made their homes here.

Railroad Jobs Now Are Going Begging

For the first time in many years the C. R. R. of N. J. is making a public offer to those who are out of work. Whether the officials of the road are preparing for an emergency in case the eight-hour law causes a strike or whether the business of the road is increasing, the fact remains that signs are posted in conspicuous places at the various stations along the line informing the general public that those desiring positions of any nature have only to tell the station agent and he will do the rest.

Among the positions open are those of firemen, engineers, switchmen, trackwalkers and about anything else a railroad needs. Each agent will refer all applications to the proper departments and will receive their reply from the agent.

Fall Program Being Planned

Early activities among the politicians of the county point to a warm campaign this fall, with Plainfield candidates for office taking a prominent part.

Already there are no less than five mentioned as possible candidates for sheriff. These are Freeholder Elias F. Applegate, father of the Freeholder probe; Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, of this city; Under Sheriff James Warner, of Cranford; Joseph H. Neill, of Elizabeth, and John H. Cose, of this city. Cose made a creditable run for the nomination three years ago. The present incumbent of the sheriff's office, George C. Otto, is going to try for surrogate. It is not definite known whether Surrogate Farrot, who has held the office for twenty-five years, is going to look for renomination. If he so decides Sheriff Otto will have a fight on his hands.

Ten Eyck R. Beardsley, of Fanwood, who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Assembly in 1914, is said to be shaping up for a run for State Senator. Beardsley's friends figure that a Democrat will have a good chance to win out this fall because of the break between State Senator Carlton B. Pierce and the Republican organization.

A little while ago an Elizabeth Democrat, recognizing the fact that the Republican party had been successful in making a butcher a very popular sheriff, decided that his party might fall in line in the coming sheriffalty campaign and proposed the name of William W. Schalitz, of Orchard street, Elizabeth, as a possible candidate. The present sheriff, George C. Otto, was engaged in the butcher business in Court street, Elizabeth, for many years. He developed into a formidable candidate first for the Assembly, later for freeholder, and three years ago for sheriff. Otto's friends declare that his smile and his affability got him by. Friends of "Billy" Schalitz declare that the Schalitz smile is infectious, that "Billy" radiates affability, and that if good nature is a forerunner to political success the Orchard street man is bound to make a tremendous bit.

Talented Singer Will Appear Here Tuesday

Betsy Lane Shepherd, one of the younger of America's talented singers, will appear at the Plainfield High School Tuesday night in a concert for the benefit of Plainfield music lovers. Miss Shepherd is a talented soprano and in the past year has gained considerable prominence by her concert and oratorio work.

No admission will be charged for the recital, Miss Shepherd coming here under the management of Vogel & Briggs, of West Front street. Those wishing to attend may secure tickets from Mr. Vogel or Mr. Briggs as long as the supply lasts by communicating with them.

COMMISSION TO MEET.

A meeting of the Research and Advisory Committee on the planning of city improvements will be held Monday night, when Councilmen Charles Sminck and Theodore Martin, together with City Engineer Gavett, will lay before the commission data regarding the causes leading to the flood conditions existing in various parts of the city. The commission has decided to first devote its attention in an effort to prevent the periodical floods, and afterward the parks, street widenings and other improvements will be considered.

TRAFFIC NOT HINDERED.

Plainfield has been little affected by the railroad congestion throughout the country, but if anything this work has been put on an even better footing. The scarcity of freight cars make the quick handling of goods at the freight house imperative and at the present time there are fewer cars in the yard than there has been in years. Some difficulty is experienced once in a while in obtaining empty cars for local shippers but the delay is only a few days at the most.

Mayor Shares 'Blame' for the 'Roundup'

Mayor Leighton Calkins gave out the following statement regarding snow removal throughout the city, to a representative of the Record today:

"It is natural to be annoyed when invited to appear before the city judge for violation of the snow-removal ordinance. But really it is *stretching a point to show resent*ment. The judge and the officials who report the violations are entitled to some sympathy. They are but performing a disagreeable duty, in a manner wholly impersonal, and are in no way responsible for the predicament in which worthy citizens occasionally find themselves not so much through intention as oversight. I wish to share whatever unpopularity attaches to the vigorous campaign which we are prosecuting this winter for cleared sidewalks. In fact I will assume the whole blame.

"A considerable effort was made last winter to improve conditions. Not only did we advertise the ordinance, but in several statements to which the local papers gave prominence, I carefully summarized the requirements and gave notice of our purpose to enforce the law. It requires ice to be covered with sand, ashes or sawdust, with 4 hours of daylight after it forms; and snow and ice to be removed with 12 hours of daylight after it falls or forms. Owners and tenants are both liable. A fine is the penalty for violation; and in addition to imposing a fine the city may do the work and charge for it on the tax bills.

"In previous years the judge has been embarrassed in doing his part to back up the police, because the

Explains New Board System

Acting County Attorney Francis J. Blatz, of this city, recently pointed out the steps which the 1917 Board of Chosen Freeholders have taken to put into effect a more efficient business system, as was recommended by the Grand Jury in its presentment. Although Mr. Blatz enumerated specific instances in which the board adopted the recommendations later proposed by the Grand Jury, it was his belief that now the whole method of managing county affairs was on a sound basis.

In the first place, it was strongly recommended that each committee be compelled to keep a minute book of its proceedings so that the records of the work of the committees shall be open to the full board for inspection. At the very first meeting of the year the new director, George G. Teller, made this recommendation and most of the committees reported that they had been doing this for some time past. Since that time practically all of the committees have adopted this practice.

Ever since the investigation of the county affairs began the county attorney has been attending the meetings of the board to direct the membership in all legal propositions that may arise. Any questions arising now are immediately passed on by the county attorney, as was recom*mended in the Grand Jury's present*ment.

Other changes in the board's conduct of county affairs date from the meeting on January 1, when Director Teller asked the board to take to heart the "lessons learned in 1916." Committees make monthly reports now on the work they have done during the month, and nearly every financial need is provided for beforehand by authorisation of the full board.

Whenever any resolution is presented to the board which calls for expenditures of money, the question is now asked, "Mr. Director, don't we need a roll-call vote on that?" and the vote has been taken.

Suggestions For 'School Visit Week'

As was stated exclusively in the Record last Friday, next week has been designated as "Visit-the-Schools-Week" by Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall and has asked the local schools to co-operate. He has sent the following suggestions to Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson:

"The older children, as a part of their work in English and drawing, should prepare invitations to parents and others to visit the schools. These invitations may set forth that while the schools are ready to receive visitors at any time, this particular week has been designated as "Visit-the-Schools Week."

"The public, as a rule, is interested in the regular work of the schools. It is therefore suggested that teachers follow their usual schedules. It is not necessary to prepare a special program for any day or session. The preparation of special programs, with rehearsals, would interfere with the regular work of the schools and might place a heavy burden upon teachers.

"Committees of children should be appointed to receive visitors, to escort them to the various activities of the schools, to see that they are provided with seats and places for their wraps. Children, as well as teachers, should act as hosts. This will be good social training.

"Since many will probably be unable *to visit the schools in the day*time, one session might be held in the evening if the building has lighting facilities. Friday evening might be used for this purpose and the work might be a duplication, perhaps, of a regular afternoon session.

"A record should be kept of the number of visitors—men and women —and this record should be reported to the city or county superintendent. The older children of each school should take charge of making this brief report to the superintendent.

"The Board of Education, superintendent, principals and teachers should see that newspapers give publicity to the week. Clergymen might be asked to give out notices concerning it from their pulpits on the Sunday preceding."

SCARLET FEVER PREVALENT.

The monthly report of the local Board of Health shows that there are at the present time five cases of scarlet fever under quarantine, an exceptionally large number for this season of the year. Since the first of the year there has been a total of twelve cases scattered over various parts of the city. While this is beyond the usual number prevalent, there is no danger of an epidemic, according to the health authorities.

VISITING AT CALDWELL.

Oliver Pearson, of Manson place, has gone to Caldwell, where he will spend sometime with his brother. Mr. Pearson is one of the oldest local mail carriers in point of service, but has been seriously ill for several months.

Graphic Account of Local Boy's War Adventures

One of the most interesting bits of descriptive information from the European war front that has reached Plainfield comes in a letter to the Hon. George Woodward Wickersham, of New York city, from A. Platt Andrew concerning the activities of Lyman Hibbard, the latter's nephew, in the American Ambulance Field Service. Mr. Wickersham has forwarded the missive to Henry D. Hibbard, of this city, father of the youthful adventurer. The communication is dated Paris, February 18, and carries a first hand account of the trials the American volunteers have to put up with in serving the French government as ambulance drivers.

Lyman Hibbard left Plainfield early in December and has been at the French front ever since. He was a private in Troop D, First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry, at the Mexican border during the past summer and returned home too late to resume his studies at the opening of the fall term in Harvard University. He had considered a trip to Europe while at the international line and gained the consent of his parents when the troops arrived back in Jersey.

"I want to send you just a line in acknowledgement of the pleasant note which you sent with your nephew, Lyman Hibbard, and also in appreciation of your having helped to send him to us. I saw him this week in the little village of Dombasle, near Verdun, where his section is located. His car has already been pierced by several pieces of shell and he has evidently shown qualities of courage and pluck which have won for him the respect and liking of the older men of the section. The boys were living in a little village in which there is scarcely a roof or a wall intact, a very unpromising habitation in the frightful cold through which France has been passing the past month. They had covered the second floor of a ruined house with tar paper and tacked up boards and blankets over what were once windows and in a large old fireplace they had built the other night a roaring fire of pieces of bedsteads, chair armatres and beds from neighboring houses and before this the fellows were gathered while an orchestra with violin, guitar, eukelele and mandolin (the latter played by Lyman), went through a long repertoire of American songs. It was a picture that appealed to one's imagination, this group of American youths, some from the University of Virginia, some from Harvard, some from Princeton, some from other universities gathered in the ruins of a house in France and singing and playing American songs while the French and German guns rumbled outside."

Scout Camp Site May Be Changed

With the approach of warmer weather Boy Scout activities in this city are increasing and plans are being laid for several changes during the spring and summer. One of the *most important moves is the estab*lishing of a camp to be located at some distance from the city and with water suitable for swimming and boating nearby.

When the Scout movement was first organized in this city on the present basis William Coriell donated the use of land on Terrill road and a number of local men interested erected a camp. All last summer the place was used by the Scouts, who camped there two weeks at a time, but its closeness to Plainfield and the lack of water proved to be drawbacks.

Already a number of locations for a possible camp in different parts of the State have been examined but as yet no definite announcement regarding the matter has been made.

If the executive Boy Scout committee does decide to establish another summer outing place it does not mean that the present one will be done away with, but will probably be used by boys who only wish to bivouac over each week-end.

Trolley Line Halted by War

That South Plainfield might now be connected with this city by trolley if it were not for the European war became known this week when it was learned that Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, had given that as a partial reason for not co-operating with the Spicer Manufacturing Company in the construction of a line. It was also learned that the officials of the Spicer concern were contemplating the financing of a trolley line, but this could not be confirmed as efforts to locate Charles Dana, the president, by telephone were futile.

The Spicer officials have been endeavoring for the past five or six years to persuade the Public Service to extend the trolley to South Plainfield, not alone for the benefit of the plant but for the residents as well. Until the war broke out and even after, the People's Railway were interested and even went over the ground on a minuts inspection last fall.

*It was only recently that it be*came known that the Public Service would not finance the building or any extension and since then Mr. Dana, has been considering several other means of getting better transportation for South Plainfield. It may be possible that the concern will take the responsibility of constructing the new system, as the officials are of the opinion that it would be a paying proposition, beside relieving them of the transportation of men to and from this city.

Cornell Men Will Hold Smoker Tonight

The Cornell men of Northern New Jersey, including a number from Plainfield, will gather at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, for their annual meeting and smoker tonight.

During the last few months the Newark Cornell Club, under the leadership of Charles F. Landmesser, '06, president, has gradually taken on a new lease of life and is today an active organization, with over 300 graduates of the university upon its rolls. It numbers among its members many men prominent in local civic and business affairs, not only of Newark, but of the Oranges, Montclair, Elizabeth, etc.

For the annual meeting an especially interesting program has been arranged. Dean Ernest C. Kimball, of the engineering department, is to speak upon the position and duty of the university in modern life. Moving pictures will be shown of university life. "Nym" Berry, chairman of the Intercollegiate A. A. A., will speak. Stunts will be given by one or two members, and music will be provided by former members of the university musical clubs. A buffet lunch and "smokes" will be furnished.

*The committee includes H. B. Sch*arhardt, '08; W. G. Mennen, '08; C. H. Blood, '98; A. J. Whinery, '10; W. D. Clark, '08, and representative members in the nearby cities.

Championship Claim Renews Old Dispute

Leaders in sport activities at both the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools are marshalling their cohorts and tightening their belts in preparation for another of the frequent bouts between the two institutions. This time it was the borough legions who started the controversy by proclaiming the N. P. H. S. maidens as feminine basketball champions of the city. That assertion drew forth a retort from the Ninth street institution disputing the claim, but there the matter stands.

Because the managers of the girls' teams of P. H. S. and N. P. H. S. could not agree early in the season, the annual series between the two schools as far as the girls are concerned was called off and the Plainfield girls feel that they have as much right to the title of champion as North Plainfield. A new effort was made this week as a result of the dispute to arrange a series but the same old difficulty arose, North Plainfield insisting on playing without the side centre and Plainfield demanding six players or none at all. It will be the first time in years that the two teams have not met to decide inter-High School title.

Judge Crane Takes Office

With ceremonies befitting the occasion J. Henry Crane, the new judge of the Plainfield district court, was inducted into office Wednesday morning. The event was the most appropriate and impressive affair of its nature in this judiciary and was attended by a representative gathering of the members of the Plainfield Bar Association, citizens and city officials. The retiring judge, Walter L. Hetfield, occupied the bench with his successor and was the recipient of a floral token presented by the Bar Association.

Numerous floral tributes, including two immense horseshoes, bedecked the desk of the new incumbent and he was also presented with a silver mounted gavel by Judge William G. DeMeza, his partner in the practise of law. The wreath of the Bar Association was presented by President William Nowcorn, the first judge of the local district court.

In his valedictory address Judge Hetfield emphasized the importance of this court and related several personay experiences that occurred during his term. He reviewed incidents to indicate the status the district court holds in the eyes of law practitioners and concluded his speech by turning over the gavel to Mr. Crane.

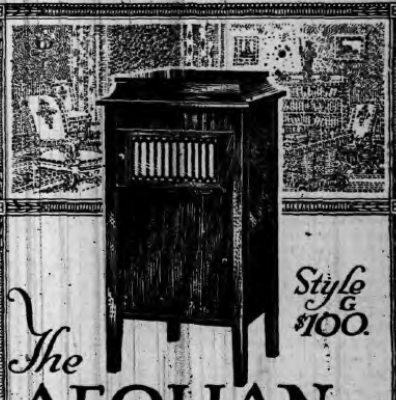
Judge Crane's salutory speech was one pledging his every effort to faithfully discharge the duties trusted to him and he reaffirmed Judge Hetfield's opinion of the court's importance.

SCHOOL BUDGET INCREASED.

At the last meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education a tentative budget of $47,729.87 was drawn up to be presented to the voters at the annual election on March 20. That figure is an advance of approximately $9,000 over last year and is partly caused by the petition of the teachers asking for an increase in salaries. Every department asked for an increased appropriation, in some cases it being nearly 100 per cent. more.

LOCAN MEN NAMED.

This section of the State is largely represented on the committee appointed by Governor Edge this week to assist the State Department of Conservation and Development. Among the appointees are Arthur B. Jones, James R. Joy and William G. Besler, of this city, and Edward Harding, of Fanwood.



Style G $100.

The AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph of Richer Tone That You Can Play

Tonal richness and fidelity distinguish the Vocalion. Deep voices of the orchestra that the talking machine intones but dully, high notes of the human voice that have sounded so thinly from your records—these and all the tonal beauties with which music is enriched, the Aeolian-Vocalion re-voices undimmed in splendor, unchanged in subtlest quality.

AND THE WONDERFUL

GRADUOLA

This remarkable invention, second in importance only to the invention of the phonograph itself, has made the Vocalion truly a musical marvel. Through the delicate tone-control which this ingenious device provides, you literally may sing with the voices of the greatest artists—play with the skill and technique of the greatest instrumentalists.

All Models of the Vocalion Are Sold on Liberal Charge Terms

The Aeolian-Vocalion is on exhibition and sale, in New York, only at Aeolian Hall. Whether or not you are a possible purchaser, you are cordially invited to hear the instrument demonstrated

PLAINFIELD, N. J., MARCH 9, 1917.

BOARD OF HEALTH'S SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY.

William Addis, Sr., aged seventy-seven years, retired as plumbing inspector for the local Board of Health on March 1, voluntarily admitting that he was too old to longer perform the duties of the office satisfactorily. He is a Civil War veteran and unusually active for a man of his years.

The Board of Health has appointed as his successor a man who is approximately the same age as Mr. Addis and who is also a veteran of the Civil War. He is now performing the same duties as his predecessor at the same annual salary. He has already arrived at the age where his years of usefulness are numbered and where retirement from public office is usually sought.

The new man may be well qualified to conduct the duties of the office; he may have sufficient confidence in himself to believe that he is capable of serving the city efficiently for years to come; and while he is plumbing inspector he may earn every cent of the $1,000 annual salary.

To the average citizen the policy of the Board of Health in retiring one man who had learned by experience that age hampered him in his daily routine and appointing a successor of about the same age was a mighty short-sighted one. The Board of Health officials did not look far into the future when they authorized the expenditure of $1,000 out of their annual appropriation for a plumbing inspector whose term will naturally be limited.

When they break into the seventies some men are more active than others but the general rule of appointing men in the prime of life to public office is a good one to abide by. For a man of seventy-seven Mr. Addis ranks above the average in physical ability but his experience with the duties of plumbing inspector caused him to arrive at the conclusion that his age was against him.

Would it not have been better for the Board of Health to have at least attempted to single out some young man qualified for this work? A plumbing inspector is an important asset to the Board of Health routine and the appointee should "grow-up" in the office as Mr. Addis has.

BEST SOLUTION TO FREEHOLDER PROBLEM.

The bill now before the State Legislature to divide counties up into districts removes the one chief objection to the Small Board of Freeholder policy in Union county. Heretofore it has been contended that the small board plan would give larger cities an unfair advantage in the county board but an intelligent division of the county into districts by a competent committee eliminates this argument. Counties the size of Union would be provided with seven districts, one member from each being elected to the Freeholder board at a salary of $1,800 annually.

The judge of the Court of Common Pleas, the county clerk and the county sheriff would be entrusted with the division work and the bill also provides that their decision may be brought to the attention of the Supreme Court for ratification. This solution gives the smaller city the same advantage as the larger one and enables it to have the same power in the Board of Freeholders.

A salary of $1,800 with enough extra to cover additional expenses is adequate to induce competent men to run for office and to gain officials who will devote their entire time and energy to the performance of this important unit of county work.

The bill also provides for a vote of the people on the proposition and if it successfully passes the Legislature there is no reason to believe that it will be turned down by the Union county voters next fall. It is the only feasible solution to a problem that has been before this county for years and it affords the opportunity to place the Board of Freeholders on a more efficient basis.

CHEERING SECTION ALWAYS WITH US.

At the outset of a war there is usually a set of irresponsibiles who lead a stempede toward disaster by some popular cry: "On to Richmond!" in 1861; or "On to Berlin!" in 1870. The shouters are neither those who are in command nor those who obey. They are the "cheering section" at the game who came to enjoy the thrills of the contest without suffering any of its bumps. Being the cheering section, they naturally desire thrills as early and as often as possible, regardless of the cost—to others. Lincoln used to say that the people who know exactly what ought to be done were never in a position to do it. His words are as true of 1917 as they were in 1862.

In the early days of the Civil War there was a mem*ber of the "On to Richmond!" cheering section who un*intentionally encountered one of the bumps of the game, with a result which is easy to guess. He was a Congressman who had delivered so many fiery "On to Richmond!" speeches that he resolved, with two brethren of like faith, to go on to Richmond with the Union Army—in a carriage. He went as far as Bull Run. When that dire rout began, his carriage was lost, and he started, with the rest, to run all the way back to Washington. Younger men ran faster, leaving him far to the rear. Still he ran, imagining the enemy close behind. Finally, as he jumped over a log, a Union soldier stepped on the tail of his linen duster. The two went down in a heap, soldier on top of Congressman, and up from the duster came this plaintive bleat: "Hang it all! Can't this dispute be compromised?"

Thrills are a luxury of non-combatants. Those who do the real work, in peace or in war, are too busy to bother about highfalutin notions. And it is just possible that were Germany's boundaries next to our own not a few of the noisiest irresponsibles would be silent or absent—somewhere in the middle of the Middle West.

Talk which is not steadied by a sense of vital responsibility is a spread of sail without any ballast in the hold; and at the first puff of disaster, over goes the craft. The holding of public office steadies the speech and conduct of most men, yet we have citizens among us who have held the highest offices in the land, whose talk, on occasion, can be as wild and irresponsible, as fraught with possibilities of mischief, as the adversaries they so frantically denounce. The present is, of all times, the hour for them to weigh their words.

PASS SHINGLE ORDINANCE; AVERT THE INEVITABLE.

Citing the disastrous Tier fire of a few weeks ago as an example Councilman Graves has requested the Common Council to consider the passage of a "shingle ordinance." Such a measure designed to prohibit the shingling of roofs, particularly in the business section, would eliminate such dangers as presented themselves during the progress of the Tier blaze. Dry shingles are one of the chief causes of blazes spreading from one structure to another and fires have been known to wipe out an entire district in big cities for the reason that the authorities have neglected to properly protect their buildings by the establishment of just such an ordinance as Mr. Graves proposes.

Are we going to wait until the inevitable happens or are we going to take the precaution in time? The abolition of shingle roofs will eventually prove its worth. There are buildings in the business section of Plainfield with flammable roofs and if one of these catches fire the next to it is almost certain to feel the effects. Slate or tile roofing acts as a guard against the spread of flames and no building permit should be issued locally until the prospective builder agrees to use some roofing other than shingles.

The matter now rests with the Common Council and action on the matter should be taken at once. The subject has been broached previously but nothing has been done with it. The time for action has come and we have a right to expect that the ordinance will be passed.

WILL W. R. CODINGTON RESIGN AS ATTORNEY?

Whether or not William R. Codington will resign as county attorney, in accordance with an agreement he is said to have made with the Board of Freeholders, is the problem troubling members of the Board just at present. It is alleged that Mr. Codington agreed to resign April 1 when he was last reappointed but he is said to be disposed to continue the position after a stay in the South, which benefitted his health. Those lawyers from the other end of the county having designs on the job are pressing the Freeholders to demand his resignation and make a new appointment but even if he does resign it is only right to expect that Plainfield will again be favored with the appointment as Francis J. Blatz, the present assistant attorney, is qualified to succeed Mr. Codington and is rightfully entitled to the office. However, Mr. Blatz is placed in a peculiar position, being the law partner of the present incumbent. He has made no overtures for the appointment other than to lodge his claim for consideration in case Mr. Codington resigns.

The entire question hinges around the Codington resignation and if he made the agreement described with the Freeholders he should step from office April 1. Mr. Blatz is entitled to the appointment when it is made and nothing should be considered in the opposite end of the county to block his appointment.

THIS IS A TIME FOR SERIOUS THOUGHT.

In the past few weeks—and days—startling events and still more startling disclosures have stirred the public mind as it has not been stirred since the sinking of the Lusitania. The self-control of the American people in the face of such staggering revelations has been as remarkable as it has been praiseworthy. A sobering sense of responsibility has steadied all but a very few. These few only have indulged in irresponsible talk.

In a situation as grave as the present one, irresponsible talk is, of all things, the most unsuitable. The rank and file of people are keeping quiet and thinking hard. It is only a small fraction who believe they know exactly what everybody, from the President down to the rawest recruit, ought to do.

This is not a time for arm-chair strategists to lay down their conflicting laws that "what we need" is instant declaration of war, or sweeping repeal of free speech, or instant arrest of all alien citizens, or immediate conscription, or expeditionary armies to France, or Naval convoys. The decisions must be made by responsible men. And the less clamor from the irresponsibles the better.

Next Monday will open "Visit-the-Schools Week" in Plainfield and every parent should make it a point to pay a visit to the institution in which his or her child is registered. An excellent opportunity will thus be afforded for conferences between the home element and the classroom element and the amount of good that may come from such meetings is inestimable. Weeks devoted to this feature should be held frequently throughout the school year and the visits of parents to the schools should be encouraged more generally in Plainfield. Oftentimes a misunderstanding between a teacher and a child will result in backwardness in studies whereas a personal explanation on the part of the parent of the peculiarities of the scholar might aid in supplying a remedy that will bring the child's grades up to standard.

Within six weeks Plainfield's new postoffice will be ready for occupancy, according to the government superintendent of construction in charge of the work. The public will then have the advantage of a ideally appointed and thoroughly modern building and the conveniences therein offered should greatly facilitate mail deliveries. The modern features should furnish a remedy to the causes of complaint existing now and the public should have no cause to criticize the handling of its mail matter in the local office in the future. One new feature will be the transportation of outgoing and incoming mail from the depot to the postoffice by the railroad authorities and this will undoubtedly lead to the construction of a driveway to the eastbound station on the Watchung avenue side.

Senator Frelinghuysen declares that he will consider the facts first, then make up his mind, as to the advisability of favoring a Senate rule to permit closure of debate.

The whole world faced the facts on this question last Sunday noon, Senator, and very shortly thereafter the whole world made up its mind on the issue. Unlimited debate in the Senate has talked itself to death under circumstances that debar it from interment in consecrated ground. It calls for speedy burial, indeed, and the shorter the ritual the better.

The remedy is simple. It is recognized and indorsed by parliamentary practice. There must be provided a means of recording in the Senate the majority will upon every measure for which the Senate, by its very nature and duties, is responsible. There is no escape.

Yes, the facts are perfectly plain. To oppose closure is to set the seal of one's approval upon Sunday's ignominy. The knell of unlimited debate in the Senate has been tolled. To buy it at once is a measure of public sanitation, and we have no doubt when the test comes, Senator Frelinghuysen will not be found on the side of unlimited debate and its attendant evils.—Newark Evening News.

Excellent work on the part of the city street department prevented any serious tie-up during the recent snow storm. Traffic in nearby cities was at a standstill for twenty-four hours in several instances simply due to the inefficient handling of the snow clearance work at crossings and in the business section. This storm was undoubtedly the most severe of the year but no ill-effects were felt locally. The vigilance of the street commissioner in rounding up delinquents failing to clear their sidewalks continued but the number was noticeably smaller. Private individuals aided the city in furnishing paths for pedestrians and the city employes were kept at work in the business section transforming the roads into passable shape.

Other Jersey municipalities may well emulate the example of Plainfield in organizing just such gatherings as were held in the Plainfield High School recently to gain the sentiment of their inhabitants on matters American. Mayor Leighton Calkins was thoughtful enough to place a full report of the meeting addressed by former President Taft before the Bureau of Information of the New Jersey League of Municipalities, of which he is a vice-president, and the data is being kept on file for the benefit of other towns desiring to conduct similar affairs. This is another of the many examples of the opportunities Mayor Calkins takes advantage of to advertise the city and herald its progressiveness throughout the State.

Although James E. Martine has doffed official robes in Washington word has been passed around locally during the last week to the effect that Orator "Jim" will establish a permanent residence at the national capital. County democratic mogula anticipated his services during next fall's campaign and they still hold out hopes that he will return to Plainfield during the heated period and stump for his party. It goes without saying that his appearance will lend emphasis to the Democratic cause and if we are going to be deprived of the genial "Jim" by Washington attractions it is to be hoped that he will see fit to make his visits to Jersey more frequent than during the past six years.

"There is some talk of reviving the cadet corps at the Plainfield High School, this being one of the results of the patriotic meetings held in this city TOMORROW night."—Courier-News rewrite of story which appeared in the Record last Friday.

Remarkable! Especially so because of the fact that the tomorrow night referred to had passed into the unknown beyond six days previously. Then, too, the cadet corps' revival article was related to the patriotic meeting in the same way as Hezekiah Gazelle, the leading character in the "Pioneers of Plainfield," was related to the Kaiser.

There was little surprise manifested this week when it was announced that Carlton B. Pierce had again ignored Plainfield in the making of a remunerative State appointment. The nomination of a Summit man to the tax board vacancy left by the retirement of William A. Coddington is just another link in the chain of unpopularity Mr. Pierce is forming at this end of the county. By all rights of precedent and average Plainfield was entitled to the plum and the fact that it did not come this way is cause for the present senator's votes going elsewhere next fall.

Postal cards of the new State Trust Company building have appeared in Plainfield carrying a highly artistic portrayal of the structure and showing a forest scene on each side. Although trees are admittedly getting fewer each day it's a pity the artist's imagination didn't lead him to paint a potato or onion patch instead of the forest.

Senator James E. Martine's Valedictory to The United States Senate

Mr. President and Senators, in a few days I shall say good-by to you—farewell, but not forgotten. Hence forth I shall come to this Chamber only as a visitor through your kindness and your courtesy. I have been defeated in my ambition to succeed myself as a Senator from the State of New Jersey, though through a process in which I firmly believe—a process that in my humble way in my State I helped to install—the election of United States Senators by the vote of the people. I believe in it, and I bow in all graciousness to the people's fiat.

I frankly say I regret to leave this association. I regret to leave you, Senators. Pleasant memories will ever come to me of your fellowship and your kindness, both in Democratic and Republican ranks.

My action here in this great body has been open and above-board. My every vote has been the result of conscientious judgment and deliberate thought. I have no excuse, apology, equivocation, or retraction for any vote I have cast in the Senate. I would cast them all over again under similar circumstances had I the opportunity. I have cast no vote with a view to selfish ends or personal benefit. As a Senator of the United States I feel that I have had an eye single and alone to the welfare of my country, my State, and the advancement of the principles of the great Democratic Party.

In some instances I have been criticized for not voting with my party. They were not on party questions or party principles. In each such instance my vote and action have been prompted from high and lofty convictions and as my conscience and my judgment bade me. Since I alone would be held responsible for the results of my vote, I must rely alone upon my conscience and judgment to guide my action.

I thank God that as each year has elapsed in my life hate and prejudice have lessened their hold on me; partisan ties bind less firmly, to me my country is first, until today, I thank heaven, I can see a Christian in every creed under God's sun, and I can see a patriot and a statesman in every country on God's footstool.

I yield to no man in my fealty and love to the principles of the Democratic Party; and it does not lie in the mouth of any man to criticize my course toward my party, even though I have not always voted with you. Since I was 18 years old I have contended for my party's cause. But once since my majority have I failed to vote at the primaries in my State, and also since my majority I have never failed to vote at any election, National, State, or local.

Mr. President, I was a Democrat at a time when it tried men's souls in New Jersey to stand, yes, when many of my critics were worshipping all sorts of false gods and idols, on every side. I love the principles of the Democratic Party, and so long as my strength may hold out I shall press them before the people.

I sincerely regret that during my term I might not have done more to beautify this the Capitol of our country. I trust in the near-by future we may see the various bureaus and departments housed in buildings of the Government, lining Pennsylvania avenue. This I urge both in the matter of economy and the beautification of the city.

Mr. President, how quickly the six years have passed since first I came to this august body. When first I entered the portals of this Chamber a most profound atmosphere seemed to prevail, a sort of stifled, oppressed feeling came over me; but as I got my bearings this discomfiture rapidly passed away. It was explained to me afterwards by one who has since passed away that this was owing to the presence of greatness in the Chamber. Involuntarily I exclaimed, "Oh, God!" The distinguished Senator from Ohio, Mr. Burton, was addressing the Senate in deep sepulcher tones, telling of the shortcomings of the Democratic Party and also enlarging on the wrongs of the river and harbor measure, and as the Senator rattled off the names of river after river in jest and scorn, and with freedom and glibness that a babe would cry, "Mamma, Mamma," I noted he never once mentioned the River Jordon. In view of his jest and ridicule of God's waterways, I have wondered, could he have had doubts and misgivings of ever crossing that sacred stream.

Mr. President, before I became a member of this body I had grown to believe that above each senatorial head was a little "halo," in the glow of which one might read, in letters of living light, the words "Infallible," "Infallible." But, Mr. President, in light of six years' experience with you, listening to your moments of wisdom, your quips and your jests, I am now profoundly impressed with the thought that you are wonderfully human after all. But seriously, Mr. President, and without question, this United States Senate is the "greatest deliberative body" in the world; at least, we think so. I do not, nor never have I, believed that all the wisdom was on our side of this Chamber; but may I be pardoned if I say that I feel most of it is on the Democratic side, for we hold a majority of the members. You see it is largely a question of majority.

Mr. President, I have been further greatly impressed with the fact that this body is a splendid school from which to imbibe knowledge and learning, and if our constituencies might be induced to let us remain in this presence a little longer there might be hope for many of us in the realm of knowledge and wisdom.

Another thought comes to me. I know of no presence so well calculated to take out a man's egotism, as is this Chamber. Now, I am one who believes that a reasonable amount of egotism is necessary in the make-up of a man in order that he shall maintain his self-respect.

Mr. President, may I here say that I have led a fairly respectable and orderly life in my community and State. I felt that I had, yes, I know I have had the respect of my friends and neighbors, as a man, with honesty of purposes and convictions, with courage to stand for what I believe to be right. But, lo! Mr. President, since my occupancy of this righ and honorable office, the highest in the gift of the splendid State of New Jersey, I have read in cold type, from unbridled pens, that I was an "accident," a "joke," a "mountebank," a "buffoon," a "disgrace to the United States Senate." These were the actual printed words. But, Mr. President, they have never dared say that James E. Martine was a moral coward or a pretender. I feel that a fit answer to these villianous and cowardly attacks is the fact that in the senatorial primaries of New Jersey, burdened and unfairly handicapped, I carried them by 28,000 plurality. And further, a great comfort and satisfaction to me is the splendid treatment, the courtesy and consideration, I have received at the hands of my colleagues of both parties in the United States Senate. The past six years will ever be a bright and happy memory to me. Not one unkind thought do I treasure. If I ungenerous word have I spoken, forgive me, for it was not of my heart. I am happy in the thought that—

The greatest greatness there is
That the world can bring to you
Is the glory of being right
And the splendor of being true.

Senators, I have tried to be right. I know I have been true.

Mr. President, I take this opportunity to publicly express my thanks to the officers of the Senate for their kindness and courtesy extended to me. To our most efficient clerks and stenographers I proffer my praise and thanks for their laborious, painstaking, and trying labors. To our bright and ever-alert band of pages I extend my sincere wishes for your prosperity and welfare in all your undertakings. I shall remember you each most pleasantly and kindly.

The perpetuity of this splendid Union of States and the progress and stability of American liberties is my prayer, and to this end I urge against sectional legislation and sumptuary laws.

Mr. President, again I say I regret to part, for I love the association with you. I love the thought that in my humble way, with you, I have done something to advance the glory of my country and the well-being of my fellow man.

Senators, I crave your friendship and your good will, to me it will be a rare and rich treasure through my life. May I not have it?

Let me live, O Mighty Master,
Such a life as men should know,
Tasting triumph and disaster,
Joy, and not too much of woe;
Let me fight and love and laugh,
And when life's strife is over
Let Friendship be my epitaph.

New P. O. May be Completed in Six Weeks

Superintendent Neeley, who has charge of the government end of the operations in the new postoffice, has assured Postmaster A. E. Hoagland that the building will be ready for occupancy shortly after the first of April. Tentative preparations have already been made by the postoffice authorities for the moving work and the various offices will be removed to the new structure as soon as it is completed.

As soon as the postoffice is opened to the public the government will discontinue the transportation of mail matter to and from the Central Railroad depot and this will in the future be taken charge of by the railroad authorities. The new federal building is within the radius prescribed by law for railroad control of mail transportation to and from trains. It will make possible the dismissal of the colored carrier but he will in all probability be retained for some other kind of duty. Recently he has been using an automobile in the transportation work and it is possible that his services will be sought by the railroad in making plans for the transportation of mail.

Postmaster Hoagland has not as yet decided what changes will have to be made in the office personnel to meet the demands of the new building. It is certain that the help in several departments will have to be increased but to what extent is not certain.

Mayor Shares 'Blame'

cases came before him on reports made by patrolmen during their night rounds, and owing to the fact that many houses are inaccurately numbered or not at all, mistakes were frequent; and besides there was often a direct conflict of evidence between officer and defendant.

"This winter our plan has been for the chief of police to check all patrolmen's reports by a personal survey of the city the next day. He has been assisted by the street commissioner, to connect violations with the right parties according to the city maps, and to avoid serving notice on non-residents, owning property here, who are registered with the street commissioner's office and pay for the service.

"By this means, except for an occasional mistake which the officials always stand ready to correct, the judge is furnished with ample proof to enforce the ordinance. As the purpose is not to acquire an income but to provide cleared walks for the public, the judge has announced a definite policy of one dollar for the first offense, two dollars for the second, and five dollars for each succeeding offense. In view of all the publicity given, of the intention to enforce the ordinance, the judge will not suspend sentence for first offenses. He should be supported by all fair-minded citizens.

"We have been solicitous to make allowance for circumstances of peculiar hardship. While the law technically makes no distinction between those who violate it, officials who are charged with its enforcement may exercise a discretion justified by reason and fair-dealing. There is a difference between people of means who deliberately or carelessly ignore the municipal regulations, and people who cannot afford to hire men to clean their walks and sometimes are unable to do the work themselves because of illness. It is right that allowance should be made in deserving cases, and that citizens should be first summoned whose only excuse is either open disregard of the law or indifference to it.

"The public safety, convenience and comfort call for a scrupulous compliance with this law. Property owners and tenants who observe the requirements are entitled in their use of the walks to have others equally observant.

"Perhaps irritation will give way to good nature if the matter is looked at philosophically; it is not an indignity to be fined for violation of a regulation of this sort, if unintentional or occasional. Nobody feels disgraced if fined for not attending a club meeting. Sometimes people elect to break rules and pay the price. Then, too, mistakes occur in the best regulated circles. The man regularly employed to shovel snow may fail to turn up, or the boy in the family whose job it is may forget.

"I visited in a home last summer where a ten cent fine for adults and a penny fine for children was levied for every slang expression uttered at dinner. They were well trained not only in escaping fines themselves but in detecting violations. Visitors were not exempt and I pretty nearly paid the price of an excellent dinner, although a guest. But near the end one little fellow first gave his mother a penny and then said: 'Gee! Whiz! It's hard work.'

"Citizens, it would seem, have an opportunity to play the better part if instead of showing irritation they will step up and pay the fine cheerfully. If they feel like it they might occasionally thank the court for the gentle reminder."

Big Quantity of Potatoes Were Frozen

Confined to his bed by illness and unable to get about his farm and superintend things, John Geary, postmaster at South Plainfield, saw a season's profit snatched away from him during the recent cold snap without being able to prevent it. And the loss was in potatoes, too.

Mr. Geary is one of the largest truck gardeners around this section and has a large farm at South Plainfield. Last fall when he dug potatoes he had a "hunch" that they might be worth nearly their weight in gold before the winter was over and stored them in large pits. Several weeks ago he was taken sick with pneumonia and left the farm work to his sons, cautioning them to keep close watch on his treasure.

The pressure of other duties caused the boys to forget the nuggets until after they had been frozen. Mr. Geary estimates that he still had over twenty barrels left and they will all be a total loss. The last he sold was early in the winter and he got between $6 and $7 a barrell for them at the time Figuring at the present price asked his loss will be around $200.

Labor Temple Idea Absurd

Officials of the trade organizations in this city have been rather amused during the past week by the report that has gained circulation concerning the erection in the near future of a labor temple. While there is a movement on foot to get all the different bodies together under one roof the idea of building a temple of labor is a really absurd one.

At the present time the Building Trades' Council is about the only organization having its own quarters and the other organizations sub-let from it. A movement in which the Moulders' Union is leading, plans the leasing of a building with sufficient room for each trade but whether that will come in a year or in five years is hard to tell.

The majority of the local labor leaders, while they agree that a labor temple would be all very nice, are unanimous in the opinion that such a structure could not be financed or even supported in a city the size of Plainfield. And there the matter will probably rest until the Queen City experiences a tremendous growth.

Stine Did Excellent Work as an Official

Each year Plainfield turns up some basketball referee to officiate at its most important games, but Herbert Stine is one of the most satisfactory in several years. His work in the third P. H. S.-N. P. H. S. was praised by both sides and the game was minuse the frequent arguments and rough tactics that have characterized other city championship meetings.

Stine is nearing the completion of his first year as physical director and coach at the Westfield High School and in both football and basketball has given that institution the best teams in years. He is a graduate of N. P. H. S. and the Springfield Y. M. C. A. Training School.

ROSE SYDELL'S BELLES HERE MONDAY NIGHT.

Nowhere in the entire burlesque world is there to be found such an aggregation of fun makers as William S. Campbell has found for his famous London Belles Co., which will appear at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday, matinee and night, March 12. It is seldom that an owner of a by company has gone to the same expense as Wm. S. Campbell, and he has already been repaid by the approvel of the public opinion wherever the company has filled the boards. The burlesque actors, and actresses are in a world all alone as far as the stage world is concerned.

It is only within the past few years that burlesquers have been taken seriously; and the reason for this change of opinion is the breaking into this particular line of amusement of men with money, who foresaw that with the best of fun makers on their pay roll the public would willingly respond. The famous London Belles was constructed for the sole purpose of making money for the owner, and to do this the owner knew that he must give the best of everything to make up a burlesque performance. The comedians with this company are bright and gifted, the girls are pretty and well gowned. The entire company has been put together to excel every other show on the road and a visit to the Plainfield Theatre next week will prove this fact.

"THE WANDERER" IS A SMASHING BIG HIT.

The biggest dramatic spectacle on earth, is the way "The Wanderer" at the Manhattan Opera House, West 34th street, New York, is now billed, and those who have seen this gigantic dramatic offering unite in declaring that it certainly exceeds all records so far achieved in the history of the American stage. Not only is the production enormous in a scenic sense, but the cast of high priced stars employed in the production exceeds any previous combination ever offered at much higher prices. For the price scale of "The Wanderer" is quite as wonderful as the show itself, this immense production and this superb cast being offered at a scale of prices with only $1.50 charged for the best orchestra seats. There is also a popular priced Wednesday matinee when the best seats are only $1.00.

"The Wanderer" is a gorgeously staged spectacle of old Jerusalem and the Holy Land of three thousand year ago. The story deals with Jether, the son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judea, who demands his portion and goes forth to Jerusalem in search of fame and fortune. The second act shows the young boy wasting his substance in riotous living, and the third act shows his return home, penniless and penitent. It is the old story of the prodical son, of the Bible, told in a beautiful atmosphere of old Judea, and with a wealth of stage gorgeousness unequalled in any production ever seen in New York. The list of principals includes Nance O'Neil, Florence Reed, Beverly Sitgreaves, Janet Dunbar, Clara Blandick, James O'Neill, Charles Dalton, William Elliott, William H. Thompson, Frederick Lewis, and nearly two hundred others.

WHAT SOCIETY IS DOING DURING WINTER MONTHS

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Belgian Relief to the Fore; Other Women's Clubs Active

Plainfield, due to the generosity and earnest and tireless work of its women, holds a unique place in the relief work that is now keeping a whole nation from starvation—that of being the first city in the United States to organized Belgian Relief Society. In the past three years the relief work has assumed ponderous proportions, embracing every section and taking its bit from every nook and corner of the country. Since then, too, a huge system of distribution—the Hoover Commission—has come into existence and spreads monthly over the little nation of the Belgians clothing and food that represent millions of American dollars. Plainfield, then, can feel justly proud of being the pioneer of a charity work that now means so much and realizing the burden to be borne, the Plainfield Belgian Relief Society is still keeping up its work.

Belgian relief work in America first came into existence in September, 1914, one month after the outbreak of the greatest war in the world's history, when Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace, who had been in Belgium when the Teuton hosts swept across Belgium in their first dash for Paris, called together a few local women. Each one agreed to endeavor to collect $20 so that $1,000 could be sent abroad, and each one was expected to help by sending as many articles of clothing as possible.

By October this society had the desired amount, but instead of sending it to Europe purchased food in this country that was shipped to the Belgians. Flour was purchased at $5 a barrel and during the first winter 300 barrels were sent, besides milk, shoes and other articles.

At the beginning of the second winter a message came from Queen Elizabeth saying there was great need of a portable house for 100 orphans at La Panne. A campaign was started that resulted in the raising of sufficient funds to obtain the house. This year the society is supplying the children at La Panne with milk and helping the Hoover Commission in furnishing supplementary meals to children in the conquered territory as well.

The society has worked directly through the Appui Belge, the Secours Dorrye, the Commission and Queen Elizabeth. The money for everything has been raised by donation and the society is maintained without dues or other red tape.

Following is a full report of the work accomplished from September, 1914, to March, 1917, as prepared by the treasurer, Miss Emelyn Hartridge:

Cash received: Amount collected in subscriptions, $10,670.32; interest on deposits, $27.18; total, $10,597.-56.

Cash expended: 300 bbls. flour, $1,208.23; 33,600 cans condensed milk, $2,670.05; material for baby clothes, $7.56; express and cartage, $27.34; portable house, including freight to steamer, $2,765.60; 100 cots sent with house, $175; 200 blankets sent with house, $509; 100 pillows sent with house, $45; 204 towels, 100 pads, and 75 yds. rubber sheeting, sent with house, $120.74; 2 tubs, 6 pails, 3 pitchers and basins, $13.29; 10 mirrors, 8 tables, boxing chairs, $29.40; insurance on house and articles above, $33.35; 1,020 pair stockings, 385 prs. shoes, $483.-08; 125 boys' trousers, 41 boys' shirts, $124.60; 636 1-4 yds. flannel, needles and thread, $55.90; 14 dozen bakes of soap, $5.04; checks sent Appui Belge for its work, $584.25; expense for lantern, carting, moving picture booth, $29; check sent for Mme. Berkeley-Smith's work, $50; check sent for Duchesse de Vendome's work, $150; tablet for portable house, $30.25; lantern and chairs, $6; total, $9,173.68; balance March 3rd, 1917, $1,417.82.

At a meeting of the Belgian Relief Society held at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace Tuesday morning the chairman reported that 2,732 articles of clothing and 10,000 handkerchiefs had been collected in the recent garment campaign. The treasurer gave the balance on hand as $1,424.84 and of this $1,000 is pledged for 200 cases (9,600 cans) of condensed milk which is held for shipment until the next steamer. The milk will be divided into two lots, 125 cases going to the orphans in La Panne and the other seventy-five going to the Appui Belge for Belgian refugees in France. A letter was read from the Hoover Commission asking the society to help in securing subscriptions for a supplementary

Sixty-One Years Married Yesterday

Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins, of Coddington avenue, the borough, yesterday celebrated the end of their sixty-first year of married life, surrounded by their children and grandchildren. Both have now reached the venerable age of eighty-four, but despite their advanced years are active and possessed of all their faculties.

Mr. and Mrs. Higgins were married March 8, 1856, by Rev. Horace Doolittle, of the Stanton Reformed church. Mr. Higgins was a native of North Readington and his wife was Miss Mary Miers, of Clinton. The couple have six children and there are now twenty-two grandchildren and one great grandchild.

David X. Clarin Will Wed New York Girl

Mrs. Frances Smith, of 127 Edgecomb avenue, New York city, announces the engagement of her daughter, Lillian, to David X. Clarin, formerly of Manchester, England, now residing at 97 Fairview avenue, North Plainfield. Mr. Clarin is a member of the firm of F. A. Dunham-Clarin Company, civil engineers, this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Smith formerly lived in Plainfield and attended the local public schools. She was well known and popular here.

LECTURES CONTINUED.

Arthur K. Peck, who has lectured to local audiences on several occasions, spoke on "Italy, the Land of Enchantment," at one of the course of free lectures in the Washington School auditorium last night under the auspices of the Board of Education. His talk was illustrated with views of many of the most beautiful spots in Italy and there was a large and appreciative audience on hand. On March 29, Ada B. Talbot, another lecturer well known locally, will talk on "Mexico, Yesterday and Today," and on April 26 the science department of the High School will give a public exhibition of the work accomplished.

Miss Gertrude Tabbert, a graduate of the Muhlenberg Training School, left this week for California to make her home.

Hebrew School Will Aid Work

Young Judaea, the junior organization of the Zionist Organization, has started a campaign enlisting the aid of all the Jewish school children of America to help the children of Palestine maintain their schools in this fortd crisis.

An appeal has been issued and the co-operation solicited from all the Hebrew daily and Sunday-schools all over the country for one week, beginning last Sunday, this date being appropriate as it falls on Purim. This is a day traditioned with the Jewish people to send "Shalachmonos" (meaning presents), generously distributed to the poor, and also to friends who in return do likewise. A very appropriate leaflet in English has been distributed to all the Jewish children in the schools making a direct appeal to them to deny themselves of some little luxuries and to put their coins in the little paper safe which has been distributed for that purpose.

The local Hebrew school, which is conducted under the direction of the local Zionist Organization, numbering over one hundred children, has received this campaign with a great deal of children enthusiasm and it is expected that a goodly little sum will be raised for the cause.

The appeal is printed on the safes and reads as follows:

"Look Up!—Can you do without a few luxuries to bring good cheer to the Children of Palestine? Purim is Palestine Day for the Children who want a Jewish education in the Schools of Palestine."

All those desiring to help may address "The Hebrew School, Plainfield, N. J."

ELKS' PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

The second rehearsal of "The Land of Mystery," which will be presented by the Plainfield Lodge of Elks in the Plainfield Theatre on April 10, 11 and 12, was held last night and drew together nearly enough to make up the complete cast needed of 200. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Skillin, authors of the opera and who will coach the cast, are even more enthusiastic over the prospects of success than they were last year and things already point to a big affair. Many who took part in the "Mystic Rose" last year are again in the cast, beside many new ones. Rehearsals are to be held three times a week from now until the production is given publicly.

St. Mary's Debaters Make Good Record

After successfully completing one year of existence, St. Mary's Literary Society is making plans for the inauguration of a membership campaign by means of which it expects to double the present number. Since its inception last March, the society has come to be one of the leading organizations of its kind in the city and is represented in the debating field by a team that has experienced only two defeats in eight contests.

The society is composed of a number of the young men of St. Mary's church, with Joseph Gallagher as president and Fred Greene as secretary. Paul H. Burns is the coach and Rev. B. M. Bogan is the spiritual director. Starting off with a charter membership of eleven, the society has steadily grown and is still doing so.

Among those defeated in debates are North Plainfield High School and the Essex and Passaic Holy Name Societies. St. Michael's, of Newark, one of the two teams to win over the locals, has granted a return debate on April 1, and another contest to be staged in the near future is with Carlton Academy, of Summit.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

A double church wedding took place in the Swedish Lutheran church Saturday afternoon, when Miss Annie Marie Almberg and Jens Oscar Madsen and Miss Siene Elizabeth Beckman and Bjarne Madsen were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Peter Froeberg, president of Upsala College. The bridegrooms are brothers and are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jens Madsen, of East Front street. The weddings took place in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends and afterward a reception was held at 223 East Front street, where the two couple will make their home.

HOLMES—VANDERHOEF.

A quiet home wedding in the presence of only the immediate families of the couple was solemnized Sunday morning when Miss Mabel R. Vanderhoef, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Vanderhoef, of West Front street, became the bride of Harry W. Holmes, also of this city, the Rev. Charles Gillespie, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiating. There were no attendants. Following the ceremony the couple left on a trip to Washington, D. C., and on their return will reside with the bride's parents.

PERSONAL

Lester Mellick, of Prospect avenue, is on a several months' trip to the East Indies and South America.

Dr. Henry Maxson, superintendent of Plainfield schools, returned this week from a trip to Kansas City, where he attended the annual convention of the National Public School Superintendents' Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bailey and son, of Park avenue, have left for Gowanda, N. Y., to make their home.

ORCHESTRA DELIGHTED ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE.

Led by Walter Damrosch, one of this country's best known musical figures, the New York Symphony Orchestra gave a concert in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School last night before a capacity audience. The appearance of such an organization was made possible through the efforts of the Dutch Arms Band and was the first stop of the orchestra on its annual transcontinental tour.

In presenting a varied and inspiring program at the concert last night the orchestra was practically perfect in its rendition of the works of some of the greatest composers, including Mendelssohn, Wagner, Beethoven and others.

The New York Symphony Society has been in existence for the past forty years and was formed by Dr. Leopold Damrosch, father of the present conductor. Walter Damrosch succeeded to the position as conductor at the death of his father fourteen years ago and has kept up the work in an equally excellent degree.

The program rendered last night follows in full:

Part I—Overture, "Mignon," Thomas; (a) Largo from Symphony, "From the New World," Dvorak; (a) Gavottes in A Barch; (b) Andant Cantabile, Tschaiwowsky; Symphonic Poem, "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale," Saint-Saens.

Part II—Overture, "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; (a) Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger," Wagner; Allegretto from Symphony No. 7, Beethoven, (a) Dance of the Sylphs, (b) Rakosy March, Berlios; waltz, "Artist's Life," Strauss.

BENEFIT CONCERT.

Plans are being made by the Plainfield Dental Society for the giving of a concert in the Plainfield High School on Monday, April 9, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the upkeep of the free clinic at Muhlenberg Hospital. Professional as well as local talent will entertain and a large attendance is assured. Evan Williams and the Edith Rubel trio will be among the artists contributing toward the program.

WAR LECTURE.

Guy Arthur Empy, of Brooklyn, will lecture at the Park Club Tuesday night on his experiences while serving in the British army on the European war front. Mr. Empy recent returned from the war zone after being badly wounded and has a store of exciting experiences of trench life to relate. He was a machine gunner and bomb thrower in the British expeditionary force. He will appear in uniform as an English private.

P. H. S.-BARRINGER DEBATE.

The next debate of the Plainfield High School team in the Rutgers College Debating League will be with Barringer High School early in April. If the local team emerges the winner it will be entered in the finals. P. H. S. reached the finals last year but East Orange won out in the last round. The team is composed of Carlyn Dunavin, Horace Bunker and Charles Todd and is being coached by Harold F. Biddle.

JEWISH RELIEF FUND.

An effort to raise a fund of $10,-000 among local people of the Jewish faith will be made at a big mass meeting to be held on March 27 under the auspices of the Jewish Relief Committee. Judge William Newcorn is in charge of arrangements for the affair and feels certain that the desired amount will be obtained. The money will be devoted to decreasing the suffering among the Jews in war-stricken Europe.

D., who is secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, will be present and make an address at 10:30. Nearly $400 is still lacking and it is hoped that it will be subscribed to on Sunday.

A dinner was given in the church parlors last night for those who are to take part in the "every member canvass," which will be conducted shortly. The dinner was served by the women of the church, and several of those present explained the system.

Next Sunday will be "every member canvass day" and for that reason the afternoon preaching service will not be held.

The Missionary Bible Class will meet next Wednesday morning in the church parlors with Mrs. Edward Read as leader. They are studying from the book, "The Living Christ in Latin America."

Mayor Replies to Boy Scouts

Mayor Leighton Calkins has written a letter to John D. Duffy, chief executive of the Plainfield Boy Scouts, in acknowledgement of the resolutions adopted by the executive council placing the Scouts at the disposal of the Mayor. The resolution was printed in the Record last Friday, and Mayor Calkins' reply was as follows:

"My dear Sir:

"I acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 1, enclosing resolution of the executive committee of the Plainfield Council Boy Scouts of America, reciting the present critical period in the affairs of the Nation and pledging to me, as Mayor of the city, the services of all the Boy Scouts of Plainfield for public service in the community in whatever capacity in my judgment they may be best fitted.

"I thank you for your letter and the Plainfield Council for its timely and patriotic action. Coming at this time it serves as one more open and public expression of the willingness and eagerness of the people of this community to serve the country."

school meal for Belgian children. A dollar a month will supply one child. Mrs. Richard Boardman is to have charge of the raising of subscriptions and will be assisted by Mrs. James R. Joy. Mrs. Wallace read a cable from Queen Elizabeth asking aid in feeding orphans at La Panne.

The plea of Queen Elizabeth was partly met on Tuesday evening when James W. Irwin gave an illustrated lecture in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. on "California." The large amount received by voluntary contribution is to be used to buy condensed milk for Belgian children. The lecture was due to the generosity of a local man, who besides wanting Plainfield people to see some of the beauties of the land to the westward, wanted to help the war stricken people as well.

Wednesday afternoon Miss Florence Wardwell and Mrs. Kellogg, both of New York, lectured in the parish house of the Congregational church on their work in Belgium as members of the Hoover Commission. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Richard Boardman as part of the scheme to raise money to provide supplementary meals to the war orphans. On this occasion, also, a considerable amount was donated to the society to be used in helping the Hoover Commission feed 1,000,000.

A meeting of delegates from the fourteen King's Daughters Circles in Plainfield was held yesterday morning, at which time it was unanimously decided to devote every Thursday morning to working on garments, bandages and other articles to be used by the National Special Aid Society. The King's Daughters have been working for the National Special Aid Society for sometime and Mrs. Peterkin, president of the Union, called the meeting to decide whether or not they should continue.

The Plainfield Union of King's Daughters is making preparations for the utilizing of the residence adjoining the Day Nursery on West Front street that was recently given to the Union by T. J. Mumford. The occupants of the dwelling at the present time have a lease running until May, but when the Union takes it over the house will be connected with the Day Nursery by an archway and used as a free clinic. There mothers may bring their children every Wednesday morning for treatment.

Captain Beith, one of Kitchener's "First Hundred Thousand", will lecture in the Plainfield High School March 23, on "The Human Side of Trench Life" under the auspices of the local branch of the National Special Aid Society. He is perhaps better known by the pen name of "Ian Hay" and is the author of several interesting books on the world war. He has seen plenty of service along the first line of defense and has been decorated for bravery. Tickets went on sale at Miller's Drug Store today.

A special meeting of the Plainfield branch of the National Special Aid Society was held in the auditorium of the Hartridge school yesterday afternoon, when it was decided to start a branch of the local society for colored women. Already a large number have volunteered their services and will be of great help. The society has also arranged a schedule of hours. The headquarters in the Pittis building will be open each day from 9 to 12 and 1 to 5 and on Saturdays from 9 to 12. On Monday surgical dressings will be made, on Tuesdays all other sewing will be done, Thursdays will be devoted to receiving and distributing and Fridays the work of the Junior National Special Aid branch will be a feature. The society has sent out a call for furniture to be loaned to furnish the headquarters with. Those wishing to help may communicate with Mrs. R. S. Rowland, telephone 981.

The next meeting of the Plainfield Business Women's League will be held in the Y. W. C. A. next Friday night. The evening's program will commence with the serving of a supper after which an official of the Prudential Insurance Company, who will be the guest of the evening, will make an address. City Judge William G. DeMeza will also give a talk on the work of the police department and city court. The association is planning to continue its semi-monthly meetings right through the summer. Among those who will speak at meetings in the near future are Postmaster Alvin Hoagland, Street Commissioner Gavett, Mayor Calkins Chief of the Fire Department Jennings and Chief of Police Kiely.

The "Gym" Club of the Y. W. C. A. met last night and during the course of the evening listened to a lecture on "Dress For Women From a Hygienic Viewpoint" by Miss Winifred Mann, the association's physical director.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Associations of the Bryant, Emerson and Lincoln Schools held Tuesday night Miss Italia Pavlowa, who recently returned from Bulgaria, gave a talk on "An American Soldier in the War Zone" during the course of which she related numerous experiences of her own in war ridden Europe. The pupils of the fifth grade rendered a musical program and gave an exhibition in physical training. The evening was concluded with the serving of refreshments.

A department meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club will be held this coming week. The next general meeting will be held the first Monday in April but as yet no program has been arranged.

Members of the local branch of the National Special Aid Society have been urged to attend a series of lectures being held under the auspices of the national headquarters in New York this month. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., Rear Admiral Bradley Fiske, U. S. N., and other prominent speakers have promised to make addresses. Plans are being made to secure speakers to lecture before the local society from time to time.

"First Aid" class will meet at the Y. W. C. A. next Monday night and Tuesday afternoon with Dr. Lufburrow as director.

A meeting under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield will be held Tuesday, March 26, at the home of Mrs. S. Carvalho, of West Eighth street. Miss Jean McKenzie, who has visited the European war front, is to make an address during the course of the meeting on her experience.

Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, of Englewood, gave the first of a series of four lectures on South America in the Y. W. C. A. this afternoon and illustrated it with lantern slides. The other three will be on March 16, 23 and 30.

At a meeting of the local branch of the New Jersey State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage held at the home of Mrs. Edgar Hyatt, of East Ninth street, Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the year: President, Mrs. John Constable Moore; treasurer, Mrs. Edgar Hyatt; secretary, Mrs. E. E. Tremonner, and vice presidents, Mrs. E. Yarde Breese, Mrs. Rufus Delafield, Mrs. W. W. Coriell, Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, Miss Florence Tweedy, Miss Laura Osgood, Mrs. Pierre Mall, Mrs. Thomas M. Day, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, Mrs. Herman Schwed, Mrs. Mathew Ewart, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Mrs. Catherine Dix Lawrance and Mrs. Edgar Hyatt. The next meeting of the league will be held on March 26.

Benjamin L. Miller, of Lehigh University, gave an illustrated lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club at its weekly meeting in the parish house of the Congregational church on "Ecudor and Peru." There was a large attendance, because Mr. Miller's popularity as a lecturer is well known.

The North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association will hold a cake, candy and fancy article sale in the front corridor of the Somerset School tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 1 and 5. The proceeds of the affair will be diverted to the general fund of the organization. The next meeting of the association will be held in the Harrison Avenue School on Thursday, March 22.

While no special program has been marked out to observe "visit the schools week" in this city, the Parent-Teacher Associations of both Plainfield and North Plainfield have sanctioned the idea as originated by State Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall, and from March 12-16 parents in both the city and borough will visit the schools. The idea is to cause a closer relation between parent and teacher for the mutual benefit of both in educating the child.

Hebrew Centre Worthy Object for Big Fund

After a delay of several months, the Young Men's Hebrew Association in this city has started a campaign to raise a fund to acquire the Leal School building on West Front street, so as to make it a fitting and proper home for the young Jewish men and women of this city, and also to provide a community centre where all the Jewish organizations may meet. This need has been felt for a long time and success is already assured.

In speaking to a reporter for the Plainfield Record this morning, Harvey Rothberg, the chairman of the building campaign committee, said: "Another important feature of this plan upon which we have been working for a long while is to fit up the newly acquired building with comfortable and convenient quarters where the men may gather any evening of the week and spend a pleasant hour or two.

At present the building is so located that there will be plenty of room for expansion, both on the west side of it and in the rear, so that as the institution grows there will be plenty of facilities for the building of a swimming pool and the construction of an up-to-date bowling alley. Under the present arrangement there is a large auditorium, which after the installation of a new floor, will be equipped in a modern style so as to afford ten, proportionate to present needs, for the association and for its allied organizations, and entertainments, including dancing. It is contemplated that this large auditorium be used also by other societies for a meeting place, and special nights will be scheduled for that purpose. There are four smaller rooms which probably will be used immediately after the association takes possession of the building for the purpose of a school, which will in no way conflict with the present public school system, inasmuch as it will provide for instruction for the young boys and girls of Jewish faith, both of the orthodox and reformed sects, where, under proficient in-

Returns from Canada After Visiting Son

Following a four weeks' stay in Canada as the guest of his son, William Liebau, formerly of this city, Adolphus Liebau returned to Plainfield Tuesday. He had been called to Sorel by the serious illness of his son, who is employed as foreman in a Canadian munitions factory at Sorel on the St. Lawrence River below Montreal. The ill man recovered completely following the arrival of his father and the latter was able to secure credentials for an inspection of the factory in which his son works.

Mr. Liebau had many interesting details of the trip to relate to friends upon his return to Plainfield. Among the chief of these was the visit to the munitions factory in which are employed 1,540 girls. These female shell fillers work in overalls and receive on an average of forty-five cents an hour. The salaries which are paid the male employes and the factory is operating twenty-four hours a day.

The Plainfielder also visited Montreal and Quebec while in Canada and inspected the monster suspension bridge which has been wrecked on two different occasions. This is now being reconstructed and is nearly finished.

William Liebau formerly was employed in the Pond shop in this city and is well known in the West End of the town. He went to Canada about ten years ago and has been very successful in several undertakings.

New Advertising Head For the Bosch Concern

Alfred H Bosch, who has been advertising manager of the Bosch Magneto Company, of this city, for seven years, resigned March 5 to become a member of the firm of McLain-Hadden Simpers Company, advertising and merchandising council, of Philadelphia and New York. Robert S. Westcott, who has been assistant advertising manager the last seven years, will assume immediately the duties of advertising manager.

BUILDING AT STANDSTILL.

Only six permits have been issued by Building Inspector Doane thus far during March, two being for small dwellings, two for garages, one for an addition and one for the demolishing of a building. Together they do not represent an outlay of more than $6,000, and the probabilities are that the month's total will not exceed $15,000, a sum that is the general amount for two weeks' building as a rule.

Plainfield Boys Arrive Home

Privates Raymond Manley and Alfred Seal, of this city, returned to East Orange with Battery C, Field Artillery, Wednesday noon from Douglas, Ariz., where they had been stationed since October 7. The battery took up the site vacated by Battery A, also of East Orange, the same day that the latter outfit and Troop D, of Plainfield, left Douglas.

Manley and Seal were originally members of the First Field Hospital Corps, of Elizabeth, but were disqualified when the physical examinations were held at Sea Girt in June, preparatory to mustering the unit into Federal service. They were returned to their home in this city but worked off the defects that teased their disqualification and were ordered to Tobyhanna, Pa., where they joined the battery. Both had considerable experience in field hospital work and were accepted as valuable medical advisors in the artillery unit. At the border they were proficient in military endeavor and both, after a furlough, are back soldiers. They will be retained by Battery C, which will share the Parkway Armory, in East Orange with Battery A.

It is expected that the mustering out work will be completed by Monday and the boys will then be allowed to return to their home permanently after that. They have already visited the city since their return and both are in excellent physical condition possessing the ruggedness and tan which characterized the other Plainfield soldiers upon their return last October from the same station.

William Schooley, formerly of this city, is also a private in the outfit.

The battery is a new organization, the order for mustering in having been issued by former Governor Fielder April 19 last and being forwarded to Captain Claude E. Lantermann, of Battery A, in time for the outfit to be mustered in April 29. Soon after word had come that Battery A would be included in the delegation of Jersey troops to be sent to the border Lieutenant Lantermann and Captain Lantermann detailed a group of his men to become the nucleus for the new battery.

Bacon Mounts Ladder of Cost

Now bacon is mounting skyward by leaps and bounds with the housewives striving to grasp it before it can get beyond reach of their pocketbooks. The sudden demand the government has made on the chief item of a soldier's diet has caused the market to be nearly swept clean and what is left is selling for 34c a pound instead of 27c, as was the case this time last year.

That the soldiers may fight with full stomachs in case of trouble, the War Department has purchased within the past few weeks thousands of tons of bacon, "canned Willie" and other eatable on the army diet and what is not now stored in government houses is being held by the big wholesalers until the right time comes. Canned stuffs are beginning to go up and indications are that they have not yet reached the top price.

W. L. Saunders Elected Chairman of U. S. Board

Thomas A. Edison was elected president of the Naval Consulting Board for life Saturday.

With pride his associates on the board explained that Mr. Edison is working from fourteen to eighteen hours every day on problems of vital importance to the Government.

It was declared that already he had made fourteen reports to the Washington authorities on big things in which the Government is interested.

In order to relieve Mr. Edison of detail, the board re-elected Peter Cooper Hewitt, vice president; William L. Saunders, of Plainfield, chairman, and Thomas Robbins, secretary. This leaves Mr. Edison free to devote his entire working time to the investigation and development of ideas which his associates are confident will prove of first importance to the Nation in the present crisis and to science for years to come.

It was said in an authorized statement that "there is no truth whatever in the report circulated that Mr. Edison has resigned from the board."

AMERICAN MOTORS ELECT.

At a meeting of the directors of the American Motors Corporation in Plainfield this week William Howard Hoodlet was elected president; Louis Chevrolet, vice president; Proctor W. Hansel, secretary; George F. Baright, treasurer, and Austin M. Wolf, designing engineer. One of the principal changes was the appointment of Joseph A. Carmody as production manager in place of John C. Sulers, who has severed connections with the concern.

Battalion to Organize at High School

Plainfield High School is going to have a cadet corps and, although it will not at first have the assistance of the Board of Education, the enthusiasm of the boys who are forming it makes the move practically certain of success. Both Superintendent of Schools Dr. Henry Maxson and Principal Lindsey Best have no opposition to offer to the plan and the Board of Education has approved the idea. If it proves to be a success after a reasonable length of time financial help may be provided by the Board.

The actual steps toward organization have not yet been taken, but it is probable that a meeting of all those willing to join will be called within the next week. It has been practically decided to form only a battalion at the start to be composed of four companies and as there are between three and four hundred boys in the school to pick from only the best of them will obtain places.

For instructors the battalion will depend upon members of the local militia and it would not be surprising if Captain Peterson, of Company K, detailed one of his commissioned to teach the rudiments of soldiering as soon as possible uniforms will be purchased but at present civilian clothes will have to do. The smooth bore Springfield rifles that were used by the cadet corps that was in existence some ten years ago, and which have since been stored in the attic at the school, are again to be brought into use and if ammunition cannot be obtained from the Government for target practise it will be purchased by the members of the corps. The school gymnasium will probably be used for drilling at first and later a suitable outdoor location will be picked.

The movement is in no way connected with the regular school curriculum but has found such favor among the student body that it is likely several battalions will be organized and in a few months every boy in the school will belong.

Willow Grove Fears an Unknown Firebug

Farmers residing in the vicinity of the Willow Grove section of Fanwood township are again living in dread of a firebug. At various times within the last ten years there has been a epidemic of fires with a lapse of a year and sometimes two between each outbreak. All have been of an incendiary origin and for months residents have lived in the hopes that their homes would not be the next to be destroyed. After having two farmhouses burned within the few weeks and several unsuccessful attempts made to wreck others they have begun to realize that somewhere is at the hideous work again.

The first fire was discovered at Roderique home two weeks ago and because of lack of water the structure was a total loss. Sunday night the Murray dwelling was gutted despite the efforts of the Plainfield firemen, who answered the call for help. On several other occasions blazes have been discovered in fields near houses or in haystacks that would have done considerable damage if they had gotten a good start.

No one has the slightest idea as to who is responsible for any of the fires, nor has anyone been seen lurking about the houses that have been destroyed. Each one is keeping watch to prevent his place from being the next to go and if some one should be found upon whom the blame could be fixed it would go hard with him, because the farmers would undoubtedly take the law in their own hands.

Marshall Forces for Wartime Emergency

Fanwood borough is now ready for a Teutonic invasion, an earthquake or just a plain drunk. Mayor William H. Hoos appointed eight special policemen last week and Marshal John Logan, who has been chief of police, patrol driver and police force all alone for the past ten years is now at the head of a regular fighting aggregation.

Those who were appointed include Frank C. Clifford, associate editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle; Harold Bonnell, machinery manufacturer; Paul Phillips, contractor; Luke Pandick, former N. Y. C. A. member; Paul Seek, manager, and George Reinen, postmaster.

The Council is to purchase outfits for each man and afterward they will be called together for instruction. Unless in an emergency they are not subject to duty and they do not have to do any patroling.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. E. Randolph, of East Front street, have been entertaining their daughter, Mrs. Charles Parfitt, and daughter, of Gravenhurst, Ontario.

Leon Cadore, well remembered by local baseball fans for his work when playing with Dave Driscoll's teams of four and five years ago, is at Hot Springs, Ark., trying for a month on the pitching staff of the Brooklyn Nationals. His work so far has been excellent and it is likely he will be carried over when the rest of the recruits are sent back to the "bushes."

Changed Hack Rates Go in Effect Today

A change that will, it is expected, eliminate much of the trouble connected with the traffic problem at the local railroad station took place today when an ordinance amending the hack ordinance that has been in vogue for some years went into effect. The amendment was passed on final reading at a meeting of the Common Council on March 5 and changes the rate which may be charged between the station and any point within designated boundaries, but it does not in any way control the rates to be charged from the offices of concerns operating taxis.

Heretofore the rate after 11 o'clock at night to or from the station and any point within the specified radius has been fifty cents for one passenger, while before that hour it has been twenty-five cents. The amendment fixes a straight charge of thirty-five cents for one passenger before or after 11 o'clock, fifty cents for two passengers and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger.

The sections where this rate is effective is bounded in the following way: Beginning at a point where the northeasterly side line of Johnston avenue produced would intersect Green brook; thence along said line and the northeasterly side line of Johnston avenue to North avenue; thence in the same course in a direct line to the northwesterly side line of South avenue; thence along said side line of Woodland avenue, produced; thence along said line and the easterly line of Woodland avenue to the southern line of Martin avenue; thence along said side line of Martine avenue to the easterly side line of Hillside avenue; thence along said line of Hillside avenue to the southerly side line of Randolph road; thence along said side line of Randolph road to the southwesterly side line of Madison avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the southwesterly side line of Spooner avenue with the southeasterly side line of West Eighth street to the southwesterly side line of Grant avenue; thence along said side line of Grant avenue and the southwesterly side line of West End avenue to the northwesterly city line in Green brook; thence following the northwesterly city line to the intersection of said city line with the northeasterly side line of Johnston avenue, produced, the point and place of beginning.

From any point within the limits to any point without the following rate may be charged: Fifty cents for one passenger and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger provided, however, that after 11 o'clock at night until 5 o'clock in the morning, the charges may be double the said fares, excepting the charges for trips to and from the main station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which are not to be increased during said hours.

Regarding the transporting of trunks or other luggage any licensed expressman may charge twenty-five cents for each piece taken from one point to another within the limits and fifty cents when it is taken from a point within to a point without the district.

In case the ordinance is violated by a hackman or expressman trying to charge more than the regular rate, a fine of $20 will be imposed for the first offense and in case of a second another fine of $20 will result with the forfeiture of the license as well.

It has come to the attention of the city officials several times since the question of changing the rates first came up that some people have been trying to make the change effective before today without any right to do so. On the whole, the change is thought to be for the better and will prevent a large part of the trouble that has been caused by the old charge.

Another Local Man May be "Missing in France"

Several months have now passed since friends in this city have received word from Frank Kenny, a Plainfield man who became one of the first English army "somewhere in France" for the past two years and a half. Whether he is missing the same as Edward Forgerson, another local boy fighting for the Allies, or is again lying in a hospital badly wounded is not known and friends of Mr. Kenny in this city are anxiously waiting for word from him.

The last word from Kenny was written shortly after he had returned to the trenches from a base hospital, where he had recovered from several shrapnel wounds. He is forty-four years old and served in the Boer War. When the war broke out he was a reservist and responded to the call of his country. At the time he was employed as a mason by A. W. Pangborn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bremmer, of Harrison avenue, are the parents of a young daughter. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

Elks to Visit Newark Lodge

Members of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., will leave Plainfield aboard a special train at 7:45 Tuesday night to pay a fraternal visit to Newark lodge. It is expected that between four and five hundred Plainfielders will return the call made by three hundred Newark Elks two months ago. The special train will leave Dunellen at 7:30 and stops will be made at Clinton avenue, Grant avenue, Plainfield, Netherwood, Westfield and Cranford. A band has been engaged for the occasion and the members will meet at the Watchung avenue clubhouse at 7 o'clock, parading up Watchung avenue to Front street to Park avenue to the depot.

Final arrangements for the event were made at the weekly session of the lodge Wednesday night. At that time District Deputy George Heiser, of Elizabeth, and twenty Elizabeth Elks visited the Plainfield clubhouse and worked the new initiation. While the degree was being administered a quartet composed of Joseph Martin, Elmer Cutting, William Talamy and Bertram Talamy, sang several selections.

"Full of Pep" at 78, 'Tom' Dowd Has Party

Thomas Dowd, the Westfield superintendent of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, passed his seventy-sixth birthday on Saturday and amid his immediate family celebrated in a jolly quiet way. Mr. Dowd was the honor guest at a dinner given at the home of his daughter, Mrs. M. C. McVoy, of Westfield, and he is quoted as saying that he had the time of his life as a young man.

Mr. Dowd is, perhaps one of the best-natured, whole-hearted "fathers and grandfathers in this section of the country, and at his seventy-sixth anniversary dinner he was the youngest man in the room.

Mr. Dowd was born in Mechanicville, N. Y., on March 10, 1841, and later settled in Watervliet, N. Y., where he lived until 1889, when he came to Jersey and located in Plainfield, where as a member of the firm of Dowd & Rice, the work of locating the present plant of the Plainfield-Union Water Company was started and completed under his personal supervision.

During Mr. Dowd's residence in North Plainfield he served as street commissioner and borough recorder. In the latter job he established a record for having paid a visit to her to the county jail. He will have them change their address first.

Following the completion of the Plainfield plant Mr. Dowd was made superintendent of the Westfield district and moved to Westfield in 1898. He built a cozy cottage in Harrison avenue, where he and his wife now reside.

On Saturday last Mr. Dowd received a stack of birthday cards and letters, some of which were from persons that had been associated before him while he filled the rec'er's chair in Plainfield, and all voiced him many happy returns and a delightful birthday.

The last wish was fulfilled as he ten members of the family that tended the dinner party at his home in the shape of William Dowd, who is connected with the local office of the Plainfield-Union Water Company.

Here's a "Fishy" Story—Yarn and From Fanwood, Too

More than one good story has come from Fanwood in years gone by but one that has them all beaten by a standstill is being told by Recorder Charles Sheelen. We won't take responsibility for the story but here it is just as we heard it.

Last fall the Recorder had a fine terrier he didn't want. He gave it away to W. K. Woodbridge, who at the time was a resident of Fanwood. Shortly afterward Woodbridge was moved to Trenton taking the animal with him, but a few mornings ago Sheelen woke up to find the canine had taken up quarters on his front porch.

Charlie says he thinks after a dog has traveled from Trenton to Fanwood he deserves to be allowed to stay there and he is going to see that it does.

RESEARCH COMMISSION BUSY.

The first problem the Advisory and Research Commission appointed by the Mayor will try to solve with a view of suggesting to the city a remedy is the controlling of Greek broom so that food conditions in the East End will be abated. Charles Sminck, councilman from the First ward, appeared before the commission this week with information he had gathered during an investigation and since then the matter has been more thoroughly looked into. It is likely that an engineering expert will be employed to take the matter in hand and devise plans for the improvement, after which they will be laid before the Council together with a report of the probable cost.

Runyon Sends Calkins' Bill to the Senate

Following a hard fight led by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, the assembly Tuesday afternoon passed the "Calkins bill," a measure designed by Mayor Leighton Calkins to give municipal governing bodies the right to place civic questions before the people for a vote at the general elections. The bill has now gone on to the senate and there is every probability of it becoming a law.

If passed the measure will give the Plainfield Common Council the right to place the saloon issue, or any similar problem, on the electoral ballots next fall, and the people will be asked to cast a vote on the same. The sentiment thus expressed will be merely for the guidance of the Common Council and will not necessarily mean that the question will be decided one way or another.

The attack Tuesday, following the victory of Runyon on Monday evening to have the bill sent out of the House to the Senate and not reconsidered by the former body, was in the nature of a resolution to recall it from the Senate for the purpose of amendment. Assemblyman Dalrymple, Republican, of Passaic, who does not favor local option, offered the resolution.

Runyon, who at noon had shaken hands in the Republican House conference with Speaker Schoen over their previous night's clash on the bill, had been, during the morning and early afternoon of Tuesday, endeavoring to find out why his measure had not "forthwith," as his motion had provided, been sent to the Senate for consideration there, as was ordered by the House Monday night.

When the Union man heard the resolution read by Clerk Jefferys, of the House, he was upon his feet instantly protesting. He wanted to know the record on the bill. After some dallying at the Speaker's rostrum, it was announced that the bill had come to the Senate. Runyon was

Plainfield Officers Will Attend Meeting

Captain Charles Peterson, First Lieut. Arthur R. Phillips and Second Lieut. James R. Conkling, of Company K, First Infantry, and Acting Captain Daniels Runkle and Lieut. James N. Charles, of Troop D, First Squadron New Jersey Cavalry, will be invited to represent Plainfield's two militia units at the National Defense Convention to be held March 27 and 28 in connection with the eighteenth annual meeting of the National Guard Association of the United States at the Seventy-first Regiment armory, New York.

The organization is made up of more than ninety-five per cent. of the commissioned officers of the National Guard and practically every commissioned officer in the New Jersey National Guard will be present, nearly every one being a member. Governor Edge and former Governor Fielder are among those who have been invited to speak.

Onion Speculators In for a Trimming

The onion speculators, it developed yesterday, stand to lose $500,000 to $750,000 on the 2,000 car loads they have hoarded. About 1,000 car loads are being held in the Connecticut River Valley. The speculators who paid $10 a bag, containing 100 pounds, were asking $15 to $17 a bag two weeks ago.

Then the mild, wet spell arrived and the onions began to sprout. Since then the speculators have been content to take $6 to $6.50 a bag. Red onions are selling at retail all over town at not over 10 cents a pound.

The railroad freight handlers' strike advanced the price of potatoes 25 cents a barrel yesterday. The strike has prevented the shifting of cars containing foodstuffs to places where consignees can drive in and unload them.

Pork and lamb advanced 25 cents a hundred pounds. Eggs, 10,198 cases of which arrived by express, dropped 2 cents a dozen.

WEAN—CARR.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wean, of Park avenue, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Wean, to Sydney Powell Carr, formerly of this city but now of Washington, D. C. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Charles E. Herring in the First Presbyterian church on April 14.

Both Miss Wean and Mr. Carr are graduates of the Plainfield High School in 1910. Miss Wean graduated from Syracuse University with honors, while the latter is an alumnus of Penn State. Miss Wean is now physical instructor at Plainfield High School.

Plainfield Ambulancier's Letter From the French Front Describing Duty On the Firing Line

Since the war in Europe began few first hand accounts of the experiences of American ambulanciers on the French front have reached Plainfield, and probably no one has borne such interest as that which centers around a letter written by Lyman Hibbard, a local boy, to his father, Henry D. Hibbard, of East Seventh street. The youth is now "somewhere in France" presumably near Verdun, serving with the American Ambulance Corps and he relates in an unusually graphic manner the trials of a volunteer, the nature of his duties, the work of the priests, the mode of living and the attitude of the soldiers under orders. He paints a vivid picture of an air battle and of German or "Boshe" raids.

The letter is marked "date unknown" and not the slightest intimation of location is borne on the postscript. Evidences of it having been opened by censors are shown but the letter as he wrote it came through intact, he probably having assumed great care in eliminating matter that would meet disfavor. Other letters that have come to the Hibbard family from officials of the corps were highly complimentary to the Plainfield boy but throughout his long personal account there appears not the smallest item of self praise.

The letter as it reached his father is as follows:

"I joined this section July 11 and at that time we were stationed on a quiet part of the front and nothing in particular happened. There was very little work to do.

"The 'postes-de-secous' were interesting—dug-outs and all that sort of thing, but it was so quiet that we hardly realized we were in the war zone. After I had been there a week we moved to a little town and had a few days' 'repos' (rest). Then we came here. The 'here' referred to is in the vicinity of Verdun—I believe I can say that much—and is pretty active. Our work consists of going to a 'postes-de-secous' and evacuating the wounded to a small hospital about twenty-five kilometers in the rear. It's quite a long run and at night, without lights, more or less of a strain. But out postes is our best exhibit. It is in the cellar of a ruined chatean in the remains of a village and is not the most pleasant place in the world. The caves are dark and stuffy and reek of all sorts of unmentionable things. It is a place of death—there is no doubt about that.

"I have seen as many as thirty being buried at one time and presumably have carried as many as twenty-two wounded in one night. And the appearance of the place adds nothing to the atmosphere. The village is the most desolate wreck you can imagine. There are just the shattered stumps of houses left with an occasional beam or bit of roof sticking out like a skeleton. I've seen lots of ruined villages since I have been over here but nothing that is so hopeless and desolate as this little place. And the surroundings don't help it a bit. It is in a little valley and the hills on all sides are snow-covered. But the snow is all blackened and discolored by the shells and pitted with holes and the whole landscape is a horrible dirty grey.

"When seen in the day time it is bad enough but when you come down the road leading to it at night with the guns going and the ghastly white light of the star shells over everything it literally looks like the mouth of hell. It is held in the greatest respect not only by us ambulanciers but also by the soldiers and everyone who has ever seen it.

"The first time I went up there the Germans unexpectedly pulled off an attack and I got mixed up in more or less of a bombardment. I assure you the shriek of a shell coming toward you is the most ghastly sound in the world. And I freely admit that the first time I heard them I felt none of that heroic indifference one reads about in books but went right on to the 'postes' as fast as the rotten road would permit. I've been back and forth to the 'postes' lots of times since—and one gets accustomed to anything—so I don't mind them much now.

"I am writing this at the 'postes' and things are very quiet today. Of course the guns are never entirely still but today the shooting is very intermittent. The road from the 'postes' leads over a hill and from the top you get a pretty good view at the surrounding country. When I went over it the other day the guns were going in one continuous roar. You've probably read about the continuous roar before and it is a fact. Over in the valley the shells were bursting. All it looked like was a continuous line of black smoke. It's hard to realize that anything or anyone can stay in the vicinity and live. I've been in dug-outs when the place was being bombarded but it was anything but continuous and yet you would have very little chance of getting away if you had tried.

"I've just been out watching a Boche airplane which sailed over. The French guns are shooting at it and the sky is dotted with little white puff-balls of smoke. The French shrapnel makes white puffs and the German makes black smoke. Airplane duels are fairly common here but I have never seen a machine actually shot down. I've seen them forced pretty close to the ground though. It's a great sight to see a fighting plane dive on an observation machine. They come straight down with their engines going full speed. It's a wonder to me that the observation machine ever gets away but it generally does. When the weather is fine, as it is today, they are out in force. You often see a dozen or so up at once.

"It's rather quiet today. I am sitting on a bench by the dug-out door and every now and then a French gun goes off and a shell goes whizzing over my head. There hasn't been a Boshe (German) shell in the town today though.

"One of the pathetic things about the 'postes' is the graveyard. Just a graveyard would be bad enough but the shells land in it very frequently and the whole place is torn up. The graves are smashed open and the crosses are broken and scattered. The poor devils can't even rest in death. By the way, it might interest you to know that about the first men I've met here are the priests. They are uniformly kind and agreeable and wander around the trenches in the most casual way. I know one who has been decorated for bravery and has the rank of captain. They're all absolutely indifferent to all danger.

"The average soldier, when doing his duty and facing any danges takes no extra chances if he can help it. They think we Americans are very brave because we take chances, either from ignorance or from a consuming desire to see what's going on, that we wouldn't otherwise take unless we had to. Of course, as a matter of fact we are not a bit braver than they are.

"An instance of what we do was shown the other afternoon in this way. I was up here and the lieutenant had sent a squad of men out to fill up some shell holes in the road. While they were there the Germans started shelling the place. The lieutenant immediately put on his casque and went out because, he said, he was afraid the sergeant in charge wouldn't have sense enough to bring the men in. He wouldn't have thought for a minute to let me go out for a load but he didn't hesitate to face danger himself.

"It's remarkable how I get along with almost no French. The other night I had to go to an out of the way place for some sick men and coming back I got stuck on the hill. I knew I couldn't just sit there and wait for something to happen, so I wandered back to the village and succeeded in getting enough villagers together to push me up. I don't know just what I said to them but I got up the hill. The villagers are funny in their way. If you are stuck on the road they will gather around and stare and never make a move to help you unless you ask them. But if you make the request they pitch in with a will and work like dogs and seem to think it's great fun.

"I've just finished having my lunch. I wish you could see us. There is the priest in his black gown, the lieutenant in his uniform and me in a nondescript outfit of cumbersome boots, dirty trousers and a sheepskin coat. We eat in a tiny little cellar with an oil lamp and an orderly serves us. It would make quite a picture.

"I expect to be relieved soon now having been on duty twenty-four hours. It's very quiet, I only had two runs. During the first week or so, while they were attacking on both sides I slept two nights out of six. One reason was because out of twenty cars seven were disabled for one cause or another. I had pretty good luck in avoiding trouble, so had lots of work to do. After it was all over my rear axle went to pieces but then it didn't matter.

"The cold has been terrific but now it is getting warmer and I expect the mud will be getting bad. For a while it was so cold that your water would freeze in the radiator while you were running. It may interest you to know that owing to very good fortune at the start I am considered one of the most reliable drivers in this section."

Bon Ton Girls Next In Line

The attraction announced for the coming Monday at the Plainfield Theatre is fraught with pleasant anticipations for the devotees of high class burlesque, for it is a well established fact that the "Bon Ton Girls" are equipped with a production that has all the elements of a high class entertainment, devised and put together for the sole purpose of furnishing light, airy and satisfying amusement. It is worthy of note that the program is free from alacious or double entendre, action or dialogue, the management contending that in these enlightened days the public no longer cares for offensive material. Clean, wholesome and sparkling diversions are the component parts of the musical comedy which is in two acts, environed by two superb scenic effects, and with a plentiful sprinkling of tingling musical numbers, the majority of which will be heard for the first time here.

The cast is of particular strength, being headed by Leo Hoyt, Lester Allen and Babe LaTour, a trio of entertainers than who there are no better in this style of show. Hoyt and Allen are funsters of the first quality and are original in everything they do, while Babe LaTour is one of the most winsome and maxmetic of burlesquers who is ever alive to the desires of the audiences, for sprightly and original doings. Moreover she is regarded as one of the best dressed women on the stage, creating most of her gowns herself, and they are said to be veritable dreams of modish ingenuity. Gladys Parker, ingenue, and June LaVeay complete the cast, with Callahan and Jackson as headliners of the vaudeville group. They do their marvelous dances which are accepted as the most rapid and artistic of any which will be seen here this season. A half dozen other diverting acts will also be exploited while the chorus is a factor of considerable importance, each of the girls being a shapely and talented young woman.

SOUSA'S SINGLE NEW YORK PERFORMANCE.

After all, John Philip Sousa and his famous band is to be heard in New York for one single concert at the Hippodrome. Charles Dillingham has arranged to bring the popular "March King" to the big playhouse on Sunday, March 18, when a St. Patrick's aDy concert will be given by this fine band and a list of all-Star Irish soloists, including Maggie Cline, Arthur Aldridge, William J. Kelly, William Harrigan, the son of Edward Harrigan and others. Mr. Sousa has just closed a remarkable tour with Mr. Dillingham's spectacle of last year at the Hippodrome which played to nearly a million dollars in twenty weeks in the larger cities of America.

"LITTLE LADY IN BLUE."

Frances Starr gave her 100th performance of "Little Lady in Blue" at the Belasco Theatre at yesterday's matinee, and souvenirs autographed by Miss Starr were given to every women attending either the matinee or the evening performance.

Never before in her remarkable career has Miss Starr so enjoyed a role as she has that of Anne Churchill in the new play, a delightful comedy, "Little Lady in Blue," by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval. During the twelve years that Miss Starr has been under Mr. Belasco's direction and management, this admirable dramatic artiste has never played two such different and more strongly dramatic roles, and "Little Lady in Blue" marks her first appearance in comedy, in which she not only is captivating and charming in the extreme, but has added still another triumph to her stellar portrayals.

Mr. Belasco's superbly artistic and deft production of this play, which is remarkable alike for its simplicity, innate charm and truthful picture, as well as for its delicacy, is acknowledged to be about the last word in stage production. It is as a breath of fragrance of the charm and beauty of Georgian days.

"THE CENTURY GIRL."

Charles Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., are the two astute managers who saw the writing on the wall, and who, having the strength of their convictions, produced "The Century Girl," the biggest by far of any musical comedy ever seen on a New York stage. Right in the very district that only before had housed a musical production of such enormous proportions, they brought to Columbus Circle a cast of principals almost astounding even in this day of tremendous undertakings. Think of going to one theatre and for the price of a single admission seeing such international stars as Elsie Janis, Sam Bernard, Frank Tinney, Hazel Dawn, Leon Errol, Florence Walton and Maurice, Doyle and Dixon, Harry Kelly, Van and Schenck and many another of others whose work has long since established them as individual drawing cards on any program, in any city. Add to this array of famous names, a chorus of one hundred and twenty dancers, sixteen famous London Sunshine Girls; magnificent dance settings and scenery by Joseph Urban, today the world's most noted scene designer; music by such masters as Victor Herbert and Irving Berlin, greatest among American composers, and you have some idea of "The Century Girl," the Dillingham-Ziegfeld entertainment that has completely changed the theatrical map of New York city.

The box office of the Century Theatre, with its interesting rack of reservations, appears more like New York's social register, for here are listed the names of those who represent the wealth and culture of the city. The nightly line of waiting carriages and automobiles brings back memories of the most brilliant nights when the world's song birds appeared in grand opera.

"The Century Girl" seems to have very thoroughly established Columbus Circle as the twentieth century location for "The Rialto." Perhaps in another century today's children's children may refer to the Century Theatre as "that big old playhouse downtown." But before that can happen the Harlem River will have to be reclosed with. In the meantime it would appear that the Century Theatre holds the distinction of being the actual hub of all things theatrical in New York—in the world.

"LOVE O' MIKE."

"Love o' Mike," the "new kind of musical play" new at the Shubert Theatre, reached its seventeenth capacity performance last Saturday night, thereby attesting to the love of novelty and distinctiveness among theatregoers of New York. All the familiar conventions associated with musical plays have been swept aside in the production of "Love O' Mike" —there is no chorus, but there is a cast of sixteen principals; the music helps to develop the story and there is a freshness and spontaneity about the individual performances that add to the appeal of the entertainment, which is the work of Thomas Sydney, Harry B. Smith and Jerome Kern.

The play concerns a house party at Bronxville in which the male members are attempting to cure their sweethearts of an infatuation for a British nobleman. The cast includes Lawrence Grossmith, George Hassell, Peggy Wood, Vivian Wessell, Molly McIntyre, George Baldwin, Clifton Web, Quentin Tod, Helen Clarke, Allison McBain, Alan Edwards, Jack Bohn, Luella Gear, Leone Morgan, Katherine Rodgers and Rollin Grimes. Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

ENGAGE ARNOLD DALY.

David Belasco this morning announces that he has placed Arnold Daly under contract to star under his direction during the next two seasons. Mr. Daly is now at Palm Beach recuperating from the severe illness which overtook him about two months ago and from which he was not expected to recover, and his return to the stage will be the occasion for much rejoicing, as well as be an important event in the theatre. Mr. Daly will return from Palm Beach next Monday, and immediately begin rehearsals under Mr. Belasco's direction.

For Mr. Daly, whom he has regarded very highly and been intensely interested in for a great many years, Mr. Belasco has obtained the rights to several plays admirably suited to this splendid actor's virile method, following his custom of producing plays by unknown American authors, the first of the series of plays in which Mr. Belasco will present Mr. Daly will be a new play by an American author hitherto unknown to the theatre. Mr. Daly will appear in this play in New York beginning Easter Monday, April 9.

"HER SOLDIER BOY."

The Astor Theatre, where Clifton Crawford is playing in the military operetta, "Her Soldier Boy," continues to be one of the chief magnets along the Broadway front, and judging from the capacity audiences which are the nightly rule there, Mr. Crawford and his associates, Adele Rowland, Tom Richards and Nell Lydy, will be on active duty until well into the summer. The sixteenth week of the operetta will be ushered in next Monday night.

"Her Soldier Boy" was written by Rida Johnson Young, and based upon a work by Victor Leon. The music is the eminent Hungarian composer, Emmerich Kalman, with countless additional numbers supplied by Clifton Crawford and Sigmund Romberg. The story of the play concerns a romance back of the lines in Belgium.

The cast, noted for its comedy and singing capabilities, includes in addition to the above-named quartet of stars, Cyril Chadwick, Eliz Gergely, Mildred Richardson, Harold Vizard, George Schiller, Frank Ridge, Ward De Wolfe and Ethel Brandon. There is a chorus of fifty. Matinees are held on Wednesday and Saturday.

MAKING "THE BIG SHOW" BIGGER THAN EVER.

Charles Dillingham is always adding new interest and new delights to his colossal spectacle, "The Big Show," at the Hippodrome and now when it is at the very height of its success with Annette Kellermann and her sensational aquatic novelty being talked of everywhere, he will re-establish Charlotte, the greatest ice-skater America has ever seen at the big playhouse. The return of Charlotte, who has enjoyed a season of great success and of brilliant achievements in the other large American cities of the East and Middle West, also engages the expert talents of Ellen Dallerup, Katie Schmidt, Cathleen Pope, George Kerner, Hilda Rueckert, the Nash Twins, the Lamy Brothers, Toto and the two hundred pretty girls on ice. All of the other features of the big show, with countless additional numbers, will remain the same on a program which has never been equalled at this home of many wonders. Matinees are given daily.

Trained Monkies at Plainfield Theatre

"The Monkey Cabaret," a big time animal act that is different from the usual run of animal acts, is one of the features offered at the Plainfield Theatre as the headliner for the vaudeville bill today and tomorrow. It is an attraction that is entirely an exhibition of trained animals, but the feats accomplished by these little funsters are seldom duplicated in other animal acts.

The four remaining acts on the bill are equally as good as the "Monkey Cabaret" and include: Jack Symonds, known as "the man of ease;" Catherine Hayes and Louise Arnold presenting an argument set to music; Williams and Williams in "At a Bookstore," and Stuart, Light and Hardy in a comedy, singing and dancing vehicle.

The last episode of "Pearl of the Army" will be shown this afternoon and tonight at the theatre, and will be augmented by Hearst-Pathe news features and Mutual comedies.

"SHOW OF WONDERS."

The "Show of Wonders" at the Winter Garden, with its spectacular thriller, "Submarine F-7," having surpassed all previous records of runs at the Winter Garden,—is now nearing its two hundredth performance. With the introduction of new songs and dances, in addition to "Submarine F-7," the "Show of Wonders," is the most up-to-date of New York entertainments now on view. "Submarine F-7" has overtopped in spectacular effectiveness all former efforts of this character at the Winter Garden. One of the uprising features of this novelty is that of a submarine crew in attacking and blowing up of a battleship. Another feature of the revised "Show of Wonders" is Willie and Eugene Howard's new singing and comedy act, "A Visit to the Opera." Nothing quite so amusing has been seen heretofore on the Winter Garden stage." The cast of the "Show of Wonders" includes, besides the special company appearing in "Submarine F-7," George W. Monroe, Howard and Howard, Walter C. Kelly, Tom Lewis, Marilynn Miller, John T. Murray, Grace Fisher, Adele Astley, Alexis Kosloff, White and Clayton, Sidney Phillips, Dan Quinlan, Edmund Mulcahy, Eleanor Brown, James Grant, Ernest Hare, Virginia Smith and others. Matinees occur on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The usual big concert will be given on Sunday.

STRAND THEATRE.

At the Strand Theatre, Jack Pickford, talented young brother of Mary Pickford, will be seen in a photo-dramatic adaptation of "The Dummy," one of the greatest stage successes in recent years. In this play the youthful star is afforded exceptional opportunities for the inimitable touches of humor and real boy-life of which he is past master. Max Linder, the famous French comedian, will appear in his latest American-made farce-comedy, entitled "Max Wants a Divorce," which is said to be brimful of legitimate, and high class comedy situations. This picture will be shown for the week exclusively at the Strand. The marvelous Prizma pictures in natural colors will also be shown; the subjects selected for the week are Sandhe Lake and Palm Beach. Other pictures on the program are: A new chapter of Ditmar's "Living Book of Nature" and the Strand Topical Review containing the latest news pictures.

The musical program is an exceptionally well balanced and interesting one. Among the soloists are Lydia Lindgren, famous Swedish mezzo soprano, late of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Knud Dalgaard, the noted Danish violin virtuoso; Grace Hoffman, soprano; Arthur Depew and Ralph Brigham, organists. The Concert Orchestra, under the direction of Carl Edouarde, will play an operatic overture and classical and popular selections to the subjects shown on the screen.

HIPPO'S SENSATIONAL SUCCESS.

The Hippodrome continues to attract the greatest attention among the big cities in town, as Charles Dillingham's gorgeous pageant, "The Big Show," in its present completeness is conceded to be the most popular offering ever presented at this huge and interesting playhouse. Realizing that the public is enjoying the novelty of seeing her under this water for the first time Annette Kellermann will completely alter her program this coming week, and during most of the time allotted to her sensational aquatic spectacle, "The Queen of The Mermaids," she will remain submerged. The startling announcement is made that she will swim under the water for fourteen miles in all, coming to the surface only to perform her graceful and daring dives which punctuate the remarkable performance of this diving queen. The large glass front tanks in use at the Hippodrome make this under-the-sea exhibition possible for the first time and no feature of this varied and colossal bill of novelties seem to be more enjoyed than that contained in the enchanted waterfalls.

With interest in ice skating now at its very height "The Merry Doll" with its imported and domestic skating beauties including Ellen Dallerup, Katie Schmidt, Cathleen Pope, Hilda Rueckert and the Nash Twins, form a most attractive climax to this congress of achievements. Matinees are given daily.

ADVERTISE IN THE PLAINFIELD RECORD.

Bible Students in 'Too Many Husbands'

The annual play of the Probasco Bible class will be presented in the Plainfield High School tomorrow night, and will be a two-act comedy entitled "Too Many Husbands." Under the excellent coaching of Mrs. G. Stuart Simons the cast has prepared to give one of the best offerings of the popular comedy that has been staged locally on several previous occasions. The various characters and those who will impersonate them are: Col. Thaddeus Crane, Niamiah John Randolph Chandler; Dorothy Crane, Ralph Marlin; Chauncey Chilton, Charles Leadbitter; Arthur Maitland, Randolph Stelle; Harry Bunn, Burton Isen; Milly Bunn, Albert Newmiller; Rev. Ormsby, Clifford Terry; Mrs. Shefield, Irving Pratt; Mollie, Duncan Paterson; Jones, Clifford Sullivan; O'Flynn, Alexander Benton; Randolph Bauer, Esq., Pierson.

Harry Wetton Secured by Manager Shannon

As another step in the policy to give Plainfield amusement seekers the best obtainable, Manager Shannon has secured Harry Wetton and his orchestra of five pieces to provide the music at the Plainfield Theatre. The direction of the musical program has been placed in the hands of Mr. Wetton and he is planning to make special efforts to bring it to the highest possible standard.

Mr. Wetton has been prominent in the musical world for years, not only locally but in the metropolitan district, and various times in his career he has been director of music in some of the largest playhouses in New York. For years he had entire charge of the musical portion of the programs at the productions of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks and other lodges all over the State.

Amateur Thespians Offer Two Comedies

"The Moodoo," another comedy playlet, will be presented by the Chi Gamma Chi Club in St. Joseph's Hall Monday night at 8 o'clock. It will be the first attempt of the club, which is composed of young women in St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes, to stage theatricals, but under the efficient coaching of Miss Mary Connor the cast has taken hold of the finer points of the play in an excellent manner. The characters are taken by the following young people: Anna McGinness, Elsie Moulton, Anna Daley, Catherine Newell, Frances Newman, Theresa McCullough, Florence Daley, Esther Regan, Etta Fenton and Nora Bergen. They will be assisted by the following young men: Fred Greene, Edwin Sullivan, Harold Meade, William Mead, Andy McDonough and Lester Daley.

Runyon Flays 'the Boss' In N. J. Politics

Speaking before the Women's Club of Hoboken, last week, Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of this city, hurled some red-hot word grenades into the camp of State House politicians. Mr. Runyon's comments are of more than ordinary interest by reason of the fact that he is a member of the majority party in the State at the present time, was Republican leader of the House in the session of 1915, has twice been defeated as an independent G. O. P. candidate for speaker, and is regarded as one of the ablest men in the Legislature.

"Every Assemblyman goes to Trenton an idealist," declared Runyon before the Women's Club, "but it is hard to kick against the bricks. To play the game according to rule, one is not supposed to think for himself. Favors are granted through 'the boss.' In every group there are certain men you can absolutely depend on, they are mostly men from the small counties; while they may not be able to construct they can obstruct the passage of obnoxious laws."

"The first year of a Governor's term, the Union man explained, the legislators fawn upon him, for there are fat jobs to be given out. The next year they treat him with courtesy, and in his final year the executive loses his charm for those who formerly bowed to him. Mr. Runyon said honest men going to the Legislature discover that they must give something in order to obtain anything. He declared former Governor Fielder, Democratic Leader Geran and Secretary of State Martin are "square men though on the other side of the fence." Mr. Runyon poked fun at the Republican Essex delegation whom he described as being without a rudder since the death of their boss.

Big Additions for Pond Plant

Officials of the Niles-Bement-Pond Tool Company, already the largest manufacturing concern in the city, have approved plans for the enlarging of the present floor space that, when completed, will nearly double the present facilities of the concern. It could not be learned yesterday how much the work was to cost, when it would be completed or who the contractors were to be, that having been left to the architects.

The most important of the changes that will be made will be the erection of a two-story brick building on Prescott place, across the street from the main building. When it is completed the offices of the plant will occupy the first floor, while the entire second floor will be used for the drafting department. An underground tunnel will connect the structure with the others and by that means will get heat and light.

Two other additions, to be of brick construction and one story in height, are included in the improvements. The first will be built on the property recently acquired laying between the present buildings and the tracks of the C. R. R. of N. J. The other is to be joined on to the west end of the main building. Contractors have already been working for sometime on the second of the two but a change in plans that will double the size of the structure has held up the completion. It is expected that the steel work for the other will arrive about May 1. When completed both buildings will be added to the shop space.

In talking to a Record reporter yesterday regarding the rumor that the concern's plant at Philadelphia was to be moved to this city, an official of the Pond company said that the circulation of the story was positively without cause, as the plan had not even been talked of. The Philadelphia factory is engaged mostly in the manufacture of steel cranes.

DR. EATON'S GRENADES.

Many New York pastors preached last Sunday on the international crisis and the possibility of the United States being drawn into the conflict.

Here are a few of the grenades hurled into the camp of the pacifists by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton of Watchung, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church:

"This nation has become a nation of moral slackers."

"The country is divided by different nationalities, bedevilled by wild-eyed women and beset by poor, pussy-footing pacifists."

"I had rather have a man in the wrong and stand up to it than be a north-by-south jellyfish."

"It would be a good thing for the country if half of us got shot. Slackers want to meet the enemy at the gates with sweet words."

Dr. Eaton's remarks were cheered by the young men of his Bible class. Criticising the stand of those who feared we will be involved in the war, Dr. Eaton said:

"We ought to be afraid lest we do not become involved in the war. Pacifists, or peace people, are afflicting the country. They are going about carrying powder puffs. It is enough to make a red-blooded man indulge in profanity. Americans are morally sick. The churches have been hoodooed and are teaching a moral asphyxiation. America has been masquerading in effeminacy and living in a moral vacuum."

Beautify Your Lawn

If your lawn is not looking right it's ten to one that it needs lime. Every cutting of grass takes a part of the original supply of lime out of the soil and if not replaced, in time the land becomes impoverished and sour, and is known as acid soil. Several otherwise excellent burial vaults have tops that are simply laid over the casket and left to their own devices. This, of course, is handier and much cheaper. But what of its safety? The Norwalk Vault leaves nothing to chance; its top is securely cemented on by hand, and top and bottom become one solid piece of masonry. PLAINFIELD, N. J., MARCH 16, 1917.

The following letter has been received by the Record from Elliott T. Barrows, president of the Board of Health:

I became a subscriber to your paper before it started, and have followed each issue with great pleasure; for you have given Plainfield a real newspaper, full of facts, presented in an interesting form.

Your editorials have been leaders, and guided by a sense of public interest; so much so, that I was amazed to read now far from right you were in your leading editorial of today, headed "Board of Health's Short-Sighted Policy." It demands an answer for two reasons. First, that your statements are not guided by facts, and second, that your reflections on the appointment of Mr. McVoy are neither fair to the Board or the public, who pay for the same.

The Board of Health did not retire Mr. Addis, but on the contrary he retired himself, and under the law automatically became possessor of a pension for life—this due to the "Veteran Act" covering twenty years' service in a civil department. Neither his age, or the desires of the department came into the question. He demanded to be retired and should the Board have wished to retain him, they had no voice in the matter.

Mr. McVoy was appointed with the knowledge and approval of the Mayor and Corporation Counsel. He will hold office year by year, and cannot receive a pension when no longer able to fill the position. He is sixty-nine years of age (eight years younger than Mr. Addis), in fine physical condition,—a master plumber, and of that rare type of citizen that seems in our city always ready to serve her interests. Plainfield cannot afford to carry on its list of employes, an inspector who would only look after plumbing, and the man who fills that position must also perform other duties that require diplomacy and tact.

Contrary to your statement, "would it not have been better for the Board of Health to have at least attempted to single out some young man qualified for this work," for you to have investigated and found that the Board has already started one of their young men in this work, and who later will take the State examination (which is required of all appointees) and be ready to step into the position when the time comes for Mr. McVoy to retire, and would it not at least have been fair to give a Board, serving without remuneration, three of whom have been members over four years, the credit of knowing the needs of the department, and the spirit of endeavor to conduct it for the best interests of the city and its taxpayers?"

With all due respect to the President of the Board of Health there are three outstanding indications that his remarks were not the result of a careful perusal of the Record's editorial. In brief these are:

1. The Record did not say that the Board retired Mr. Addis.

2. The Record did not question Mr. McVoy's qualifications.

3. The Record published nothing but facts in the editorial.

Referring to Mr. Addis the original editorial said: "William Addis, Sr., aged seventy-seven years, RETIRED as plumbing inspector on March 1, VOLUNTARILY admitting that he was too old to longer perform the duties of the office satisfactorily." There is not the slightest intimation conveyed that the Board of Health was instrumental in bringing about his retirement. Mr. Addis was legally entitled to a pension and when he asked to be relieved from the office the Board had no alternative other than to retire him and provide for his annual pension.

Regarding Mr. McVoy the Record said: "The new man may be well qualified for the office; he may have sufficient confidence in himself to believe that he is capable of serving the city for years to come; and while he is plumbing inspector he may earn every cent of the $1,000 annual salary." There is no reflection made on Mr. McVoy's ability. We take pleasure in endorsing Mr. Barrow's statement that he "is in fine physical condition, a master plumber, and of that rare type of citizen that seems in our city always ready to serve her interests."

Mr. Barrows has neglected to show that the Record's editorial was not based on facts. He makes the allegation but in no way substantiates it. On the contrary it was the facts of the case that brought the editorial to the attention of the Board of Health.

When an error is made the Record is always ready to admit it, but in this case we see no cause for retracting a single item in the editorial mentioned. Mr. Barrows opens a new avenue of thought when he says that the Health Board is grooming one of its young employes to take the State examination making him eligible to step into Mr. McVoy's place when the latter retires.

Mr. Barrows declares that a State examination is required of all appointees to the office of plumbing inspector. Does he not know that Mr. McVoy has taken no such test and will not be able to do so until the State Board meets next June?

Does he not know that under the State laws the two young men now employed by the Board of Health are on the same footing with the local health officer? Does he not know that they have successfully passed the State tests for a health officer's certificate?

These two young men, one of whom Mr. Barrows had in mind, have the title of "inspectors" in the local Board of Health. They command a salary equal to approximately fifty per cent. of that enjoyed by the health officer. Neither is a master plumber and, as we understand it, the Plainfield Board of Health demands a master plumber for the office Mr. McVoy now holds.

In view of these facts is it reasonable to expect that the two young men are going to be available when Mr. McVoy retires? Are they going to continue as inspectors at a $720 annual salary when they are eligible to act as health officers? The Board of Health evidently expected Mr. McVoy to continue in the office for five years, at least, when the appointment was made. But where are the two young men going to be in five years? It is folly on the part of the Board of Health to groom either one of them for plumbing inspector when the bait to lure them on to the time when Mr. McVoy retires is but $720 a year.

If the Board of Health is seriously considering the appointment of either of these young men to the plumbing inspectorship why did it not give them an opportunity to serve an apprenticeship under Mr. Addis? Why was it that one of them was not given an opportunity to step into Mr. Addis' shoes at that time?

Now, Mr. Barrows, none of us are infallible. To err is human but we still contend that the facts in the Record editorial were correctly stated and that the "short sighted policy" charge was perfectly justified. In fact the admission that you are grooming one of the young men now in the Health Board service for the McVoy vacancy when it does come is further evidence of "short-sightedness." In our opinion your time is wasted for if Mr. McVoy is blessed with the longevity you anticipate the candidate you now have in view will by that time be entitled to a pension for his work in the employ of the local Health Board.

WHY NOT "PREPARE" IN OUR HIGH SCHOOLS?

"Preparedness" has become the most used word in the English vocabulary and municipalities of Plainfield's calibre throughout the country are striving to bring its true meaning and its twentieth century importance to the attention of patriots. Plainfield has patriots and it also has its share of sponsors for "preparedness." But to what extent the city is "prepared" is not known and will probably not be indicated until the crucial moment arrives.

Government experts have singled out certain industries within our limits as valuable assets in "preparing" the nation and in the time of actual warfare it is likely that several manufacturing concerns in Plainfield would be commandeered by the United States War Department. The major portion of the skilled mechanics turning the wheels of industry in these plants are citizens of Plainfield and a large proportion of them are native born.

What precautions have the local government authorities taken to protect these factories and other municipal buildings and industries in the time of trouble?

Military training in the high schools is a question before the nation and it should be brought right home to Plainfield and North Plainfield. There are several hundred students in the local and borough institutions of learning who would be available for service in one way or another in the time of war. Not many years ago Plainfield's high school boasted of a well organized and well equipped cadet corps. It has since passed out of existence but now appears to be the opportune time for a revival of interest in the one-time flourishing feature and the establishment of a similar corps in North Plainfield. The youth of the nation has been stirred to the proper pitch of enthusiasm and there would undoubtedly be scores of students who would rally to the call.

In case of trouble with Germany these young men would be available for home duty; they would be organized to serve as guards to insure the protection of Plainfield homes and Plainfield property.

IT'S A PITY WE HAVEN'T A FEW MORE.

"Every assemblyman goes to Trenton an idealist," said Assemblyman William N. Runyon in a recent speech, "but it is hard to kick against the bricks. To play the game according to rule, one is not supposed to think for himself."

And in this short paragraph is summarized the situation an honest and independent representative has to face in fighting for his ideals at the State's Capitol. To think independently is to jeopardize his chances of mounting to a superior office. He is supposed to plank his boots in the footsteps left by political bosses; to stray from the constructed path is certain to bring the disfavor of party powers upon his head. Our Republican moguls insist that they map out the assemblyman's course in legislative matters and he is supposed to stick to the blue-prints.

Because he thought for himself and looked upon the G. O. P. bosses as distributors of free advice rather to be shunned than heeded Assemblyman Runyon was twice deprived of the Speakership. His three years in the House have been characterized by honest opinion; he has refused to adulterate his sentiments with the ever-ready machine thought and action of the "higher-ups" of the party. As a representative of the people who elected him, Mr. Runyon is an idealist still; to the State he is a credit. But to the Trenton bosses he is as unpopular and as distasteful as a weazel in a hen coop simply because he will not do their bidding.

More law-makers like the Plainfield man would soon put New Jersey's government on a higher moral plane and if the present Legislature was blessed with more of his calibre the snake-in-the-grass variety of politician would soon be given to understand that he had worn the welcome from the State House mat. Mr. Runyon's two defeats in speakership races stand out as monuments to his principles; in both instances he garnered more glory from defeat than he could have possibly attained in being the choice of a boss-ridden Legislature.

Local distributors of garden seeds have cause for rejoice. It has been announced in Washington that the supply has been exhausted and the usual allotment of vegetable and flower seeds will not be sent about the country this spring. Many householders have depended upon the receipt of such tokens from representatives in Washington every year and the distributors have been unusually generous in handing them out. It now behooves those who contemplate having gardens to purchase their seeds from local dealers for the spring planting.

Let's see, what was it von Papen called us—"Babbitt Yankees?"

CALKINS' BILL PROVIDES AN INTERESTING FEATURE.

In the event of the bill "fathered" by Mayor Leighton Calkins and introduced to the Legislature by Assemblyman William N. Runyon becoming a law, and there is every reason to believe that it will, Plainfield's Common Council will be empowered to place momentous questions before the city voters at the general election for an expression of sentiment. Contrary to the opinion of many the bill was not designed primarily to solve the local option issue but it supplies the legal authorization for placing this proposition before the citizens for a vote. Such a step must be first sanctioned by the Common Council and the result of the balloting will in no way bind the city's governing body in acting. The measure simply provides for an expression of opinion.

However, those campaigning against the liquor interests in Plainfield foresee an opportunity to bring the local object issue to a test. It is generally admitted that the city voters are fairly evenly divided on the liquor question and an expression of sentiment one way or another would no doubt influence the Common Council in awarding licenses next year. The Council also has its "wet" and "dry" champions and it would first be necessary for either faction to gain an advantage in this body before authorization could be secured to bring the subject up for a vote.

Needless to say the terms of the bill provide an interesting and useful asset to city government in cities of Plainfield's class. Frequently questions come before the Common Council of vital importance and the need of ascertaining public sentiment has been felt in many instances. A vote will enable an intelligent disposition of each problem and at the same time will enable the representatives of the people to meet the popular demand.

FIREMEN WORTHY OF INCREASE IN PAY.

Formal application has been filed by the Plainfield fire department members with the councilmanic fire commissioners for an increase in pay. Speedy and satisfactory action on the proposition should be the result for the city is depriving this type of municipal employe from the necessities of life, in many instances, simply because it has not increased the salaries commensurately with the cost of living. The fireman is a city servant well worthy of consideration and his request is for only a reasonable raise at this time.

While living expenses have practically doubled the fireman today is forced to make the same amount of money do the identical work it did a year ago. Fifty per cent., and probably more, of the department members are married and have families. Money today will do approximately fifty per cent. of what it did in making household purchases a year ago and this fact should be kept in mind by the Common Council in acting on the application.

The fireman is on duty twenty-four hours a day and gets one day off a week. He is forced to make his station his sleeping quarters six days a week and meal hours are the only time he has with his family. In other words he is practically isolated from the city's recreational features and the entertainment in his life comes from within the walls of the fire house.

BRING THE ISSUE RIGHT BACK HOME.

"It would be a good thing for the country if half of us got shot. We ought to be afraid lest we do not become involved in the war."—One thought in Dr. Eaton's sermon last Sunday before his congregation in the Madison Avenue (N. Y.) Baptist church.

Just two questions Dr. Eaton.—"How many members of your immediate family are eligible to face the fire of the enemy's cannon?" "Are you still within the maximum age limit established for army service?"

* * * * *

Plainfielders will read with interest Lyman Hibbard's account of his personal experiences as an ambulancier in the European war zone. For three months this local youth has been piloting an army hospital patrol near the city of Verdun and has distinguished himself in numerous small, but significant, ways. He has been through the thick of the fray, he has faced dangers such as no words can picture, and he has brought honor to the country of his nativity through his work as a French volunteer. He is but one of the many American youths sacrificing home comforts and college courses for adventure and service but he is the one of which Plainfield should feel most proud.

Signed communications on topics of interest to the general public are welcomed by the Record and will be given due prominence in its columns. This much has been said previously and every attempt has been made to impress upon the minds of the public the necessity of signing the contributions. A number of letters, some on subjects important and well worth publication, are received weekly but in many cases no means of identifying the writer is provided and they find their way to the waste basket. The Record's columns are open to all of its readers and criticism on civic issues is invited.

The city's new taxi rate card goes into effect today. It provides for an increase of ten cents for rides to and from the Plainfield depot within the "back zone" and also abolishes the double fare charge within this radius after 11 o'clock at night. Hence, the future rate will be thirty-five cents per person for transportation to and from the depot, instead of the previous twenty-five cents. The ordinance reforsonly to depot service; the rates operating taxis being at liberty to charge what they choose for calls received at their offices or sent from their offices.

Governor Edge has vetoed another salary increase bill, this time one giving to the members of the Board of Freeholders of Camden county $500 a year each, instead of $300, and the director of the board $700 instead of $500. The Governor says he is opposed to the general policy of salary increases "unless the justification for such increase is more apparent than would seem to be indicated in this measure." He looks for the passage of a greater home rule law which leave salaries "a matter for local regulation."

THE CASE OF ASSEMBLYMAN RUNYON

FROM

The "Hudson Dispatch."

Was there anyone in that great crowd that jammed the galleries and every inch of standing room on the floor of the House of Assembly on Monday night to hear the Local Option debate who was not convincingly impressed with the fact that Assemblyman William Runyon, of Union county, is by far the ablest, the most intellectual man in the lower branch, if not in the entire Legislature? Is there anyone who has watched the work of this able statesman not only during this session, but during the three last sessions, who has not been impressed with his brilliant mind, with the soundness of his statesmanship? His statesmanship has never been of the "stand pat" order, but has been marked by clear-headed common sense in its convictions on principles that are looked upon as radical by comparison with old ideas that were never based upon soundness and justice.

Assemblyman Runyon is a man whose sterling character and whose honesty of purpose and unadulterated sincerity have won the admiration of his constituents in Union County, and those fine traits have won the confidence and the friendship of every man who has served with him in the Legislature during three terms, and we believe we can say that unqualifiedly.

Assemblyman Runyon's ability, his character, his personality, should be the biggest asset of his party, the Republican party, in the Legislature; these qualities should make him one of the most potent forces of his party in the State; yet they very qualities that should have placed him in a position of great influence have on the contrary forced him to the background, or as far to the background as a man of his calibre can be forced. His entire political career has been full of disappointments and unfortunate incidents, yet he rises above them all, and in performing his duties dominates every scene which brings him to his feet to speak or to give counsel.

His first disappointment was his defeat for Congress, a defeat that was brought about by a combination of political circumstances over which he had no control, a defeat which reflected no weakness upon his part. In 1913 he was elected to the Assembly, and though a first year man, he was chosen majority leader because there was no man of his party capable of filling that exacting role. That was the year of the big Morris canal abandonment fight, and of other big legislation, and while no first year man had ever before attempted a floor leadership, Assemblyman Runyon's inexperience was hardly in evidence, for he distinguished himself by his able work in that session.

The next year he was the logical man of his party for Speaker, but there were big interests which had enough control from within his party to prevent his selection, and instead of being promoted from majority leader to the Speakership he was relegated to the ranks. This year he was again the logical man for Speaker, but those same interests which had prevented his election last year again prevented his recognition this year. And there he sits, day after day, rendering distinguished services in the ranks while his party is sorely in need of his distinguished services as a leader. His services are not in demand by big interests, for Assemblyman Runyon has shown no inclination toward giving special privileges to anybody. It seems almost incomprehensible that a man of his calibre should be so flagrantly kept in the background because of his independence.

SENATOR KENYON, OF IOWA,

Responds to Valedictory of

SENATOR MARTINE.

Mr. President, every man in this Chamber feels a personal loss I am sure at the departure of the Senator from New Jersey. The most needful thing in public life today is courage. Sometimes it seems the rarest. He has it in abundance and does not hesitate to use it. No one ever saw him flinch in the performance of any public duty. Hypocrisy never had a dwelling place in his soul. Brave as a lion he has a heart as tender as a woman's. Just a few days ago a Senator spoke in the cloakroom of seeing the Senator from New Jersey on F street helping a poor old colored woman with a basket of clothes, and directing her in his characteristic way how to go. It was like the Senator from New Jersey. No suffering mortal would ever appeal to him in vain, no needy one will ever be turned from his door.

Men to him are truly brothers, and he is a real lover of mankind. Jovial in disposition he has brought into this Chamber the sunshine of good cheer. Patriotic and able, with a fighting spirit when aroused, he has fought here the good fight for the people of this country. He has kept the faith with them. We all trust that he may frequently leave the narrow confines and the mosquito-laden air of New Jersey and come down here to mingle with his comrades in this body.

He leaves the Senate with the well wishes and the affectionate regard of all its members. May the good Father permit him to remain long upon the earth, for the earth is a better place because such men as Jim Martine live.

May he go on in the mission of serving humanity, making more cheerful those around him, inspiring hope in the despondent, joy in the sorrowful, happiness in all who come in contact with him.

Whatever he may be doing in the future, and wherever he may be, we know his power, his influence, his heart will always be arrayed upon the side of those of our body politic whom he so frequently and affectionately terms "the under-dog."

Famous Teams of Quarter Century Ago to Gather for Benefit Game

Since the European War broke out in 1914 Plainfield has found many different ways in which to raise money for the relief of Belgians, Syrians, Slavs, all to local fans was "Dummy" Beegan, who until a few years ago kept a hotel at Scotch Plains. He was once a pitcher in the old Eastern League and on more than one occasion twirled for Plainfield. Some of the players are now prominent lawyers or business men known all over the State. A contest between them would draw thousands.

It is the present plan to get the old-timers together and stage the game in North Amboy during the early part of the summer. Afterward a big banquet is to be held at the Park House, the city's finest hotel, which is operated by Peter Florescu, who formerly conducted the Queen City Hotel.

TEACHERS' TESTS IN APRIL.

State teachers' examinations will be held in Central High School, Newark, on the three Saturdays of April. Teachers' tests will be for special subjects, as well as for grammar grade and high school certificates. Examinations will be held at the same time and place for academic counts for students who wish to enter technical and professional schools and have not high school diplomas.

PLANNING CARD PARTY.

Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, is making plans for the holding of a card party sometime in the near future and has appointed the following committee to take charge: Mrs. H. B. Arnold, chairman; Miss Anna Doyle, Miss Emma Sullivan, Miss Betty Mara, Mrs. P. J. McDonough, Mrs. Keenan, Mrs. Dorkan, Mrs. E. Feiring, Mrs. P. S. Kiely and Miss Mary Reilly.

LABOR CONTROVERSY SETTLED.

Affairs have assumed their normal shape in labor circles in this city after an upheaval of several months that ended in higher wage rates for nearly every trade. The last to be affected by the rate increase were the bread carriers and brick-layers, who made a demand a short time ago. A settlement has been arrived at with the bosses and the possibility of strikes has now disappeared.

Exclusive Styles

And in eight body styles.

Each body is exclusive—designed by our artists, built in our own shops.

Unique Features

There are 31 features in the Mitchell most of which all other cars omit. Things like a power tire pump, dashboard engine primer, reversible headlights, Bate cantilever springs.

This year we add 24 per cent to the luxury cost, which means stunning cars. Savings made in our new body plant pay all this extra cost. And this year, for the first time, we announce 100 per cent over-strength in every vital part. Our old margin of safety was 50 per cent.

A Lifetime Car

The result of this double strength is a lifetime car. Over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. All safety parts are vastly oversize. All parts which get a major strain are built of Chrome-Vanadium.

Gears are tested for 50,000 pounds per tooth. Engines are tested for 10,000 miles without evidence of wear. And several Mitchells have already run over 200,000 miles.

No Extra Cost

All these advantages cost you no extra price. They will cost us, on this year's output, about $4,000,000. But they are paid for by factory savings.

John W. Bate, our great efficiency expert, built and equipped this mammoth plant to build this one type economically. His methods have cut our factory cost in two. These factory savings—unique to Mitchell—pay for all these extras.

New $1150 Size

To meet a wide demand we now build two sizes of the Mitchell Six. But the smaller Mitchell Junior—has a 120-inch wheelbase. See which size you like best, and which style of body. All new models are now on show.

Bill Goes to Senate

not satisfied with the mere statement of the Speaker and demanded that he be shown the receipt. This was shown him at the Clerk's desk.

"Is the ink dry on it," asked Assemblyman Idlet, the Hunterdon minister, when Runyon reached his seat again, and the latter answered he was not an expert on ink impressions. Then Runyon launched into an unusual speech, which was a plea for the House to stand by its approval of his bill, a plea which resulted in Dalrymple withdrawing his resolution to recall the measure.

"The happenings of last night stand out in my memory with very great distinction," said the Union member. "I have not tried, since being a member of this House, to play the game according to the underground methods. Last night I believe I left this hall as nearly disheartened as I ever felt, because I felt I should have had fair treatment.

Runyon stated that, despite the fact that the House had, the night before, made it mandatory that the bill be sent to the Senate immediately, he could not but help thinking that it had but just left the House.

"This is not a closed incident, and now I ask the help of the members as one who may have failed many times in the past, but whose intentions cannot be questioned. This bill is being branded as a local option bill. I say that if it is the local option is diluted to the last degree. The question now is whether a member who has gained the support of the House for his measure, been supported by it in his effort to defeat reconsideration, and in his motion to have the bill sent to the Senate, is to lose that fealty. I move that the resolution lie on the table."

Assemblyman Dolan, of Hudson, before the Runyon motion was put, endeavored to say something and asked the Union member to withdraw his motion for a minute, so that he might speak. Runyon answered that he would like to grant the request, but could not give away his advantage.

"I am like a rat in a corner," he explained.

"Mr. Speaker, I desire to withdraw my resolution," announced Dalrymple, and Runyon turned and thanked him.

When House Bill 56 passed the Assembly several weeks ago it caused no stir at once, but about an hour afterwards Mr. Dalrymple attempted to have it reconsidered, claiming that he believed it had a local option flavor. At that time his motion was tabled and Runyon declared that the bill was a long way from local option. Monday evening, when Runyon attempted to take the question of reconsideration from the table, he stated Dalrymple said he was satisfied with the bill. Dalrymple, however, said he thought it ought to be amended so as to remove any doubt.

Assemblyman Runyon says the measure is wanted for Plainfield. It provides that whatever sentiment is expressed by the voters on a public question, the result shall not be binding upon the governing body. Under its provisions the question "Shall saloons be licensed?" could be submitted to the people of any second-class municipality for an expression of their opinion.

Inasmuch as local option has once passed the Senate at this session, it will be interesting to watch the course of the Runyon bill in that body now that it has finally cleared the House of Assembly, opponents to the contrary notwithstanding.

MRS. ELIZABETH DE FOREST.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock for Mrs. Elizabeth T. DeForest from her late home on West Second street. Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which she was a member, will officiate. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. De Forest was eighty-one years of age and succumbed Tuesday night following a stroke of paralysis. Up until the time of her death she had been actively engaged in local charity work. She was a member of the Women's Temperance Union and S. P. C. A. and erected the fountain on West Second street in memory of her daughter.

Her nearest surviving relative is a brother, Adam T. Green, living in California. She also leaves a grandson, two granddaughters and several great grandchildren.

MISS MARTHA BROWN.

The funeral of Miss Isaac Brown, who died at her home on Watchung avenue Saturday night, was held Wednesday afternoon from the late residence, Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector of Grace church, officiating. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Brown was in her fifty-ninth year and had enjoyed excellent health until stricken with pneumonia about a month ago. She had been a resident of this city for the past twenty-five years, coming from Newark, and was a member of Grace church. Beside her husband, she leaves three sons. They are: Edward A., of Plainfield, and William P. and Dr. S. A. Brown, of New York. Three sisters also survive.

ELKS' BILLIARD TOURNEY.

The billiard tournament that has been in progress at the Elks' clubhouse for the past two months will come to a close on March 23. Several matches still remain to be played, they being: Tonight, Ayers vs. Staats. Monday, Force vs. Smith; Tuesday, Force vs. Smith; Wednesday, Holder vs. Staats, and Thursday, Ayers vs. Boos.

structors they will receive an education in the Hebrew language, Hebrew history and Hebrew traditions. Under the auspices of the educational department of the association, it is also planned to have a course in government, with a special view to making the young Jewish citizen conversant with the affairs and current happenings of the Federal Government, the State government, and our city government. This desire is particularly to meet a need that the committee has felt should be met for a long time, so that our young men may be well versed on those matters about which so many young men of today are sadly ignorant. A special class for the purpose of naturalization is contemplated for the older men who desire or who ought to take out citizenship papers so as to fit them better for citizenship and genuine allegiance to our Government in this country, particularly in these trying times.

The committee from time to time will announce the contributions as they are received, and at the present time desires to announce that the largest cash contribution thus far received is from Tepper Brothers, amounting to $500. Benjamin J. Kline has also subscribed $500, Jacob A. Pass $200, Morris Abrams $200, Samuel H. Schwartz $150, Hyman Adelberg, $100, Rosenbaum Brothers $100, Ezhell Bronston $100, Symon Hirsch $100, and Jacob J. Schwartz $50. A large number of smaller contributions have been received and the enthusiasm which has been shown thus far is significant of the fact that within a couple of weeks the building fund committee will be able to report cash at hand amounting to $5,000. At a small meeting held in the Y. M. H. A. recently, the enthusiasm of about fifteen young fellows, of whom four of them were members who were admitted on that night, was so aroused that after a spirited talk by the chairman of the building committee, these fifteen young men pledged $125 toward the fund. Their names follow: Harry Bronston $30, Victor Milon $20, Reuben Rabinowitz $10, A. Zeckendorf $10, Cojmon & Pariser, $10, Edward Marks $7.50, Visitor $5, Louis Genisman $5, Alex Goodman $5, Edward Jass $5, Arthur H. Richards $5, Robert Rhein $5, Isidor Schneider $5, and, Samuel Wirth $2.50.

The contributions may be sent to any member of the building campaign committee, which consists of the following: Harvey Rothberg, chairman; Benjamin J. Kline, treasurer; Samuel Schwartz, Samuel H. Schwartz, William Augenblich and Harry Dreier, and an acknowledgement thereof will be immediately mailed to the donor.

At a meeting of the committee held Wednesday night $1,440 was subscribed to the fund by the following: Benjamin J. Kline, $500; Samuel Schwartz, $500; Harry Dreier, $100; Samuel H. Schwartz, $100; Ezhell Bronston, $100; Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Association, $50; Irving Kuntzman, $25; Dr. Ellis Campus, $10; Morris L. Abrams, $5, and Samuel Krauthamer, $50. The total has now reached $3,800 and by April 1 it will have had to mount to $5,000 if the campaign is to succeed. Several meetings will be held during the coming week when it is expected the desired amount will be obtained.

STATE HELP FOR BETTER FINANCING

By ASSEMBLYMAN ARTHUR N. PIERSON

A new help to sound municipal financing is about to be given to the cities of New Jersey, but the principles involved may be applied to cities everywhere. The legislation now proposed in New Jersey, I believe, will prove a forerunner of better financial systems for municipalities throughout the country.

One of the most interesting features of the legislation awaiting action in New Jersey is a bill which will provide for a State Commissioner of Accounts. He will be the public's eye, watching municipal balance sheets, and helping the local governments keep their finances on a sound basis. Behind him will be the organization of a Department of Municipal Accounts with a corps of trained assistants.

Other bills are pending which will cause all the cities of the State to present yearly budgets in a prescribed manner, to lay aside adequate sums yearly for the payment of their debts, and to wipe out their floating indebtedness.

Practically no opposition to this legislation has developed as the proposed changes were called for in the platform of the successful party at the last election. I have had many assurances that these bills will be enacted into law, and feel sure of their passage.

Uniform Budgets for Every City.

A step which I confidently predict we shall take this year will make it necessary for every city, county and school district in the State of New Jersey to prepare a yearly budget. Public hearings at which any taxpayer may present objections must be held in connection with the budget making, and the budget must be published in the local newspapers at least one week, and not more than two weeks, before the public hearings are held.

The budget bill not only provides for a uniform system of budget making for municipalities, but it fixes a State policy for this important matter. It will direct the control and raising of $80,000,000 annually. It will make further additions to the floating debt of local governing bodies impossible. The budget bill may not be perfect in every respect, but we hope it will stop the largest leaks.

Passing Up the Public Debt to Be Abolished.

The practice of passing on to future generations the burden of paying the debts of the present generation should be forever done away with in New Jersey when the Department of Municipal Accounts is established and the new sinking fund law is passed. The proposed sinking fund law will establish a State policy for the administration, investment and audit of all local sinking funds.

Another new bill provides for the refunding of all present floating indebtedness and prescribes a policy for incurring all temporary tax obligations. These laws, together with the bond law we passed last year against the opposition of a hostile majority ought to make the cities of New Jersey leaders in sound municipal financing.

New Legislation Should Encourage Home Rule.

Home rule is a good thing when citizens are interested enough in their local governments to see that the best methods of administration are adopted and enforced. Through a minimum of State supervision in matters of finance I believe that a greater interest in the administration of local affairs is being stimulated. Already I have seen signs of activity on the part of local officials in straightening out their balance sheets.

This awakened interest because of State assistance in financial matters may in the end lead to a greater measure of home rule because of the aroused consciousness of cities to their responsibilities.

Canadian War Office Thinks Edward Forgerson Is Dead

Although it was last October that John E. Forgerson, of Summit avenue, got a short telegram from the Canadian War Office at Toronto saying that his son, Edward Forgerson, had been missing "somewhere in France" since September 15, the old man has not yet given up hope of some day having him return. Standing in the doorway of his blacksmith shop on Lincoln place, as the days go by he greets the postman with a cheery smile only to find that the letter he had hoped for does not come.

With the first news of war in August, 1914, Edward Forgerson, a strapping young man of thirty, had been enthusiastic over the conflict. In April of the following year he turned aside the pleadings of his parents and left for Canada and a short time later word was received in a letter that he had joined the Continentals as a horse-shoer. The next word that reached his parents was written just as he was about to depart for Europe with a shipload of horses. The third and last letter to reach here was mailed from "somewhere behind the Somme" and because of the shortness of the censor contained no inkling of what he was doing or where he was.

That was last July and nothing more was heard until the telegram came that "No. 101252 has been reported missing in France." After waiting until the middle of last month Mr. Forgerson wrote to the Canadian authorities to learn if anything had been heard of his son and in reply he got a brief note a few days ago saying that the probabilities were that he was never to be found.

Young Forgerson came to this city from Sussex county five years ago and until the time he left for Canada had been engaged in business with his father. He was unmarried and had, besides his father and mother, one brother.

Our School "Mams" Discuss the H. C. of Living Problem

Five school teachers interrupted sidewalk traffic at Park avenue and Front street yesterday to discuss the high cost of living problem.

The youngest remarked, "It Miss So and So would only wear something different! I have never seen her in anything but that out-of-date brown rig. Most teachers seem to forget their clothes after they have taught a certain length of time."

"My dear," said one who had grown gray in the profession, "Miss So and So has an invalid father, a widowed sister, who takes care of him, and her child, to support. We think she manages remarkably."

"I know I ought to have a new suit," ameliorized another. "The social status of our profession really demands that we be well dressed, but I cannot afford it."

"I thought you received the maximum salary," remarked the first speaker.

"I do, but $2.50 a day doesn't go very far with mother and my young lady daughter to dress. She is in Normal now, however, and, of course, will support herself soon. I wish I could stand it to teach summer and night school. Giving music lessons helps some, however."

"I am sure I could never stand that," replied the youngest one."

"Oh, yes, you could, if you had to," bitterly flung out one who had been silent. "Seven out of every ten teachers have someone dependent on them, and you will find them in the night schools and summer schools, tutoring, sewing or giving music lessons besides, to pay the increased rent and board.

"And what time does that give us to attend university courses of study for promotion, let alone the reading and lectures that we need to keep up with the times! And besides the continual strain makes us irritable and less efficient!

"Take my school. Miss Kay has a helpless father. Miss Warren, an invalid mother and a sister who takes care of her. Miss Kirk has an invalid uncle and an old mother. Miss James an invalid sister and a married sister who cares for her, and her good-for-nothing husband, and she, poor thing, has angina pectoris and may die at any moment herself. Miss Blank has one lame brother, and her older brother, who has been supporting her mother and younger sisters, has just gone blind. What she will do I do not know. And so it goes."

"Miss Willis told me a queer fact today," said another. "This is her first term, you know, so she gets $580 a year. She was out sick for a month and a substitute was hired who gets $3 a day. So the substitute got $66 for the month, while Miss Willis would only have received $58."

The names are fictitious but the idea is expressed.

FANWOOD PLAYER LOSES.

After successfully fighting her way to the third round in the women's national indoor tennis tournament now in progress at the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York, Miss Hazel Gardiner, of Fanwood, was defeated in the semi-finals by Miss Eleanora Goss, 6-2, 7-5. Miss Gardiner is champion of the Westfield Tennis Club and is regarded as one of the best women players in this section. From the manner in which she easily won her two matches in the national tourney is was thought she would at least reach the finals.

NEWS OF THE WEEK CONCERNING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE

Women's Clubs and Other Bodies Active During the Past Week

Henry A. West, of New York, who is secretary of the National Security League, made an address on "Preparedness" before the members of the Plainfield branch of the National Special Aid Society in the auditorium of the Hartridge School yesterday afternoon. Reports were made by the directors of the work being accomplished and that being planned.

The literary department of the Monday Afternoon Club met on Monday afternoon for an interesting meeting. The next general meeting will be held early in April and a program is now being arranged that will include an address by a well known speaker.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Plainfield Business Women's League will be held tonight at 7 o'clock in the Y. W. C. A. After a supper is served those present will listen to addresses by City Judge William G. De Mess on the local courts and by one of the officials of the Prudential Insurance Company.

The junior members of the Y. W. C. A. will hold a St. Patrick's Day party in the association building tomorrow night. The Camp Conference Club held an entertainment and after enjoying a delightful program had refreshments served.

Invitations have been issued by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield for a lecture to be given by Miss Jean McKenzie at the home of Mrs. A. S. Carvalho, of West Eighth street, Tuesday afternoon. Miss McKenzie has recently returned from a trip to the war zone and will speak on "Woman's Place in the War."

A large number of girls at the Plainfield High School have organized a "first aid" class and Dr. Grey has been secured to give a course of lectures on one day a week.

The North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association will be represented at the annual spring conference of the State Parent-Teacher Associations at Trenton on March 17 by Mrs. William O. Taylor, the president, and Mrs. Judd Stewart. The next meeting of the association will be held on March 22, at which time Principal of Schools Albert Early will give an illustrated lecture on Virginia.

The Plainfield branch of the McCall Mission elected the following officers at its last meeting: President, Mrs. Duncan Taylor; vice president, Mrs. Isaac Miller; treasurer, Mrs. John G. Foster; secretary, Mrs. Howard Craig, and secretary of literature, Mrs. Isaac Field.

Lack of interest among the members of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin School has caused the president, Mrs. S. Frederick Smith, to postpone indefinitely the next meeting.

Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, of Englewood, will give the second of a series of four illustrated lectures on South America in the Y. W. C. A. this afternoon before several women's societies.

At the annual meeting of the Union County Committee of the State Charities Aid Society of New Jersey held several days ago, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, of this city, was elected chairman.

Plans are being made for the opening of Kenyon Gardens sometime during the middle of April. A number of new activities will be started this summer but until the next meeting is held within a few weeks nothing definite will be known.

A regular meeting of the Rasores was held at the home of Mrs. W. D. W. Miller, 1st East Seventh street, Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathews, former pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, but now chief librarian for the National Boy Scouts of America, gave an interesting address before the Mothers' Association of the Evergreen Avenue School Wednesday afternoon on "Books For Boys." Dr. Mathews also touched on the educational value of moving pictures, he being a member of the censor board for the Edison Company. The all-day meeting of the Union County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, which was being held in the school Wednesday, was adjourned after a luncheon at noon in order that the members might hear Dr. Mathews.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT ILL.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, who appeared here several weeks ago and who has been touring the country, arrived in New York Wednesday suffering from a severe cold. She was forced to cancel her engagements in two New England cities for this week at the Hotel Savoy, where Mme. Bernhardt went immediately after her arrival, it was stated that the French actress caught cold as the result of riding in cars poorly heated.

Local Belgian Relief Work to be Continued

The possibility of the United States withdrawing as a factor in the Belgian Relief Work will hinder but not stop the activities of the local Belgian Relief Society. The Plainfield branch was the first to organize in the United States and according to prominent members will be the last to stop as long as there is anything more to be done.

If the Hoover commission has to stop its work of keeping some 3,500,000 Belgians from starving it will necessarily mean that the local society will not have to help in supplying it with funds and provisions. However, the larger part of the relief work done has been through Queen Elizabeth or else direct and as long as transportation can be obtained between this country and Europe the work would be kept up by these two means.

Johanson Portraits on View at "Rookery"

Miss Edith Van Boskerck, well known as an interior decorator and painter of mural designs, is giving a two weeks' art exhibition at the "Rookery" on Sycamore street, near Seventh street, it having started Monday. It is free to the public and should attract the large part of Plainfield's lovers of fine art because of the excellent character of the work on exhibition. Miss Van Boskerck has extended a special invitation to local High School pupils and teachers to make an effort to view the exhibit for its educational value.

Besides including a number of excellent specimens of the work of Miss Van Boskerck, the exhibit is made up in part by portrait pictures painted by both Mr. and Mrs. John C. Johanson, of New York. Mrs. Johanson is probably better known in the art world by her maiden name, Miss Jean McClean.

CHANGE FAIR DATE.

The committees in charge of the fair to be conducted by St. Joseph's church next month have decided to postpone the event until April 14 and have it continue until April 21. Each of the various societies will be represented by booths and arrangements for various features are now being made.

James Otto, former German Consul at Rio Janeiro, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital.

N. S. A. S. Prepared for Any Service

As a result of the recent membership campaign the local branch of the National Special Aid Society has grown to nearly 300 and they are now spending all their time learning the rudiments of first aid, making bandages and moulding themselves into a unit that will be of real value in the event of need. A part of the program to prepare themselves will be carried out in the near future when Dr. Harold D. Corbusier gives a course of lectures in the Hartridge School on "Emergency Care of the Wounded."

The society has also started an honorary membership for men who want to help. The dues will be one dollar and already a number have joined. They will not be called upon to do any work, it mere being a sign that they admire the patriotism of the women.

Today the Junior Special Aid Society is having instruction at headquarters in bandage rolling. It is planned to make enough surgical supplies to start a base hospital in case of need or to dovirt to some other service.

Resolutions have been adopted by the directors of the society of their services to both Governor Edge and Mayor Calkins. In each case they have been accepted.

Talented Sopranoist Gave Local Recital

The auditorium of the Plainfield High School was crowded to capacity Tuesday night on the occasion of a recital by Mrs. Betsy Lane Shepherd, one of America's most talented young sopranoists, assisted by Rudolph Polk. Mrs. Shepherd's lyric soprano voice with a charming personality served to find her instant favor with the large audience and her widely varied repertoire of musical selections was enjoyed by even the most critical.

The recital established a precedent in local musical circles in that it was the first time the public had been able to enjoy such a concert without having to pay. Mrs. Shepherd came here under the direction of Vogel & Hirings, of West Front street, and the affair was such an unqualified success that it is probable that similar events will be held in the near future.

Social Function Given for Prospective Brides

Miss Ruth Hooper, of Park avenue, gave a pleasant function at her home Monday night in honor of the Misses Ruth Sadler, Ruth Wean and Annie Smith. All three young women are members of the Korulimo Society and recently announced their engagements. Unique favors and appropriate sentiments were presented to the three prospective brides by the other members of the society at a collation served during the evening.

Miss Sadler, who resides on East Sixth street, will shortly remove to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where her marriage will take place. Miss Wean and Miss Smith will both be married in this city early this summer.

Paderewski to Appear Here in Recital Soon

One more musical treat is to be added to the several that Plainfield people have enjoyed this season when Paderewski, the truly wonderful Polish musician, and generally conceded to be the world's greatest pianist, appears in the Plainfield High School on March 26 under the auspices of the Plainfield Musical Club.

Paderewski, after his meteoric rise from an obscure Polish lad, has been acknowledged as one of the best musicians of all time for a number of years. The Musical Club has not secured Paderewski to come for nothing and it is hoped by those in charge that local people will take this opportunity of hearing such an artist, because aside from the musical treat they will be helping the Belgian Relief, Mercy Committee and Prince of Wales Societies, they receiving equally the proceeds after the paying of expenses.

Word has reached this city from Alfred University that the college glee club will visit this city on March 25 while it is on its annual spring tour. In the morning the club will sing at the Plainfield High School exercises and in the evening will give a concert in the Seventh-Day Baptist church.
